Baby Dies in Accident; Eight Persons Injured

SISTER'S SCREAM FAILS TO PREVENT FATAL ACCIDENT

EIGHT OTHER PERSONS INJURED IN CRASHES

Two Officers Are Slightly Hurt When Police Car Overturns While on an Emergency Call.

Harry Majjar, 2-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Majjar, 305 East Fair street, late Saturday afternoon was crushed under the wheels of a street car which ran over him in front of his home, and died a short time later at Grady hospital. The youngster suffered a fractured skull, a badly mangled body and internal injuries.

Eight persons were injured in other accidents reported during the day.

J. L. Johnson, motorman on the car, and H. R. Echols, conductor, were absolved from all blame in the accident by investigating policemen, and no charges will be made against them. Officers class the mishap as "unavoidable."

The boy was crossing East Fair street near King street, and failed to see the on-coming car, it is stated. He left his sister's side a moment previous to the accident, running into the street directly into the path of the car.

Sister Screams Warning.

Cornelia Majjar, 12, the boy's sister, screamed to warn the child of the impending danger and shouted to the motorman to stop, but too late to prevent the crash.

Mrs. Majjar, carrying her son in her arms, took the boy to the hospital in the car of J. S. McDonald, of Lakewood Heights, who was passing at the time, and she was at the bedside when he died.

In addition to his parents, he is survived by three brothers, Thomas, Philip and Ralph Majjar, and three sisters, Cornelia, Louise and Sarah Majjar.

Funeral services will be held at 3 o'clock this afternoon from the Syrian Catholic church. Interment will

A varied assortment of holdups, house and store robberies and activities of snatch thieves were reported to police Saturday.

The largest loss was suffered by Mrs. James A. Hollomon, 666 Piedmont avenue, wife of James A. Hollomon, of The Constitution, from whom a handbag containing diamonds and other jewelry, valued at $5,000, was taken.

The bag was cut from Mrs. Hollomon's arm as she was walking on Peachtree street Saturday afternoon, but when she discovered the loss a few minutes later she was unable to find any trace of the thieves. The severed handle of the bag, left hanging from her arm after the bag had been stolen, first notified her of the crime.

The bag contained a brooch studded with 30 diamonds, a pair of diamond ear screws, several topaz and diamond rings, $15 in cash, two purses, keys and other trinkets.

J. M. Wadsworth, 408 Ponce de Leon avenue, reported that pickpockets took $65 from his pocket Friday afternoon as he was boarding a Decatur street car at Pryor street and Edgewood avenue. Two men, who he later suspected of the theft, left the car before the loss was discovered.

Loot of $127 in cash and a small amount of jewelry was realized by burglars who broke into the home of L. M. Ganover, 694 Ponce de Leon avenue, Friday night during the family's absence.

Thieves obtained $44 at the Atlantic and Pacific Tea company store, 388 McLendon avenue, it was discovered Saturday morning when employees opened the store for business. Entrance was gained by forcing the lock on a rear door.

Beavers Enters Business Pending Ruling of Court

Attorney Spence Says Legal Action Is Probable This Week.

James L. Beavers, recently ousted as chief of police, announced Saturday that he would launcha gasoline and oil business at Lee street and McCall's crossing "to make a living" during the progress of the legal battle his attorney is planning in an effort to obtain his reinstatement.

Attorney George C. Spence, counsel for the former chief, said the certiorari from the council police committee's verdict probably would be filed this week. Whatever disposition the superior court makes of it, an appeal to the higher courts is said to be certain. The police committee will appeal if its verdict is reversed and the former chief will appeal if it is sustained.

eBavers said Saturday night that he would probably have his filling station ready to open within two weeks. He is remodeling a store at the crossing.

MURMURS OF WOE SMACK ON SOLONS IN GROWING TIDES

BY THOMAS L. STOKES.

Washington, May 3.—Rumbles of dissatisfaction are beginning to beat upon congress from those demanding legislative relief not yet granted, as the scheduled end of the present session comes into sight—now only a month away.

The chief source of discontent are the farmers and those who are asking legislation to bring down railroad rates and otherwise change present railroad practices. This second group also includes the farmers, who want reductions in freight rates on agricultural products.

There are others, too, who are pressing for relief, numerous women's organizations and labor organizations who want the child labor amendment started on its way to the states at the present session of congress. It has already passed the house.

Veterans Nourish Wants, Too.

In addition, veterans' organizations are anxious to have reforms effected in the veterans' bureau, as a result of the disclosures in the senate investigation last year.

There are carefully drawn bills covering all these subjects. In the case of the farmers and the railroads there are perhaps too many bills. Over 500 bills providing some form of farm re-

Atlantans are paying taxes almost twice as fast this year as last, it was announced Saturday night by Marvin C. Roane, city tax collector. The books opened Thursday, May 1.

When the tax window closed at the end of the third day of the time for paying the first installment on 1924 taxes, a total of nearly $80,000 had been received. At the end of the third day last year receipts were only a little more than $44,000.

Taxpayers have until May 15 to pay the first installment of city taxes to get the benefit of 1 1-2 per cent discount and relief from 7 per cent interest charged against all unpaid taxes.

The city tax assessors' drive to put all residents on the tax books was reported Saturday to have increased the number of taxpayers several hundred.

It was found that in the list of public school patrons, people with one or more children receiving education at public expense, a large number were paying no city taxes. In one negro school with more than 1,000 pupils the parents of only 55 paid taxes last year. A smaller proportion of tax evaders was found in the white schools which have been checked by the assessors.

PRESIDENT ZAYAS ARRIVES AT SCENE OF CUBAN REVOLT

NINE REBELS CAPTURED BY GOVERNMENT FORCE

Negotiations for Purchase of War Material, Including Airplanes, in U. S., Admitted.

SALE OF ARMS IS UNDER NEGOTIATION.

Washington, May 3.—Sale of a quantity of American war material to the government of Cuba, which is confronted with a revolutionary uprising, is under negotiation in Washington.

Such a transaction, unlike the recent sale of arms to the Obregon government of Mexico, is specifically authorized under a law passed in 1916, and there is every expectation here that an arrangement for delivery to Cuba of the munitions requested will be perfected within a few days.

The material for which application has been made is worth about $100,000 and includes 3,000,000 rounds of rifle ammunition and about 30 machine guns, all of which would be supplied from surplus materials now in army depots.

Havana, Cuba, May 3.—President Zayas, the first Cuban chief executive ever to go to the scene of an armed revolt, arrived safely late today at Cienfuegos, where it was officially explained, he desired to investigate personally the anti-Zayas and anti-reelection outbreak by armed bands.

The president left Havana this morning on a special train with a military guard. With him were Acting Secretary of War Detancourt, Secretary of Interior Iturralde and

300,000 SERVED BY WATERWORKS

A population of nearly 300,000 served by Atlanta's city waterworks, a gain of 7,441 since January 1 and an increase of 2,198 for the month of April alone, was estimated Saturday by W. Zode Smith, superintendent of waterworks.

The estimate was based on the number of water meters in use in the city and surrounding territory and figured on the proportion of seven persons for each meter, an average found by the water department to be approximately accurate.

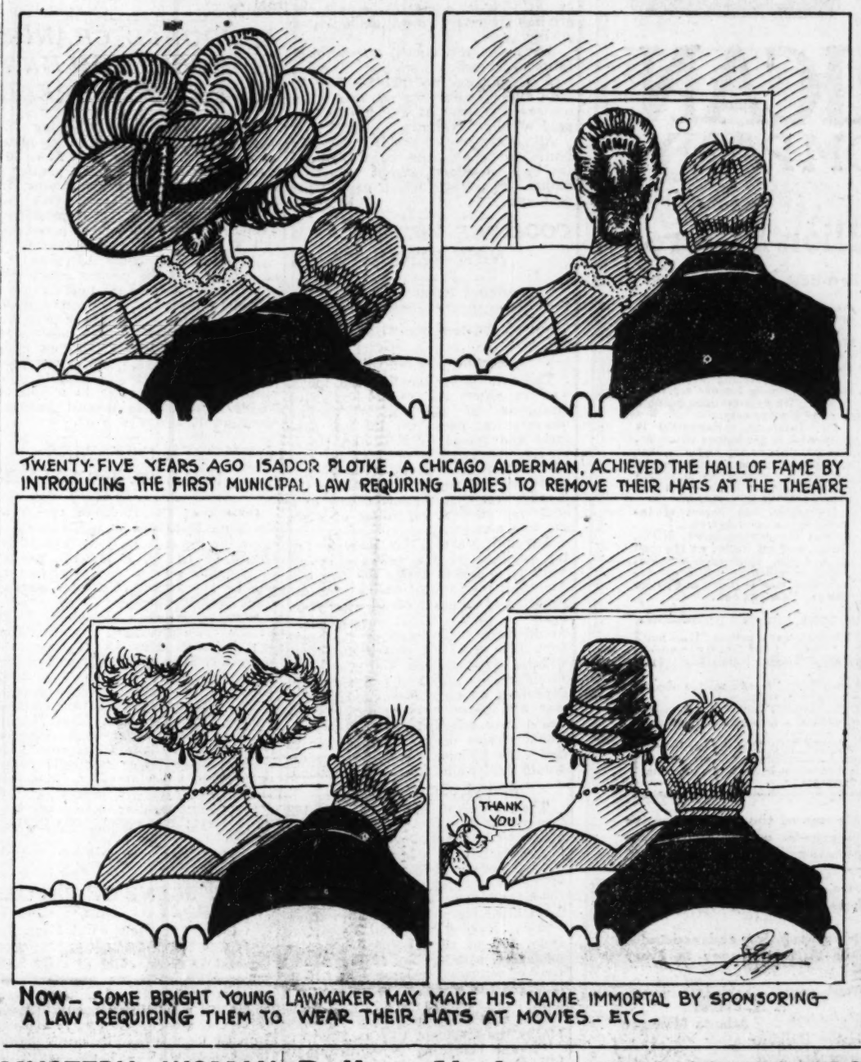

Population increase indicated by water service was substantiated in part for April by building statistics made public Saturday from the office of C. J. Bowen, chief building inspector. Permits for dwellings and apartments to house 376 families were issued during April, making up the bulk of the $1,540,000 worth of building launched during the month.

A ratio of 4.5 persons per dwelling or apartment has been found nearly accurate by the building inspector, indicating increased housing facilities to accommodate 1,692 persons in the city itself. These buildings, however, will not be in use until they are completed during the next month or two.

At the close of the waterworks office Saturday, 41,965 water meters were in service, many of them serving apartment houses with a dozen or more families and some serving hotels or mill villages with several hundred people. Records of the office showed an increase of 1,063 meters since January 1 and an increase of 314 meters since April 1.

Mr. Smith said that the waterworks system is now prepared to pump as much as 50,000,000 gallons of water into Atlanta each day during the summer. The largest amount ever consumed in any one day was 35,000,000, leaving a broad margin of safety for the city.

MYSTERY WOMAN SOUGHT BY POLICE IN SHOOTING CASE

George T. Poole Tells Investigators That He Only Knew Woman Who Shot Him as "Louise."

Police are hunting a mysterious "Louise" who Saturday night shot George T. Poole, of 403 Courtland street, through the right leg in an attempt to kill him, and whose last name and address he has withheld from the officers. The shooting, which all parties concerned are apparently extremely loath to discuss, occurred in the apartment of Miss May Brown, at 40 East Alexander street, according to Poole.

The injured man, who is employed as a driver on a coach line betwen Atlanta and Athens, told Call Officers Chewning and Duncan that he knew the woman only as "Louise," but officers assert that they have information to show that he had

Life at best hangs by a slender thread—but at times it seems that there's more strength in the thread than a steel cable.

Tiring of life, according to his admission, G. D. Reynolds, 46, of 84 Travis street, placed the muzzle of a revolver to his head Saturday afternoon and fired three times.

Instead of producing instant and horrible death, the three bullets inflicted only slight wounds, ricocheting off the skull.

A hurriedly-summoned ambulance rushed Reynolds from his home to Grady hospital, where he was given medical attention and allowed to return home.

At Grady Reynolds told attendants that despondency over ill health prompted him to attempt suicide. His sister was attracted by the shots and called the ambulance.

EYES OF LEADERS FIXED ON REACTION TO DAWES REPORT

Fate of German Democracy Hangs in Balance as Candidates Reflect Factional Warfare.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Berlin, May 3.—Thirty-five million men and women in Germany, who have attained the age of 20, will have an opportunity tomorrow to give untrammeled expression to their political preferences, and upon their verdict will depend in a large measure the future of German politics and economies as well as of the nation's foreignu relations.

Although Sunday's balloting constitutes the most critical of the German post-war elections, the campaign which terminated tonight stimulated only a minimum of popular interest and the fact that 23 parties, representing no less than 75 individual political units, are named on the official ballot, reflects the degree to which internecine political schisms continue to keep the German people in discord.

Fate of Democracy Involved.

While the fate of German democracy is heavily involved the government and political leaders are more deeply concerned with the popular verdict upon the question of making the Dawes report the instrument with which Germany may achieve a definite adjustment of her reparation problem.

Official circles and party leaders who are seeking this goal are hopeful that the combined mandates which may be captured by the socialists, clericals, peoples party and democrats,

BATTLE LOOMING OVER WATER RATE REDUCTION PLAN

Alderman Bachman Will Present Majority Report Recommending That No Change Be Made.

RATES "EXORBITANT," ASSERTS RAGSDALE

Opponents of Change Hold That Any Excess Revenue Should Be Applied to School System.

Council's attitude toward reduction in prevailing city water rates was still undetermined Saturday as the leaders of the finance and water committees prepared to contest the issue on the floor of council Monday.

Alderman J. R. Bachman, chairman of the finance committee, plans to present a recommendation from the majority of the committee that no change be made, declaring that every dollar of revenue from water receipts will be necessary to keep public schools open throughout the year.

Alderman I. N. Ragsdale, chairman of the water committee, supported by three other members of the finance committee, is slated to present a minority report from the finance committee recommending a reduction effective June 1 on all quantities of water, ranging from 60 per cent for the small consumer to 15 per cent to the largest industrial consumers.

Prevailing rates will produce about $1,727,000 revenue this year, according to estimates based on receipts during the two months the new rates have been in effect. This sum is $100,000 in excess of the amount anticipated when the finance committee drew the January apportionment sheet.

The rate proposed by the reduction leaders will produce $1,527,000, or $100,000 less than was anticipated, and that much less than has been appropriated by the city.

Alderman Bachman contends that

COOLIDGE VETOES NEW PENSION BILL

Washington, May 3.—Exercising his veto power for the first time, President Coolidge returned to the senate today without his approval the Bursum-Fuller omnibus pension bill.

The president in doing so informed the senate that he objected primarily to the bill because it would entail an "unwarranted expenditure of the money of taxpayers" at a time when "the burden on the taxpayers must not be increased," it must be decreased."

"The desire to do justice to pensioners, however great their merit, must be attended by some solicitude to do justice to taxpayers," the executive said in his message. "The advantage of a class cannot be greater than the welfare of the nation."

Action Slated Tuesday.

The president's message reached the senate soon after it convened but was not taken up until late in the day. After it had been read, Senator Bursum, republican, New Mexico, who, with Representative Fuller, republican, Illinois, is author of the bill, moved that the matter be laid on the table to be taken up next Tuesday.

Senator Bruce, democrat, Maryland, proposed that the bill be taken up immediately, but the presiding officer ruled that Senator Bursum's motion had precedence.

Senator Bursum, pointing to the vote of 51 to 10, by which the senate passed the bill April 1, declared the measure would be passed over the president's veto, but republican leaders both in the senate and house expressed the belief that the chief executive would be sustained. The house

VITAL PROVISIONS ALREADY BEATEN, M'LEAN ADMITS

G. O. P. Spokesman Calls It Sheer Waste of Time To Argue Normal, Surtax Rate Reductions.

Democratic Schedules Based on Principle of Ability To Pay, Senator Simmons Declares.

Washington, May 3.—Republicans stood by the Mellon plan today in the opening skirmish in the senate fight on income tax rate reductions in the revenue bill when the democratic attack was led by Senator Simmons, North Carolina. Senator McLean, Connecticut, the republican spokesman, conceded, however, he was fighting a losing battle.

Many of the vital provisions of the Mellon proposal already had been repudiated by the senate, Senator McLean said, and he added that in the face of the democratic conference approval of the Simmons plan, "it is a sheer waste of time to be arguing the normal and surtax rate reductions."

Senator Simmons assailed as "unfair and discriminatory" the Mellon rates, providing for a reduction in the maximum surtax rate from 50 to 25 per cent, and re-inserted in the bill by finance committee republicans in place of the Longworth compromise adopted by the house.

Less Than Score Present.

Less than a score of senators were on the floor during the debate, and upon the conclusion of the two speeches, discussion centered on other topics. Senator McLean called attention that for some time only six members were present, "and only three part of the time."

Chairman Smoot of the finance committee, in charge of the bill, reiterated today he would seek night sessions next week. There were no indications of when a vote would be possible on the income tax schedule, the heart of the bill, although some leaders predicted it would be possible Monday.

Explaining the democratic income schedule, Senator Simmons said it was based on the principle of ability to pay. It calls for a reduction in the maximum surtax to 40 per cent, but would allow greater cuts in the normal and lower surtax rates than would the Mellon or house plans.

Senator McLean declared "a low surtax in years of full production, which mean full employment and consumption, will bring much more than a high surtax which can and will be evaded, and the direct effect of which, if not evaded, will be to retard both production and consumption."

"In 1916," he continued, "with a maximum surtax of 10 per cent, the treasury collected $81,000,000 and in 1921, with a maximum of 65 per cent, the treasury collected from these same tax-payers only $84,000,000."

Senator Simmons argued that more

Daughter and Son Charged

ROW OVER FAMILY ESTATE BLAMED FOR ACTION

With Kidnaping Own Mother

Gainesville, Ga., May 3.—(Special.) Thrown bodily by her own son into a waiting automobile driven by her own daughter, Mrs. J. M. Rylee, of Atlanta, has disappeared and has not been found late tonight, according to a story told by Mrs. Nadine Hardy, of 384 South Boulevard, Atlanta, who says that she saw the deed but was too far away to assist her mother. The kidnaping is alleged to be the result of a family row taken to court and involving equities in a Hall county plantation and alimony said to be due Mrs. Rylee. Mr. Rylee is defendant in these cases which involves several thousand dollars.

Sheriff W. A. Crow, of Hall county, and Sheriff James A. Austin, of Lumpkin county, tonight armed with warrants charging kidnaping to Mrs. Louise Jones, of Clifton street, Kirkwood, Atlanta, and Tom Rylee, of Lumpkin county, were still searching for the missing woman. No trace of the occupants of the machine had been found at midnight.

The alleged kidnaping is said to have occurred at the home of a Mrs. Godfrey, where Mrs. Rylee went to get copies of deeds to be used in the conduct of her prosecution of the case, about one hour before trial was to have been commenced by Judge J. E. Jones in Hall county superior court.

"Mother lives with me and we went to Gainesville for the trial," Mrs. Hardy said. "My sister and brother came to the house presumably to discuss the case with mother, but she said that she would say all she had to say in the courtroom. She knew that they sided with father and did not want to talk to them.

"Mother followed them to the sidewalk. Sister got into the machine, started the motor and suddenly brother threw her into the back seat, jumped in and held her while sister drove off. I ran into the street but they were gone."

Mrs. Rylee is represented in her suit by James W. Austin, of Austin & Boykin, Atlanta; A. A. and E. L. Meyer, also of Atlanta, and Judge W. R. Sloan, of Gainesville.

of a reduction should be made on the smaller incomes than proposed by Secretary Mellon. He declared that democrats believed in reduction to the limit, but opposed at this time so much of a cut in the surtax rates.

Senator McLean advanced the suggestion that the maximum surtax be cut to 20 per cent, a sales tax of one-half of one per cent be imposed, taxes on luxuries of five per cent be made, and issuance of tax exempt securities be prohibited.

BATTLE LOOMING OVER WATER RATE

the school department's program, according to the board's budget, will exhaust its funds early in September, forcing the schools to close or to borrow at least $600,000 on 1925 prospects, insuring another huge deficit next year, unless additional money is provided by council. All money in excess of council's anticipations should be held in reserve to come to the rescue of the schools in September, he holds.

"Rates Are Exorbitant."

Alderman Ragsdale and other members of the finance committee and water committee have taken the position that regardless of other conditions, the present water rates are exorbitant and work a grave injustice and hardship on water consumers. They will contend that the rate charged for water shoulld be in keeping with cost and value of the service.

The income originally estimated from the prevailing water rate was $1,627,000 for the entire year.

This estimate did not take into account the unprecedented increase in the number of water consumers in the city.

W. Zode Smith, superintendent of waterworks, stated Saturday that 1,063 new meters had been installed during the first four months of this year and 314 new meters during the month of April alone. The increased number of meters is followed by increased use of water and increased volume of receipts.

Rate Drawn by Smith.

The proposed new schedule of rates was drawn by Mr. Smith to produce $1,527,000 revenue this year with a margin allowed for increased consumption at the rate of 266 new meters each month, the average increase during the first four months.

Mr. Smith said that little probability exists, therefore, that the proposed rate would produce more than the $1,527,000 estimated.

The total number of meters now in use in the city is 41,965. All but about 12,000 use more than the proposed 800 foot minimum and would qualify for the lower rates per 100 feet.

Rates Recommended.

The rate recommended by the minority fixes a net charge of $1 for the first 800 cubic feet of water consumed, as opposed to the prevailing net charge of $1 for the first 500 cubic feet of water consumed. This represents a proposed cut of 60 per cent in the net minimum charge per 100 cubic feet.

The minority rate from 800 to 10,000 cubic feet is 15 cents net per 100, while the prevailing rate 500 to 5,000 is 20 cents and from 5,000 to 10,000 is 16 cents.

The minority rate from 10,000 to 20,000 is 13 cents net per 100 while the prevailing rate 10,000 to 15,000 is 15 cents and 15,000 to 20,000 is 14 cents.

The minority rate from 20,000 to 30,000 is 11 cents per 100, while the prevailing rate for 20,000 to 25,000 is 14 cents per 100 and 25,000 to 30,000 13 cents per 100.

The minority rate from 30,000 upward is 9 cents net per 100 while the prevailing rate 30,000 to 35,000 is 11 cents and 35,000 upward is 10 1-2 cents per 100.

The rate proposed by the minority is slightly in excess of the rate in effect during the last half of 1923 which was $1 for the first 800 feet, 12 1-2 cents per hundred up to 10,000; 12 cents per 100 up to 20,000; 11 1-4 up to 30,000; 10 1-2 up to 40,000; 10 up to 50,000; 9 1-2 up to 60,000; 9 up to 70,000 and 8 3-4 for quantities in excess of 70,000.

The increase in the amount of water allowed for the minimum charge of $1 would benefit about 12,000 people, according to the records in the waterworks department. The amount of the reduction is gradually decreased as the quantity increases because the original increases were made on a sliding scale.

All net rates quoted are subject to an additional 5 cents per 100 cubic feet if bills are not paid within 10 days and the minimum net rate is increased 25 cents if the bill is not paid within that time.

All consumers outside the city limits pay double the amount quoted for city consumers except industrial plants and colleges which pay 50 per cent more.

approved the measure without a record vote.

Second eVto for Bill.

The veto given the measure today was in effect the second executive disapproval of the bill. A similar measure was passed by the last congress and vetoed by President Harding on the grounds of economy and also on the grounds that it was loosely drawn and would have put on the pension roll almost every widow of a civil war veteran, regardless of when she was married.

The bill provides for increases in the pensions of the veterans of all wars up to and including the Spanish-American war and of widows and dependents of veterans of all wars from 1812 to 1902. Civil war veterans would have their pensions increased from $50 to $72 a month and their widows, now getting $30 a month, would receive $35 and $45 a month, depending on age. Spanish-American war and other wars (excepting the world war) veterans and their widows would receive proportionate increases and a few maimed world war veterans would receive additional compensation.

Annual Cost $58,000,000.

The president estimated the bill would cost $58,000,000 annually and bring the total pension bill to a point higher than ever before reached.

The measure had the indorsement of veterans' organizations, including the Grand Army of the Republic and the United Spanish-American war veterans. Headed by Carmi Thompson, Ohio, one of the Coolidge campaign managers, a delegation of representatives of veterans' organizations recently urged the president to approve the bill.

"I am returning herewith senate bill five, 'an act granting pensions and increases of pensions to certain soldiers and sailors of the Civil and Mexican wars and to certain widows, former widows, minor children and helpless children of said soldiers and sailors, and to widows of the war of 1812, and to certain Indian war veterans and widows, and to certain Spanish war soldiers, and certain maimed soldiers and for other purposes,' without my approval.

No Justification Exists.

"For the next fiscal year the effect of this act will be to take an additional $58,000,000 of the moneys paid by the taxpayers of the nation and add it to the pension checks of the veterans of the wars from 1812 to 1902 and their widows and dependents. This is the effect for the first year, but the burden upon the taxpayers will continue for many years to come. While impossible of accurate estimation the commissioner of pensions states that the proposed addition to the pension roll will total approximately $242,000,000 for the first five years and $415,000,000 for the first ten years.

"No conditions exist which justify the imposition of this additional burden upon the taxpayers of the nation. All our pensions were revised and many liberal increases made no longer ago than 1920. Every survivor of the Civil war draws $50 per month and those in need of regular aid and attendance, which already includes 41,000 of them, draw $72 per month. As others come to need this the law already gives it to them. The act also proposes to extend the length of the war period from April 13, 1865 to August 20, 1866, so that those who enlisted during this year and four months of peace now become eligible for the same treatment as those who fought throughout the war. There are other questionable provisions providing for the pensioning of civilians and relating to the pensioning of certain classes of widows.

Main Objection Is Expense.

"But the main objection to the whole bill is the unwarranted expenditure of the money of the taxpayers. It proposes to add more than 25 per centum to the cost of the pension rolls. It is estimated that it would bring the total pension bill of the country to a point higher than ever before reached, notwithstanding it's now nearly 60 years since the close of the Civil war. A generous nation increased its pensions to well over a quarter of a billion annually, and has already bestowed nearly $6,250,000,000 in pensions upon the survivors of that conflict and their dependents, while there has been some decrease in the annual expenses, it is now proposed by a horizontal increase to pay all survivers $72 each month, without regard to age, to their physical condition or financial condition. With the other proposals a new high record of cost would be established.

Is for Economy.

"The need for economy in public expenditure at the present time cannot be overestimated. I am for economy. I am against every unnecessary payment of the money of the taxpayers. No public requirement at the present time ranks with the necessity for the reduction of taxation. This result cannot be secured unless those in authority cease to pass laws which increase the permanent cost of government. The burden on the taxpayers must not be increased, it must be decreased. Every proposal for legislation must be considered in the light of this necessity. The cost of commodities is diminishing. Under such conditions the cost of government ought not to be increasing. The welfare of the whole country must be considered. The desire to do justice to pensioners, however great their merit, must be attended by some solicitude to do justice to taxpayers. The advantage of a class cannot be greater than the welfare of the nation."

METHODIST BOARD FREE FROM DEBT

The board of education of the Methodist church, south, is entirely free from debt as the result of the Christian educational movement of the church, it was made known here Saturday by Dr. Elam F. Dempsey, secretary of education for the North Georgia conference. The financial condition of the board had been reported to the local headquarters by W. E. Hogan, treasurer of the board.

A campaign to bring all denominational schools operating under the church up to the standards set down by the commission of education is in progress under direction of Dr. Stonewall Jackson, general secretary of education, he said. A reclassification is to be made, based on standing on December 1, of this year.

Special campaigns already have added $5,000,000 to the support of church schools, it was reported, with Emory university leading through establishment of the new $1,350,000 Wesley Memorial hospital. Emory's endowment has been increased $257,000; Wesleyan college endowment has been increased $183,390, among others.

ANNOUNCE CHANGE IN MANAGEMENT OF PRESS BUREAU

The Southern Press Clipping bureau announces a change in its management. S. A. Martin, who has been manager for fourteen years, is retiring and has sold his interest in the business to a corporation of which Malcolm Lockhart is president, Thomas H. Watkins, vice president, and V. Manget, general manager.

The Southern Press Clipping bureau is one of the pioneer businesses of Atlanta, having been operated continuously since 1895 and was inaugurated by the exchanges of one Atlanta newspaper being read and clipped by one person. It now clips from a large majority of papers published in the southeast, and its clipping service has grown to a volume which approximates several hundred thousand clippings a year.

EPWORTH OFFICERS WILL BE INSTALLED

Oficers of the Epworth league of the First Methodist church elected to serve for the ensuing year, will be installed by Dr. C. J. Harrell, pastor, at tonight's service. A special feature will be appearance of a male quartet from Fort McPherson.

Officers will be: President, J. B. Swann; vice president, Bowden Palmer; secretary, Mrs. G. B. Everroad; treasurer, Miss Alma Lary; first department superintendent, Miss Julia Bagwell; associate, Stephen Avary; second department superintendent, Julian Jett; asosciate, Miss Martha Stovall; third department superintendent, Miss Clyde Holtzendorf; associate, Miss Willie Bagwell; fourth department superintendent, Miss Bess DeMauney; associate, Mrs. R. C. Jeffords; corresponding secretary, Miss Effie Hart; Era agent, Miss Corinne Smith.

PRESIDENT ZAYAS AT SCENE OF REVOLT

General Herrera, chief of staff. Coincidentally with the president's departure came official announcement of several minor engagements between loyal and rebel forces and of the capture of nine rebels, including Solane Romero, who was a colonel in the Cuban war of independence against Spain. Five other rebels surrendered and 10 rifles and 12 horses were captured by government troops, but there is no word of any casualties.

Most of Island Quiet.

The entire island is quiet, except in the rugged country around Cienfuegos and Trinidad, in the southern part of Santa Clara province, the war department stated today in its first formal communique since the outbreak started Tuesday.

That the remainder of the island is quiet, at least outwardly, was confirmed by information received from the American consul. Word that quiet reigns also has been received from a high official of the United Railways of Havana.

Statements by Mario Garcia-Velez, brother of General Carlos Garcia-Velez, that from 500 to 600 men are in arms in the vicinity of Cienfuegos were declared untrue by government officials today, as was also the announcement credited to Gustavo Gutierrez, secretary of the Veterans and Patriots' association at New York, that a battle took place recently near Cienfuegos, each side having about 200 men.

Number Troops Withheld.

While information as to the exact number of troops sent to the scene of the operations is withheld, it is said that Cuba has 10,000 men in the standing army, including about 5,000 members of the rural guard, which is a part of the army and is used whenever necessary.

The government is negotiating with Washington for the purchase of war material from the United States government, it was learned today, and at the palace it was said that airplanes were on the way here. No details were given out, but at the war department the information was vouchsafed that negotiations have been opened with private firms in the United States for the purchase of airplanes. Cuba has about six or eight aviators who were trained in the American army.

News Dispatches Censored.

Announcement was made that news dispatches from the scene of the revolt are being supervised to prevent misleading statements and the disclosure of military secrets.

By both the government side and and Mario Garcia Velez, the belief is Mario Garcia-Velez the belief is prominent lawyer of Cienfuegos, and veteran of the Cuban war of independence, is commanding the rebellious forces around Cienfuegos.

Senor Velez, who with four other members of the Veterans and Patriots' association is in jail here, made a statement today that the outbreak was not ordered by the heads of the organization, as has been charged, but was started by impatient members who grew tired of delay in their campaign against alleged evils of the Zayas administration.

CHURCH ORCHESTRA WILL GIVE CONCERT

The 25-piece orchestra of the Central Presbyterian Sunday school will give a concert Thursday night under direction of W. Whitney Hubner, director. An attractive program of popular and classical music will be rendered in the auditorium. This is a semi-annual affair to which the public is cordially invited. No admission charge is made.

GEORGIAN WINS CONSULAR POST AT TOKIO, JAPAN

W. T. Turner, 23-year-old Georgia boy and a graduate of Emory university, has just passed examinations in Washington for entrance to the

W. T. TURNER.

American consular service and has been attached to the embassy at Tokio, Japan.

Mr. Turner, who is the son of Mrs. W. P. Turner, formerly of Carrollton and now in charge of the Emory university infirmary, was born in Japan, his father, the late Rev. W. P. Turner, being stationed there as a missionary at the time.

He lived in Japan until he was 12 years of age, when he returned to the United States and entered Emory, graduating there in the class of 1921. He then returned to Japan and engaged in teaching in the Commercial college in Kobe.

Recently Mr. Turner returned to America a second time, taking passage in such a way as to encircle the globe on his home trip. In Washington, with 71 others, he stood examinations for the consular service and was one of only 11 men who were successful.

His command of the spoken Japanese language probably influenced his assignment to the Kobe embassy, but for the next two years he will study the written Japanese language, with which he is unacquainted.

Mr. Turner will sail for Tokio from San Francisco on May 13.

RETAIL MERCHANTS TO DISCUSS PROGRAM

At the regular meeting of officers and directors of the Atlanta Retail Merchants' association to be held during this week, plans for the general membership meeting of the association Thursday, May 22, will be discussed, it was announced Saturday. An outline of plans for the meeting which contemplates a number of unique and unusual features will be submitted by a special committee.

The association has been active recently in an effort to rid Atlanta of itinerant peddlers of wearing apparel and miscellaneous merchandise who have been in the habit of visiting the city temporarily, disposing of their merchandise and leaving purchasers of alleged cheap and unsatisfactory merchandise without recourse or knowledge of their whereabouts. In some cases it is reported that persons have purchased wearing apparel, particularly furs, which were not only very much inferior to the representations made by the peddlers, but not at all worth the amount paid for them. The license department of the city clerk's office, Secretary Hohenstein states, the three Atlanta newspapers and the Association of Office Buildings are co-operating fully with the association in its efforts to keep these traders out of the city.

The membership of the association recently reached the 200 mark and the membership committee, of which T. C. Dickson, of Carroll Furniture company, is chairman, expects to increase the membership to more than 250 before 1925.

Mrs. Gibbs Ill.

Mrs. E. N. (Mother) Gibbs, of 145 Hill street, president of the Helen Gould auxiliary, has been confined to her home for several weeks by illness, but is improving. The vice president will preside at the regular meeting this afternoon at 3 o'clock in the Auditorium.

ARCADE ASSOCIATION MEMBERS PLAN OUTING

At the general membership meeting recently of the Arcade Cooperative association, it was voted to hold the annual summer outing and picnic of the association the latter part of May. During the coming week a special committee will be appointed by President Charles A. Smith to make some arrangements for the outing which will be held at one of the country lakes near Atlanta.

Report made by the committee handling arrangements for the recent spring festival staged by the Arcade association the week of April 11-21 indicated that the spring opening has been a success in every way. A careful count made during the week showed that four times as many visitors passed through the Arcade during that week than during any previous week since the Arcade was built.

State Press Roundly Condemns Crucifixion of Democratic Principles As Done in Recent State Convention

BY JAMES A. HOLLOMON

It is a remarkable fact that in the weekly country press of Georgia not one single defense has been offered, by a single editor, of the so-called democratic convention that was held in Atlanta April 23.

On the other hand, a great many papers have commented most vigorously, some of them going into the whole affair at length, tracing the events leading up to the convention, through the secret manipulations of Randolph, Bell and Hamilton, and on to the machine-controlled assembly in which the voice of 112 upstanding democrats was silenced by the cabalists, in the most abject capitulation of great party principles to the sinister influences of invisible government ever known in this country.

The comments of the newspapers quoted below can be accepted as the sentiment prevailing generally within the press of Georgia.

If one wants to know the outstanding public thought of this state regarding the convention and its manipulators these editorial extracts will reveal clearly and definitely that thought. Some of those follow:

"The McAdoo State Convention."
(From The Lawrenceville News-Herald.)

We call it by that name because it would be a misnomer to describe it as a democratic convention, and one that might be resented by fully one-third of the delegates composing the gathering.

The real personnel of that convention will never be known.

There was a credential committee, but when it submitted its report and the secretary had started to read it, and had called four counties, only one of which had a representative, the leaders were quick to grasp the situation and a member of the steering committee promptly moved that the reading be discontinued, and it was stopped without a dissenting vote.

All the counties having six and four votes were represented, and they were entitled to cast the 196 votes of the 288 delegates actually present, so it follows that the 113 counties having 2 votes each, 226, had only 92 representatives, and that 46 counties were absolutely unrepresented, which was an eloquent protest against the tyrannical and usurpatory conduct of that now ignoble triumvirate, Bell, Hamilton and Randolph, whose names here after will be merely a tradition in the history of Georgia politics, and used as a metaphor by future orators, just as the Yazoo Fraud has been.

As a matter of fact, there was no valid reason or necessity for calling a convention, as the delegates who attended it had no voice in its proceedings, and could not even make a motion, without the consent of the "steering committee," especially appointed to operate the steam roller.

This was not a representative democratic convention, in that the people who carried Georgia for McAdoo by such a splendid majority had no voice in naming the delegates to it, all of whom were picked by Bell, Hamilton and Randolph, two nights following the primary, behind locked doors of a private room of the Kimball house, and without consulting the voters of a single county. That was not democratic, but vilely autocratic, and any man who says to the contrary is either a knave or a fool.

This triumvirate assumed absolute authority to control every delegate to the convention, and to dictate what questions should be voted upon by them, upon the idea that they were their creators, and the creator is greater than the created.

Through their influence and control, they induced the convention to do a very dangerous thing, and, we fear, a harmful one, by the adoption of a resolution instructing the delegates to the New York convention to "vote for McAdoo until he is nominated," instead of instructing them to vote for him so long as his name is before the convention.

That resolution, if obeyed, may place the Georgia delegates in a very embarrassing position, because in the event Mr. McAdoo sees that there is no possibility of his receiving the nomination, and withdraws his name, the Georgia delegates cannot participate in the nomination of any candidate for the presidency, but must continue to sit and vote alone for McAdoo to the end.

We are exceedingly anxious for McAdoo to get the nomination, because we have full faith in his ability, fitness and integrity, and believe that he is the strongest and most popular candidate that could be named, and one that the people would elect, but this attitude of his Georgia representatives may influence uninstructed delegates from other states not to go to his support, as it appears rather dictatorial, than otherwise, and may be openly and effectively resented.

We have no idea that Mr. McAdoo had been informed of the dirty methods adopted by these managers when he gave them that O. K., nor that he would not have indignantly rebuked such infamous conduct, had he known of it, but be that as it may, he has been put upon the defensive, and certainly defeated for the nomination, unless he enters the convention by a two-thirds majority, of which we have very little hope.

An Aftermath Certain.
(From The Tifton Gazette.)

There's going to be an aftermath to the state convention. It was a pill that even Mr. McAdoo's most loyal supporters found it difficult to swallow and many are biding the time when opportunity will present an occasion for showing the "pickers" how Georgia democrats feel about such high-handed, personal preferment methods. Commenting on the recent meeting in Atlanta, The Albany Herald (a loyal McAdoo supporter) says: "The steam-roller functioned all right in the state convention in Atlanta. The 'cabalists' had everything so well fixed and scheduled that nobody was permitted to get in the way of the steam roller. The machine was so well oiled and otherwise conditioned that it went over the track without a hitch, and there were enough alert traffic cops on the job to keep the track clear of any obstruction."

(From The Brunswick News.)

Lulled into a sense of security in the lullaby of promised peace and fairness, which, came from that newly-created triumvirate of political power in Georgia—Randolph, Hamilton and Bell—we ventured into the slaughter house, much in the shape of innocence abroad, and witnessed the hand-picked delegates at work.

Sometimes men in a few moments of power can do damage that it will take years of effort and work to remedy. So it will be with this crime against democracy committed by this trio of graces who, exercising a granted privilege of the moment, dealt the party in Georgia a blow that will leave its sting for many years to come!

It was against all tenets of democratic rule to have plucked these delegates themselves, as against the time-honored custom of permitting the executive committees in the various counties to exercise that function. That, we say, was crime enough to nauseate every man in the state who believes in fair play and clean sportsmanship in the game.

The whole performance was a snare and a delusion and in the days to come, as sure as Holy Writ, it will rise to rebuke the men who are responsible for it. It was the mere inculcating into the democracy of Georgia the hyena brand of politics of which Newt Morris is a notable exponent and in which role he was running true to form.

"What Gained by It?"
(From The Bainbridge Searchlight.)

All the convention is over and we would like to ask some man what has been gained by it.

We were a member of the state committee when the whole revolting and indecent thing was brought out and then to find a thing like that presiding over a state convention. McAdoo surely did get rough treatment at the hands of his friends. They ought to have sent and got Boss Tweed to have presided over that convention if the services of a political brigand were needed.

(From The Macon Telegraph.)

It is not the ambition of the right-thinking simply to be on the winning side. It matters little if one ever is on the winning side, so far as simply the winning is concerned. The function of a newspaper, as we see it, is to state to its readers what it believes to be the truth and the right. As to how they may themselves think and act in the premises when the time comes for voting is strictly their own business; and if a majority of the people who go to the polls on a given occasion do not vote according to the best insight of this newspaper, we would present a sorry spectacle in an attempt to change our insight and judgment simply because of that fact.

The Telegraph recognizes the fact that Mr. McAdoo has been selected as the presidential nominee so far as the majority decision of Georgia is concerned—and that ends that particular matter. The Georgia delegates are going to New York instructed, or commanded, to vote for Mr. McAdoo until the end of the convention, even after he himself has voluntarily withdrawn and has released the delegations instructed in his behalf, if that should come. Incidentally, this action is the best thing that could have happened to any and all candidates considered as anti-McAdoo, as some view the Georgia delegation as warmly opposed to all those candidates who decline to join hands with McAdoo in the New York convention.

If one must be bound hand and foot and gagged, in the face of whatever may take place in this state in regard to political procedure that might make important history and set far-reaching precedent, to be a good sport, then we are very thankful that we are something else—and all who desire may accept this as treason.

We know that the state democratic convention was a farce and we should say so.

The Atlanta affair was not a convention. As to the statement about the counting of ballots, why should there have been any balloting at all? Why should there have been any convention at all? The dictators could have met among themselves and carried out their decrees and any other plans they had in mind, and not have been worried in the least with those who had no right to speak. Such men as the Hon. D. C. Barrow, who could not be bought off to silence by a place on the New York delegation and had to be flattened out with the steam roller, would not have been on hand to perplex the lords of Georgia creation and the white-robed gentry with whom they have lain down in the trough of a degenerated democracy.

"The McAdoo Convention."
(From The Lincoln Journal.)

The so-called democratic state presidential convention held in Atlanta last week was the most disgraceful affair of its sort ever pulled off in Georgia.

It was a democratic convention with all the democracy left out.

There was no roll call of the counties. Free speech was denied. Autocracy and the steam-roller reigned supreme.

In the convention, David Barrow, of Savannah, undertook to speak, but about as far as he got was to rise in his seat. The steam roller engineer would not recognize him. Mr. Barrow did not fully agree with the program of the McAdoo bosses, and therefore he was shut off, rolled upon and flattened out.

Others were given similar treatment.

That Convention.
(From The Millen News.)

Perhaps it would be more polite to refer to it merely as "That 1924 State Convention." Anyway it is a thing of the past, and with nothing to distinguish it save a small "steam-roller"—not the ponderous kind, but of the Ford type. However, the very kind that the people have a horror of being run over by. The strange thing is—how that outfit was able to operate a "steam-roller" at all, and our prediction is—that they will never be intrusted with another. Shades of Georgia's departed statesmen, in pity behold us, and inspire some one to rise from among us who is worthy of our once exalted leadership.

A Lesson to Learn.
(From Washington News-Reporter.)

If Mr. McAdoo should ever want to run for anything in Georgia again, if he is the wise man we believe him, he will not put himself in the hands of the fellows who managed his last campaign.

Chattooga Gets Gas Tax.

Summerville, Ga., May 3.—(Special.)—Chattooga county has received the sum of $1,500 as its share of the gasoline tax collected under the new state law which provides for three cents a gallon for all gasoline used in the state, this being Chattooga county's share of the tax for the first quarter of 1924. About $1,300 was paid over to this county by the state for the last quarter of 1923.

Fort Valley Peach Festival Receives National Notice

The peach festival at Fort Valley is the subject of the feature article in the April 26 issue of The Dearborn Independent, under the title "Festival Held in Honor of Georgia Peach—Pageant Links the China of 2000 B. C. With the Georgia of Today." The article is also captioned on the cover page as "The Georgia Peach in Festival Bloom."

The story covers the three annual pageants held in Fort Valley, gives a resume of other American festivals, a history of the evolution of the peach and its introduction into America, and a history of peach-growing in Georgia. It brings out the fact that the peach industry in Georgia is worth to the state nearly $10,000,000 annually.

The article was written by Miss Claire Giles, of Atlanta, member of the staff of "Home, School and Community," the state educational journal of Georgia.

FLORISTS DROP PLAN FOR BIG FLOWER SHOW

The regular May monthly membership meeting of the Atlanta Florists and Horticulturists' club will be held Monday night at 8 o'clock in the assembly hall, chamber of commerce. Entertainment features have been arranged by the entertainment committee, of which Mrs. J. L. Harper is chairman, while the educational committee, headed by Ralph Deans, has invited one of the prominent retail merchants of the city to make the principal address of the occasion.

At a recent meeting of the board of directors of the club it was found inadvisable to further consider plans for staging an annual flower show in Atlanta. The club has had this matter under consideration for some time, is is announced.

Getting Skinnier Every Day

Something Must Be Done and Done Darn Quick, Too.

Tens of thousands of thin, run-down men—yes, and women, too—are getting discouraged—are giving up all hope of ever being able to take on flesh and look healthy and strong.

All such people can stop worrying and start to smile right now for McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Tablets, which any druggist will tell you all about, is putting flesh on hosts of skinny folks every day.

One woman, tired, weak and discouraged, put on 15 pounds in five weeks and feels fine.

We all know that Cod Liver Oil is full of flesh producing vitamines, but many people can't take it because of its horrible smell and fishy taste, and because it often upsets the stomach.

McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Tablets are as easy to take as candy, and if any thin person don't gain at least 5 pounds in 30 days your druggist will give you your money back—and only 60 cents a box. Ask Jacobs' Pharmacy Co., E. H. Cone, Inc., or any live pharmacist anywhere. Get McCoy's, the original and genuine Cod Liver Oil Tablet.—(adv.)

Ford Runs 57 Miles on Gallon of Gasoline.

A new automatic and self-regulating device has been invented with which automobiles have made from 40 to 57 miles on a gallon of gasoline. It removes all carbon and prevents sparkplug trouble and overheating. It can be installed by anyone in five minutes. I want agents and am willing to send a sample at my own risk. Write me today.

Tiz is grand, glorious for tortured feet. It draws the swelling and poisons and acids right out. Stops the pain of corns. Puts your feet into perfect condition.

Get a box of Tiz now at any drug or department store. Don't suffer. Have feet that never hurt, never get tired. —(adv.)

Agnes Scott To Hear McMahon Address At College Closing

Decatur, Ga., May 3.—Rev. John Robertson McMahon, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, Montgomery, Ala., will deliver the baccalaureate sermon at the commencement exercises of Agness Scott college, which begin here Friday, May 23, and continue through Tuesday, May 27, it is announced.

The address to the senior class at the graduating exercises on the closing day of commencement will be made by Dr. Bruce Ryburn Payne, president of George Peabody College for Teachers, Nashville, Tenn.

Annual meeting of the board of trustees of the college will be held at 10 o'clock Friday morning, May 23, and at 3 o'clock in the afternoon of the same day, the annual alumnae council meeting will be held, according to the program.

To Present Play.

Saturday evening, May 24, the Blackfriars will present Shakespeare's "Midsummer Night's Dream." The school trustees will give a luncheon to the alumnae during the afternoon, after which the annual meeting of the alumnae association will be held.

The baccalaureate sermon will be delivered Sunday by Rev. McMahon in the Decatur Presbyterian church. On the following day at 1 o'clock in the afternoon, a luncheon for the reunion classes will be given. Class day exercises will be held at 4 p. m. Monday and at 8:30 o'clock in the evening, a concert will be given by the Agnes Scott Glee club.

Dr. Payne will deliver his address to the senior class Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock. The conferring of degrees will follow.

May Day Pageant.

Nearly 2,000 spectators Saturday witnessed the most successful May day pageant ever attempted by Agnes Scott students. Exercises opened at 4 o'clock, continued through the afternoon, and concluded Saturday night with a mock opera in the auditorium of the school.

Miss Lucy Oliver, of Montgomery, was crowned "Queen of the May" to open the exercises. The queen's maids who participated in a May pole dance following the "coronation," included Misses Evelyn King, Virginia Ordway, Weenona Peck, Augusta Thomas, Mary Walker Perry, Eunice Evans, Mary Breedlove, Virginia Burt, Ellen Walker, Mary Keesler, Ewin Baldwin and Grace Boone.

The presentation of "Psyche and Eros" was a feature of the afternoon's celebration. The sketch was originally presented in 1919, and following numerous requests, was reproduced Saturday. Miss Virginia Peeler took the role of Psyche, Miss Harriet Fearrington that of Eros, Miss Sarah Slaughter represented Aphrodite, and Miss Virginia Sevier played Hermes.

The operetta Saturday night, "Dora's Goodenuff," was a burlesque on a recent grand opera in Atlanta. Leading parts were taken by Misses Poliy Stone, Frances Gilliland, Dick Scandrett, Lillian May McAlpine, Victoria Howe, Nancy Evans and Mary Green. The "Rush-in" ballet also played a big part in the success of the affair.

Miss Randolph, gymnasium instructor at the school, who was in charge of the dancing at the Saturday pageant, was presented with a large bouquet following the afternoon's program. The musical part of the program was under direction of C. W. Dieckmann, music instructor at Agnes Scott. Others in charge of the entertainment were Misses Lucy Oliver, Virginia Burt, Mary Walker Perry, Harriet Fearrington, Dell Barnhardt and Martha Lin Manly.

FINAL TRIBUTE PAID TODAY TO GEN. CARR

Durham, N. C., May 3.—Durham tomorrow will pay a final tribute to its beloved friend and citizen, the late General Julian S. Carr. The funeral services will begin at the home, after which the body will be carried from the home through the city's main thoroughfare, which will be draped in mourning, and to Maplewood cemetery for the final ceremony.

Today the home was thrown open to the public. Thousands passed into the home where the body lay. Sorrow was written on every face. Silently they filed passed the bier for their last glimpse of the familiar and beloved face. People from every walk of life, including many of the city's negro population, made their way into the home and by the casket containing the body of the illustrious dead. The rich and the poor mingled together in paying tribute to the man.

On the casket of gray were draped two Confederate flags while at the head, standing on the floor, was a large Confederate flag, a floral offering. In the casket lay the body, dressed in the uniform of a Confederate general, which he loved to wear on all occasions where it was appropriate. On the lapel of his coat was placed a white carnation, his favorite flower, and which he most always wore.

The floral tributes received at the home throughout Saturday were many and beautiful, but the number was not so great as it would have been had it not been for the oft repeated request of General Carr that his friends send books to the local public library rather than send flowers.

McCormick To Ask Recount of Votes In Senate Primary

Chicago, May 3.—Senator Medill McCormick, aspirant for a second term, who was eliminated from the republican ticket in the Illinois primaries, will request a recount of the vote, he announced today. The present count gives former Governor Charles Deneen the nomination by a lead of approximately 5,000 votes.

McCormick's receipt of a petition signed by 100 of his supporters, and requesting that he ask the recount, prompted the announcement made to newspaper men.

McCormick's petitioners charged elections frauds and said that "upon the face of the election returns, it would indicate the citizens were thwarted in expressing their choice for senator."

With a preamble that "the people of the state are entitled to choose a tried and proven senator as against any machine," the petition reads:

"We earnestly express the hope that if the courts can so function that the true facts regarding known frauds can be discovered, you will insist on a recount of the ballots."

The signers were from all walks of life.

SOUTHWEST MINERS SIGN 3-YEAR PACT

Kansas City, May 3.—The strike of approximately 40,000 coal miners in Missouri, Kansas, Oklahoma and Arkansas was settled here late today and the miners will return to work May 5, W. L. A. Johnson, general commissioner of the Southwestern Interstate Coal Operators' association, announced.

The new contract carries a renewal of the 1923 basic wage scale, effective for three years from last April 1.

Newell Dwight Hillis Ill—He May Never Resume His Pastorate

Melrose, Mass., May 3.—The Rev. Dr. Newell Dwight Hillis, former pastor of the Plymouth Congregational church of Brooklyn, N. H., and known throughout the country as the successor of Dr. Henry Ward Beecher, is ill at a sanitarium here, it was learned Saturday.

The former Brooklyn preacher is suffering from a shock which he received several weeks ago, and it is feared he will never be able to resume a pastorate again. Doctors at the hospital stated tonight, however, that his condition was improving and that he was able to take short walks accompanied by his nurse.

Washington, May 3.—Women crusaders for world-wide peace, attending the congress of the Women's International League for Peace, blame the international bankers for most of the international discords.

One speaker after another today condemned the "unholy alliance between cannon and capital," and called for a new deal in politics and diplomacy.

The keynote of the session, which was devoted to the economic aspects of a new international order, was given by Frau Ella Hertzka, of Austria, who said "the real, controlling power in international relations today is not political or economic, but financial."

"Interantional finance is a superstate, which dictates international policies in each country, always to serve its own ends. Politicians and statesmen, industrialists and labor alike are all at the mercy of the powers of international finance," she said.

Mme. Marguerite Dumont, of France, furnished what she claimed were concrete examples of the evil machinations of international finance in world relations.

"Oil and steel are the most powerfull of these super-state groups," Mme. Dumont said.

"The super-state of oil is already starting friction between the United States and England. What appears to be a post-war struggle between France and Germany is really the struggle of two international industrial groups for control of steel. The Ruhr question is a question of steel."

Mme. Dumont declared the recent revolution in Mexico could be traced to the Royal Dutch Shell and Standard Oil companies.

"The new international order hailed by the women implies economic revolution in all countries," Miss Elimy Balch, representing the American section at the conference, declared. The most menacing immediate obstacle in the way of this, however, she said, is the alliance of nationalist politics with business and finance.

ISLAND FREEDOM SHOULD BE STUDY

Washington, May 3.—Advisability of granting independence to the Philippine Islands should be studied in a manner similar to that employed by the Dawes reparations committee, John M. Switzer, of New York, president of the Pacific Commercial company, today told the house insular committee.

Mr. Switzer, who testified that his commercial interests in the islands began with their acquisition by the United States, asserted a "non-political and non-prejudiced" survey of the Philippine situation would be advisable. He recommended that if independence were granted, it be postponed a few years.

"We must not take the Filipinos too seriously," he said, "as deep in their hearts are better judgment many of them prefer a period of home rule under our sovereignty."

BABY DIES IN ACCIDENT; 8 HURT

Two Policemen Injured.

Call Officers Stone and Cartright, speeding on their way to answer an emergency call, were injured slightly when the police call car, driven by Officer Cartright, overturned following an attempt to avoid a collision at Piedmont avenue and Cain street.

The police car was going north on Piedmont avenue when a United States mail truck driven by A. H. Wilson, 92 Graham street, entered Piedmont avenue from Cain and became stalled in the middle of the street. Officer Cartright attempted to turn into Cain to avoid a crash, and as he did so, one of the tires on the police car blew out, the sharp turn and the blowout causing the car to turn turtle.

The officers were answering a call to the home of a Mrs. Henry, 411 Piedmont avenue, who stated that a boy had been injured by an automobile while playing ball in the street in front of her home.

Three Cars in Crash.

J. R. Hardwick, of 598 Ponce de Leon avenue, and J. H. Harding, 37 Woodward avenue, were arrested on charges of reckless driving following a collision at Orme circle and Park drive in which machines driven by those two and one driven by Mrs. Gordon Lockett, of 112 Juniper street, figured.

Call Officers Duncan and Chewning, who made the charges, state that Hardwick's touring car crashed into Harding's truck, knocking the truck against Mrs. Lockett's sedan. No one was injured.

S. J. and W. W. Lampkin, brothers, whose address is given as Piedmont avenue, and Mrs. Pathenia Turner, of 80 Tumlin street, suffered slight injuries when their car, driven by W. W. Lampkin, struck a machine driven by J. E. Hixon, of 83 Gaskill street, at Luckie and Simpson streets Saturday night.

Both W. W. Lampkin and Hixon were arrested by Call Officers Cartright and Stone on charges of reckless driving.

Auto Strikes Street Car.

John Christie, of 53 Walker street, was hurt, and his machine practically demolished Saturday when he smashed into a standing street car at Marietta and Foundry streets.

Call Officers Milam and Weaver, who investigated, claim that Christie was traveling at a rate of 50 miles an hour, and was unable to turn quick enough to avoid hitting the street car. Christie's injuries were dressed at Grady, and he was then taken to police headquarters to face a charge of reckless driving.

Several accidents Friday night were reported to police Saturday, but none of the injured was seriously hurt, and only one required hospital attention. Frank McCleton, a negro, suffered a broken leg when the truck he was driving was struck by a train in College Park, and Thomas E. Carter, of 116 West Peachtree street, miraculously escaped with only minor injuries when the speeding machine was thrown into a telephone pole and overturned.

Carter states that the machine struck a depression in the road, careened into the telephone pole, and rolled over twice. The automobile was practically demolished, but Carter's injuries consisted of scratches about the face and body.

McCleton was hurt when his truck was struck by an inbound Atlanta and West Point passenger train in College Park. The truck was loaded with lumber, which was strewn along the track for several hundred feet. The man was taken to Grady hospital for treatment.

CONCERT FOR TONIGHT AT ADVENTIST CHURCH

A sacred concert will be given by the choir of the First Seventh-Day Adventist church at 191 Cherokee avenue, at 7:45 o'clock tonight.

Daughter-in-Law Of Robert E. Lee At Death's Door

Richmond, Va., May 3.—Mrs. Mary Tabb Bolling Lee, widow of Major General W. H. F. Lee and daughter-in-law of General Robert E. Lee, tonight lies near death's door.

Dr. George Bolling Lee, New York city, her son, and the only male descendant of the south's great general in the Civil war bearing the name of Lee, said it was doubtful if she would live through the night.

Mrs. Lee's health began to fail in 1922, following the death of her oldest son, Colonel Robert E. Lee, at Roanoke, Va., on Labor day. Three weeks ago she came to Richmond from Summerville, S. C., where she had spent the winter.

Mrs. Lee was born in Petersburg, Va., August 20, 1847, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Bolling. Her girlhood days were spent in Petersburg and during the defense of Petersburg, General Lee, on leaving, kissed her, remarking that she was to be the bride of his son.

The marriage of Miss Bolling to Major General Lee occurred just after the war and General Lee attended the wedding, making his first public appearance after the surrender at Appomattox. The Lees went to the white house, between Richmond and West Point, to reside. This is the estate which was inherited from the Washingtons by the Lees. Later they moved to Ravensworth, where Major General Lee took up farming.

Major General Lee was born in the Lee mansion at Arlington and during the Civil war he commanded General J. E. B. Stuart's left wing of cavalry. He was wounded at Brandy Station and later, in Hanover county, was captured. He served in congress from 1887 until 1891. He died in October, 1892.

MURMURS OF WOE SMACK ON SOLONS

lief were presented to the senate committee on agriculture for its consideration, out of which three or four have received serious attention. There is no agreement on any of them.

Neither the house nor senate has yet done anything on farm or railroad legislation, though committees have been busy studying the problems.

Rail Bill Up Monday.

The house will take up a railroad bill Monday, the Barkley bill which abolishes the railroad labor board and sets up in its place four boards of adjustment and a body of final appeal, a board on mediation and conciliation. It was forced from committee by a petition from the house. The petition required 150 signatures, which gives an idea of the power of the demand. Railroads are countering heavily.

Soon the house expects to take up the McNary-Haugen bill for agricultural relief, setting up a $200,000,000 marketing corporation for farm products.

But the senate is still in the midst of the tax bill, and will be for some time yet, after that, if an agricultural measure gets the right of way, it will have to be hurried through, for little time will be left for its consideration.

There is considerable disagreement, too, as to the form of farm relief, which will cause delay.

Two railroad measures have been reported to the senate, one asking the interstate commerce commission to lower freight rates on agricultural products, the other moditying the system of the long and short haul. Chairman Smith, of the committee, hopes to get other measures out, but does not expect action on more than one or two of them from the senate.

There has recently come a wave of protest from western states because of inaction on railroad legislation—similarly, from the farmers for agricultural relief. The farmers may be answered. It is doubtful if the railroad legislation will get any farther than the calendar of the senate.

The healthy look that
SYRUP PEPSIN
Gives is Natures Own

Ladies! This Beats Cosmetics

GOOD health cannot be camouflaged by powder and rouge. The eyes will tell. That sparkle and clearness that denote good health will not be there if you are constipated. Mrs. Clara Proctor of Pottersville, Mich., had been told by doctors she had this and that disease, and one advised an operation, but she knew she had been constipated all her life so first tried Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. She avoided the operation and now feels better than she ever did. Likewise Mrs. William Appleton of Eddington, Pa., who was badly constipated and now looks her best again after using Syrup Pepsin.

On Sale for 30 Years

Intelligent women are realizing that health and mere outward complexion are two different things, and more and more are taking Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Over 10 million bottles were bought in drug stores last year, the largest selling liquid laxative in the world! Go to your druggist and buy a bottle. The cost is less than a cent a dose. You will see how much more effective a spoonful of Syrup Pepsin is than tablets, powders or pills, and without shock to the system.

Safe Family Laxative

Use it regularly a day before and a day after the periods. The gentle emptying of the bowels will give you relief, and lessen headaches and congestion. Take a spoonful at bed-time and see how much better you feel in the morning. It is a vegetable compound of Egyptian senna and pepsin with agreeable aromatics, and entirely safe not only for you but for the youngest child. Keep a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin constantly in the home for you or some other member of the family may need it any moment to relieve constipation, to break up fevers and colds, to clear up biliousness, indigestion, a pimple, a fever sore and other disturbances that show constipation.

You wouldn't know the house that grandfather built—

What a difference these little changes make

Grandfather said this house he built in 1883 would last a hundred years. And undoubtedly it will — but styles of 1883 are not in style today.

We had wanted to remodel our house for years

We had thought and talked about remodeling the old house for years —but the Barrett Book, "Better Homes from Old Houses" settled the question by showing us how to do it—easily and economically. It is full of suggestions for changes we could really afford. And our local builder did all the work.

The cost was small—but see the result

We simply added the dormer window, built on a new porch and entrance and put shutters on the windows. But just see the difference. And it gave us more light and more room upstairs, too.

STORM DEATH LIST INCREASED TO 109

Three additional deaths from Wednesday's tornadoes in southern states reported Saturday increased the total list to 109.

A 10-year-old girl was killed in Lee county, South Carolina, it was learned, making a toll of 74 lives in 13 counties of that state. One man died of injuries Saturday in Red River parish, Louisiana, where a belated report told of another fatality in addition to one already reported.

The death list by states:

South Carolina, 74; Georgia, 14; Alabama, 11; North Carolina, 5; Louisiana, 3; Arkansas 1, and Virginia 1.

The hundreds injured may never be accurately listed, relief officials believe, and the estimated damage of $10,000,000 to property remains unchanged.

Supervised by field units of the American Red Cross, various local relief agencies bent their efforts toward penetrating to the outermost fringes of the storms' sweep to complete so far as possible a definite survey of the stricken regions.

Meanwhile, the injured are being treated in available hospitals within the affected area while the homeless either are being sheltered and fed in hastily constructed concentration camps or in the homes of the more fortunate survivors.

National resources of the Red Cross are being drawn upon to meet the needs of the sufferers. In addition to funds which have been made available by headquarters of the organization to aid local chapters properly to administer relief, several hundred tents and necessary equipment have been dispatched to provide temporary homes for the destitute.

In South Carolina, where the storm struck at its worst, the first Red Cross unit to arrive was found inadequate to operate on the extensive basis required and four additional workers were en route there Saturday.

With a total of 74 dead alone in that state, at least 200 injured and nearly 1,000 homeless, Governor McLeod appealed to the state and country as a whole to lend assistance to the sufferers.

POWER COMPANY BUYS SUMMERVILLE PLANT

Summerville, Ga., May 3.—(Special.)—The distributing system of the Summerville electric light plant, operated by the Summerville Cotton mills, has been purchased by the Georgia Railway and Power company. The new owners, it is understood, will take over the business, including all poles, lines and equipment, about July 1.

The Georgia Railway and Power company is just completing its substation here and it is said the line between Lindale and the Tennessee line will be completed in about sixty days.

Alderson To Direct Music This Morning At Central Church

James Alderson, former organist at the Central Presbyterian church and at the Howard theater here, will be in charge of the musical programs this morning and night at Central church. Mr. Alderson, who, with Mrs. Alderson, is visiting Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Cooney, is organist at Grove Park Inn, Asheville.

The chorus choir, under direction of Organist J. Gordon Moore, and the solo quartet composed of Mrs. Robert L. Cooney, soprano; Miss Bertha Simms, contralto; A. A. Wootten, tenor, and Ernest Allen, basso, also will participate in the program.

BANDITS SLUG AND ROB GAS STATION MANAGER

J. R. Crenshaw, 19, of 94 Donally street, night manager of the Ryan service station at Highland avenue and Boulevard, Saturday night was slugged and robbed by three unidentified white bandits, he told police. Detectives Woolley and Mosely, who arrived at the station a few minutes after the robbery, obtained descriptions and clues which they think establish the identity of the bandits, and which are expected to lead to arrests today.

Crenshaw suffered a badly cut and bruised head, and was taken to Grady hospital for treatment. He says the three men drove up to the station and alighted as he was preparing to close for the night. They asked him for several articles which were not on sale at the station, and when he was unable to furnish them, the men berated him.

One of them struck him on the head with a blunt instrument, knocking him down, and while one held him, the others rifled the cash register of the station, obtaining $25 in change.

Clothes valued at several hundred dollars were stolen from the home of A. Seigel, 65 Kelley street, Saturday night, it was reported to police by B. Goldberg, a roomer at the house.

Goldberg told Call Officers Goode and Bullard that when he arrived home at midnight, the Seigel family had not yet returned, and that he found the front door and one window open. Two suits, an overcoat, several shirts, and two pairs of shoes owned by Goldberg were taken, and as the rooms occupied by the Seigels also had been ransacked. It is presumed that clothes owned by them were stolen, although no check could be made late Saturday night.

ford Walker last August, and in seeking reelection for a full term, he states that he has endeavored in the few months of his incumbency to so conduct his office as to warrant indorsement of election by the voters.

Headquarters have been established at room 104, Kimball House, and John L. Cone will be campaign manager. An active campaign will be waged up to the date of the state democratic primary in September.

Final Services for Prominent Woman To Be Held Today

Funeral services for Mrs. William T. Works, who died Friday night at the residence, 75 Oxford road, will be held at 3 o'clock this afternoon from the residence and interment will follow in Decatur.

Mrs. Works is well known in Georgia, having been born in Cuthbert, Ga., in 1847 and residing practically all her life in this state. For a few years she lived in Alabama, coming to Atlanta in 1898 following the death of her husband, a well known planter.

She is survived by three daughters, Mrs. F. E. Darnes; Mrs. Carrie W. Shonesy, and Miss Ruth Works. A number of grandchildren survive her.

McCray Assigned As Library Clerk In Federal Prison

Assigned to do work as a clerk in the library of the federal penitentiary here, Warren T. McCray, until Wednesday governor of Indiana, began Saturday his duties as Prisoner 17,746. His friends from Indiana, who made the trip with him from Indianapolis, returned Saturday night and the former executive is lost among the other nameless prisoners.

From the penitentiary came word that McCray was philosophically resigned to his fate and bearing himself well.

To the Indianapolis newspaper men who came down with him, the former governor gave messages to be relayed to his successor, Emmett F. Branch, requesting that Governor Branch continue the McCary program for permanent highway construction and educational improvement in the state. McCray, it is stated, is of the opinion that he would be allowed to write a special letter to Governor Branch with suggestions regarding the future policy of the state government of Indiana.

Regarding the regular letters, three each week, allowed to be sent out by a prisoner, McCray said, "all of my letters will be written to my family."

McCray was sentenced to serve 10 years on the charge of fradulent use of the mails.

Funeral Services For Miss Woodberry To Be Held Monday

Funeral services for Miss America V. Woodberry, prominent Atlanta woman and teacher at Woodberry Hall school, who died early Saturday morning at the residence on Peachtree circle, will be held at 4 o'clock Monday afternoon from All Saints' church, with Bishop H. J. Mikell, assisted by Rev. Memminger, rector of the church, officiating. Interment will be made in Bonaventure cemetery, Savannah, with H. M. Patterson & Son in charge.

Woodberry hall will be closed Monday and Tuesday as a mark of respect to Miss Woodberry.

Her death followed a relapse last week. Her health had been failing for several years, but the illness was not considered serious until recently. It is thought her breakdown was the result of overwork and study, which necessitated an operation last September.

Miss Woodberry was one of Atlanta's best known teachers, and was a leader in literary and civic circles. She was a member of the Alliance Francaise, a French class composed of Atlantans who meet weekly and present programs in French. She belonged to several civic organizations and was a member of All Saints' church.

She was born in Williston, S. C., where she spent her childhood, moving to Savannah when a young woman. She came to Atlanta nine years ago to teach French at Woodberry hall, founded by her sister, Miss Rosa Woodberry. She taught French in Savannah schools for many years, and acted as French instructor at Girls' High school during 1922-23, returning to Woodberry hall last year.

Miss Woodberry devoted practically all her life to study of the French language. Her studies took her to Europe, where she visited England, France and Italy. She was also proficient in Spanish, and spoke both languages fluently. She received her A. B. degree at Oglethorpe university, and for the past three summers had studied at Columbia university, where she would have received a master of arts degree this summer.

During the war she acted as instructor at Camp Gordon, where hundreds of soldiers were benefited by her teachings. She played a large part in camp life, as she was interested in her pupils, many of whom corresponded with her regularly after going overseas.

She is survived by six sisters, Misses Rosa and Frances Woodberry and Mrs. Howard C. Johnston, of Atlanta; Mrs. Harry N. Walker and Mrs. Julian deBruyn Kops, of Savannah, and Mrs. Lillian W. Johnson, of Kansas City, Mo., and two brothers, Edward P. and Herbert H. Woodberry, both of Savannah.

ENLISTED MEN GIVE DANCE AT M'PHERSON

Enlisted men of the garrison held a large dance at the service club at Fort McPherson Thursday night, when many of their friends were present. The clubhouse was beautifully decorated and the music was unusually good, being played by the orchestra of the 22nd infantry band. A special feature was provided by the saxophone quartet.

EYES OF LEADERS FIXED ON REACTION

will insure the prosecution of a parliamentary program based on a faithful effort to carry out the provisions of the experts' proposals.

Coalition May Survive.

These four parties commanded 346 seats in the old reichstag. Allowing for a prospective collective loss of 100 mandates in tomorrow's election, the big coalition would still command sufficient votes in the new parliament to carry out the program to which the Marx-Stresemann government has pledged Germany through its acceptance of the Dawes report as a basis for negotiations.

Its majority would suffice to push through all ordinary legislation needed for fulfillment of the experts' conditions except on the issue of conversion of the federal railways into a capitalized trust corporation, which would involve a constitutional amendment requiring a two-thirds majority.

Stampede Is Chilled.

There has been a visible chill in the fervor with which the ultra-nationalists, headed by General Lundendorff, set out to stampede the voters shortly after the general was acquitted in his recent treason trial at Munich, but at the same time the former quartermaster general is sure of election because he heads the ticket as candidate at large.

This also holds good for all the candidates at large of the other parties as they will automatically be elected by virtue of surplus votes in case they are defeated in the local districts where they were nominated. Therefore, while early returns will indicate the election of General Ludendorff, Admiral Von Tirpitz, Prinz Bismarck, Count Reventlow, Chancellor Marx, Foreign Minister Stresemann and other party leaders, they will not indicate the subsequent strength of each party as this will finally be established after the total vote is allocated on the basis of one mandate for each 60,000 votes.

The socialists and communists captured 12,000,000 out of 26,000,000 votes cast in the 1920 election.

FOREMAN IS INJURED IN PLANT EXPLOSION

An explosion Saturday afternoon in the machine shop of the Chemical Engineering and Foundry company's plant, in Kirkwood, slightly injured Eugene Nash, foreman, and shattered scores of window panes in nearby houses.

Nash's injuries consisted mainly of minor cuts and bruises. He was treated by a physician.

Compressed steam was being applied to a testing apparatus in which a five-foot water pipe was being subjected to high pressure, when a flange of the apparatus was blown off by the terrific force, it was stated. The flange, weighing approximately 400 pounds, was sent hurtling through the air. Deflected in its course toward one of the large brick buildings, it struck another testing apparatus. Steel splinters and pieces of the flange went flying into all directions, the bits falling harmlessly upon workmen and others nearby.

The explosion was heard for several blocks and much excitement prevailed among residents in the neighborhood before the cause and extent of the explosion was learned.

Judge G. H. Howard Announces For Re-election as Judge of Fulton Superior Court to Succeed Himself

To the White Voters of Fulton County:—

It is generally known to my friends that I am a candidate to succeed myself as Judge of Fulton Superior Court, subject to the State Democratic Primary in September, but since some formal announcement is generally expected by the public, I feel that I should confirm this statement that I am to be a candidate and, in this manner, solicit the support of the people, for which I shall be grateful.

Having been appointed by Governor Walker last August, I have had only a few months' service as your judge, but during this short period I have done my best to discharge the duties of the office fairly and satisfactorily and in such manner as to incline the public to endorse my record by electing me for one full term.

As court will be in session practically every day until the primary, it will be impossible for me to see a great number of the voters, as I would like to do, but I hope to meet as many as possible.

I invite my friends to co-operate with Mr. John L. Cone, Campaign Manager, who will spend as much of his time as can be spared from his business at my Campaign Headquarters, Room 104, Kimball House. He will appreciate your suggestions and your aid.

Very sincerely yours,

G. H. HOWARD.

State College Placement Organization Is Perfected

The Georgia College Placement office, sponsored by Cator Woolford, prominent Atlanta business man and president of the Retail Credit company, and designed to place college graduates in business positions through cooperation with college officials and state industrial organizations, was organized and perfected at a luncheon held Saturday at the Ansley hotel. The organization is the first of its kind in the United States.

Mr. Woolford has guaranteed expenses of the office for a period of two years, and the enthusiastic support of the plan by leading college heads and pledges of aid made by business representatives from every section of the state insure its permanent success, its backers assert.

Woolford Is President.

The originator, Cator Woolford, was elected president, and Professor W. D. Hooper, of the University of Georgia, and Kendall Weisiger, of the Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph company, vice presidents. The secretary and treasurer for the organization will be chosen at the next meeting.

The Georgia Placement office will fill a long felt need in obtaining suitable positions for college graduates, it was declared at the luncheon-meeting, Saturday. Classification of the individual student through a four-year college course, looking from his freshman year toward an eventual appropriate business connection, will only eliminate a gigantic difficulty which has confronted college officials for generations, but also will be of great aid to interests in systematic selection of men.

Students will be given special summer training in the work which their charts indicate will suit them best. They will be given a goal toward which to work by being assured of a position after graduation. Through the arrangement, as advocated by the officers, the best material among the college men and women in the state will be saved for Georgia and the grave condition which has existed for years in the migration of college-trained to the north and west in search of better employment will be eliminated.

Women will be given the same careful consideration accorded to men, it was declared. Miss Josephine Willeford has been in charge of the women's placement department in the general office of the organization, located in the Chamber of Commerce bulding, and analysis and records of co-educational students and attendants of women's colleges will be under her supervision. Through these means, hundreds of girls will be offered congenial employment on graduation.

The executive committee is composed of the president, the vice presidents and Professor J. R. McCain, head of Agnes Scott college, and Dean G. C. White of Emory University. The following business men were elected to active membership on the advisory board: J. C. Malone, of the Atlanta Retail Credit company; W. B. Baker, president of the Atlanta Ice and Coal company; Ernest W. Ramspeck, cashier of the Atlanta and Lowry National bank; George H. Phillips, district manager of the Metropolitan Life Insurance company; Harold Hirsch, Atlanta attorney, and others to be selected later.

Colonel Sandy Beaver, president of Riverside Military Academy and president of the schools and colleges association of the United States, attended the luncheon Saturday. Colonel Beaver heartily indorsed the movement for development of college men and pledged his support. He declared that the organization will be of untold value in placing high school and preparatory school graduates. The details of the latter work will be worked out at a meeting during the first part of July.

FORMER ATLANTAN DIES ON VISIT TO BROTHER HERE

Edgar T. Jackson, of Sarasota, Fla., died late Saturday night while visiting at the home of his brother, W. H. Jackson, 495 Capitol avenue.

He engaged in the real estate business here for many years before moving to Florida about two years ago to enter that business at Sarasota.

In addition to his brother, he is survived by his widow, a nephew, Thomas H. Jackson, of Atlanta, and an uncle, Daniel L. Boone, of Atlanta.

Funeral arrangements will be announced later by Barclay & Brandon.

MYSTERY WOMAN SOUGHT BY POILCE

known her for several months, and that she had made threats to "get" him. Police are attempting to weave the tangled threads into a net which will lead to the woman's arrest.

Poole's Story.

Poole says that he met the woman in front of the Alexander street address Saturday night and that after a short conversation, she drew a gun and threatened to shoot him. He ran into the Brown apartment where the mysterious gunwoman followed him, he said, fired one shot and fled.

May Brown told officers that she was sitting in her apartment when a whom she later learned was Poole, who mshe later learned was Poole, followed her into the room. Miss Brown says that she paid no more attention to them until she heard the pair quarreling, and had started into the room where they were talking when she heard the shot, reaching the door just as Poole fell to the floor.

She notified Grady hospital, and the man's wounds were dressed there after which he was released.

Taken to Hospital.

Poole was taken to the hospital in a taxicab driven by a man named Turner, whose address was not learned, and who told police that he and Poole had been friends for many years.

He said that Poole and the woman had been friends but recently jilted her, and that she had told Turman, he went there immediately, arto find him, and would "fix" him when she did.

He stated that he received a telephone message to the effect that a man had been shot in an apartment at 40 East Alexander street, and that, believing Poole was the wounded man, went there immediately, arrivriving before the hospital ambulance.

Face Complications.

Police are attempting to solve several complicated problems regarding the shooting. Why was it that the woman was so anxious to dispatch Poole, if she did not know him and had no grievance against him, they ask?

They also would like to know why Miss Brown so casually allowed two unknown people to enter her apartment and go into a room other than which she was in, not becoming alarmed until she heard sounds that indicated a struggle. Yet she told police, they assert, that she never before had seen either Poole or the pretty "guntoter."

The meeting was held under supervision of W. Y. Ruper, of Atlanta, division salesmanager. Sales plans for the balance of the year were gone over carefully and all present seemed enthusiastic over the outlook.

Columbia Trustees Support Dr. Butler In Volstead Views

New York, May 3.—Although Arthur J. Davis, state superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League, suggests that President Nicholas Murray Butler of Columbia university may be ousted as a result of his attack on the Volstead law, the Columbia trustees show no desire to invite Butler to depart.

In fact, an unofficial poll of the trustees showed that there was a marked inclination among them to support their president's views.

"I entirely concur with the views expressed by Dr. Butler," declared Frederick R. Coudert, trustee of the university and a member of the committee on legal affairs. "The prohibition experiment has been tried and proved wanting. It has, in my judgment, tended to hypocrisy, inebriety, immorality and a general reign of lawlessness. Intelligent American opinion must occupy itself with the revision of an impossible situation."

Other trustees also supported Butler's views. William Barclay Parsons, chairman of the board of trustees, emphasized, however, that the speech was made by Dr. Butler as a private citizen.

Immediate response from the dry forces came in a telegram from the Rev. Clarence True Wilson, of Washington, general secretary of the Methodist board of temperance, prohibition and public morals, which he sent from Springfield, Mass., challenging Butler to discuss prohibition there at the Methodist general conference on May 22.

"The Methodists are nearly all for prohibition, and you could do missionary work among them," the wire said in part.

Dr. Butler declared he would reply to the telegram, adding: "I am ready to go to the bat on the question."

Georgia Society Votes Confidence In Thos. B. Felder

New York, May 3.—(Special.)—On motion of Judge William Harmon Black, seconded by Robert Adamson and Lamar Hill, the Georgia Society, of New York has adopted the following resolution by arising vote, expressing confidence in its fellow member, Thomas B. Felder.

Whereas, the Honorable Thomas B. Felder, of New York city, formerly of Atlanta, and president of the Georgia Society of New York, has recently been indicted by the federal grand jury on a charge of conspiracy to bribe certain officials of the department of justice of the United States, and

Whereas, the board of governors of the Georgia society desires to express to Mr. Felder their friendship and confidence, therefore be it

Resolved, That this board has unbounded faith in the personal and professional integrity and honor of Mr. Felder, and particularly, is it confident of his innocence of the charges now brought against him, and it tenders to him this expression of loyalty and fidelity, and

Resolved, further, That a copy of these resolutions be spread upon the minutes of the board of governors, a copy forwarded to Mr. Felder and that such resolutions be presented to the next meeting of the Georgia society for action by it in open meeting.

Mr. Felder's Son Honored.

"While I am delighted with the action of the Georgia society," said Mr. Felder, "and while I fully appreciate the confidence of my fellow members, I am at this time even more interested in the fact that my young son, who bears my name, has been chosen as president of his class in the Brunswick school, of New York, and that at the annual comencement of the school on May 16, he will make the president's address.

"I feel that my friends in Georgia know me well enough to know that I have not merited the attack made on me, and they have manifested their friendship in a way that appeals deeply to me, but they do not know that my son is now almost a man and that it is my earnest endeavor to leave to him as a rich heritage my devotion to my old state."

New Rate Favors Imported Peanuts, George Protests

Washington, May 3.—(Special.)—Senator George, of Georgia, entered protest today with the interstate commerce commission against the application made Agent R. H. Countiss, for the reduction of 25 per cent per hundred pounds in freight on imported peanuts moving from western ports eastward, to be effective May 15. It is pointed out that if the rate is adopted and no corresponding reduction is granted on domestic peanuts going to the same points, it will mean a serious handicap to the American peanut grower, and greatly hinder the development of the peanut as a permanent cash crop for the American farmer.

The Georgia peanut growers' cooperative association has filed a vigorous protest against the rate reduction. It is said that the peanut growers of America are endeavoring to supply the demand for peanuts at a price which will be low enough to encourage the increasing consumption of this product, and at the same time net the producers a reasonable profit, but that since the publication of the proposed reduction in rates, many growers are changing their plans and substituting other crops for peanuts.

The association states that, even with the present rate, it has been difficult for the domestic grower to meet foreign competition. The proposed reduction, amounting to $5 per ton, is more than the average profit the peanut growers receive on a ton of peanuts, it is noted.

LONG TERM OF GERMAN IN PEN HERE COMMUTED

Washington, May 3.—President Coolidge has commuted the 25-year sentence of Fritz W. Bishoff, a German, sentenced from New Jersey in 1918 for attempting destruction of war munitions. The release will become effective when Bishoff is ready to board a ship for deportation to Germany.

Bishoff was sentenced from Trenton, N. J. He will be taken to New York about May 13 for deportation to Germany along with some other aliens.

It was understood that William Heinemeyer, a brother-in-law of Bishoff and sentenced to 15 years on the same charge, also will be released, although no warrant had yet been prepared by the department of justice giving Heinemeyer his freedom.

Representations on behalf of the two men are said to have been made by the German government.

Fritz W. Bishoff, whose sentence of 15 years for destruction of government property and dissemination of enemy propaganda during the war has been commuted by President Coolidge, is in the federal penitentiary here. The warrant for his deportation to Germany has been received by M. A. Coykendall, district director of the immigration service here.

Officials here refused to discuss rumors that Bishoff's commutation of sentence is the outgrowth of the release several months ago, from a German prison of Lieut. Corliss Griffis. Griffis was sentenced after conviction before a German court of attempting to kidnap Grover Cleveland Bergdoll, American draft evader.

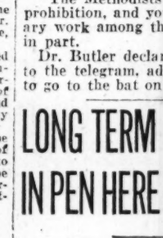

FRANK M. ANDREWS DIES AT AMERICUS

Americus, Ga., May 3.—(Special.) Frank M. Andrews, 62, prominent resident here, died Saturday afternoon at his home, following a stroke of paralysis.

Funeral services will be held from the residence Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock, conducted by Dr. Carl W. Minor, pastor of First Baptist church, of which Mr. Andrews was a member. Interment will be at Oak Grove cemetery here.

Mr. Andrews is survived by his widow, Mrs. Elizabeth Argo Andrews; a son, Emmett S. Andrews, of Meridian, Miss.; a daughter, Mrs. Olive Minter, of Fitzgerald; four grandchildren, two aunts, Mrs. Kate Andrews and Mrs. Bettie Andrews; W. M. Andrews and Miss Ruby Andrews, cousins, and Ed Argo, his brother-in-law.

WEAK?

WHAT a joy it is to once more feel the tingle of vigorous health and strength after going on for months in a weak, nervous, ailing, run-down state. It just goes to show how vital it is to keep the blood stream flowing rich and red. When the iron in the blood runs low both body and mind fail to work right but once you put back into the blood the vital elements which are wasted every day a most remarkable change quickly takes place.

Since the discovery of a newer form of iron, like the natural iron in your blood, it has become an easy matter to renew the red corpuscles in your blood and quickly increase vitality. This is put up in simple tablets known as Nuxated Iron and is entirely different from the old forms of metallic iron which often upset the stomach or injure and blacken the teeth. It is now being used by over 4,000,000 people annually for red blood, strength and endurance.

If you feel tired in the morning, restless at night, if you suffer from weakness or lack of vitality, simply try taking two Nuxated Iron Tablets with each meal for two weeks and note the amazing change in your health, vigor, energy and endurance. You should be astonished at the results in even a few days' time. Satisfaction is guaranteed or the druggist will refund your money.—(adv.)

LARGE ST. PAUL BANK IS ORDERED CLOSED

St. Paul, Minn., May 3.—The Capital Trust and Savings bank of St. Paul, with deposits of $5,000,000, was ordered closed today, A. J. Veigel, state superintendent of banks, announced.

"Frozen assets" was the cause, Mr. Veigel said.

The bank was ordered closed after two conferences of the board of directors with Mr. Veigel, which continued after midnight and were resumed this morning. The "frozen assets" held responsible for the closing—assets that cannot be realized upon readily—consist mainly of Montana and North Dakota mortgages, Mr. Veigel said.

J. L. Mitchell, of St. Paul, is president of the institution.

The bank, which has a capital of $500,000, was organized in December, 1890.

Officers of the bank declared that while some stockholders of the Capital National bank here also have stock in the Capital Trust and Savings bank, there is no direct financial connection between the two institutions, although they are housed in the same building.

If the closed bank is able to dispose of its land holdings "within a reasonable time" for anything like its normal value the bank should be able to pay its liabilities, according to a statement issued by President Mitchell.

COL. MERCER INDORSED FOR GOVERNOR'S RACE

Fitzgerald, Ga., May 3.—(Special.) Col. J. E. Mercer, former editor of the Fitzgerald Enterprise, and well known throughout the state through his connection with the game and fish department of the state and more recently as an official of the law enforcement league was informally endorsed for governor at a meeting of the local chapter of D. A. R. held at the home of Mrs. Dwight Rogers in Ocilla. Col. Mercer spent Wednesday and Thursday in the city visiting relatives.

MERCER SONGSTERS TO CLOSE SEASON AFTER 3-DAY TRIP

Macon, Ga., May 3.—(Special.)—A three-day road trip beginning Monday will close the season for the Mercer Glee and Instrumental club. Members will leave Macon to show at Shorter college, in Rome, Monday night. This will be the second showing of the year at that place. A Tuesday night performance is to be staged in Cedartown and on Wednesday night the last show will be given in Carrollton. The Cedartown engagement is under the auspices of the Kiwanis club there.

Immediately following the return to Macon of the club, work on the 1924-25 program will begin, Roy L. Hurst, business manager and originator of this year's attractions, reports.

PAVED STREETS URGED BY SPARTA MERCHANTS

Sparta, Ga., May 2.—(Special.)—A movement is on foot to pave Broad street and several other principal streets of Sparta. The agitation has been started by several local merchants and will be taken up with the council, which will go into office next week. At the present time the streets are built of hard surfaced sand-clay formation, but unless sprinkled several times daily in dry weather, the dust is almost unbearable.

COL. REED ADDRESSES FITZGERALD CIVIC CLUB

Fitzgerald, Ga., May 3.—(Special.) Col. Reed, a prominent attorney of Ware county and district governor of the Kiwanis, was the principal speaker at the meeting of the Kiwanis at the country club Friday night.

Teeth Stains Bleached Out New Safe Way

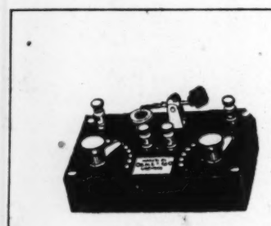

Say Goodbye to dull, yellow, stained teeth! For a new harmless treatment—Bleachodent Combination—bleaches away the stains and makes teeth flashing white—often in just three minutes. Treatment consists of a mild safe liquid, which curdles and softens the stains—and a new kind of paste, which gently removes the softened stains. Bleachodent Combination keeps teeth white by preventing the formation of new stains. Does not affect enamel as its mild ingredients are especially combined to act only on surface stains—not on the enamel itself. Only a safe, mild preparation like Bleachodent Combination should be used on children's teeth which are naturally soft and sensitive, and which are especially subject to stains and decay. Fine for the gums. Get Bleachodent Combination today, for few cents at all good druggists.—(adv.)

40 AND 8 PLANNING FOR BIG CONVENTION

La Societe des 40 Hommes et 8 Chevaux of Georgia will meet in annual promenade at Savannah on June 5 and 6, simultaneously with the convention of the American Legion.

La Societe is an honor society of the legion, and its membership includes a large number of prominent legionnaires in the state. Among the officers of the Georgia department are Dr. Robert C. Eve, of Atlanta, grand chef de gare; Charles Foley, of Columbus, grand chef de train; David J. Meyerhardt, of Atlanta, grand correspondent; J. A. Bankston, of Atlanta, grand commissaire intendant; R. S. Roddenbery, of Albany, chemin-not nationale; Charles W. Cook, of Moultrie, grand conducteur, and J. R. Fitzpatrick, of Columbus, grand garde de la porte.

Plans for the convention include a banquet, to which each post commander and adjutant in Georgia has been invited; a parade of 48-ers and prisonniers de gare, and an initiation ceremony. Dr. Robert C. Eve, David J. Meyerhardt and B. P. Gambrell, of the Atlanta headquarters, have general charge of arrangements, while affairs in Savannah are being looked after by W. W. Houseal and Dr. H. A. Jasme, of the Chatham county voiture.

The Atlanta "wrecking crew," under the direction of Charles Gallienne, will have charge of the "prisonniers" at the Savannah promenade.

Public Is Invited To Visit Hospitals In Atlanta, May 12

Invitations to the public to visit all hospitals located in Atlanta Monday, May 12, National Hospital day, was extended in an announcement issued Saturday by the Atlanta Hospital association.

This date was selected as National Hospital day as a memorial to Florence Nightingale, the great English nurse. A souvenir, commemorating the occasion, will be given each visitor.

Agnes Scott Alumnae Planning Annual Carnival for Children

Mrs. Louis Hoppe, Jr., charming "balloon girl," who will take a prominent part in the Agnes Scott alumnae program next Friday afternoon. Mrs. Hoppe is one of a score of former Agnes Scott students who will don special costumes in the children's carnival.

A carnival for children, an annual event sponsored by the Agnes Scott alumni, will be staged next Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Clyde King, corner of Oakdale road and Ponce de Leon avenue, and will include all the entertainment features it is possible for alumni members to provide, it was announced Saturday.

Midway features, real live ponies, red lemonade, balloons, side shows, funny clowns, confetti and many other wholesome features for the pleasure and entertainment of children of the city will be provided. And all the kiddies in Atlanta are invited to attend.

The parkway at the intersection of the two drives will be used for tents and midway features, and alert chaperons will be present to supervise the entertainment and to guard the tiny visitors against any possible harm. Each pony will have a capable man handler who will see that kids do not fall or carelessly get in dangerous places.

The small sum of 10 cents will be charged for admission to the grounds, and no other feature will cost more than 5 cents. Sponsors of the unique arrangement have issued a blanket invitation to all children in the city and plans are being made to care for several hundred.

For Memorial Fund.

The proceeds will be placed to the credit of a memorial fund supported by alumni members.

One of the most delightful features of the entire program will be the appearance in fancy dress costumes of the May Day dancers from Agnes Scott. This talented and entertaining group of young ladies will appear in a special program for the entertainment of children, and the Tech High school band will play throughout the afternoon.

Gates to the fairyland grounds will open at 3 o'clock and the fun will continued uninterrupted until a late hour.

"Mothers," an alumni official stated Saturday, "need not have any fears for the safety of their little ones whom they cannot accompany. We will have capable women present to attend to the wants of everyone and to protect them from any possible harm. The idea of a carnival for kiddies is not new by any means. We have had carnivals before and the idea is in effect in many large cities throughout the nation, and is being made an event each year to which children look forward with keenest interest."

Another member of the committee on arrangements said, "we want 10,000 kids to come to our fairyland, ride the ponies, enjoy the slides, the funny shows, peanuts, popcorn, red lemonade and countless other circus pleasures. We want them to have the most wonderful time they ever had and every kiddie in the city is invited."

Big Crowds Attend Opening Of New Municipal Market

Atlanta's new municipal market, on Edgewood avenue, Butler and Boaz streets, was opened to the public for the first time Saturday morning, when appropriate ceremonies marked this latest addition to the city's civic conveniences.

The new market is the result of a movement begun several years ago by the Atlanta Woman's club. It brings to the Atlanta housewife a place where she may go and purchase produce of the farmer and truck gardener under the most modern conditions. Three-fourths of the space is devoted to truck farmers, while one-fourth is rented by various local dealers. This is done for the convenience of the patrons of the market, in order that they may, if they wish, purchase all their table supplies under one roof.

Colonel Peel Presides.

Colonel William Lawson Peel, a leader in the group of patriotic citizens whose efforts have made the market a reality, presided at the opening ceremonies and, in an effective short address, told something of the movement which saw its consummation Saturday.

Former Mayor Key, under whose administration construction was begun; Mayor Walter Sims, Frank Beck, Ben R. Padgett, Mrs. Alonzo Richardson and Mrs. Norman Sharp were other speakers. Mrs. Sharp is chairman of the market committee of the Woman's club and Mrs. Richardson is president of the club. They, assisted by the executive board, acted as official hostesses at the market opening Saturday.

A musical program was rendered preceding and following opening exercises by the Tech High school band and the Rotary Club band. Handsome souvenirs were given away and refreshments were served by many of the stall operators. William E. Hixon, market master, was in charge of this feature.

Market Is Praised.

The Atlanta market is declared to be one of the finest buildings of its kind in the United States. Before plans were drawn a committee visited markets in other cities, and the best features of all were incorporated in plans finally adopted for the local structure.

Much credit for the erection of the building is given to the Trust Company of Georgia. The confidence of this financial institution, evidenced in the purchase of the entire issue of 6 1-2 per cent bonds by which the market was financed, made early building possible. These bonds, which mature serially over a period of 15 years, have been absorbed, it is stated, by the trust company's customers in all parts of the south.

Among honor guests of the occasion in addition to state, county and city officials and others were the presidents of the various women's organizations as follows: Mrs. Bun Wylie, Atlanta chapter, D. A. R.; Mrs. W. D. Coleman, Habersham chapter, D. A. R.; Mrs. A. P. Phillips, U. D. C.; Mrs. T. T Stevens, City federation; Mrs Sanford Gay, League of Women Voters; Mrs. Howard McCutcheon, president of the Parent-Teacher Presidents' club; Mrs. E. D. McDonald, president Atlanta Parent-Teachers; Mrs. Murray Howard, West End club; Mrs. Frank H. Neely, president of the Council of Jewish Women; Mrs. Clifford Walker and Walter Sims.

STEWART AVENUE LIBRARY BRANCH TO OPEN MONDAY

The Stewart avenue branch of the Carnegie library will be open to the public Monday. The branch will be located at 64 Pearce street in a store building, which has been remodeled and equipped to suit the library's needs. Furniture and equipment, including tables, chairs, delivery desk, and catalog cases, have been installed and the library will open with about 1,500 books on its shelves. The library will be open on Monday, Wednesday and Thursday of each week from 1:30 to 6 o'clock.

It is expected that this will be one of the busiest branches as there has been a great deal of interest shown in the project. Several hundred members have already been registered and it is expected that as many more will apply for membership on the opening day.

This is the eighth branch of the library system and is being opened in accordance with the program of the library board to make books easily accessible to all communities and sections of the city. Several hundred thousand books are distributed each year through the branch library system.

H. F. WEST HEADS SONS OF VETERANS

H. F. West, son of the late General A. J. West, was elected commander of the John B. Gordon camp, Sons of Confederate Veterans, at the annual meeting of the organization, held Friday night in the assembly hall of the chamber of commerce.

Plans for the coming reunion in Memphis, June 3-6, in conjunction with the annual reunion of the U. C. V., were discussed and several members stated that they would attend. A rate of one-way fare for the round trip is authorized by all railroads for members of the organization.

Members who have not yet paid their dues are urged to send them at once to John Ashley Jones, theasurer, 600 Haas-Howell building.

In addition to Commander West, other officers elected were C. K. Ayer, first lieutenant commander; Harvey Hill, second lieutenant commander; Charles DuPree, adjutant; Dr. George L. Cook, surgeon; A. R. Alley, quartermaster; Bishop H. J. Mikell, chaplain; John Ashley Jones, treasurer; Stiles A. Martin, sergeant, and Lucian Lamar Knight, historian.

R. Low Reynolds, commander of the camp for the past two years, was given a vote of thanks for his services.

St. Luke's Church Choir To Present Feature Program

In line with the city-wide observance of National Music Week, the choir of St. Luke's Episcopal church will render special music at the evening services at 7:30 o'clock.

The services will be chosen from compositions of Horatio Parker, who ranks as one of the greatest American writers of sacred music. Rev. C. P. Willcox will deliver a short address on "Music."

MEDICAL EXPERT ADVISES AGAINST STIFF COLLARS

BY EDMUND C. GRAY, M. D. In Physical Culture Magazine.

In some of the tropical islands are tribes of savages who decorate their belles with collars of metal bands, welded firmly around the necks. Each year an additional band is placed until by the time the girl has become a mature woman she has band after band about her neck until that part of her anatomy has been elongated to something like eight or ten inches. Truly a savage custom, you will agree. But what about the neckwear of our highly "civilized" males—including the "cake-eaters"—with their choking bands which bulge out their Adam's apples until they look like supernumerary noses?

I have in mind one particular young man who is progressing rapidly in his chosen work as educator, and yet he does not realize that the almost constant twitching of his throat muscles and the very frequent unconscious lifting of his head to free his neck from an unpleasant pressure is the result of wearing a hard, fairly tight collar.

In some cases the movement is so frequent and violent as to have become a "habit tic" (spasm), and to almost give one the impression that the individual has the St. Vitus dance. This is irritating to one who has to observe it during conversation, but the cause of it is absolutely injurious to the individual himself, as it is a constant little jar to the nervous system that helps to frazzle the nerves.

There are several other harmful effects of a stiffly starched collar that in these days are entirely avoidable. One of these is headache, otherwise untraceable. This may not be merely a discomfort, but it may be a warning of pending rupture of a blood vessel in the brain, with paralysis resulting. And if the arteries are beginning to harden a high, tight, hard collar has a tendency to hasten hardening of the brain vessels, by causing a blood stagnation there. The blood vessels of the eyes may likewise be congested, and the sight materially affected.

We do not need to return to the lace and furbelows of 100 years ago nor even the paper collars of our grandfathers, for we now have collars that are soft and flexible, yet that have that dressy appearance so desirable, and that have none of the drawbacks of the unyielding starched collars that have been prominent for so long. They are becoming more and more popular, but let's all adopt them for our health's sake. For improved health means improved appearance.

ACTION OF WELFARE SOCIETY DEFENDED

Defense of the action of the Family Welfare society, formerly the Associated Charities, in urging the juvenile court to take custody of the three grandchildren of Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Bryant, was made by Attorney Horace Russell, head of the society's executive committee, Saturday.

Attorney Russell said investigation by the society had revealed that the children were becoming incorrigible and that the society had notified the court it could not grant further support to the Bryants, whom it had been supporting for two years, when it considered the aid would "mean contributing to a situation which meant improper rearing of the children."

Refuses Separation.

Judge Garland M. Watkins, of the juvenile court, passed an order Friday refusing to separate the children from their grandparents, "because the society had shown no sufficient nor legal cause for doing so."

"The society learned of acts of these children from neighbors and their teacher in the Pryor Street school, which fully satisfied it that to support the five persons together only means to endanger the welfare of the children," Attorney Russell said.

"The society requested the court as far back as last September and again in January and April to place these children in some home where they would be protected from evil influences. Support for the grandparents was to be continued if this were done, and at the same time the children would be under proper care. The society has the welfare of all five at heart, but it insisted on remedying a condition it believed only to be leading to immoral or criminal lives for the children."

Parents Are Dead.

Records of the juvenile court showed that the father of the children, Minnie, Antoinette and Willie Bryant, aged 14, 11 and 9 years, respectively, died when they were very young, that their mother had deserted them and that they had been reared by their grandparents. Judge Watkins said an investigation by the probation officer of his court revealed that the children were being properly cared for and were doing well in school.

FLIGHT COLLEAGUES RESUME WORLD TRIP

French Aviator Flies 800 Miles in Single Jump Over Desert So Hot His Wings Rip.

D'OISY HOPS 800 MILES IN SINGLE FLIGHT.

Paris, May 3.—Lieutenant Pelletier D'Oisy, who is racing half way around the world in a spectacular flight from Paris to Tokio, reached Agra, India, today and placed France in the lead in the present international race for long distance aerial achievement.

D'Oisy has covered approximately one-half of his scheduled distance. He left Karachi at 6:45 a. m. and arrived at Agra at 1:30 p. m., thus making an 800-mile flight without a stop. His route was over a barren desert, where flying is made difficult by scorching heat waves. The heat split the canvas on the upper planes of his machine, according to an announcement by the air ministry. Part of the canvas was torn away, necessitating repairs at Agra.

The air ministry's announcement remarked that D'Oisy flew almost directly over the town of Parlu, the desert village where the British round-the-world flyers are detained until they receive a new motor for their machine.

Lisbon, Portugal, May 3.—The Portuguese aviators, Captain Brito Paes and Lieutenant Sarmento Beiros, flying to China, have landed at the Indian frontier, according to advices received here.

Cordova, Alaska, May 3.—Three United States army air cruisers attempting to circle the globe, which have been at Dutch Harbor since April 19, left there at 11 a. m. today for Atka Island, 350 miles southwestward, according to wireless messages received here.

Cordova, Alaska, May 3.—A major of the American army and a sergeant, separated by a million leagues of official rank, and supposed to address one another in the formal language of army regulations, are cast away somewhere in the Arctic in the fellowship of adventure.

Major Fraderick Martin, commander of America's around-the-world aeroplane flight and Sergeant Alva Harvey, his mechanician, had been unheard from for 75 hours at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon. They had eaten little food before their hop away from Chignik, with the expectation of arriving at Dutch Harbor a few hours later.

On Common Level Now.

At this time, however, the major, the commissioned officer, whom army tradition has endowed with a fixed austerity, and the sergeant, are brought down to a common level of companionship in daring. They are two warfarers in an unaccustomed and forbidding country.

The winds are cold where they are, and snow sweeps over the unmapped hills and depressions where even the wild animals sometimes cannot survive the rigors of their native country. There are volcanoes, too, in the region in which Major Martin, and his aerial pal, the sergeant, have come down, and only a few Indians have managed to cling to the dreary country as immovable inhabitants.

There seem to be few chances of

ENGINEER CLAIMS POWER AT SHOALS IS EXAGGERATED

Average for Year Would Be 241,300 Horsepower, Instead of 850,000, According to W. G. Waldo.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Washington, May 3.—Muscle Shoals does not possess the gigantic power possibilities that have been claimed, if estimates submitted by W. G. Waldo, engineer employed by the Tennessee River Improvement association, are to be accepted.

Instead of being able to produce 850,000 horsepower, as other engineers have claimed, Waldo contends that only 241,300 horsepower of commercial current can be generated the year round at Muscle Shoals.

He explained to the senate agriculture committee at today's Muscle Shoals hearing that he had derived his figures from the flow of the river over a normal year. At times, he explained, the power would go far beyond the million horsepower mark, but the average would not exceed his estimate.

Must Specify Use of Power.

For this reason, he declared, the committee must decide whether Muscle Shoals was to be used primarily for fertilizer or power production as there was not sufficient current for both. He further claimed that in order to produce the 40,000 tons annually of fixed nitrogen, which he says Henry Ford is obligated to produce under the terms of his bid, 257,000 horsepower will be needed, which, he said, shows why Ford will need an auxiliary steam plant.

If congress decides the power is to be used for distribution to public utilities and industries, it "will have violated its pledge to the farmers of this country" that the Muscle Shoals power was to be used to produce cheap fertilizer, he said.

Fertilizer Is Heart of Bid.

The fertilizer provision of the Ford contract is the "very heart" of the bid, he added. "The company expressly agrees to manufacture and distribute fertilizer to farmers throughout the lease period."

Ford could make light metals, such as aluminum and magnesium, Waldo said, as a by-product of fertilizer and in so doing reduce the cost of fertilizer.

"If the entire cost of the ammonia or nitrogen fertilizer product is charged against the aluminum, the nitrogen can be furnished free of charge for fertilizer manufacture and the cost of the aluminum will be reduced about 40 per cent," he stated.

Farmers Justified.

"The farmers are unquestionably justified in their contention that the operations at Muscle Shoals under the Ford offer will result in cutting the price of fertilizer to the farmer at least one-half, which means an annual saving of fully $175,000,000 to them."

Major General C. C. Williams, chief of army ordnance, concluded his testimony today. He gave the committee a technical discussion of the comparative advantages of the Muscle Shoals proposals pending before the committee.

He concluded with the statement that "there is a chance of a heavy loss being incurred in guaranteeing to produce a fixed quantity of fertilizer and it is felt that from a fertilizer production standpoint all the offers are of uncertain value."

MILLER IS PROMISED CHANCE TO TESTIFY.

Washington, May 3.—James Martin Miller, who sent the telegram to representatives of Henry Ford, purporting to give President Coolidge's attitude toward the Ford bid for Muscle Shoals, stated tonight that Chairman Norris of the senate committee, considering the Muscle Shoals question, had promised to permit him to testify.

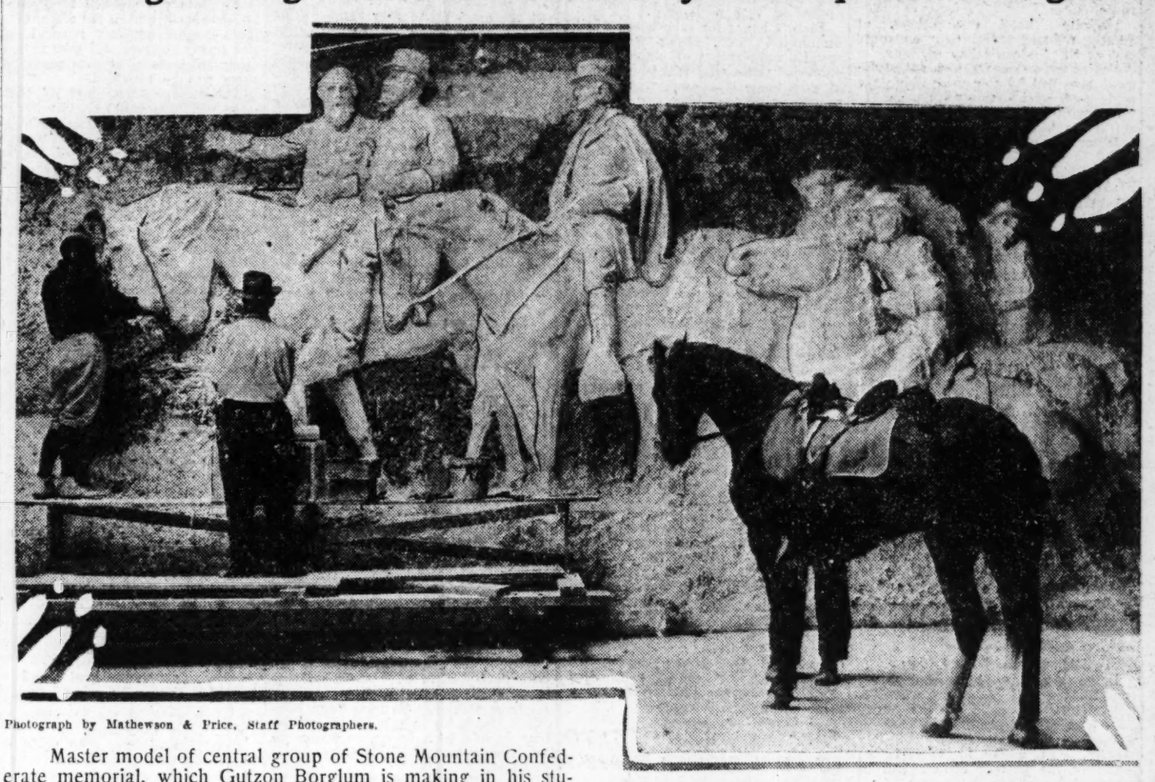

"I will give facts of interest to all parties concerned," he said, "and there will be some documentary evidence."

The date of his appearance has not been determined.

"BETTER HOMES" PLANS COMPLETE

State and City Officials Formally Approve Plans To Observe Week in Atlanta.

With official approval of Governor Clifford Walker and Mayor Walter A. Sims, and announcement by Mrs. Newton D. Wing, general chairman for Atlanta, that all plans are in readiness for "Better Homes Week," Atlanta's home loving citizens have to wait only one week before the three "Ideal Homes" will be thrown open to the public. Throughout the week of May 11-18, home lovers will be privileged to visit and inspect three homes representing in construction and exterior and interior arrangements the most modern and convenient styles of homes and home furnishings.

For the past several weeks more than 400 Atlantans, men and women representing practically every phase of civic life, have given much of their time and work to arrangement for proper observance in Atlanta of "Better Homes Week." Three homes have been secured, in as many sections of the city, and have been furnished throughout with time and labor saving devices, furnished in line with the income of the imaginary owner, and decorated and arranged with an eye single to beauty and convenience.

Governor Praises Work.

Governor Walker's approval of the complete observance of the week here, highly praises the work of those in charge of plans here and urges the thorough cooperation of everyone.

Governor Walker said in part:

"Character is largely determined by environment, therefore, the home should always be a fitting symbol of the ideals and aspirations of the family which it shelters. American people are self reliant; their creative instinct is strong and they always strive for the best. They want their homes not only clean and orderly, but attractive and beautiful. They are eager to reduce household drudgery, to make practical use of the modern devices placed at their disposal. However, men and women find difficulty in making the best selection from the vast number and variety of articles and methods that are offered to them.

"A great need is felt by those of moderate income for some solution which will enable them to make ends meet and at the same time secure attractive, convenient and healthful surroundings.

"The cooperation of the citizens of each community in 'Better Homes" demonstration has been found successful and agreed upon by leading organizations representing millions of

:: BABY DAUGHTER ARRIVES TO DETER SEPARATION ::

New York, May 3.—Burton Tucker is only 17 years old. He has no more use for a razor than a battleship has for rubber tires. And his voice, which is just now changing from an adolescent treble to the firm tones of maturity, still breaks in sharp, embarrassing squeaks.

But Burton is a parent now, in collaboration with his 49-year-old bride, the corpulent Mrs. Sussie Burnam Simpson-Tucker, and the arival of a daughter in their incongrous family circle probably will deter his parents in their plan to cancel the extraordinary match by process of law. It has just been learned that Mrs. Sussie, etc., Tucker, gave birth recentl yto a daughter in the seclusion, not to say the secrecy of a physician's residence at Baldwin, L. I., after announcing that she and Burtie, whom she lured from his school books and his job as neighborhood sheik at a corner drug store soda-fountain in a New England town, were going to California.

Burtie has not been interviewed but he probably wouldn't have much to say anyway, as he has been saving his conversation for a jury in Jersey City which is to hear testimony in the trials of five persons, including himself and his aged bride, on charges that the marriage license was obtained by perjury.

Prosecutor McMahon, of Jersey City, said he agreed some time ago to postpone the trials because he had received intimations that a further item of interesting news was to be added to the unusual story of the romance. However, he will not relent, and will insist that the Tuckers and three men who are alleged to have helped them to obtain a marriage license by false statements shall be tried.

Burtie at last reports was still ardently devoted to hsi bride, who is a woman of great wealth, owning, among other properties, a large New York hotel.

M'ADOO SWEEPS TEXAS IN RACE

Meager Early Returns From Unit Conventions Give Californian 434 Instructed Delegations.

Dallas, Texts, May 3.—Returns up to midnight indicated a decisive victory for William G. McAdoo, candidate for the democratic presidential nomination, in next Tuesday's county conventions in Texas, according to the Dallas News.

Unofficial reports from 758 precinct conventions today in 157 of the 252 counties of the state show: McAdoo, 434 precincts; Underwood, 42; uninstructed, 282.

All portions of the state are represented in the incomplete figures and later returns are expected to leave the relative position of the candidates unchanged, the News says. Indications are that McAdoo carried the larger counties of Dallas, Bexar, Tarrant, Harris, Wichita and Galveston, while Underwood apparently has carried Collingsworth, Uvalde and El Paso.

Governor Al Smith, of New York, was made second choice in three precincts which gave first place to Underwood. One precinct instructed for Carter Glass and several instructed for Josephus Daniels for the vice presidential nomination.

40-GALLON STILL FOUND HIDDEN IN FLOYD WELL

Rome, Ga., May 3.—(Special.)—It has been discovered by Sheriff R. E. Wilson and Deputy C. L. Wright, of Floyd county, that the "the old oaken bucket and moss covered well" can be put to more than one use. A 40-gallon still has been found in a 10-foot well.

The well was located about 10 miles east of Rome. The still was destroyed and every effort is being made to find the operators. No arrests have been made.

Harris Asks Reason For Delay in Issue Of Mileage Books

Washington, May 3.—The interstate commerce commission was asked today by Senator Harris, democrat, Georgia, to explain the delay in ordering issuance of interchangeable mileage books. Commission hearings have been postponed indefinitely, and the railroads have taken the case into the courts, but the Georgia senator thinks the order should be issued without further delay as authorized by congress.

BONUS BILL SENT TO PRES. COOLIDGE

Veto of Bursum Pension Measure Strengthens Belief Soldier Bonus Will Suffer Same Fate.

Washington, May 3.—The soldiers' bonus bill was sent to President Coolidge late today from the capitol, where legislative action was completed with the signing of the measure by President Cummins of the senate.

The measure reached the white house within a few hours after the president had sent a message to the senate announcing he had vetoed the Bursum pension bill because it would add many millions of dollars annually to the cost of government.

A reading of that message strengthened the belief long entertained by a number of senators that Mr. Coolidge will veto the bonus bill. The executive will not take immediate action, however, as the measure first will be sent to the treasury for an estimate of cost and the views of Secretary Mellon. Later, it probably will go to the veterans' bureau, in which its administration would be lodged.

Should the president return the bill to congress without his approval, an effort would be made to pass it over his veto and proponents in both the senate and house assert that they can muster the required two-thirds vote.

HUNT CANCELLED FOR OTHER WOMAN IN BARING CASE

White Plains, N. Y., May 3.—The hunt for Miss Mildred Beam, school teacher for whom a subpoena had been issued in the case of Clarence O. Baring, accused of attempting to poison his wife, was called off today.

District Attorney Rowland notified state troopers to discontinue their search and his request was taken to mean that he knew Miss Beam's whereabouts and could take her testimony whenever he deemed it necessary. Miss Beam was reported to be suffering from a severe shock as a result of the publicity suddenly thrown upon her.

The district attorney is investigating the report that Baring has communicated with Miss Beam from his cell and has sent a private investigator to Baltimore and Norfolk to ascertain whether Baring and a young woman were registered in hotels in those cities.

All Visitors To Mountain Are Invited To Enter and View Model at the Studio.

A master model of the central group of the great Confederate panorama to be carved on the precipice of Stone Mountain is being made by Gutzon Borglum in his studio at the mountain.

The studio will be open from 7 to 9:30 o'clock at night from this time on, and people who visit the mountain during these hours are invited to enter and view the model, which will be illuminated by electricity.

Mr. Borglum's first model of the central group was what is called the sketch model. This he made in his studio in Stamford. It is about nine feet long and three and one-half feet wide. He shipped it from Stamford to his studio at the mountain and set it up there.

The master model is a reproduction on a much bigger scale of the sketch model, except that certain changes in the composition of the group were made in the master model.

Mr. Borglum built in the studio at the mountain a heavy wall, or "armature," as it is called in studio parlance. It reproduces the contours of that portion of the precipice on which the central group is to be carved. On this he is making the master model, which is 14 feet high and 32 feet wide. Some idea of the size of the master model can be had from the accompanying photograph showing the sculptor and the thoroughbred saddle horse he is using to model horses in the group.

The master model is to the central group what an architect's final blueprints are to a skyscraper. That is to say, the master model is made to exact scale. It governs the whole carving of the central group on the precipice. Each square inch of the master model represents a square foot of the carving.

Progress of Carving.

In addition to the master model, Mr. Borglum is making what is called detailed working models of this and that feature of the central group. At the present time he is carving on the precipice the heads of Stonewall Jackson and Jefferson Davis. He is making in the studio a detailed working model of the head of Jackson and one of the head of Davis. These are much larger than the master model. They are one-fourth the size of the heads on the precipice. When finished they will be hoisted up to the precipice and set up on staging. Each and every stroke of carving will be governed and controlled by the detailed working models.

Thus the sculptor's studio work has progressed from the sketch model, or comparatively small scale, to the master model on a much larger scale (one inch to one foot) and from that to take detailed working models on a still larger scale (one foot to four feet).

The master model will stand in the studio until the central group is finished on the precipice. Then it will be available for preservation in the great memorial hall to be cut out of the breast of the mountain below the central group, or in any other institution to which the memorial association might present it as a gift.

MEXICAN REBELS THREATEN TO CUT BIG POWER LINE

Vera Cruz, May 3.—Rebel forces operating between Atoyac and Paso del Macho, along the Mexican railway, have demanded that the Vera Cruz Electric Light and Power company pay to them a sum of 500 pesos weekly, otherwise the line carrying current from Tuxpango to Orizaba, Cordoba and Vera Cruz will be cut.

General Urbalejo, commander of the Vera Cruz sector, informed of this threat, has sent cavalry patrols to guard the wires and drive off the rebels.

Russ Ambassador Leaves Germany Situation Is Tense

BALLYHOO BLARE WILL NOT SQUEAK IN COOLIDGE RACE

Selection of Butler as Campaign Director Spelled Doom to Familiar Orchestration Plans.

BY RAYMOND CLAPPER.

Washington, May 2.—The ballyhoo will be conspicuously absent in the Coolidge presidential campaign. In selecting William M. Butler as the next chairman of the republican national committee, the president has placed his chances of four years more at the white house in the hands of a man whose silent ways are strangely like his own.

Butler is a business man who never has acquired the theatrical tricks of the regular politician. He will endeavor to make the republican machine noiseless, geared for speed with little racket. He is as economical with words as the president. Al politicians as "William the Silent."

Both Favor Wadsworth.

Butler came down from New York Friday to consult with the president regarding the remainder of the pre convention campaign and to consider some of the problems to be faced after the convention. He has every expectation that he will be chosen formally as national chairman at the convention in accordance with the president's wishes, but prior to such formal selection, he will not discuss campaign policies.

Butler and the president favor Senator Wadsworth of New York for permanent chairman of the convention. Butler has not made up his mind regarding suggestions that Senator Borah be chosen to place Coolidge in nomination.

If Borah is chosen, he will be the only progressive in the convention picture. Burton, temporary chairman; Wadsworth and the Coolidge leaders are all ffrom the conservative wing.

Background Certain.

But regardless of the figures who move across the stage at the convention, in the background will be the ready he is becoming known among two Massachusetts aides of the president, Butler and Frank W. Stearns, a personal advisor. Of these two Butler, of course, will be the chief figure because of his active position in the party organization. It is probable that he will reorganize the committee, bringing in James B. Reynolds of Boston as secretary of the national committee.

Butler was new in national politics when he became Coolidge's pre-convention manager a few months ago. He wears the air of a prosperous business man of large affairs and he is. He has great textile holdings in New England and many financial connections there. He is of serious mein, cares little for the chatter and yarn-swapping of politicians, talks earnestly when he has anything to say, keeps clear of doubtful ground, ventures no information and produces little upon being questioned. It is only an old and favored acquaintance who slaps him on the back and calls him "Bill."

Stands Out In Crowd.

He could be picked out in a gathering of politicians unerringly because of his neatly clipped gray hair, his closely trimmed moustache, his gold-rimmed eye-glasses and neat, quiet dress.

The Coolidge group generally takes great pride in the quiet, unostentatious manner in which he has bagged all except 43 out of 903 convention

ESCAPE OF PRISONER CAUSES COMPLICATION

Delegation Claims Extra-Territorial Right of Immunity—Fugitive Taken in Hiding in Building.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Berlin, May 3.—M. Krestinsky, Russian soviet ambassador to Germany, left for Moscow tonight. His departure is a sequel to the action of the Berlin police in entering the building of the Russian trade delegation and searching the house from roof to cellar for a communist against whom a warrant had been issued.

Great excitement prevails in Russian circles over the police search, embassy officials stating that it lasted four hours and that the leaders of the Russian trade mission, which is supposed to enjoy extra-territorial rights, were interfered with. The police made several arrests and took the prisoners, handcuffed to the police prefecture.

M. Krestinsky called at the foreign office and made energetic protests. He succeeded in getting Foreign Minister Stresemann to order the search stopped at once.

"An unparalleled violation of extra-territorial rights" is the way the Russian embassy regards the police action. It has ordered the trade mission to cease its work and all commercial activities will be suspended.

The trouble started when two Swabian policemen, bringing a communist leader, Botzenhardt, wanted by the Pomeranian state's attorney for alleged treasons, from Stuttgart to Stargard, were duped in believing that the Russian trade delegation building in Berlin was a restaurant where they might have lunch while making a change in trains.

According to the police, Botzenhardt was surrounded by communists and in the shuffle his escape was made possible. The police then surrounded the building and went through with their search despite the protests of the Russians until ordered by Dr. Stresemann to cease.

It is contended by the Berlin chief of police that a search of extra-territorial property is justified if the culprit is caught in the act and in flight.

The German government has lodged a protest with the Russian embassy against the conduct of the employees of the Russian trade mission, characterizing the conduct of the Russians as a gross violation of German law and pointing out that the mission does not enjoy diplomatic immunity.

The German version of the trouble is that Russian employees aided in the escape of the German communist leader, Botzenhardt.

BERLIN WRITING KEYNOTE SONG FOR DEMOCRATS

New York, May 3.—A keynote song is to be a feature of the national democratic convention. It is being written by Irving Berlin.

Miss Elizabeth Marbury, member of the national committee, and chairman of the committee on arrangements for caring for women visitors, in revealing plans for the song, said today:

"Personally, I think that if the song is as good as Mr. Berlin can write, it will be as important as the keynote speech."

Miss Marbury merely smiled when asked whether the song would have any relation to "the sidewalks of New York."

Miss Marbury is arranging a fashion show exhibiting the latest sartorial creations for both men and women for a theater the night before the convention opens.

"We want to show the politicians," she said, "that the better dressed they are the better it is for the party."

DESPERATE ADVENTURE BURIED IN STILTED PHRASE

New York, May 3.—Captain Purdy, a seafaring man with salt in his whiskers, brought the tank steamer Frederick W. Weller to her anchorage in the bay, dropped her hook into the floor of the harbor and yanked the whistle landyard, blowing several hoots to summon the shipping board commissioner to oversee the paying off of his crew.

"I call attention," the captain said, when Edward W. Voorhies, the commissioner, had clambered up the ladder with his ledgers under his arm and had saluted the colors and the authority on the bridge. "I call your attention, sir, to the absence without leave of Seaman Claremont L. Sladen, of Brooklyn, N. Y. You will find, sir, a notation in the log, under date of April 22, covering the disappearance of the Seaman Sladen, aforesaid."

Took Knife With Him.

The captain grubbed on in the formal, stilted language of a ship commander addressing an official landsman and Voorhies cuffed the handwritten pages of the log to the date of April 22, where he read:

"Seaman Claremont L. Sladen, of Brooklyn, N. Y., did not answer roll call at fire drill this day. Vessel was off Point Mala, republic of Panama, in the Pacific ocean. Chief officer found no trace of Seaman Sladen, who is reported to have acted strangely. His bunk was searched and it was discovered that his lifebelt was missing. He had been carrying a long sharp knife. He left a note reading 'Goodbye, tanker, F. W. Weller.'"

Was Common Entry.

As Voorhies digested the routine matter of a sailor's suicide at sea his mind was prepared to consider other things. Many saliors go that way. They become maddened by the tropical heat sometimes or become fascinated by the sun-gleam on the boundless waters, and throw themselves to the sharks.

But Captain Purdy insisted on completing the narrative in formal, official tones and language. He had complied with all the laws of the government and the traditions of the sea which pertained to such an emergency. He had impounded the pitiful belongings of the Seaman Sladen aforesaid and had sent wireless messages to all ships within a certain

14 Entries Received For Frolicland Tour

BY O. J. WILLOUGHBY.
Editor Constitution Highway Dept.

With definate entries of fourteen cars received up to Saturday night, it is believed that long before The Constitution's big automobile tour to Panama City, Fla., leaves Atlanta, all possible accommodations will have been allotted.

Usually entries for Constitution tours are not made until near closing time, but contrary to all precedents, entries are coming in at a rate far more rapid than was anticipated. Those who are planning to take the trip are urged to make definite reservations before the choice of hotel accommodations is limited.

Panama City and Lynn Haven are summer and winter resorts, and both have good hotels, but to accommodate The Constitution's big party, in addition to regular guests at this time of the year, it is necessary to secure hotel reservations in advance.

Arrangements Made.

Constitution representatives visited Panama City to determine the best route to be used by the tour party and to make definite arrangements for the tour. On this trip all available hotel and boarding house accommodations were reserved en bloc, and are now being allotted to tour members as their applications are accepted by The Constitution.

The fishing and fun frolic party will leave Atlanta Saturday morning, May 17, for one full week of unexcelled fishing and water sports in and around St. Andrews bay.

A complete moving picture story of the party wil be filmed by Tracy Mathewson, of The Constitution staff, and will be shown for one week at Loew's Grand theater following the tour.

TWO YOUNG BRIDES HELD PRISONERS BY PARENTS, CLAIM

Chicago, May 3.—Two youthful Chicago brides are being held as unwilling prisoners in the home of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Lanas, Attorney Rocco Desstafao charged today in filing habeas corpus petitions for the release of the two. The petitions were filed in criminal court.

One of the pair, Desstafao charges, is the pretty 21-year-old bride of Frank Jummati, Chicago featherweight prize fighter. He says the two were married April 25. The other is the 18-year-old wife of Joseph Palmisamo, with whom she eloped April 23.

Desstafao says the two went for a visit to their home April 28 and have been held prisoners since. A hearing on the petition will be held next week.

Highway Boosters To Map Federal Aid Fight at Meet

Extension and Continuance of National Highway Funding To Be Pushed at Albuquerque.

Albuquerque, N. M., May 3.—(Special.)—Albuquerque will be the good roads capital of the United States when delegates from every state in the Union assemble here May 26-31 to outline a campaign for continuance and extension of federal aid for highway construction.

At the national convention of the United States Good Roads association and the National Bankhead highway association will be formulated plans for the fight to be carried to Washington, according to an announcement by Colonel J. A. Rountree, director general of both organizations.

Activities at the Albuquerque convention will be distinctly national, and will be focused on congress and upon those figures seeking national leadership.

Resolutions Outlined.

Resolutions will probably be adopted asking an increase of the federal aid appropriation from 75 million to 100 million annually.

Resolutions will be adopted asking the federal government to take over the national highways.

Committees will be appointed to go before both democratic and republican conventions urging those bodies to adopt platforms advocating federal highway aid.

Letters have already been written, said Colonel Rountree, and favorable answers have been received, from practically every candidate for president. It is expected replies will be unanimously affirmative.

Plans Complete.

Plans for the entertainment of the 5,000 delegates to the Good Roads' convention are complete. The searchlight of publicity has been playing upon Albuquerque from every state in the union and responses received at headquarters indicate a record breaking attendance, the director general said.

For the past three weeks radio fans have been listening to a weekly story of preparations for the convention. Broadcasting stations at Detroit, Omaha, Detroit, Los Angeles, Fort Worth, Memphis, Atlanta and other cities have been keeping the country informed as to progress.

It is estimated two million New Yorkers nightly will read the dazzling electric sign to be swung high over traffic on the Claridge hotel. The sign will be furnished by the United States Tire company and will tell about the Albuquerque convention. It will remain over the Claridge for one week, beginning May 12.

Good Roads' Show.

The United States Good Roads' show will offer the concrete illustration of good roads methods. Manufacturers of road machinery will have their exhibits ready for inspection by highway engineers and road officials. The show will open Monday evening, May 26.

The number of firms to be represented at this show will more than double that of last year, Col. Rountree stated. In addition to every kind of practical road building machinery, the exhibits will include many inventions developed during the past year.

An interesting exhibit will be that of the U. S. Bureau of Public roads, which has engaged more than 1,000 square feet of space. Thomas H. MacDonald, chief of the bureau, has written he is sending the most complete demonstration ever sent from Washington.

Fifteen state highway departments have written they will have exhibits of road scenes, maps, contours and road machinery. Machinery firms have been asked to invite contractors and road builders to attend the convention and to inspect the road building progress of the last year.

Two thousand county commissioners from the southwest and west have been specially invited to be present and replies indicate a great number will attend the show.

Many manufacturers of cement, brick, asphalt, and other road material have made reservations for the display. Automobile and truck dealers of the southwest have been invited to call a meeting of all dealers the meeting to be held simultaneously with the convention.

14 ENTRIES RECEIVED FOR FROLICLAND TOUR

will give one a limited idea of the varied sports and beauty which will be enjoyed by members of the party.

Service Available.

Quick tire service trucks and mechanical service cars will accompany the tour to care for any tire or car troubles which might develop en route.

Constitution pathfinders will lead the party; banners will be provided for front and rear of each car; badges will be provided for each member of the party, and free toll bridge passage at Columbia, Ala., will be extended by the city of Columbia to all cars carrying official banners.

All members of the tour will be the guests of Panama City for one day's fishing and boat excursion and a big fish dinner. Fresh and salt water fishing of the best kind will be available every day, as will swimming, dancing, boating and the like. Ample boats and guides will be available each day for full enjoyment of the fishing, swimming and other water sports.

Trip Costs Little.

An entrance fee of $5 per car and $2.50 for each person is required by The Constitution to partially cover the cost of making hotel reservations and providing the many other services which each member of the party will share.

Hotel and boarding house rates at the bay range from $1.50 per day to $5 per day, American plan. These rates were secured by The Constitution and are considerably lower than usual rates. When applications are accepted by The Constitution, definite hotel accommodations are allotted to members before leaving Atlanta. Persons living outside of Atlanta may join the party at any point en route, provided reservations have been previously accepted by The Constitution.

The tour will be conducted in two sections. One to reach Panama City for lunch Sunday, May 18, the other, in the late afternoon of the same day.

Reservations may be made at The Constitution office, first floor, any week day between 11 a. m. and 1 p. m., or between 5 and 7 p. m. The tour manager will gladly discuss any phase of the tour with interested persons during these hours.

Free Service.

Free service arranged for tour members by The Constitution will include:

Badges for each member of the party.

Banners for front and rear of all cars.

One whole day boat excursion and fish fry as the guests of Panama City.

Fresh water fishing, permit in Bay county for the week.

Tire and mechanical service en route.

Varied refreshments and entertainment provided by the cities along the route and by Panama City.

Motorlog of routes to Panama City.

PLANS MADE IN PANAMA CITY.

Panama City, Fla., May 3.—(Special.)—Various committees of the chamber of commerce and the Woman's club, appointed to arrange entertainment for members of The Constitution's automobile tour, report steady progress.

A big fishing schooner has been chartered to take the whole party for a one-day boat and deep sea fishing excursion. Arrangements have been made to serve a fish dinner aboard. Fish just caught from the waters of beautiful St. Andrew's bay and the Gulf of Mexico will be prepared as only expert sea food cooks can prepare them. All members of The Constitution tour will be the guests of the city for this boat excursion and fish fry.

All small boats and guides have been signed up for exclusive use of members of the tour party for the week. A clearing house will be established under direction of members of the chamber of commerce, the Woman's club and the national guard for arranging fishing, boating and bathing parties.

Entertainment for Ladies.

Boats will also be available for trips to the gulf beach and pavilion. Committees appointed by the Woman's club, composed of prominent women of Panama City and Bay county, will assist in entertaining ladies of the party. Dances will be arranged for all.

Local hotels are cooperating with the general committee, and ample hotel accommodations are assured for the entire party as arranged by Constitution representatives several weeks since.

All members of the party will be the guests of Bay county in so far as fishing permits is concerned. Tour badges worn by members of the party will entitle each member to enjoy the wonderful fresh water fishing in the waters of Bay county for the week of the tour.

Arrangements are also being made to cooperate to the fullest extent in assisting The Constitution's staff moving picture photographer in filming pictures of the Atlanta party as they enjoy the water sports for which the St. Andrew's bay section is famous.

Fishermen report that in all probability there will be a big run of king mackerel during the week which the tour party will spend here. The king mackerel is not only one of the most delectable, but is the most game game of all salt water fish.

"BETTER HOMES" PLANS COMPLETE

men and women, as a practical way of meeting this need, and of presenting the result of study to the public in a way that can readily be grasped. I, therefore, have no hesitation in urging such cooperation as an outstanding form of public service. From this movement there should develop a steadiness of character, high family ideals, civic pride and responsibility throughout our land."

Mayor's Proclamation.

Mayor Sim's approval is in the form of a proclamation, calling upon all citizens to observe and enter into the spirit of the week; to visit and inspect each home, pointing out that "Whatever improves the home and adds to the convenience and happiness of those who dwell therein, strengthens the community, the state and the nation."

Atlanta won one of the national prizes in the 1923 contest, yielding first place to Port Huron, Michigan; second place to St. Helena, S. C., and third place to Natalie, Penn. Prizes are awarded to cities each year in which the best showing is made and Atlanta is striving to win the first prize this year. To that end nothing has spared, Mrs. Wing states, to equip and arrange Atlanta's three "Ideal Homes." Merchants have supplied furnishings, and the services of expert decorators and specialists in home plans have been engaged to place Atlanta's homes in the best possible position.

Home for Negroes.

Two of the homes are for whites, while the other home has been equipped solely for negroes. The latter home is furnished simply, in accordance with the usual small wage of the negro worker, and is arranged so as to provide light, sanitation and convenience in the hope that members of that race may be imbued with the simplicity and beauty of style and that home affairs will be made more appealing and pleasing.

Visitng hours for each home will be announced later, along with more specific information of plans and the names of those who will be in charge of each home to conduct visitors and to answer all questions.

delegates chosen thus far. It is a record which probably stands alone in the history of republican politics. It has been done so noiselessly that the public hardly has noticed it. Butler's tabulation shows that Coolidge has 860 delegates instructed or favorable to Coolidge, while La Follette has 28 and Johnson 15.

Furthermore, Butler predicts that Coolidge will carry California, Indiana and the other states which have primaries yet to come.

Assumptions Limited.

"I anticipate that all of the primaries in May will be favorable to the president, including California," Butler said.

"I assume that the choice of the president regarding the national committee chairmanship will be approved, but I can't assume to make any announcements regarding the campaign at this time."

He said he had no impression regarding the probable vice presidential nominee and declined to suggest any names which have been mentioned.

Suggestions that President Coolidge remain in Washington during the campaign, making perhaps an occasional out-of-town address, appear to meet with Butler's approval.

SAILOR SEEKING TO SUICIDE FIGHTS SHARKS

range requesting that they watch out for the life belt or other mementoes of the missing deckhand. The waters were alive with schools of large sharks and there was little hope.

Struck Several Fish.

Voorhies turned the pages again and read the amazing entry:

"Received this day at 12 noon wireless message from British freight steamer Dorset, of Liverpool, outbound from Balboa to Auckland, N. Z., stating that she picked up Seaman Sladen, missing from this vessel. He had been in the water 24 hours and was exhausted but not harmed. He says he had considerable difficulty with large fish. He had large knife in his hand with which he had struck several of those fish and frightened away others."

"Considerable trouble with large fish," exclaimed Voorhies. "That's a seaman's language for you. A man floating in the Pacific with a knife in his hands fights off schools of sharks and they report that he had 'considerable trouble with large fish.'" their return or rescue, but still, such is the hope of the army and the resourcefulness of its men—hope still lives.

Seaman Sladen's pay is waiting for him.

PLIGHT OF MARTIN SEEN AS HOPELESS

Search of Bays Vain.

Six little flotillas of cockle-shell craft, which searched the indentations of the Pacific coast on the Alaskan peninsula returned to their various bases Saturday, dejected and beaten by the weather and disappointment. They had caught no trace of the major and the sergeant. Three government ships, the coast guard cutters Algonquin and Haida, and the survey vessel, Pioneer, had inspected most of the route which Major Martin had mapped out, but had found no trace of the missing men or their craft.

Just one message of encouragement was received and that one from a huddle of native Indians at Chignik Lagoon who told of the passage of a great roaring bird which caused the children to run chattering to their mothers and the elders of the small community to stand, dum-struck in awe of the phenomenon. The bird was thundering toward the Bering sea, they said, across the Alaskan peninsula from their settlement. This was taken to mean that Martin and Sergeant Harvey had crossed to the far side of the Alaskan peninsula to shelter themselves against the winds in the lee of the volcanic range.

Sledges Start Out.

Therefore, a party, led by Indian guides, set out on dog sleds Saturday at daybreak to beat inland from Chignik and grope over the range along the presumptive course of the army's air ship. There lies Lake Chinik, where perhaps the flyers have alighted safe on the glassy bosom which glints and glows, reflecting the light of the stars on its crystal surface.

While the search for Major Martin and the sergeant continued to occupy the main attention, word was awaited as to whether Lieutenants Lowell Smith, Erik Nelson and Leigh Wade, Martin's companion flyers, had succeeded in getting away from Dutch Harbor. They planned to hop off today for Nazan on the Islands of Atka and, if conditions were found favorable, to continue on without stop 800 miles to Chiagoff, on the Island of Attu.

LOST AVIATORS HAD FOOD, MATCHES.

Washington, May 3.—Major Frederick L. Martin, lost commander of the American round-the-world flyers, and his mechanic have ample food supplies and matches to last them several weeks in the Arctic, Lieutenant Lowell H. Smith, acting commander of the flight, notified air service officials by radio today.

Smith expressed confidence that Martin and his companion were safe and would soon be found. He pointed out that with matches and food they should be able to hold out until rescue parties locate them, barring injuries.

Officials were reassured by Smith's message and believe Martin may yet be found in some sheltered cove awaiting the arrival of the searching parties. Smith's denial of reported bad weather conditions also caused hope that the missing flyers are not suffering.

ALASKA BRANDED AS ABODE OF DEATH.

New York, May 3.—There is little hope for the missing American flyers in Alaska, so dangerous to life is the country in which they are lost, according to Dr. F. A. Lucas, honorary director of the museum of natural history, who spent two years among the desolate Alaskan islands making a survey of the seal fisheries.

In Dr. Lucas' opinion, the land and the sea and general climatic conditions are so perilous that Major Martin and Sergeant Harvey, his mechanic, may never be found alive.

"I have never seen weather so treacherous and uncertain," Dr. Lucas said in an interview here in commenting upon the region where the airmen disappeared. "It is never so uncertain as during the summer. Terrible southwest gales spring up without warning, dense fogs come rolling in from the ocean on the brightest and clearest days, and the sparse population, the infrequency of good harbors or landing places and the desolation of the islands combine to make the region a bad place for a lost aviator."

"At Unalaska Harbor," Dr. Lucas recalled, "there is a pebble spit—a long, low, narrow peninsula—which puts out its arm to shut off the ocean from the harbor. I don't think it is a mile across the harbor to the spit. Yet one day a boat crew from a British gunboat rowed out there. They started to row back, never thinking themselves in peril, but a storm came up so suddenly that they were swamped and drowned right within the harbor."

Heavy fog descends so suddenly at times, according to Dr. Lucas, that the whole landscape is obscured from view with but a moment's warning. If the airmen were forced to land in one of the Alaskan gales, Dr. Lucas fears they may have lost their lives by drowning.

ATLANTA BRANCH OFFICE OPENED BY RAND COMPANY

H. Clarke Bruner, southern district manager of Rand Company, Inc., North Tonawanda, N. Y., largest manufacturers of visible card record equipment, has established an Atlanta branch in 101 Marietta street building.

Mr. Bruner states that business has been developed to such a high degree by the company's representatives, Foote & Davies, who have been handling Rand for the past ten years, that is has been found necessary to establish southern distribution headquarters.

In April a branch was opened in Charlotte, N. C., while during May, branch offices will be established in

H. CLARKE BRUNER.

Macon, Jacksonville, Orlando and Miami. Mr. Bruner adds that due to the tremendous real estate development in Florida, and also the keen competition existing between real estate firms, it has been necessary to send men to specialize on real estate records alone.

"Business men today realize that business success is entirely dependent upon scientific business management, and of course this in turn is absolutely dependent upon definite knowledge obtained through record control. This control we guarantee with Rand. Business offices have a tendency toward being flooded with complex record systems, infinite detail, red-tape and costly overhead. Quite naturally the far-sighted executive realizes that these complex records threaten to become an organization weakness. Complex records require too much time and expense for entering business data, and then after it is once compiled it is so inaccessible that little benefit is derived from its use. We know that Rand offers a solution for speeding up entries and references to business records and at the same time we can present the vital control facts for executive use in digested form. All this can be done with less clerical detail by the use of Rand."

Hundreds of Atlanta business houses, including all the large department stores, are using visible card records for their credit authorization, stock and sales contol, and also for their ledger, production, purchase and cost records.

"If we are able to judge the balance of 1924 by the business done the first four months, our sales unquestionably will be increased at least fifty per cent," Mr. Bruner said. "We intend to continue establishing branches throughout the entire south as rapidly as we are able to locate the proper branch manages."

BESSIE TIFT MAKES PLANS FOR CLOSING

Forsyth, Ga., May 3.—(Special.)—Dr. John D. Mell, of Athens, Ga., will deliver the baccalaureate address at the closing exercises of Bessie Tift college, which begins May 30 and continues through June 3, according to officials in charge. Dr. H. L. Grice, pastor of the First Baptist church, of Washington, Ga., will preach the commencement sermon.

Friday—Senior play.

Saturday—Art exhibit, meeting of alumnae association, alumnae banquet and intersociety night.

Monday—Annual meeting of trustees, class day exercises and grand concert.

Tuesday — Baccalaureate address, Dr. John D. Mell, of Athens, and awarding of honors and degrees.

Governor of North Carolina To Address Atlanta Society

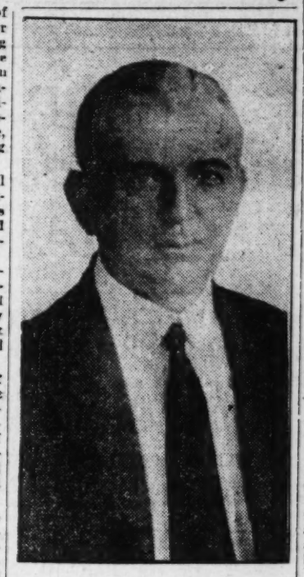

Governor Cameron Morrison, of North Carolina, will be guest of honor and principal speaker at a meeting of the North Carolina society, to be held at the Capital City club on Tuesday night, May 20. The 530 members of the Atlanta society, in addition to many other native North Carolinians in various sections of the state, are expected to attend the meeting here.

An elaborate musical program will be arranged and a number of Atlanta's most popular musical stars and pretty dancers will take part, and other high-class entertainment features will be provided.

The woman's auxiliary of the society will have equal part in arrangements for the big dinner at the Capital City club, and plans are under way to make the affair one of the most enjoyable and interesting ever held in the city.

Dr. Claud Hughes is president of the Atlanta society, Phil McDuffie is vice president and Ray K. Smathers is secretary-treasurer. These officers, in addition to a number of special committees, are busily engaged in preparations for the dinner and meeting, and for the entertainment of North Carolina's governor.

It is planned, officers stated, to invite other distinguished North Carolinians to accompany Governor Morrison to Atlanta, and to be guests of the local society. Tentative plans call for sight-seeing tours of interest in and around Atlanta, including a trip to Stone Mountain, where visitors may see the progress of the work on the huge Stone Mountain memorial being carved there by Gutzon Borglum, famous sculptor.

GOV. CAMERON MORRISON, of North Carolina.

Complete details will be announced later, it was stated Saturday.

Anti-Tuberculosis Workers Gather for National Meet

More than a score of the nation's most prominent figures in anti-tuberculosis work had registered Saturday night for the meeting here this week of the National Anti-Tuberculosis association.

Reservations have been made from every state in the union and some foreign countries and it is expected that a great majority of the nearly fifteen hundred local associations affiliated with the state associations will be represented.

Some of the prominent specialists, sanatorium men and executives who have been identified with the movement from its organization in Baltimore in 1904, and many who have since been recognized as leaders in the campaign will be present to give prominence to the twentieth anniversary celebration.

BY RALPH T. JONES.

"Yahoo—step right up, gentlemen and sports—only one dime, 10 cents—the tenth part of a dollar—Yahoo!—take a chance on a baby doll for your sweetie—take a chance—take a chance—a box of candy—Yahoo!—carry a Georgia ham home to the missus—only one dime—the price of a smoke—Yahoo!—Yahoo!— Yah Hooo!"

The Elks' circus opened the big week down at the auditorium Saturday night. Eight big circus acts—count 'em. Scores of side shows. Noise, music, crowds, more noise. Acrobats, trapeze artists, aerial acts, still more noise. Fun, milling mobs, big times and more noise than ever.

"Bills" innumerable had charge of the side show booths, the pink lemonade concessions, the peanuts, popcorn and hot dogs. They stood on professional looking ticket booths—you know those little pedestals with shelves in front you get reserved seats from at the Barnum & Bailey and Ringling shows—and sold reserved seat tickets to all comers. Every seat in the auditorium is reserved, by the way, so if you want to sit down, get a seat.

Who Wants a Seat?

But, at that, who would want to sit down unless it is to take a bird's-eye view of the milling crowds on the floor, from the top gallery. As many people on the floor as there are bristles in a brushe. Fully.

Horns, cow bells, clanging anvils, megaphones, automobile horns, fire alarms, drums, cymbals and trumpets. All calling insistently, constantly, raucously. Calling the crowds to the booths where you can buy 'most anything in the category of carnival merchandise.

Candy, bacon, ham, flapper dolls, floor lamps, cigars. Mirrors, silver pitchers, fruit baskets. Rugs, sweaters, socks. Electrical appliances, mama dolls, statuary. It was all there.

Every 20 minutes the noise of the ballyhoos ceased. A big time, professional circus act, went through its breath-taking stunts on the big stage. Clowns capered and shapely ladies flung themselves gracefully from horizontal bar to trapeze. Strong men supported towering pyramids of humanity. Acrobats tumbled and leaped in dazzling kaleidescope of flashing bodies.

Outbursts of applause—curtain—and the ballyhoos began again.

There must have been close to 10,000 people in the auditorium at one time or another Saturday night. The mobs milled and surged all night, newcomers keeping the place nearly full as fast as others left.

Circus Here for Week.

The circus is here the whole of next week. Every night there will be something new. Some big surprise stunt to feature that night. It will remain open until 11 o'clock and the Atlantan who doesn't pay at least one visit is overlooking the safest bet for a rollicking good time that has come along for many moons.

An automobile will be given away every night to some lucky ticket purchaser. Every ticket has a number, so every patron has a chance on a brand new car for the taking.

Someone—in the whirl of noise the name was missed—drove away Saturday night and saved street car fare home, at least.

You'd better be on hand some time during the week, for you never know your luck. Maybe you'll get the car on one of the important nights. That reminds—

Each night during the week has been designated as a feature night for some particular Atlanta organization or fraternal order. Thus Monday night is "Masonic and Shriners' Night;" Tuesday is "Kiwanis and Civitan Night;" Wednesday is "American Legion and Knights of Columbus Night;" Thursday, "Chamber of Commerce and Junior Chamber of Commerce Night;" Friday, "Lions' and Rotarians' Night," and next Saturday, the grand finale, will be "Atlanta Night."

John Litel and members of the Baldwin Players now appearing at the Atlanta theater are official sponsors for the circus.

Big Parade Is Given.

The big show was preceded, Saturday afternoon, by a colorful parade through the downtown streets, headed by the famous "Royal Purple" band of the Atlanta Lodge of Elks. Other units of the local Elks, such as the crack drill team, the "Purple Devils," the fife and drum corps, etc., were in line and a bevy of Atlanta beauties who are taking part in a big popularity contest to see which is the best liked beauty of them all.

If the show all next week is half as good as it was Saturday night—"Elks' Night"—it will set a new standard in local amusement. For that is what it is, amusement pure and simple. Enter into the spirit of the thing, and you'll shed ten years of age, at least, in one visit, if it doesn't carry clear back to the days of boyhood and your first circus.

In the meantime, don't forget, either in the main auditorium or in Taft hall—

"Right this way, sports—buy a chance on a beautiful lamp—only one dime—just a dime, a dime, a dime—spin the wheel, gentlemen—everyone has the same chance—Yahoo—Yahoo—Yahoo. Get a doll for your best girl—step up, step up, step up. Just ten cents, the tenth part of a dollar—get a box of candy—a pair of hose—or a Georgy ham—Yahoo!—Yahoo!—Only a dime—Make room, the gent's going to buy—here comes Rockefeller — Yahoo! — Yahoo!—Wow!"

STATE EDUCATORS END CONVENTION

Savannah, Ga., May 3.—Sessions of the closing day of the convention of the Georgia Education association were featured by an address by E. T. Franks, of the federal board of vocation, Washington, D. C., who spoke on "Vocational Education." The 1924 annual meeting came to an end here tonight.

"The federal board was organized, plans had to be worked out, studies made, results published and in less than six years we have a student body of more than 536,000 studying trades and industries, agriculture and home economics, having increased 326 per cent since 1918. The work is growing by leaps and bounds. The great American heart is behind the movement, and the man or woman who undertakes to impede its program by getting in its way will be wise when the smoke and dust have cleared sufficiently to review the remains."

Dr. Aquila Chamlee, president of Bessie Tift college, at Forsyth, spoke on a "Christian Education."

This morning graduates of the Georgia State college, of Athens, gave a breakfast at a local hotel to the alumnae and staff of the Georgia State college at Milledgeville. Mrs. Francis M. Turner, of Savannah, was toastmistress and the welcome address was by Charleton B. Gibson, superintendent of the Savannah schools. There were responses to toasts by a number of men and women. College songs were sung during the breakfast.

Kyle T. Alfriend, of LaGrange, secretary, announced to the association that an invitation to hold the next convention in Macon has been received. This invitation was referred to the board of directors for action. It was brought to Savannah by Dr. R[illegible] W. Weaver, of Macon.

Resolutions Adopted.

The resolutions adopted include: Thanks to Superintendent C. B. Gibson, citizens of Savannah, local papers, the public school system of Savannah, the teachers, the president of the association and the secretary, and to others.

That a committee be appointed to draw up and enlarge the present code of ethics and see that it is published in the proceedings of this convention.

That the state board of education be requested to reconsider its recent action in the matter of teachers' certificates and to establish a minimum standard certificate that should not be less than formerly used.

ECONOMICS SOCIETY ELECTS OFFICERS.

Miss Erna E. Proctor, Athens, president; Miss Susan Matthews, Athens, vice president; Miss Clara Haslock, Milledgeville, secretary; Miss Mary Fawcett, Savannah, treasurer, and Miss Clara Lee Cone, councillor.

PHYSICAL EDUCATORS NAME NEW OFFICERS.

Savannah, Ga., May 3.—The Georgia Physical Education association today elected the following officers: President, Caro Lane, Milledgeville; first vice president, I. C. Mathey, Atlanta; secretary-treasurer, H. S. Bounds, Savannah; advisory board, Miss Leonora Ivey, Augusta; Mrs. Ada Majors, Savannah; Dr. A. D. Brown, Peabody college.

Women of Decatur Plan Big Program For Music Week

With full programs for the week made out, Decatur will observe the initial day of national music week Sunday with appropriate services by choir and congregational singing and by special talks by pastors, is announced by Miss Annie Laurie Allen, chairman for the Decatur woman's division of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce.

Striking the keynote for the purpose of the observance of music week, Rev. D. P. McGeachy, pastor of the Decatur Presbyterian church, has given over the evenng hour to a general congregational song service under the direction of Melchor Lockhart, choir master. A special choir service at the regular prayer meeting, Wednesday evening will also be held.

Rev. J. O. Brand has announced that a special service will be held Sunday morning. Tom Connor, choir Sunday morning with Tom Connor, choir master. Extra numbers are a solo by Miss Lois Brand, a mixed quartet and two choruses, with congregational singing.

Other churches have not announced programs, but their exercises will be probably along the same line.

Dr. Sigmund Spaeth, who was announced to speak at the high school Tuesday, will not be able to fulfill his engagement, but another speaker will deliver an address there.

Resume of Eleventh Annual P.-T. Convention Given Today

The 11th annual convention of the Georgia Parent-Teacher association held during the past week in Savannah in the auditorium, brought out the fact at every business session that a great amount of constructive and educational work was being accomplished, and reports read by those in attendance from every part of the state familiarized the members of the organization with every phase of the work being conducted by the various committees. The members of this earnest body are unselfish and untiring in their devotion to the cause of the education of the child from a spiritual, physical, mental and moral standpoint.

Mrs. Bruce-Carr Jones, of Macon, the president, gave in her report a splendid idea of the wonderful accomplishments and tremendous growth of the association, and proved that the machinery of the organization, under the new by-laws, running has given astounding manifestations of its running qualities. The theme of the convention was "An Informed Public."

"Parenthood is a co-partnership with God and parents are 75 per cent responsible for the proper rearing and educating of their children," Mrs. Bruce-Carr Jones, of Macon, president of the Georgia state branch of the National Congress of Mothers and Parent-Teacher Associations, declared at the formal opening of the 11th annual convention here tonight. Hundreds of delegates from all parts of the state are attending.

Mrs. Jones' address followed the slogan adopted for the meeting—"An Informed Public." She said that 11 of the children born in Georgia each day die for lack of proper care in most cases. It is estimated that a child is born in Georgia every seven minutes, she said. "The alarming lack of preparedness for parenthood is evident on every side," Mrs. Jones said. "We must educate ourselves to the responsibility and the high and holy estate of parenthood. Good homes do not just happen. They are made, planned and every possible care is exercised to establish them." Ignorance in all forms was attacked in the addresses of the speakers, and discussions were directed towards a partnership between schools and the public in an effort to raise the standard of education.

Newly Elected President.

Mrs. Fred Wessels, the newly elected president of the state P.-T. A., has been active for years in Parent-Teacher work and was at one time president of the Anderson Street School association. She is also active in the Young Women's Christian association and is the chairman of the Travelers' Aid committee of that association.

In accepting the office of president, Mrs. Wessels asked that Mrs. Bruce Carr Jones, the retiring president, who had refused the nomination, be elected as the honorary president with full power on the board during the ensuing term. The request was granted by a unanimous vote. Mrs. Jones was also given a rising vote of thanks by the convention for the splendid work which she has done during her term of office.

Mrs. Reynolds Flournoy, chairman of the nominating committee, read the slate, which was received with unanimous approval. Serving with the chairman were Mrs. Arthur Tufts, of Atlanta; Mrs. Walter P. Warren, of Athens; Mrs. Thomas J. Cater and Mrs. Lawrence Kelly, of Savannah. Other officers elected were Miss Kate Dozier, of Gainesville, vice president; Mrs. P. H. Jeter, of Decatur, recording secretary; Mrs. Clifford Swift, of Columbus, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Albert Ehrlich, of Savannah, treasurer; Mrs. Guy Wells, of Eastman, auditor; Mrs. Kinlock Dunlap, of Macon, historian; Mrs. Preston Brooks, of Athens, parliamentarian.

Vice Presidents Named.

The fololwing district vice presidents were elected: First, Mrs. O. L. Gresham, of Waynesboro; second, Mrs. I. J. Hoffmeyer, of Albany; third, Mrs. Edward Dorminy, of Fitzgerald; fourth, Mrs. Reynolds Flournoy, of Columbus; fifth, Mrs. Z. V. Peterson, of Atlanta; sixth, Mrs. T. A. D. Weaver, of Thomaston; seventh, Mrs. Paul Aiken, of Cartersville; eighth, Mrs. Boyce Ficklen, Jr., of Washington; ninth, Mrs. W. M. Johnson, of Gainesville; tenth, Mrs. Hugh Paschal, of Harlem; eleventh, Mrs. W. D. Didell, of Woodbine; twelfth, Mrs. John W. Poe, of Vidalia.

Mrs. Wessels, on taking the office, asked that the convention elect Mrs. Jones as honorary president for the next term with full power on the board. She was elected.

Atlanta Hospital Praised.

The plan of the Wesley Memorial hospital, at Emory university, Atlanta, in making every baby born in that institution an alumnus of the hospital, was praised by Mrs. Clifford Walker, of Atlanta, national chairman of the pre-school age of the association. She stated that at regular intervals these babies are carried to Wesley Memorial hospital, where they have the advantage of being placed under the care of some of the physicians. They are measured and physically examined and the findings are placed on record, and the records are attached to an individual chart.

Mothers are given the necessary advice and corrective treatment pertaining to the child. The aim of the hospital in establishing a baby society is to keep in touch with their babies throughout the pre-school age, and to render to the parents the help and assistance that is necessary to help their children grow up healthy and happy.

Miss Bell MacIntosh, superintendent of babies' ward at Wesley Memorial hospital, instituted this work and it met with immediate and remarkable success. Mrs. Walker urged every association to take an interest in this movement and broadcast this plan so that every hospital in the state will adopt it. The result will be prevention against disease in the pre-school age, she said.

"The physical handicap of a pre-school child increases the cost of the school to the whole community," Mrs. Walker said. "The pupil who comes to school undernourished, with faulty vision, or hearing, with defective teeth or with mental development unequal to the work of the first grade, brings a bill of expense to the taxpayers, which would never be incurred had the parents been educated in the scientific principles underlying the care and feeding of children between one and six years of age."

Grammar School Reports.

Grammar school reports were the feature of Thursday morning's session. Mrs. C. A. Vernoy, of Athens, auditor of the association, stated that the slogan of Athens' P.-T. A. is "Every child in Georgia to enter school in 1925 free from remediable defects."

Mrs. P. H. Jeter, of Decatur, read the report from Glenwood P.-T. A. in Decatur, one of the livest organizations in the state.

She brought out five outstanding points in her report; first, anti-tuberculosis seal sale to encourage health crusade; second, editing monthly bulletins; third, 100 per cent children have savings accounts, and five, art instruction in school.

The names of Mrs. M. E. Judd, of Dalton, and Mrs. Fred Wessels, of Savannah, were announced as life members of the state Parent-Teacher association by the secretary, Mrs. P. H. Jeter, of Decatur. On payment of $50, life membership in the organization may be obtained. Mrs. Thomas Purse, of Savannah, is already enrolled on this list.

The Hilbun banner, which is given to the district which has obtained and organized the largest number of associations during the year, was presented to the fifth district, of which Mrs. Z. V. Peterson, of Atlanta, is vice president. The contest was very close, the fifth district having seventeen associations, and the tenth, of which Mrs. R. L. Griffin, of Augusta, is district vice president, having fifteen.

The district vice presidents gave one-minute talks on "The Biggest Thing Which My District Has Done in the Past Year." Starting with the twelfth district these were:

Twelfth district—The forming of a negro P.-T. A.; eleventh district—the furnishing of milk, fruit and eggs to the children; tenth district—A health crusade; eighth district—an addition of 2,836 books to the school library; seventh district—the first district meeting; sixth district—two small associations made possible through continuance of their schools; fifth district—the furnishing of kindergarten equipment for the schools; fourth district—the development and beautification of Wynnton school gaounds into a modern playground; third district—introduction of music into the schools; second district—"Baby Week" and "better babies;" first district—work of the Chatham county executive board and co-operation with women's clubs.

Mrs. Thomas Purse, of Savannah, chairman of credentials committee, reported 198 delegates registerd. Towns represented, 40; counties, 32; districts, 12; state officers, 18; state chairmen, 12; association presidents, 63; guests, 3; associations represented, 91; five county councils, Glynn, Atlanta, Macon, Columbus and the Chatham county executive board.

Constitution Display.

Mrs. H. A. Gibson, of Macon, state chairman of press and publicity, made an excellent report, and placed on view a splendidly arranged display of parent-teacher pages conducted by the leading papers throughout Georgia. She announced to the convention that The Atlanta Constitution held the distinction of having assembled and conducted the first parent-teacher page in the country. The Constitution's page is printed under an 8-column caption, with a special editor appointed, and all the state officers' names printed at the top of the page, making this page a special and definite form of publication.

The plans of Mrs. John DeSaussure, chairman of kindergarten extension, urged the passage of a kindergarten law, and that all associations devote more time to kindergarten programs. She told of the training course connected with the summer school at Emory university conducted by Miss Willette Allen and urged that every pre-school chairman be made the kindergarten chairman so that the two may go hand-in-hand.

In the announcement of winners of the annually given health poster prizes for best work done by students over the state in this work in the interest of better physical habits in the state, Mary Dukes, of the Decatur Junior High, and Delmont Wood, of the Albany elementary schools, were awarded first places respectively in their classes of schools. Mrs. Howard McCutcheon, president of the James L. Key Parent-Teacher association, and of the Parent-Teacher Presidents' club of Atlanta, addressed the colored state Parent-Teacher association convention at the Second Baptist church where the gathering of the colored teachers of the state was being held simultaneously with the meeting of parents and teachers of white schools.

A resolution requesting the Georgia legislature to pass a bill providing for a monthly pension grant to all teachers who shall have taught 30 years in the United States, with a proviso that "the last ten years of that time shall have been spent in the public school systems of this state," was the outstanding feature of Wednesday afternoon's session. A committee will be appointed to present the resolutions to state officials and copies will be sent to Governor Clifford Walker asking his support of the measure, officials stated.

Mrs. Arthur Tufts, of Emory university, urged a local program committee and suggested the method followed by her committee in keeping scrap books for immediate reference.

Willis A. Sutton, superintendent of Atlanta schools, gave a very interesting talk on "The Three H's," changing his subject from "The High Price of Life," which was announced in the program. In developing his subject he said the three H's are health, heart and home. He stressed the importance of good health and proper food, and urged a health program sent to all rural schools and communities. Under the second head of "Heart" he spoke of character building and the need of spiritual tendencies of teachers, and under the last he spoke of the value of a real home.

Mrs. Howsmon's Report.

Mrs. George M. Howsmon, of Atlanta, made a most earnest appeal for juvenile protection, urging the necessity of a juvenile court in each county. She said, 'As long as a large percentage of the population is not identified with the educational program of any church, there will be seed plots of immorality, crime, social unrest and anarchy. It is apparent to court workers today that the child's disregard of respect is being carried from the school room out into the world where he lacks respect for law or authority of any sort. By a happy combination of school, home and community, with more sympathetic cooperation and understanding on all sides, truancy and child welfare problems of many kinds will be solved."

Presidents' Breakfast.

The presidents' breakfast, held at the De Soto hotel, was presided over by the state president, Mrs. Bruce Carr Jones, and was in the nature of a conference. Mrs. Thomas Cater, of Macon, was the principal speaker, her subject being "P.-T. A. Councils." Following her talk there was a round-table discussion.

The Georgia Parent-Teacher association will request the child hygiene division of the state board of health to provide a study course of maternal and child health for Georgia mothers, and will pledge support of the measure to be proposed to the Georgia legislature in June by the Georgia Physical Educationat association to provide for the creation of a department of physical education as a part of the state department of education and to provide for the appointment of a state director of physical education, prescribing his duties and appropriationg funds for the maintenance of the department of physical education.

Advisory Board Named.

Immediately after the adjournment of the general session the executive board met to elect the advisory board. The following members were elected: Mrs. Harriet McClellan, Atlanta; Chancellor D. C. Barrow, Athens; Professor W. A. Sutton, superintendent Atlanta public schools; Lawton B. Evans, superintendent Richmond county schools, Augusta; Carleton B. Gibson, superintendent Chatham county schools; Dr. M. M. Parks, president state college for women, Milledgeville; Professor R. B. Daniels, superintendent Columbus schools; I. M. Gresham, Waynesboro; Governor Clifford Walker; Mrs. T. N Fulton, of Glennwood school in Decatur; Burr Blackburn, Mrs. T. P. Waring, Savannah; Professor R. E. Brooks, Albany; Kyle Alfriend, Dr. J. S. Stewart, Athens; G. W. Glausier, Decatur; Dr. L. L. Darby, Vidalia; Dr. Rufus Weaver, Macon, and Dr. N. H. Ballard, state superintendent of schools.

The hospitality extended by the Savannah women, members of the P.-T. A., was one of the delightful features of the convention. The luncheon given by the Chatham county executive board Tuesday at the De Soto hotel, to the state executive board, was the first social event. Mrs. R. D. Van Allen, chairman of the executive board of Chatham county P.-T. A., and official convention hostess, was toastmistress. The Huntington club gave a reception with Mrs. J. S. Hawkins, president, acting as official hostess. Luncheon on Wednesday at the Scottish Rite temple was served to 600 guests, and in the afternoon Mrs. Fred Wessels' tea was one of the occasions where the visiting delegates met the local members of the organization.

H. Reid Hunter, assistant superintendent of the public schools of Atlanta, will be the important speaker at the regular monthly meeting of Luckie Street School Parent-Teacher association, to be held in the school aditorium Wednesday afternoon, May 7, at 2:30.

His subject will be "The Importance of Junior High School," consequently, one of vital interest to all parents. A large attendance of patrons is urged to hear him speak. All interested are extended a most cordial invitation to be present.

After the meeting games of volley and dodge ball will be played by the school children jointly with the pupils of Goldsmith school, who have been invited to participate and their mothers are honor guests of the occasion.

This meeting is the last of the school year, and the nominating committee will report their selection of candidates for offices for next year.

Georgia Avenue P.-T. A. Flag Exercises.

Georgia Avenue Parent-Teacher association held its flag raising exercises last Wednesday.

The flag was given to the association by the Junior Order. A most inspiring speech was made by Carl Hutcheson, of the Junior Order, which was enjoyed by all present.

W. H. Johnson, city warden, presented the flag in behalf of the Junior Order, and W. C. Slate, vice-president of the board of education, received the flag for Georgia Avenue school.

A number of delightful numbers were on the program, one of which was the flag drill, put on by the boys, who were drilled by Mrs. J. E. Cumby, vice president of the Parent-Teacher association.

Miss Georgia Pruitt recited "Your Flag and My Flag," which was very appropriate. A group of six little girls of the fifth grade recited "Old Glory." Reverend L. M. Twiggs, pastor of St. John's Methodist church, opened the exercises.

Pre-School Circle Will Meet.

The Pre-School-Age Circle of Kirkwood P.-T. A. will meet at the home of Mrs. Kate Green Hess, on Wednesday, May 7, at 3 o'clock to organize a study class for the instruction and training of young children, as well as the study of motherhood.

This class will not be restricted to mothers of the P.-T. A., but any woman interested in motherhood and children will be welcomed in the class.

For the present, at least, there will be no dues, the small amount paid out for literature being the only expense borne by the class.

If it is found to be more convenient to meet in the mornings this can be changed.

Fifteen women have already registered and it is hoped to have your name added to the class on Wednesday, May 7.

East Point Harris Street P.-T. A. Honors President

The East Point Harris Street Parent-Teacher association gave the school children a delightful picnic Thursday afternoon from 1 to 3 o'clock. The association assembled in the building and held the last meeting of the scholastic year, with Mrs. H. B. Starr in the chair. Splendid reports from all officers were read, in which they summed the entire work of the year.

The following officers were elected to serve the ensuing year:

President, Mrs. W. R. McKibben; vice president, Mrs. R. T. Adderholdt; secretary, Mrs. F. A. Smith; treasurer, Mrs. L. J. Blackstone; corresponding secretary, Mrs. C. A. Earnest.

The chairmen and committees will be appointed at the September meeting.

Mrs. H. B. Starr, the retiring president, who has endeared herself to the entire association during her term of administration by her untiring zeal in the work, was given a surprise shower in token of love and esteem by the members of the association. The association also celebrated Mrs. Starr's birthday, and she was presented with a beautiful white cake with the letters P. T. A. embossed in gold in the center.

The association has done a splendid work this year, and plans are formulating for greater achievements in the future.

Brookhaven P.-T. A. Elects Officers.

The P.-T. A. of Brookhaven school held its regular meeting Tuesday at the school, with Mrs. F. D. Streckfuss, president, presiding.

The following officers were elected for the coming year: Mrs. F. D. Streckfuss, president; Mrs. Z. W. Jones, vice president; Mrs. M. L. Chambers, secretary; Mrs. D. K. Palmer, treasurer.

Mrs. R. E. Carroll, DeKalb county school superintendent, gave a short address which was enjoyed by all present.

There will be a picnic for the school on Friday, May 23, at Grant Park. All mothers are urged to attend. The next meeting of the association will be a daddies' meeting and will be held Tuesday, May 13, at 8 o'clock, at the school. All friends and patrons are cordially invited to be present.

Whitefoord P.-T. A. To Hold Meeting.

The Whitefoord Parent-Teacher association will hold its regular monthly meeting Tuesday afternoon, May 6, at 2:45 o'clock.

Mrs. Rogers Winter will speak on Stone Mountain Memorial, and Miss Essie Roberts will speak on the "School Employment Service."

Miss Alexander, delegate to Savannah, will report on the Parent-Teacher association meeting in Savannah. All are urged to be present at the meeting.

Mt. Vernon School To Give Play.

On Friday night, May 16, the children of Mt. Vernon school will present a play in which all the grades will take part. The children are now being practiced under the skillful direction of Mrs. Cliff McEver, dramatic director of the P.-T. A. The admission will be 25c.

P.-T. A. Council Will Meet.

A meeting of the Atlanta P.-T. A. council will be held Thursday afternoon, May 8, in the assembly room of Carnegie library at 3 o'clock. Mrs. E. D. McDonald, president, urges a full attendance.

Parent-Teacher Meetings

Fulton County High School P.-T. A. will meet at the school house on Thursday, May 8, at 2:30. A full attendance is urged, as officers are to be elected for the coming year, and business for the current year closed. The domestic science department will entertain the association, and display the year's work.

The P.-T. A. of the Westminster Presbyterian church will meet Wednesday evening, May 7, at 8 o'clock. All fathers, mothers and friends of the association are invited to attend.

The regular meeting of the Mt. Vernon P.-T. A., having been postponed, will be held Friday, May 9, at 2:15 o'clock. A full attendance at this meeting is urged, as the officers for the ensuing year will be elected.

Georgia Avenue P.-T. A. meeting will be held Wednesday, May 7, at 3 o'clock. Business of importance is to be transacted and a full attendance is urged.

The Whitefoord P.-T. A. will meet Tuesday afternoon, May 6, at 2:45 o'clock.

The Tenth Street P.-T. A. will hold its final meeting of this year on Tuesday, May 6, at 3:15 o'clock. All members are urged to be present as final reports for the year and election of officers will take place.

The Milton Avenue Parent-Teacher association will hold its regular monthly meeting Tuesday afternoon, May 6, at 2:30 o'clock in the school building. The association will be entertained by the second and fourth grades. Officers for the coming year will be elected and some important business will be discussed. All members are urged to be present.

The regular monthly meeting of the Decatur High School Parent-Teacher association will be held Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock. As it is the time for the annual election of officers, it is earnestly desired that there shall be a full attendance. Next Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock at the high school Dr. Spaeth, a music critic of renown, will address the Parent-Teacher association of all the Decatur schools.

James L. Key Daddies' Meeting.

A fitting conclusion to the year's activities of the James L. Key P.-T. A. will be the meeting to be given in honor of the daddies of the association. The meeting takes place on Thursday evening, May 8, at 8 o'clock, at the school.

Besides the annual report the president will bring an inspirational report of the state convention of Parent-Teacher associations held at Savannah this past week.

There will also be election of officers for the ensuing year.

A fine social program has been arranged and refreshments will be served.

Fathers are urged to be present, thereby showing their interest in their children's school and its association. Mothers, too, are urged to come and bring the daddies.

Executive Meeting Of Joseph E. Brown.

The executive committee of the Joseph E. Brown "Junior Hi" will meet Thursday morning, May 8, at 10:30 o'clock at the school. As this is the last meeting before the close of the school year, every member of the committee is urged to be present. Note the change in the time of the meeting, the second Thursday instead of the third, as the P.-T. A. will meet the second Monday instead of the third Monday this month.

Junior High Program at Ira St.

The "Go to Junior High School" program given at the April meeting of Ira Street School P.-T. A. was very interesting. The sixth grade pupils and their mothers were the honor guests.

Mrs. McDonald, the president, introduced the speakers for the afternoon.

Mr. Martin, principal of Joseph E. Brown, after a few witty remarks, said he had brought some former Ira students to make his speech for him. He then presented Miss Alpha Torres, who spoke for the girls' sport activities in Joe Brown. Miss Torres is one of the most popular and brightest girls of her class and Ira feels proud of the record she is making in Junior High.

Miss Eva Cole gave a very enlightening talk on academic and home economic work done in the Junior High schools. Miss Cole also received a hearty welcome from her former schoolmates.

Fred Pruett told of the useful articles made in the shops and how much the boys enjoyed this phase of the work. He also spoke of the regular studies in the seventh grade.

Pryor Street Health Center.

The regular monthly meeting of Pryor Street school baby health center will meet in the school auditorium Monday afternoon, May 5, at 2:30 o'clock.

Dr. G. W. Holmes Cheney is the physician in charge, and all mothers are invited to bring the babies and children of pre-school age.

The Stone Mountain Memorial entertainment will be repeated on Friday night, May 9, in the school auditorium for the benefit of the Parent-Teacher association. The admission is only 10 cents and a large crowd is expected.

Presidents' Club Luncheon Thursday.

The P.-T. A. Presidents' club will hold its regular monthly luncheon Thursday, May 8, at 12 o'clock noon at the Ansley hotel.

The United States army has permanent shelter for 71,508 enlisted men, 4,268 commissioned officers, 2,074 non-commissioned officers and 33,480 animals.

Report of State P.-T. A. President At Eleventh Annual Convention

Mrs. Bruce Carr Jones, retiring president of the Georgia State Parent-Teacher association, gave an excellent report of the past year's work at the annual convention held in Savannah during the past week.

During Mrs. Jones' administration a most valuable and constructive program has been undertaken by the individual associations and Mrs. Jones has been untiring in her efforts for the promotion of the achievements of this noteworthy organization.

Her report is as follows:

To the delegates and guests of the eleventh annual convention of the Georgia branch, National Congress of Mothers and Parent-Teacher Associations: Greetings, and a great appreciation of your loyal support and cooperation during the past two years.

In my report last year, I referred to the work of assembling the machinery for our state organization, in accordance with the new constitution and by-laws, comparing the organization to a "new watch" which during the last few months had given "most astounding manifestations of its running qualities." It has exceeded all expectations, accumulating speed at such a rate that it has kept your president in a constant state of breathlessness ever since trying to keep up with it.

Immediately following our last convention it was my privilege to represent you at the national convention in Louisville, Ky., and I feel, indeed, was the harvest of information and inspiration gathered for the year's work—a harvest I tried to share with you through the bulletin and press.

May—Addressed Hattie High Parent-Teacher association, twelfth district; Sixth District Federation of Women's Clubs; Muscogee County Parent-Teacher association, fourth district, and commencement of the Nurses' Training school of Macon.

June—Addressed Plains Parent-Teacher association, third district; attended legislative council in Atlanta; prepared the Parent-Teacher association program for Mercer institute, securing speakers for same; and also, with the able assistance of Mr. Burr Blackburn, for our short course at the State university.

July—Attended the short course in Parent-Teacher association work, conducted at our state university by our national field secretary, and made two addresses there.

After fifteen months of continuous attention to parent-teacher work, took a much-needed leave of absence for the remainder of July and August, traveling in the west.

September—Returned to my desk and began plans for Parent-Teacher association courses this summer; addressed Hillsboro Parent-Teacher association, sixth district.

October—Addressed Twiggs county rally, representing nine communities, twelfth district; Alexander No. 2 Parent-Teacher association, Macon, and Ruthland High (at organization), sixth district; entertained an enthusiastic meeting of the executive board, 33 members attending.

November—Addressed Monticello High Parent-Teacher association, sixth district; Sparta board of education and Parent-Teacher association (at organization), tenth district; Tenth District Parent-Teacher association conference at Augusta; Sixth District High School conference at Zebulon; Third District High School conference at Vienna; Eleventh District High school and Parent-Teacher association conference at Brunswick; Sixth District Parent-Teacher association conference at Forsyth; Second District Parent-Teacher association conference at Blakely; conferred with board of education members at Valdosta, and attended conference at Mercer relative to Parent-Teacher association institute.

December—Addressed Smyrna Parent-Teacher association, third district, had conference with staff representative of American Child Health association, and mailed complete set of literature to all local presidents of affiliated associations in state.

January—Went to Atlanta to confer with state council of social agencies, also with our preschool chairman and the executive of the American Child Health association; addressed Seventh District Parent-Teacher association conference at Dalton; Lanier High Parent-Teacher association, Macon; DeKalb county council at Decatur (more like a district meeting than a mere council); the farmers' conference at the State College of Agriculture; had conference with director of State University Summer school with reference to standard parent-teacher course with credit.

February—Addressed McDonough, sixth district (at organization); fifth district conference in Atlanta (like a state convention of two years ago); Lanier High and Gresham Preschool circle (at organization), Macon; the Kiwanis club and a joint meeting of Parent-Teacher association and Woman's club of Rome, seventh district; Montrose Parent-Teacher association and Perry Parent-Teacher association, twelfth district; had conference with regional consultant of U. S. public health service, whose lectures the state board of health gave us the privilege of sponsoring for high school girls; served upon advisory committee which secured the first child guidance clinic in the south for Macon, Dr. Robinson of the U. S. Mental Hygiene committee, in establishing the clinic, insisting upon having the cooperation of the Parent-Teacher association. Conferred with Mrs. Hilbun relative to convention program.

March—Addressed Alexander No. 3, Parent-Teacher association of Macon, and Gray Parent-Teacher association, sixth district; attended conference of social welfare work in Atlanta, presiding at opening dinner and (as a member of the editorial board of "Home, School and Community"), receiving at the annual dinner of the state council of social agencies; addressed First District Parent-Teacher association conference at Waynesboro; presided at Eighth District Parent-Teacher association conference at Monroe. Issued convention call and 1,000 questionaires.

April—Addressed a joint meeting of Houston County Parent-Teacher associations at Nyron, twelfth district, and greatly regretted that the press of work, attendant upon this convention, made it impossible to accept the numerous calls that came during this month, particularly the fourth district conference at La Grange.

Every district but one—the ninth—has been visited, some of them several times; 49 addresses have been made and every week, with the exception of July and August, "copy" has been provided for the newspapers, bulletin, Home, School and Community—over 400 typed pages, eight copies of each; 1,110 circular and 2,137 personal letters have been written, 3,000 bulletins and over 20,500 pieces of literature mailed from the president's office.

A financial account has been kept and rendered to each meeting of the executive board. A year ago the budget committee recommended an allowance of $40 per month for the president's expenses. The total expense account for the year, which includes the mailing of three issues of the Bulletin, averages less than $30 per month.

There are many things on my heart to say to you, but neither time nor your patience will permit. I would, however, mention a few things as of extreme importance:

First, I would call attention to the district high school conference and beg that each district vice president make the conference in her district her personal responsibility—to see that we have a speaker for Parent-Teacher association upon the program. It is desired by the state supervisor of high schools, and it is one of the best ways to bring our work before the educator of the respective districts, but it is a physical impossibility for your president to attend all these and the Parent-Teacher association conferences also. Where possible, hold them together, and preferably, for the convenience of your state president, in the fall, or at least two months before your state convention.

The mountain has come to Mahomet Thanks to our State university, and to Dr. Stewart in particular, we are to have the Standard Parent-Teacher association course (one of three in this country), for the south right here in Georgia—the course heretofore available only at Columbia university, and I beseech you that no association in this state lose this opportunity to perfect at least one of its members in all the requirements of true Parent-Teacher association—our real work, the pitfalls to avoid. Of inestimable benefit will also be the two Parent-Teacher Association institutes to be conducted at Mercer university and at the Georgia State College for Women. Too great emphasis cannot be put upon the stimulation to our work in Georgia which grows out of the increasing understanding and consideration shown our organization by the leading educators of this state, and all other organizations and agencies interested in child welfare. In bringing this about the press is our strongest ally and deserves our warmest gratitude.

The establishment of the child health center at Athens by the American Child Health association has given the very impetus needed for our preschool work—a work which Mrs. Walker has planned and financed out of her own purse for several years—and the attention of the whole country is now focused upon Georgia as a demonstration center in preschool work; 1,500 booklets—"Runabouts in the House of Health" and "My Little Child's Health"—were bought at Mrs. Walker's suggestion as the best stimulus to the work right now.

It is impossible to estimate or properly appreciate the efforts and support of our executive board. Our vice president and other officers and chairmen have given generously not only of their time, but many of them financing their own work. Some have turned in small expense accounts. This is, of course, what we must ultimately anticipate and provide for, but with our present income from the 5c dues we retain in Georgia, we should have to do without literature and impoverish our treasury if all our chairmen put in claims.

I don't know quite which is our besetting sin—indifference or procrastination. We're still running true to form—less than half of our associations returning their questionnaires, in fact only about one-third. In this respect, the eighth and second districts excel, each returning a little more than half; the sixth and tenth coming next, with a little less than half. The third returned 4 out of 21, the ninth returned 2 out of 19.

In 1921 we had 126 associations with 7,000 members. In the last three years we have more than trebled our membership, having now 359 associations with over 24,000 paid members. But 60,000 or 75,000 is a conservative estimate of the potential strength of these associations based upon their actual membership.

With 18 new counties won over this year, we still have 111 in which there is no affiliated P.-T. A. The cities and larger towns are splendidly organized, but it is in the rural sections we find our largest field for extension; 130 of the associations already affiliated are rural. Right now there is an opportunity for somebody to render our work a great service by having printed for distribution the two topics prepared by our national chairman, "Rural and Small Community Recreation" and "The Rural School Playground." Our Parent-Teacher booth at the State Fair was a splendid advertisement of rural Georgia, and with Georgia's increased standing among southern states, we should also have a booth at the Southeastern Fair.

There are in Georgia still many places where no one has ever suggested the possibilities and advantages of cooperation between home and school, and still others where the movement, once begun, has been abandoned, probably from lack of right leadership or failure to grasp the true idea of parent-teacher work. There are unorganized counties with a sufficient number of associations to have a county council; there are associations that do not avail themselves of the advantages to be gained through affiliation with the state; there are others working without a definite purpose or well-defined plan of action. We have members who do not attend meetings of their association nor assume any responsibility for its growth and achievements; officers who are not giving to their office the best they have to give in time and thought and effort; parents who lack understanding of the child's importance and the necessity for its best development, and a public in need of more information about parent-teacher work.

Before us lies all this opportunity for service. Our hour has come. It is for all of us to be ready to grasp the opportunity. It was Austin Phelp's belief that vigilance in watching opportunity, force and persistence in crowding opportunity to its utmost of possible achievement, are the virtues that command success.

It is for us to provide all necessary opportunity for our committees to function for the best results in our various departments, and to further strengthen our lines of cooperation with other organizations and agencies doing child welfare work.

We have need for a regular parent-teacher extension course to train our workers. The foundation has been solidly laid. By organizing our forces, working systematically and preparing carefully to render a full measure of service, we may build well for the future. Strength of mind and patience is needed for awaiting with calmness the hoped-for results.

In closing this two years of activity and happy associations, I wish to thank you for the privilege of having been your president and for the beautiful and helpful spirit with which you have so strongly supported my every effort. May I, in retiring, beg you to support my successor, whoever she may be, with the same whole-hearted and unselfish spirit of service to our great cause of better parents in better homes for better children as that which has made my leadership a privilege and a pleasure. May God bless and keep you steadfast for "the child in our midst."

The 11th annual convention of the Georgia Parent-Teacher association held during the past week in Savannah in the auditorium, brought out the fact at every business session that a great amount of constructive and educational work was being accomplished, and reports read by those in attendance from every part of the state familiarized the members of the organization with every phase of the work being conducted by the various committees. The members of this earnest body are unselfish and untiring in their devotion to the cause of the education of the child from a spiritual, physical, mental and moral standpoint.

Mrs. Bruce-Carr Jones, of Macon, the president, gave in her report a splendid idea of the wonderful accomplishments and tremendous growth of the association, and proved that the machinery of the organization, under the new by-laws, running has given astounding manifestations of its running qualities. The theme of the convention was "An Informed Public."

"Parenthood is a co-partnership with God and parents are 75 per cent responsible for the proper rearing and educating of their children," Mrs. Bruce-Carr Jones, of Macon, president of the Georgia state branch of the National Congress of Mothers and Parent-Teacher Associations, declared at the formal opening of the 11th annual convention here tonight. Hundreds of delegates from all parts of the state are attending.

Mrs. Jones' address followed the slogan adopted for the meeting—"An Informed Public." She said that 11 of the children born in Georgia each day die for lack of proper care in most cases. It is estimated that a child is born in Georgia every seven minutes, she said. "The alarming lack of preparedness for parenthood is evident on every side," Mrs. Jones said. "We must educate ourselves to the responsibility and the high and holy estate of parenthood. Good homes do not just happen. They are made, planned and every possible care is exercised to establish them." Ignorance in all forms was attacked in the addresses of the speakers, and discussions were directed towards a partnership between schools and the public in an effort to raise the standard of education.

Newly Elected President.

Mrs. Fred Wessels, the newly elected president of the state P.-T. A., has been active for years in Parent-Teacher work and was at one time president of the Anderson Street School association. She is also active in the Young Women's Christian association and is the chairman of the Travelers' Aid committee of that association.

In accepting the office of president, Mrs. Wessels asked that Mrs. Bruce Carr Jones, the retiring president, who had refused the nomination, be elected as the honorary president with full power on the board during the ensuing term. The request was granted by a unanimous vote. Mrs. Jones was also given a rising vote of thanks by the convention for the splendid work which she has done during her term of office.

Mrs. Reynolds Flournoy, chairman of the nominating committee, read the slate, which was received with unanimous approval. Serving with the chairman were Mrs. Arthur Tufts, of Atlanta; Mrs. Walter P. Warren, of Athens; Mrs. Thomas J. Cater and Mrs. Lawrence Kelly, of Savannah. Other officers elected were Miss Kate Dozier, of Gainesville, vice president; Mrs. P. H. Jeter, of Decatur, recording secretary; Mrs. Clifford Swift, of Columbus, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Albert Ehrlich, of Savannah, treasurer; Mrs. Guy Wells, of Eastman, auditor; Mrs. Kinlock Dunlap, of Macon, historian; Mrs. Preston Brooks, of Athens, parliamentarian.

Vice Presidents Named.

The fololwing district vice presidents were elected: First, Mrs. O. L. Gresham, of Waynesboro; second, Mrs. I. J. Hoffmeyer, of Albany; third, Mrs. Edward Dorminy, of Fitzgerald; fourth, Mrs. Reynolds Flournoy, of Columbus; fifth, Mrs. Z. V. Peterson, of Atlanta; sixth, Mrs. T. A. D. Weaver, of Thomaston; seventh, Mrs. Paul Aiken, of Cartersville; eighth, Mrs. Boyce Ficklen, Jr., of Washington; ninth, Mrs. W. M. Johnson, of Gainesville; tenth, Mrs. Hugh Paschal, of Harlem; eleventh, Mrs. W. D. Didell, of Woodbine; twelfth, Mrs. John W. Poe, of Vidalia.

Mrs. Wessels, on taking the office, asked that the convention elect Mrs. Jones as honorary president for the next term with full power on the board. She was elected.

Atlanta Hospital Praised.

The plan of the Wesley Memorial hospital, at Emory university, Atlanta, in making every baby born in that institution an alumnus of the hospital, was praised by Mrs. Clifford Walker, of Atlanta, national chairman of the pre-school age of the association. She stated that at regular intervals these babies are carried to Wesley Memorial hospital, where they have the advantage of being placed under the care of some of the physicians. They are measured and physically examined and the findings are placed on record, and the records are attached to an individual chart.

Mothers are given the necessary advice and corrective treatment pertaining to the child. The aim of the hospital in establishing a baby society is to keep in touch with their babies throughout the pre-school age, and to render to the parents the help and assistance that is necessary to help their children grow up healthy and happy.

Miss Bell MacIntosh, superintendent of babies' ward at Wesley Memorial hospital, instituted this work and it met with immediate and remarkable success. Mrs. Walker urged every association to take an interest in this movement and broadcast this plan so that every hospital in the state will adopt it. The result will be prevention against disease in the pre-school age, she said.

"The physical handicap of a pre-school child increases the cost of the school to the whole community," Mrs. Walker said. "The pupil who comes to school undernourished, with faulty vision, or hearing, with defective teeth or with mental development unequal to the work of the first grade, brings a bill of expense to the taxpayers, which would never be incurred had the parents been educated in the scientific principles underlying the care and feeding of children between one and six years of age."

Grammar School Reports.

Grammar school reports were the feature of Thursday morning's session. Mrs. C. A. Vernoy, of Athens, auditor of the association, stated that the slogan of Athens' P.-T. A. is "Every child in Georgia to enter school in 1925 free from remediable defects."

Mrs. P. H. Jeter, of Decatur, read the report from Glenwood P.-T. A. in Decatur, one of the livest organizations in the state.

She brought out five outstanding points in her report; first, anti-tuberculosis seal sale to encourage health crusade; second, editing monthly bulletins; third, 100 per cent children have savings accounts, and five, art instruction in school.

The names of Mrs. M. E. Judd, of Dalton, and Mrs. Fred Wessels, of Savannah, were announced as life members of the state Parent-Teacher association by the secretary, Mrs. P. H. Jeter, of Decatur. On payment of $50, life membership in the organization may be obtained. Mrs. Thomas Purse, of Savannah, is already enrolled on this list.

The Hilburn banner, which is given to the district which has obtained and organized the largest number of associations during the year, was presented to the fifth district, of which Mrs. Z. V. Peterson, of Atlanta, is vice president. The contest was very close, the fifth district having seventeen associations, and the tenth, of which Mrs. R. L. Griffin, of Augusta, is district vice president, having fifteen.

The district vice presidents gave one-minute talks on "The Biggest Thing Which My District Has Done in the Past Year." Starting with the twelfth district these were:

Twelfth district—The forming of a negro P.-T. A.; eleventh district—the furnishing of milk, fruit and eggs to the children; tenth district—A health crusade; eighth district—an addition of 2,836 books to the school library; seventh district—the first district meeting; sixth district—two small associations made possible through continuance of their schools; fifth district—the furnishing of kindergarten equipment for the schools; fourth district—the development and beautification of Wynnton school grounds into a modern playground; third district—introduction of music into the schools; second district—"Baby Week" and "better babies;" first district—work of the Chatham county executive board and co-operation with women's clubs.

Mrs. Thomas Purse, of Savannah, chairman of credentials committee, reported 198 delegates registerd. Towns represented, 40; counties, 32; districts, 12; state officers, 18; state chairmen, 12; association presidents, 63; guests, 3; associations represented, 91; five county councils, Glynn, Atlanta, Macon, Columbus and the Chatham county executive board.

Constitution Display.

Mrs. H. A. Gibson, of Macon, state chairman of press and publicity, made an excellent report, and placed on view a splendidly arranged display of parent-teacher pages conducted by the leading papers throughout Georgia. She announced to the convention that The Atlanta Constitution held the distinction of having assembled and conducted the first parent-teacher page in the country. The Constitution's page is printed under an 8-column caption, with a special editor appointed, and all the state officers' names printed at the top of the page, making this page a special and definite form of publication.

The plans of Mrs. John DeSaussure, chairman of kindergarten extension, urged the passage of a kindergarten law, and that all associations devote more time to kindergarten programs. She told of the training course connected with the summer school at Emory university conducted by Miss Willette Allen and urged that every pre-school chairman be made the kindergarten chairman so that the two may go hand-in-hand.

In the announcement of winners of the annually given health poster prizes for best work done by students over the state in this work in the interest of better physical habits in the state, Mary Dukes, of the Decatur Junior High, and Delmont Wood, of the Albany elementary schools, were awarded first places respectively in their classes of schools. Mrs. Howard McCutcheon, president of the James L. Key Parent-Teacher association, and of the Parent-Teacher Presidents' club of Atlanta, addressed the colored state Parent-Teacher association convention at the Second Baptist church where the gathering of the colored teachers of the state was being held simultaneously with the meeting of parents and teachers of white schools.

A resolution requesting the Georgia legislature to pass a bill providing for a monthly pension grant to all teachers who shall have taught 30 years in the United States, with a proviso that "the last ten years of that time shall have been spent in the public school systems of this state," was the outstanding feature of Wednesday afternoon's session. A committee will be appointed to present the resolutions to state officials and copies will be sent to Governor Clifford Walker asking his support of the measure, officials stated.

Mrs. Arthur Tufts, of Emory university, urged a local program committee and suggested the method followed by her committee in keeping scrap books for immediate reference.

Willis A. Sutton, superintendent of Atlanta schools, gave a very interesting talk on "The Three H's," changing his subject from "The High Price of Life," which was announced in the program. In developing his subject he said the three H's are health, heart and home. He stressed the importance of good health and proper food, and urged a health program sent to all rural schools and communities. Under the second head of "Heart" he spoke of character building and the need of spiritual tendencies of teachers, and under the last he spoke of the value of a real home.

Mrs. Howsmon's Report.

Mrs. George M. Howsmon, of Atlanta, made a most earnest appeal for juvenile protection, urging the necessity of a juvenile court in each county. She said, 'As long as a large percentage of the population is not identified with the educational program of any church, there will be seed plots of immorality, crime, social unrest and anarchy. It is apparent to court workers today that the child's disregard of respect is being carried from the school room out into the world where he lacks respect for law or authority of any sort. By a happy combination of school, home and community, with more sympathetic cooperation and understanding on all sides, truancy and child welfare problems of many kinds will be solved."

Presidents' Breakfast.

The presidents' breakfast, held at the De Soto hotel, was presided over by the state president, Mrs. Bruce Carr Jones, and was in the nature of a conference, Mrs. Thomas Cater, of Macon, was the principal speaker, her subject being "P.-T. A. Councils." Following her talk there was a round-table discussion.

The Georgia Parent-Teacher association will request the child hygiene division of the state board of health to provide a study course of maternal and child health for Georgia mothers, and will pledge support of the measure to be proposed to the Georgia legislature in June by the Georgia Physical Educational association to provide for the creation of a department of physical education as a part of the state department of education and to provide for the appointment of a state director of physical education, prescribing his duties and appropriating funds for the maintenance of the department of physical education.

Advisory Board Named.

Immediately after the adjournment of the general session the executive board met to elect the advisory board. The following members were elected: Mrs. Harriet McClellan, Atlanta; Chancellor D. C. Barrow, Athens; Professor W. A. Sutton, superintendent Atlanta public schools; Lawton B. Evans, superintendent Richmond county schools, Augusta; Carleton B. Gibson, superintendent Chatham county schools; Dr. M. M. Parks, president state college for women, Milledgeville; Professor R. B. Daniels, superintendent Columbus schools; I. M. Gresham, Waynesboro; Governor Clifford Walker; Mrs. T. N Fulton, of Glennwood school in Decatur; Burr Blackburn, Mrs. T. P. Waring, Savannah; Professor R. E. Brooks, Albany; Kyle Alfriend, Dr. J. S. Stewart, Athens; G. W. Glausier, Decatur; Dr. L. L. Darby, Vidalia; Dr. Rufus Weaver, Macon, and Dr. N. H. Ballard, state superintendent of schools.

The hospitality extended by the Savannah women, members of the P.-T. A., was one of the delightful features of the convention. The luncheon given by the Chatham county executive board Tuesday at the De Soto hotel, to the state executive board, was the first social event. Mrs. R. D. Van Allen, chairman of the executive board of Chatham county P.-T. A., and official convention hostess, was toastmistress. The Huntington club gave a reception with Mrs. J. S. Hawkins, president, acting as official hostess. Luncheon on Wednesday at the Scottish Rite temple was served to 600 guests, and in the afternoon Mrs. Fred Wessels' tea was one of the occasions where the visiting delegates met the local members of the organization.

H. Reid Hunter, assistant superintendent of the public schools of Atlanta, will be the important speaker at the regular monthly meeting of Luckie Street School Parent-Teacher association, to be held in the school aditorium Wednesday afternoon, May 7, at 2:30.

His subject will be "The Importance of Junior High School," consequently, one of vital interest to all parents. A large attendance of patrons is urged to hear him speak. All interested are extended a most cordial invitation to be present.

After the meeting games of volley and dodge ball will be played by the school children jointly with the pupils of Goldsmith school, who have been invited to participate and their mothers are honor guests of the occasion.

This meeting is the last of the school year, and the nominating committee will report their selection of candidates for offices for next year.

Georgia Avenue P.-T. A. Flag Exercises.

Georgia Avenue Parent-Teacher association held its flag raising exercises last Wednesday.

The flag was given to the association by the Junior Order. A most inspiring speech was made by Carl Hutcheson, of the Junior Order, which was enjoyed by all present.

W. H. Johnson, city warden, presented the flag in behalf of the Junior Order, and W. C. Slate, vice-president of the board of education, received the flag for Georgia Avenue school.

A number of delightful numbers were on the program, one of which was the flag drill, put on by the boys, who were drilled by Mrs. J. E. Cumby, vice president of the Parent-Teacher association.

Miss Georgia Pruitt recited "Your Flag and My Flag," which was very appropriate. A group of six little girls of the fifth grade recited "Old Glory." Reverend L. M. Twiggs, pastor of St. John's Methodist church, opened the exercises.

Pre-School Circle Will Meet.

The Pre-School-Age Circle of Kirkwood P.-T. A. will meet at the home of Mrs. Kate Green Hess, on Wednesday, May 7, at 3 o'clock to organize a study class for the instruction and training of young children, as well as the study of motherhood.

This class will not be restricted to mothers of the P.-T. A., but any woman interested in motherhood and children will be welcomed in the class.

For the present, at least, there will be no dues, the small amount paid out for literature being the only expense borne by the class.

If it is found to be more convenient to meet in the mornings this can be changed.

Fifteen women have already registered and it is hoped to have your name added to the class on Wednesday, May 7.

East Point Harris Street P.-T. A. Honors President

The East Point Harris Street Parent-Teacher association gave the school children a delightful picnic Thursday afternoon from 1 to 3 o'clock. The association assembled in the building and held the last meeting of the scholastic year, with Mrs. H. B. Starr in the chair. Splendid reports from all officers were read, in which they summed the entire work of the year.

The following officers were elected to serve the ensuing year:

President, Mrs. W. R. McKibben; vice president, Mrs. R. T. Adderholdt; secretary, Mrs. F. A. Smith; treasurer, Mrs. L. J. Blackstone; corresponding secretary, Mrs. C. A. Earnest.

The chairmen and committees will be appointed at the September meeting.

Mrs. H. B. Starr, the retiring president, who has endeared herself to the entire association during her term of administration by her untiring zeal in the work, was given a surprise shower in token of love and esteem by the members of the association. The association also celebrated Mrs. Starr's birthday, and she was presented with a beautiful white cake with the letters P. T. A. embossed in gold in the center.

The association has done a splendid work this year, and plans are formulating for greater achievements in the future.

Brookhaven P.-T. A. Elects Officers.

The P.-T. A. of Brookhaven school held its regular meeting Tuesday at the school, with Mrs. F. D. Streckfuss, president, presiding.

The following officers were elected for the coming year: Mrs. F. D. Streckfuss, president; Mrs. Z. W. Jones, vice president; Mrs. M. L. Chambers, secretary; Mrs. D. K. Palmer, treasurer.

Mrs. R. E. Carroll, DeKalb county school superintendent, gave a short address which was enjoyed by all present.

There will be a picnic for the school on Friday, May 23, at Grant Park. All mothers are urged to attend. The next meeting of the association will be a daddies' meeting and will be held Tuesday, May 13, at 8 o'clock, at the school. All friends and patrons are cordially invited to be present.

Whitefoord P.-T. A. To Hold Meeting.

The Whitefoord Parent-Teacher association will hold its regular monthly meeting Tuesday afternoon, May 6, at 2:45 o'clock.

Mrs. Rogers Winter will speak on Stone Mountain Memorial, and Miss Essie Roberts will speak on the "School Employment Service."

Miss Alexander, delegate to Savannah, will report on the Parent-Teacher association meeting in Savannah. All are urged to be present at the meeting.

Mt. Vernon School To Give Play.

On Friday night, May 16, the children of Mt. Vernon school will present a play in which all the grades will take part. The children are now being practiced under the skillful direction of Mrs. Cliff McEver, dramatic director of the P.-T. A. The admission will be 25c.

P.-T. A. Council Will Meet.

A meeting of the Atlanta P.-T. A. council will be held Thursday afternoon, May 8, in the assembly room of Carnegie library at 3 o'clock. Mrs. E. D. McDonald, president, urges a full attendance.

Parent-Teacher Meetings

Fulton County High School P.-T. A. will meet at the school house on Thursday, May 8, at 2:30. A full attendance is urged, as officers are to be elected for the coming year, and business for the current year closed. The domestic science department will entertain the association, and display the year's work.

The P.-T. A. of the Westminster Presbyterian church will meet Wednesday evening, May 7, at 8 o'clock. All fathers, mothers and friends of the association are invited to attend.

The regular meeting of the Mt. Vernon P.-T. A., having been postponed, will be held Friday, May 9, at 2:15 o'clock. A full attendance at this meeting is urged, as the officers for the ensuing year will be elected.

Georgia Avenue P.-T. A. meeting will be held Wednesday, May 7, at 3 o'clock. Business of importance is to be transacted and a full attendance is urged.

The Whitefoord P.-T. A. will meet Tuesday afternoon, May 6, at 2:45 o'clock.

The Tenth Street P.-T. A. will hold its final meeting of this year on Tuesday, May 6, at 3:15 o'clock. All members are urged to be present as final reports for the year and election of officers will take place.

The Milton Avenue Parent-Teacher association will hold its regular monthly meeting Tuesday afternoon, May 6, at 2:30 o'clock in the school building. The association will be entertained by the second and fourth grades. Officers for the coming year will be elected and some important business will be discussed. All members are urged to be present.

The regular monthly meeting of the Decatur High School Parent-Teacher association will be held Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock. As it is the time for the annual election of officers, it is earnestly desired that there shall be a full attendance. Next Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock at the high school Dr. Spaeth, a music critic of renown, will address the Parent-Teacher association of all the Decatur schools.

James L. Key Daddies' Meeting.

A fitting conclusion to the year's activities of the James L. Key P.-T. A. will be the meeting to be given in honor of the daddies of the association. The meeting takes place on Thursday evening, May 8, at 8 o'clock, at the school.

Besides the annual report the president will bring an inspirational report of the state convention of Parent-Teacher associations held at Savannah this past week.

There will also be election of officers for the ensuing year.

A fine social program has been arranged and refreshments will be served.

Fathers are urged to be present, thereby showing their interest in their children's school and its association.

Mothers, too, are urged to come and bring the daddies.

Executive Meeting Of Joseph E. Brown.

The executive committee of the Joseph E. Brown "Junior Hi" will meet Thursday morning, May 8, at 10:30 o'clock at the school. As this is the last meeting before the close of the school year, every member of the committee is urged to be present. Note the change in the time of the meeting, the second Thursday instead of the third, as the P.-T. A. will meet the second Monday instead of the third Monday this month.

Junior High Program at Ira St.

The "Go to Junior High School" program given at the April meeting of Ira Street School P.-T. A. was very interesting. The sixth grade pupils and their mothers were the honor guests.

Mrs. McDonald, the president, introduced the speakers for the afternoon.

Mr. Martin, principal of Joseph E. Brown, after a few witty remarks, said he had brought some former Ira students to make his speech for him. He then presented Miss Alpha Torres, who spoke for the girls' sport activities in Joe Brown. Miss Torres is one of the most popular and brightest girls of her class and Ira feels proud of the record she is making in Junior High.

Miss Eva Cole gave a very enlightening talk on academic and home economic work done in the Junior High schools. Miss Cole also received a hearty welcome from her former schoolmates.

Fred Pruett told of the useful articles made in the shops and how much the boys enjoyed this phase of the work. He also spoke of the regular studies in the seventh grade.

Pryor Street Health Center.

The regular monthly meeting of Pryor Street school baby health center will meet in the school auditorium Monday afternoon, May 5, at 2:30 o'clock.

Dr. G. W. Holmes Cheney is the physician in charge, and all mothers are invited to bring the babies and children of pre-school age.

The Stone Mountain Memorial entertainment will be repeated on Friday night, May 9, in the school auditorium for the benefit of the Parent-Teacher association. The admission is only 10 cents and a large crowd is expected.

Presidents' Club Luncheon Thursday.

The P.-T. A. Presidents' club will hold its regular monthly luncheon Thursday, May 8, at 12 o'clock noon at the Ansley hotel.

Bessie Tift College News Notes.

The junior class of Bessie Tift college entertained the senior class at a reception during the past week, the custom of doing so having been established for many years. The officers of the class are: Evelyn Williams, president; Marthy Mathis, secretary; Evelyn Wright, vice president; Martha Duggan, treasurer; Lillian Lassiter, corresponding secretary. Miss Williams has been president of the class for two years. In the receiving line were Dr. and Mrs. Chamlee, Miss Helen Bruner, dean of women; Dean Alfriend, honorary member of the class, and the class officers.

The graduating recital of Miss Florence Johnson in piano and Miss Sara Smiley, voice, took place Monday night in Bessie Tift chapel. On the evening of April 29, Miss Opal Harper, reader, gave her graduation recital. She was assisted by Miss Lois Lanier, pianist. A large audience composed not only of college and townspeople, but also of out-of-town visitors, enjoyed this recital. The stage presented a lovely appearance, being filled with ferns and baskets of various colored flowers.

Thursday evening, April 24, the department of fine arts presented Miss Evelyn Wright, reader, and Miss Martha Hart, pianist.

Miss Betty Gunn, sophomore class president, spent this week-end at her home in Millen.

Miss Gertha Bowen had as her guests for the week-end her aunt, Miss Jessie Blackman, and her brother, Frank Bowen, of Royston.

Among those motoring to Macon to attend the Symphony orchestra on Monday were Miss Dira Brinson, Miss Ethel Abbott, Miss Elsie Ragan, Miss Lenotine De Ahna, Miss Helen Bruner, Miss Lois Lanier, Miss Christine Lowe, Miss Irma Herr, Miss Annie Barton, Miss Sara Smiley, Miss Florence Johnson, Miss Mary Lee Ayers, Miss Eloise Hammack, Miss Exie Dominy, Miss Martha Hart, Miss Evelyn Wright, Miss Inelle Fillway, Dr. Herman Kurtz and Mr. and Mrs. Wellborn.

Misses Inelle Fillway and Martha Hart spent the week-end with Miss Hart's parents at West Point.

Miss Sara Smiley was the guest of Miss Goldie McCrae at Wesleyan this past week-end.

Misses Edna West, Irma Herr, and Frances Mason spent several days of last week in Griffin as the guests of Miss Emory Drake.

Miss Allene Edwards, of Claxton, spent a few days with Miss Sara Smiley.

Miss Opal Harper had as her guests her father, Dr. J. R. Wells, and her aunt, Miss Mary Wells, of Stone Mountain. They came over on Tuesday afternoon to attend Miss Harper's recital.

Miss Lanette Layson and Christine Cheek were the guests of Miss Lucy Whittle at her home in Thomson this week-end.

The United States army has permanent shelter for 71,508 enlisted men, 4,268 commissioned officers, 2,074 non-commissioned officers and 33,480 animals.

Report of State P.-T. A. President At Eleventh Annual Convention

Mrs. Bruce Carr Jones, retiring president of the Georgia State Parent-Teacher association, gave an excellent report of the past year's work at the annual convention held in Savannah during the past week.

During Mrs. Jones' administration a most valuable and constructive program has been undertaken by the individual associations and Mrs. Jones has been untiring in her efforts for the promotion of the achievements of this noteworthy organization.

Her report is as follows:

To the delegates and guests of the eleventh annual convention of the Georgia branch, National Congress of Mothers and Parent-Teacher Associations: Greetings, and a great appreciation of your loyal support and cooperation during the past two years.

In my report last year, I referred to the work of assembling the machinery for our state organization, in accordance with the new constitution and by-laws, comparing the organization to a "new watch" which during the last few months had given "most astounding manifestations of its running qualities." It has exceeded all expectations, accumulating speed at such a rate that it has kept your president in a constant state of breathlessness ever since trying to keep up with it.

Immediately following our last convention it was my privilege to represent you at the national convention in Louisville, Ky., and rich, indeed, was the harvest of information and inspiration gathered for the year's work—a harvest I tried to share with you through the bulletin and press.

May—Addressed Hattie High Parent-Teacher association, twelfth district; Sixth District Federation of Women's Clubs; Muscogee County Parent-Teacher association, fourth district, and commencement of the Nurses' Training school of Macon.

June—Addressed Plains Parent-Teacher association, third district; attended legislative council in Atlanta; prepared Parent-Teacher association program for Mercer institute, securing speakers for same; and also, with the able assistance of Mr. Burr Blackburn, for our short course at the State university.

July—Attended the short course in Parent-Teacher association work, conducted at our state university by our national field secretary, and made two addresses there.

After fifteen months of continuous attention to parent-teacher work, took a much-needed leave of absence for the remainder of July and August, traveling in the west.

September—Returned to my desk and began plans for Parent-Teacher association courses this summer; addressed Hillsboro Parent-Teacher association, sixth district.

October—Addressed Twiggs county rally, representing nine communities, twelfth district; Alexander No. 2 Parent-Teacher association, Macon, and Ruthland High (at organization), sixth district; entertained an enthusiastic meeting of the executive board, 33 members attending.

November—Addressed Monticello High Parent-Teacher association, sixth district; Sparta board of education and Parent-Teacher association (at organization), tenth district; Tenth District Parent-Teacher association conference at Augusta; Sixth District High School conference at Zebulon; Third District High School conference at Vienna; Eleventh District High school and Parent-Teacher association conference at Brunswick; Sixth District Parent-Teacher association conference at Forsyth; Second District Parent-Teacher association conference at Blakely; conferred with board of education members at Valdosta, and attended conference at Mercer relative to Parent-Teacher association institute.

December—Addressed Smyrna Parent-Teacher association, third district, had conference with staff representative of American Child Health association, and mailed complete set of literature to all local presidents of affiliated associations in state.

January—Went to Atlanta to confer with state council of social agencies, also with our preschool chairman and the executive of the American Child Health association; addressed Seventh District Parent-Teacher association conference at Dalton; Lanier High Parent-Teacher association, Macon; DeKalb county council at Decatur (more like a district meeting than a mere council); the farmers' conference at the State College of Agriculture; had conference with director of State University Summer school with reference to standard parent-teacher course with credit.

February—Addressed McDonough, sixth district (at organization); fifth district conference in Atlanta (like a state convention of two years ago); Lanier High and Gresham Preschool circle (at organization), Macon; the Kiwanis club and a joint meeting of Parent-Teacher association and Woman's club of Rome, seventh district; Montrose Parent-Teacher association and Perry Parent-Teacher association, twelfth district; had conference with regional consultant of U. S. public health service, whose lectures the state board of health gave us the privilege of sponsoring for high school girls; served upon advisory committee which secured the first child guidance clinic in the south for Macon, Dr. Robinson of the U. S. Mental Hygiene committee, in establishing the clinic, assisting upon having the cooperation of the Parent-Teacher association. Conferred with Mrs. Hilburn relative to convention program.

March—Addressed Alexander No. 3, Parent-Teacher association of Macon, and Gray Parent-Teacher association, sixth district; attended conference of social welfare work in Atlanta, presiding at opening dinner and (as a member of the editorial board of "Home, School and Community"), receiving at the annual dinner of the state council of social agencies; addressed First District Parent-Teacher association conference at Waynesboro; presided at Eighth District Parent-Teacher association conference at Monroe. Issued convention call and 1,000 questionnaires.

April—Addressed a joint meeting of Houston County Parent-Teacher associations at Nyron, twelfth district, and greatly regretted that the press of work, attendant upon this convention, made it impossible to accept the numerous calls that came during this month, particularly the fourth district conference at La Grange.

Every district but one—the ninth—has been visited, some of them several times; 49 addresses have been made and every week, with the exception of July and August, "copy" has been provided for the newspapers, bulletin, Home, School and Community—over 400 typed pages, eight copies of each; 1,110 circular and 2,137 personal letters have been written, 3,000 bulletins and over 26,500 pieces of literature mailed from the president's office.

A financial account has been kept and rendered to each meeting of the executive board. A year ago the budget committee recommended an allowance of $40 per month for the president's expenses. The total expense account for the year, which includes the mailing of three issues of the Bulletin, averages less than $30 per month.

There are many things on my heart to say to you, but neither time nor your patience will permit. I would, however, mention a few things as of extreme importance:

First, I would call attention to the district high school conference and beg that each district vice president make the conference in her district her personal responsibility—to see that we have a speaker for Parent-Teacher association upon the program. It is desired by the state supervisor of high schools, and it is one of the best ways to bring our work before the educator of the respective districts, but it is a physical impossibility for your president to attend all these and the Parent-Teacher association conferences also. Where possible, hold them together, and preferably, for the convenince of your state president, in the fall, or at least two months before your state convention.

The mountain has come to Mahomet. Thanks to our State university, and to Dr. Stewart in particular, we are to have the Standard Parent-Teacher association course (one of three in this country), for the south right here in Georgia—the course heretofore available only at Columbia university, and I beseech you that no association in this state lose this opportunity to perfect at least one of its members in all the requirements of true Parent-Teacher association—our real work, the pitfalls to avoid. Of inestimable benefit will also be the two Parent-Teacher Association institutes to be conducted at Mercer university and at the Georgia State College for Women. Too great emphasis cannot be put upon the stimulation to our work in Georgia which grows out of the increasing understanding and consideration shown our organization by the leading educators of this state, and all other organizations and agencies interested in child welfare. In bringing this about the press is our strongest ally and deserves our warmest gratitude.

The establishment of the child health center at Athens by the American Child Health association has given the very impetus needed for our preschool work—a work which Mrs. Walker has planned and financed out of her own purse for several years—and the attention of the whole country is now focused upon Georgia as a demonstration center in preschool work; 1,500 booklets—"Runabouts in the House of Health" and "My Little Child's Health"—were bought at Mrs. Walker's suggestion as the best stimulus to the work right now.

It is impossible to estimate or properly appreciate the efforts and support of our executive board. Our vice president and other officers and chairmen have given generously not only of their time, but many of them financing their own work. Some have turned in small expense accounts. This is, of course, what we must ultimately anticipate and provide for, but with our present income from the 5c dues we retain in Georgia, we should have to do without literature and impoverish our treasury if all our chairmen put in claims.

I don't know quite which is our besetting sin—indifference or procrastination. We're still running true to form—less than half of our associations returning their questionnaires, in fact only about one-third. In this respect, the eighth and second districts excel, each returning a little more than half; the sixth and tenth coming next, with a little less than half. The third returned 4 out of 21, the ninth returned 2 out of 19.

In 1921 we had 126 associations with 7,000 members. In the last three years we have more than trebled our membership, having now 339 associations with over 24,000 paid members. But 60,000 or 75,000 is a conservative estimate of the potential strength of these associations based upon their actual membership.

With 18 new counties won over this year, we still have 111 in which there is no affiliated P.-T. A. The cities and larger towns are splendidly organized, but it is in the rural sections we find our largest field for extension; 130 of the associations already affiliated are rural. Right now there's an opportunity for someone to render our work a great service by having printed for distribution the two topics prepared by our national chairman, "Rural and Small Community Recreation" and "The Rural School Playground." Our Parent-Teacher booth at the State Fair was a splendid advertisement of rural Georgia, and with Georgia's increased standing among southern states, we should also have a booth at the Southeastern Fair.

There are in Georgia still many places where no one has ever suggested the possibilities and advantages of cooperation between home and school, and still others where the movement, once begun, has been abandoned, probably from lack of fight leadership or failure to grasp the true idea of parent-teacher work. There are unorganized counties with a sufficient number of associations to have a county council; there are associations and Woman's clubs that have not availed themselves of the advantages to be gained through affiliation with the state; there are others working without a definite purpose or well-defined plan of action. We have members who do not attend meetings of their associations and assume any responsibility for its growth and achievements; officers who are not giving to their office the best they have to give in time and thought and effort; parents who lack understanding of the child's importance and the necessity for its best development, and a public in need of more information about parent-teacher work.

Before us lies all this opportunity for service. Our hour has come. It is for all of us to be ready to grasp the opportunity. It was Austin Phelp's belief that vigilance in watching opportunity, force and persistence in crowding opportunity to its utmost of possible achievement, are the virtues that command success.

It is for us to provide all necessary opportunity for our committees to function for the best results in our various departments, and to further strengthen our lines of cooperation with other organizations and agencies doing child welfare work.

We have need for a regular parent-teacher extension course to train our workers. The foundation has been solidly laid. By organizing our forces, working systematically and preparing carefully to render a full measure of service, we may build well for the future. Strength of mind and patience is needed for awaiting with calmness the hoped-for results.

In closing this two years of activity and happy associations, I wish to thank you for the privilege of having been your president and for the beautiful and helpful spirit with which you have so strongly supported my every effort. May I, in retiring, beg you to support my successor, whoever she may be, with the same whole-hearted and unselfish spirit of service to our great cause of better parents in better homes for better children as that which has made my leadership a privilege and a pleasure. May God bless and keep you steadfast for "the child in our midst."

Platt Sees Bullish Signs On Horizon at Present Time

BY C. H. PLATT.

New York, May 3.—(Special to The Constitution.)—There was another determined bear attack on the stock market in the first part of the week, but later, when short covering was tried, there were few offerings and even though no new buying of importance has been appearing, it looks as if the very large short interest is in a bad position and as through it is going to be given a further severe squeezing. The bears had been counting on some bad news to come along and produce the kind of general liquidation that would let the shorts cover at a profit. Instead the news has been tending better. The reduction in the federal reserve bank rediscount rate in New York was not expected by many people, and it was a surprise to the professionals who had been operating on the bear side. This reduction can be taken as a token that the credit and money outlook are very good and that sound conditions prevail now and can be expected to continue. There are possibilities for a great expansion in longer-term loans through this lowering of the reserve bank rate, and business men are expected to take full advantage of it.

There have been signs for some time that the bankers did not like the way professional groups were running the stock market. They were giving out pessimistic views on business at a time when stock prices were put under attack, and this was unsettling business confidence. Instead of the stock market forecasting a natural decline in business, the weakness in stocks was a cause of worry to business men and caused them to curtail their activities Therefore it is believed that bankers prevailed on the federal reserve board to cut the rediscount rate in order to restore business confidence.

Other Bullish Facts.

There are a number of other pending developments that may take a turn that will be considered bullish in the stock market. Thus it looks as if the soldier bonus will be vetoed by the president and that after this action it may not be able to get the necessary two-thirds in both houses to pass over the veto. There are much better prospects for a tax revision nearer the Mellon plan in the senate than is contained in the house measure. A real settlement in Europe can be expected soon, judging by the way things are working out since the Dawes plan has met with such favor abroad. If the extreme caution that has characterized recent business operations were to be followed by more confident buying and less timidity, it would result in a really big increase in interest in the securities markets and some further important advances in prices. For weeks the professional groups have so dominated the stock market that the public has not been buying, and in fact has been frightened into selling at various times. It always takes time to get the public back into the stock market when it has been driven away. If there are several favorable news items and some sustained support by groups operating on the long side, it is probable that the public will come back into the market again on an important scale.

For several weeks there has been a growing short interest because of the way that rallies had been cut down. In each case, however, the rallies were due entirely to an oversold condition, and when one group of shorts were buying to cover, another lot of bears were going short. In stock brokers' offices there were many outside traders who were so impressed by the weakness that had been displayed that they sold short, in many cases at or near the bottom of the declines. The result was that many people who are or have been short of stocks have been putting in "stop-loss" buying orders, some of which have been reached in the recent rallies There are many other of these "stops" not far above the present market level an effort made to get the market up an effort made to egt the market up to these figures quickly, and thereby bring about further confusion to the shorts. The situation in the market is very much like it was at the beginning of November.

Huge Short Interest.

There had been a long period of weakness and a huge short interest had been built up. Then when the first rallies came many of the people who were short would not cover. Later on, they were often forced to take in their short contracts. A large part of the recovery from November 1 until well into February was a result of the squeezing of shorts. There is now a similar situation that might result in a similar prolonged advance that represented forced buying plus a little public demand rather than due entirely to an active buying movement by the public. Of course, if there is heavy new buying also, the next few weeks might witness a very decided gain in prices for leading stocks.

The money market's easing for some time has been a forecast of the action of the reserve bank in cutting the rediscount rate. There has been a piling up of funds that the banks have been unable to loan, and in many cases long term loans have been arranged at concessions from the posted rates. The lower reserve bank rate will allow the banks to make other reductions in the amounts that they charge on longer term loans, as they know that they can now turn to the reserve bank if the load gets too heavy For a long time there has been a disposition of the banks to loan their own funds and not to turn to the rediscount market. Call money was easy in the last week, with a slight firming up for over the first of the month.

Bonds have been braced up by the reserve bank action. They had been strong for a long time, but recently the bond market has slipped back a little because of the uneasiness that had developed in business. There are very good prospects for an active and a strong bond market during the next six months to a year.

Big German Loan.

The placing of foreign loans in this market is believed to be a sign that Europe is getting ready for a real settlement, through the Dawes plan. If this proves to be the case, it is expected that Germany will look to this country for a large loan, with $100,000,000 being talked of. Plans for this are understood to have been fully worked out in banking circles here, with all indications that it could be successfully floated if the German acceptance of the Dawes plan seems to be with full intent to follow out its provisions and make an attempt to pay reparations.

Stock market bears have exaggerated the business situation. In the steel trades, and in other leading industries, the main trouble was in the attitude of those having requirements to fill. They became nervous over the outlook and placed orders for goods only as they were needed, but there have been many needs that are not covered. From them, further important buying is to be expected, especially as surplus stocks of goods in consumers' hands in many lines have been low for some time.

The oil industry has been handicapped by a late spring in many sections of the country, especially in the middle Atlantic and central western states. As a result, sales of gasoline have been held down from what had been expected, and there has also been a smaller demand for motor lubricants than had been counted on. There are, however, upwards of 16,000,000 motor cars in operation at the present time and it looks as if there will not be enough gasoline to go around through the summer from the new supply. Heavy withdrawals of the stored surplus is therefore expected later. The crude oil new supply is declining right at the time when the big demand is due to start, and therefore it is believed to be certain that crude oil prices will advance before long.

Motor car sales have also been sharply hit by the late spring in much of the country. This is believed to be passing now, and there are prospective increases in sales of automobiles this month that will make up for a bad April in some cases. Furthermore, many of the leading manufacturers have curtailed their production and that will relieve the supply of cars being pressed on the market.

Copper Market Strong.

The copper metal market is in a very strong position. There have been large sales of copper for months and the surplus has been steadily cut down. The prospects are very good for Europe to take a much larger quantity of the metal than for a long time if there is an early adoption of the Wawes plan. The price of copper metal is showing a rising trend that may carry it to 15 cents a pound or even higher during the current month.

Steel operations have been reduced and the prices of leading steel products have been tending lower. This situation is believed to have reached the worst stage and a revival in demand and in prices is looked for during this month. The earnings of leading companies in the first quarter of the year were quite large. The industry is in a position to recover later on to the best conditions that have existed so far this year. In late February, the steel trade seemed on the start of a real boom, but political uncertainties upset it later. The political situation now seems to be clearing up, and a restoration of confidence in the steel industry should follow.

Cotton started off weak, but improved later. There have been several important surveys of the planting and fertilizer situation, that indicate a large increase in acreage and much more general use of crop aids. The boll weevil situation is bad, however, with further spread of the pest reported, and there has been a late start for the new crop. It would take very little in the way of restoring business confidence to start a revival in cotton goods mill operations, and with it a further important recovery in the price of cotton. The main trouble with cotton goods has been lack of confidence in business.

JUDGE BECK SPEAKS TO ATLANTA MARINES

Delivering an address which brought Atlanta marines and ex-marines to their feet, bringing back to mind the dark days of 1917, Judge Marcus W. Beck of the supreme court spoke to the members of the Marcus W. Beck, Jr., detachment of the Marine Corps league, at Room 526, Federal building, Thursday night. This detachment is made up entirely of marines and ex-marines residing in and near Atlanta.

Judge Beck gave a brief history of the career of his son for whom the local detachment has been named, telling of his life with the marines and of his death in action. Judge Beck then talked on the world war, and the effect of the entry of America into the fray.

The foowing Atanta ex-marines were admitted as members at the close of the meeting: L. W. Jones, 1526 Oakview road; W. L. Pool, 245-A East Fifth street; Adial P. Greer, 70 Peachtree street; M. M. Smith, 56 Rocky Ford street; A. W. Paulk, 18 East Eleventh street; E. S. Perkins, 1339 Highland avenue; J. R. Goldsmith, 106 Greenwood avenue; John D. Chestnutt, 118 East Merritts avenue; H. C. Savage, Jr., 71 McLendon avenue; W. H. Cash, 146 Techwood drive; H. N. Carter, Atanta Denta coege; Chares A. Morris, 236 Cascade avenue, and James W. Bradshaw, Decatur, Ga.

The next meetnig of the detachment will be held on May 15. All marines and ex-marines in Atlanta are requested to get in touch with Sergeant C. R. Baumgrass, adjutant, at Room 510, Postoffice building.

FLORENCE STOVE CO. OPENS LOCAL BRANCH

H. D. Carter, first vice president of the fifty-year-old Massachusetts corporation that makes Florence stoves, arrived in Atlanta during the week and opened up a permanent sales district office.

Commodious quarters have been taken on the sixth floor of the Glenn building, 116 Marietta street. This nwe office will serve as sales headquarters for Martin B. Persons, district sales manager, and for Florence salesmen who cover Georgia, Florida, Alabama and South Carolina.

Mr. Cates states that the opening of the Atlanta branch is a part of the progressive policy of the Florence Stove company in giving quickest and best possible service to its 20,000 dealers, a large number of whom are in the southeastern states.

Grain Shipments, Violating State Laws, Are Seized

Within the past two months, fifty-seven carloads of grain shipped into Georgia as "oats" have been found by the pure food division of the Georgia department of agriculture to be a mixture of wild oats, oats, barley, wheat and various other grains, in many instances containing less than 50 per cent of cultivated oats. Under the pure food laws of the state such a mixture comes under the classification of "commercial feed" and as such is subject to registration, analysis, even weight bags, and must bear the analysis tag and inspection tax stamp. Tax must be paid to the state, and, as a result of its policing activity, the pure food department of the state not only has put this class of product under its proper label of "feed," but also has collected the revenue tax, which means many hundreds of dollars additional income to the state in the course of a year.

It is also pointed out by officials of the department that if out-of-state shippers were permitted to continue sale of this class of goods in Georgia, it would work a serious hardship on Georgia farmers, inasmuch as it would make it unprofitable for Georgia to raise good oats, when this grain would have to be sold in competition with this much inferior and cheaper priced product.

Hit Sausage Factories.

The pure food division of the state agricultural department recently has conducted a thorough investigation of sausage factories in Georgia, revealing that a number of these establishments have been violating the law. In many instances the manufacturer was using nearly 40 per cent of water and cereal mixed with the meat and selling the product as sausage, which is in direct violation of the law. Some others were found to be occupying unsanitary plants and, as a result of the investigation, either have moved into better buildings already or are erecting new plants. In practically every instance those concerns which were using an excess amount of water and cereal have discontinued the practice, while the few who have persisted in their violation of the law will be prosecuted, it was stated.

A solid carload of sardines shipped into the state recently was found, on inspection, to be unfit for consumption. Inasmuch as this was an interstate commerce shipment, the matter was turned over to the federal authorities. Several shipments also have been discovered within the past two months of various beverages which were being offered for sale as pure fruit juices, at fancy prices, when analysis showed they were imitation products, artificially colored and flavored. These interstate commerce shipments also have been turned over to the federal authorities, and in some instances seizures already have been made by the United States marshal.

36 Cases of Goods Seized.

Official reports for the pure food division of the department for January and February, just published, show a record of 36 cases of goods held up for violation of pure food laws of the state. In the majority of these cases the violation did not concern the quality of the product, being merely a failure to register, or submit to analysis, or pay the state inspection tax on the goods. In this class of cases, as soon as requirements of the law are met, seized goods are released and permitted to be sold.

In other cases, however, where the product is seized because of defects in the quality, the goods not meeting purity requirements of the state laws, the goods are either ordered dumped or shipped out of the state. Among the goods found unfit for human consumption during the two months' period were 5 gallons of kraut, found in Columbus, and 84 pounds of salt fish, found in Atlanta. In both these instances the product was ordered dumped.

SCREEN COMEDIAN HIERS VISITS CITY ON WEEK VACATION

Walter Hiers, robust film comedian and native Georgian, is in Atlanta en route to Savannah, where he expects to spend a one-week vacation. Accompanied by Mrs. Hiers, the star reached Atlanta unheralded Friday night and took a suite at the Atlanta Biltmore.

Mr. and Mrs. Hiers are being entertained while here by Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Bishop, prominent Atlantans, uncle and aunt of Mr. Hiers. Sunday Mr. and Mrs. Hiers will go to Savannah, returning here next Sunday for a short stop-over before returning to Los Angeles.

New York, May 3.—The cotton market was quiet and rather irregular today with trading attributed chiefly to evening up for over the week-end. After selling off to 27.93 at the start, July rallied to 28.20, but eased again, closing at 27.98. The general market closed barely steady, net unchanged to 15 points lower.

The selling movement which had developed late yesterday continued at the opening. First prices were barely steady at declines of 3 to 10 points and active months soon showed net losses of 11 to 20 points under selling promoted by the favorable weather map, relatively easy cables and reports of increasing domestic mill curtailment. At 29.59 for May and 24.10 for October, offerings became lighter and the market rallied during the forenoon on covering for over Sunday.

May advanced to 29.80 and October to 24.34 but the demand was limited and closing prices were 10 to 22 points off from the best under renewed liquidation. Weather conditions were considered generally favorable but there was some buying of October on reports of low night temperatures in some sections.

Cottonseed Oil.

New York, May 3.—Cottonseed oil was quiet and featureless today, May closing 5 points lower and forward months generally 1 to 5 net higher. Shorts covered for over the week-end. Sales, 2,100 barrels. Crude markets were barely steady. Prime crude, $8.50 sales; prime summer yellow spot, $9.80 @10.00; May closed $9.35; July, $10.17; September, $10.36; October, $9.80, all bid.

COCA-COLA EARNINGS SHOW GOOD INCREASE

New York, May 3.—(Special.)—The Coca-Cola company for the quarter ended April 1, last, reports a net profit of $922,480 after expenses, but before federal taxes equivalent after preferred dividends to $1.49 a share earned on 500,000 shares of no par common stock. This compared with net income of $628,755, or 90 cents a share earned in the preceding quarter, and $1,494,157, or $2.64 a share, in the corresponding quarter of 1923.

ROW OVER OWL CARS

Petition for Schedule Change Protested.

The Georgia Railway and Power company has petitioned the Georgia public service commission to change the route of its all-night car service between Inman Yards and Cooper street. This car is run after the regular schedules are completed. No transfers are accepted and a fare of 10 cents is charged.

The company, some time ago, received a petition asking that this car be routed from Inman Yards to Grant Park, instead of Cooper street. Believing that the petition represented the great majority of patrons of the line, the public service commission granted the request. Recently, however, a complaint has been received from R. S. Elrod, chairman of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers and Firemen, declaring that the change works a serious hardship on the majority of the users of this night-car service.

The commission has, therefore, restored the original routing and called a hearing on the whole question for May 27.

DENBY SEES COOLIDGE ON "FRIENDLY" VISIT

Washington, May 3.—Edwin Denby, former secretary of the navy, called on President Coolidge today, but explained it was "merely a friendly visit."

News, Views And Reviews

Stock Letter.

FENNER & BEANE.

New York, May 3.—The public is still uninterested and most ofthem buying is to cover shorts by professionals, but the general feeling is growing better and the market is expected to broaden out. Final tone strong.

Cotton Letters.

POST & FLAGG.

New York, May 3.—In view of the easy cables and weather advices to which about the only valid objection at the moment is tha tthe nights are too cool, the market has shown a creditable degree of resistance. Cotton is scarce and hard to buy while goods are in fairly abundant supply in this country and hard to sell. Which party to the deadlock will have to give in first remains to be seen, but according to talk here the domestic mills unable to sell goods have found it possible to relieve the strain by using part of their raw material to fill the demand from abroad at substantial premius over futures.

FENNER & BEANE.

New Orleans, May 3.—The average trader is strongly inclined to the selling side and is only restrained from becoming aggressive by fear of further unfavorable weather. Any indications of a permanent change in the weather is likely to be the signal for loosening of these pent-up inclinations.

ORVIS BROS. & CO.

New York, May 3.—Weather conditions have improved, but the effect of the recent bad weather is reported to have made necessary very heavy replanting in Oklahoma. This does not look good for that state. On periods of easiness purchases for scalps appear advisable. Liverpool due Monday: July, 16.39; October, 14.19.

E. B. NORMAN & CO.

New Orleans, La., May 3.—The outlook seems to be for dry and somewhat warmer weather over the whole belt. It is fairly plain that a spell of favorable weather would encourage very optimistic ideas concerning the crop. In the event that such a spell of weather should be realized the market probably would work gradually lower.

HUBBARD BROS. & CO.

New York, May 3.—There seems to be less desire to sell and it is noticeable that the trade is beginning to put in limited orders to buy the new crop months on every dip. The market has ruled rather steady in view of the very bearish feeling that exists on the floor and throughout the trade. It is our opinion that these declines will only be temporary and will afford a good opportunity to buy cotton. The volume of business today was small, but on the whole, the buying is of better character than heretofore. Liverpool futures are due Monday: May, 17.02; July, 16.38.

GEORGIA COTTON MANUFACTURERS TO MEET MAY 13

Governor Clifford Walker and Judge Jack Cozart will be principal speakers at a meeting of the Cotton Manufacturers' Association of Georgia, to be held at the East Lake Country club Tuesday, May 13, according to announcement Saturday.

A business session and a program of entertainment features will take up the day, it is stated, with the business session divided into morning and afternoon meetings. Matters of interest to the association will be taken up, the discussions to be led by prominent members.

A special table will be arranged at which the present president and all former presidents now living will be seated and introduced to the association. B. S. Walker, of Monroe, Ga., father of Governor Walker, was the first president, serving from 1900 to 1904, and F. B. Gordon, president of the Columbus Manufacturing company, served from 1904 to 1908.

Dr. Jeff Davis, of Toccoa, 1908-10; Charles D. Fuller, 1910-13; F. B. Gordon, 1913-15; Allen F. Johnson, 1915-17; W. J. Vereen, 1917-18; R. C. Freeman, (deceased), 1918-19; D. A. Jewell, 1919-20; J. A. Mandelville, 1920-21; Cason J. Callaway, 1921-22; Lee M. Jordan, 1922-23; P. E. Glenn, 1923.

Boat Will Accommodate Fifty Passengers.

By water, it's a far cry from St. Petersburg, Fla., to Atlanta across the Gulf of Mexico and up the Chattahoochee river. But that is very nearly what the little launch at Lakewood accomplished when she came to Atlanta. It was only by reason of the big dams obstructing the river at Columbus that she was forced to make the last leg of her voyage by motor truck.

Patronage on the lake at the park has so grown that it has been necessary to build a larger boat, and a 30-foot launch has just been completed on the shore of the lake which will carry more than 50 passengers each trip. A professional boat builder came from Tampa to Atlanta to superintend construction of the new boat and it is sea-worthy in every respect.

It will be given a name to be suggested by some child visitor to the park, and will be launched within a few days.

PILES CURED WITHOUT SURGERY

An instructive book has been published by Dr. T. W. Hughes, the noted rectal specialist of Atlanta. This book tells how sufferers from Piles can be quickly and easily cured without the use of knife, scissors, "hot" iron, electricity or any other cutting or burning method, without confinement to bed and no hospital bills to pay. This book is free to persons afflicted with piles. Call today for free consultation and advice.

New York, May 3.—Narrow price fluctuations and an abrupt slackening of activity intensified the normal Saturday dullness in today's short session of the bond market. Major operations, however, were on the buying side, imparting a firm tone to trading.

Scattered profit taking, inspired by the sharp rallies which followed the reduction of the rediscount rate, continued in evidence today. Serbian 8s at one time sagged two points to below 80, but later rallied and closed today with only a fractional net loss. Wilson 7 1-2s duplicated the year's low prices and heaviness developed in a number of low priced railroad, rubber and sugar company liens.

Active bidding for several South American obligations toward the market's close brought about substantial advances and gave rise to reports of new financing for these countries. Brazil 8s sold at the highest levels of the year, and Rio de Janeiro 8s were near the 1924 top price.

Strength of International Mercantile Marine 6s, accompanied a rise in the stock, was attributed to reports that it was negotiating for the sale of some of its ships to English interests and that an agreement had been reached assuring greater stability of ocean rates.

Grain Transactions In Future Market Over Eight Billion

Washington, May 3.—The grain futures administration, in its report to the senate on future wheat trading, declared today that transactions in futures on the Chicago Board of Trade last year amounted to 8,557,-111,000 bushels, counting one side of each transaction, or a daily average of about 28,500,000 bushels.

Thirty of the "clearing members" of the Chicago Board of Trade handled during the year over 60 per cent of all transactions in wheat futures and represented on an average over 75 per cent of the open interests. It was found that these houses handled all of the half million bushel class accounts which were at some time during the year net "long" or net "short" in the Chicago market as much as 500,000 bushels.

There were 150 of these half-million bushels accounts found. The administration classified these 150 accounts into what it termed speculative accounts and hedging accounts. Thirty-two were found to be speculative accounts, while 45 were classed in the hedging group.

There were 73 accounts, it was found, that could not be classed in either of those groups, 55 representing customers who are commission houses, most of them not located in Chicago. The combined net position of these 55 accounts at quarterly intervals was always "long." Five of the 73 were of mixed character and 13 others represented "spreads between markets."

The 32 speculative accounts, it was found, represented principally "professional traders and speculators" and a few "members of large futures commission houses." No one of these 13 accounts was ever net "long" or net "short" as much as 3,150,000 bushels; no two of them combined were ever net "long" or net "short" as much as 5,025,000 bushels; and no three of them combined were ever net "long" or net "short" as much as 6,125,000 bushels. The largest combined net position for any group of these accounts for any time during the year was 6,115,000 "short" on March 15, 1923.

DAY'S SUMMARY.

Total stock sales, 233,200 shares.

Date.	20 Ind'ls.	20 Railr'ds.
Saturday	93.08	82.85
Friday	92.70	81.72
Week ago	92.95	81.61
High, 1924	101.24	86.32
Low, 1924	90.28	81.00

New York, May 3.—Extreme dullness characterized today's brief session of the stock market. Prices were irregular at the opening but strengthened later in response to bullish demonstrations in the shipping shares and a few specialties. Standard industrials moved within extremely narrow limits. U. S. Steel common, Baldwin and Studebaker closed fractionally higher while American Can was unchanged at 102 1-4.

Colorado Fuel and Iron was the individual feature, climbing more than three points to a new 1924 high, 39 7-8. Marked strength also developed in Marine preferred, which touched a new top at 37 1-4, up 2 3-4. Other shippings improved in sympathy.

The unusually quiet trading was explained in part by the absence of many large traders over the week-end. The only news development of any importance was a report from Washington that congress probably would clear up all important legislation before the first of June. This was held responsible in some quarters for the brief flurry of short coverings in the final hour.

Uncertainty as to the form in which the tax bill will appear when passed has had a restraining effect on trading. Many brokers are of the belief that the passage of the tax bill is bound to result in a period of increased activity.

Kresge jumped 15 points on one transaction. Other strong spots included American Can and Foundry, New York Air Brake, N. S. Realty, Railway Steel and Spring and Atlantic, Gulf and West Indies preferred, all up a point or more.

Failure of the leather industry to show any improvement in the first quarter was reflected in the weakness of Central Leather preferred. Poor earnings also were responsible for the weakness of Coca-Cola. Wilson preferred broke five oints on a few sales in sympathy with recent liquidation of that company's bonds. Pierce Oil referred was adversely affected by the receivership proceedings.

Foreign exchange rates held steady in extremely quiet trading. Demand sterling ruled around $4.38 1-2 and French francs at 6.45 cents. The weekly clearing house statement showed increases in most of the principal items. Loans, discounts and investments gained $54,134,000; reserve of member banks in the local federal reserve bank $72,008,000, and net demand deposits $67,205,000. Time deposits dropped $12,528,000. Aggregate reserve totaled $458,124,000, leaving excess reserve of $17,015,020, a decrease of $1,592,280 below a week ago.

CITY "CLEAN-UP" DRIVE CONCLUDED

Atlanta's "Clean-Up, Paint-Up campaign" closed Saturday with a record of nearly 2,000 more tons of rubbish hauled from homes to city dumps and crematory during its progress than during the similar period of the month prior to the campaign opening, and with other results recorded in proportion.

General Secretary Fred J. Cooledge, Jr., announced that headquarters have been closed for all purposes except grading and judging of more than 50,000 clean-up reports submitted by school children, on which prize awards are to be made. At least a week will be required to complete this work.

Clean-Up Figures.

Chief John Jentzen, of the city sanitary department, announced that city trash carts and trucks had hauled a total of 6,160 tons of waste out of Atlanta during the campaign, as compared to 4,315 during the same period in March.

A number of requests for special service occasioned by the campaign had not been answered Saturday night because of inability of the limited forces of the department to respond to all extra calls made upon it during the campaign. All requests are to be filled as rapidly as possible this week.

No accurate check was possible on the number of homes repainted, flower gardens and lawns planted, shrubs set out, trees planted, and other improvements made in the appearance of the city during the campaign but Secretary Cooledge declared that reports from the subcommittee chairman indicated that all those lines of "clean-up" work had been pressed as actively as destruction of rubbage.

"Keep-Up" Phase.

The "keep-up" phase of the campaign begins Monday under supervision of the more than 60 organizations which participated. Further progress made is to be reported at a general meeting of the committee, to be called by Mrs. T. T. Stevens, vice chairman, about the middle of this month.

Secretary Cooledge, Mrs. Stevens and W. V. Davis, chairman, issued a joint statement Saturday night thanking organization and subcommittee chairmen for services rendered during the campaign.

WINS COVETED MEDAL IN COMPETITIVE DRILL

Cobb Edwards, 17, of 257 Lee street, has been awarded a medal for being the best drilled cadet among the 3,000 high school cadets of Atlanta who recently competed at Piedmont park. Three thousand students representing Fulton High, Boys' High and Tech High school participated in competitive drills and military maneuvers for individual and team prizes, young Edwards winning the individual honor.

The competitive drills were held at Piedmont park and more than 5,000 persons cheered as he eliminated each of his contestants for the honor. The contest embraced practically every branch of the official manual on military science and tactics, including individual carriage, knowledge of major tactics and execution of the entire manual of arms.

The winner has attended Tech High school for four years, having entered in 1920. He will graduate in May and will enter the freshman class at Georgia Tech, he states.

Consuelo Northup, Ruth Hanford and Adeline Feinburg, star debaters of Boston university, have sent out a challenge to any other team in the country.

Granite Marker Bears Eloquent Appreciation Of Services of Highway Association Official

Judge M. M. Allison, of Chattanooga, Honored by Marker at Highest Point on Dixie Route.

JUDGE M. M. ALLISON, Chattanooga, president Dixie Highway association.

The annual meeting of the Dixie Highway association will be held Wednesday, May 26, at Savannah. Vice presidents and directors from each state traversed by the great north and south highway, which runs from Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., to Miami, Fla., will be present, in addition to many other delegates, it is stated.

The highway runs through the states of Michigan, Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, Kentucky, Tennessee, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia and Florida.

This great highway, which has been described as a "permanent roadway linking the north and south and bringing prosperity to every city and town through which it passes," is now nearing completion and association officials and others who know anything of the work accomplished, give a major portion of the credit to Judge M. M. Allison, of Chattanooga, Tenn., president since the formation of the association in 1915.

On Friday, April 25, on Walden's Ridge, near Chattanooga, the highest point in the whole course of the great highway, a magnificent granite memorial marker was unveiled in honor of Judge Allison. This marker, weighing 10 tons, stands on a beautiful site owned by the association, and is 12 feet high, about 3 1-2 feet wide and 20 inches deep. It is left in its natural state except for a smooth surface on one side in which is set, in letters of glass, the inscription to Judge Allison, as follows:

Marker Inscription.

"AN APPRECIATION."

"This memorial is erected by the people of the United States to mark their appreciation of the great service rendered our country by Judge M. M. Allison, president of the Dixie Highway association since its organization in 1915.

"The Dixie highway was founded upon his faith, his hope and his far vision; his indefatigable labor throughout the states wherein it winds its useful way made possible its realization."

The presentation of this marker came as a complete surprise to Judge Allison, it is said. His friends and fellow workers in the association kept it a secret all through the planning and erecting of the stone and it was not until April 25, the day set for the unveiling, that he had any inkling as to what was purposed.

On that day a group of officers and directors of the association and personal friends invited him to Walden's Ridge, and presented to him this permanent symbol of the love they feel for him as a man and the appreciation they would voice for the work he has done.

Ceremony Features.

President Read, of the Chattanooga Chamber of Commerce, opened the presentation ceremonies, while Dr. John D. Wing, pastor of the St. Paul's Episcopal church, of Chattanooga, of which Judge Allison is a member, pronounced the invocation.

Dr. T. S. McCallie, pastor of the Central Presbyterian church, of Chattanooga, presented the tablet to Judge Allison and the unveiling was performed by Miss Evelyn Allison, daughter of Judge and Mrs. Allison, and Jack Lovell, son of Mr. and Mrs. John E. Lovell.

In presenting the tablet, Dr. McCallie said, in part:

"From where we stand today it is down hill all the way to the two ends of this great highway. Travelers of the days of the future will pause by this memorial, read its inspiring inscriptions and give thanks. Thanks for the smooth road that as an enduring ribbon binds together the extremes of the nation, and thanks for the men of vision and capacity who, under the able leadership of Judge Allison, wrought so tirelessly for the accomplishment of a great dream.

"From where we stand it is down hill both ways, all the way. May we not accept this natural physical fact as a portent of easier going for the future? More remains to be done than has been done, but has not the hardest going been really accomplished? The creation of a vision in the minds of millions; the binding of diverse and oftentimes dissimilar ideas into a unified purpose; the welding of segregated political units into overcoming of obstacles and the education of ignorance; the skillful fostering of an unalterable determination to possess; were not these already finished factors of the Dixie highway more difficult of realization than those already done?

Expenses Justified.

Monday, May 26, at Savannah, cause the pioneer dollars have already been justified in their spending. Men will be easier to mobilize because the sacrifice of time and energy of other men is even now on a dividend basis. Surely what is yet to be done, vastly more costly as it will be, will find a downhill road and more pleasant traveling. The steep grades have been surmounted, the boulders have been blasted away, the hairpin turns straightened out and a great completed highway is more than a dream—it is beginning to be.

many other delegates, it is stated. The date of the meeting has been changed from May 21 to May 26-27.

"To Judge Allison, in large measure, has fallen this hard and discouraging pioneer work. If he did not originate the vision he was, at least, among the first to see, and for years this highway has been his great task. It is indeed fitting that here on the highest pinnacle of the road this beautiful granite should testify to the world his faithfulness to his trust and his unwavering confidence in his ultimate achievement. Two thousand miles of friends here register their confidence in his ability and integrity and their love for himself."

Dr. Charles L. Bonifield, former president of the Cincinnati automobile club and a director of the Dixie highway ffrom Ohio, reviewed the history of the association from its inception in 1915. It was organized, he said, at a meeting held in Chattanooga in that year, at which time every state to be transversed by the great road was represented by its governor. Continuing, Dr. Bonifield said:

"Few people know the amount of time, the amount of work, the amount of money that Judge Allison has given to the Dixie highway. He had monumental patience with communities that fought hard to be put on the Dixie highway map, but have done little or nothing to make the Dixie highway a reality. Not only has he done great work himself, but he has kept himself surrounded by a board of directors that has kept up a keen interest in the work and he has been ably helped by his friends in Chattanooga through all these years. Chattanooga has been the seat of government for the Dixie highway from its inception and must remain to the end. No other city has showed half the interest that Chattanooga has, and its geographical location makes it the natural place for the executive officers to live.

"This beautiful piece of road on which we stand, a perfect boulevard, when completed runs through scenery equaled by few places on the broad face of the earth and surpassed by none. This piece of road is particularly Judge Allison's piece of work. For five years he fought through the courts to get this road built. When it is completed all Chattanooga and everyone who passes over it will rise up to call it blessed. As we stand here today to unveil this tribute to a great citizen, let us rededicate ourselves to the duties of citizenship in the United States of America. Other nations have risen, lived and died. Doubtless we will do the same, but if each and every one of us recognizes that citizenship carries with it duties, as well as privileges, it may at least be delayed.

"Lord Byron sad:

"'There is but one moral to all human tales,
'Tis but the same rehearsal of the past—
First freedom, and then glory, and when that fails,
Wealth, vice, corruption, barbarism at last:
And history with all its volume vast hath but one page.'

"We achieved freedom some century and a half ago. We achieved glory during the world war. We are the wealthiest nation on the face of the earth. May it be a long time before vice and corruption destroyeth us."

J. Stacy Hill, vice president of the association, of Ohio, and president of the Hotel Gibson, Cincinnati, also spoke for several minutes recounting Judge Allison's untiring efforts for the association he heads.

Judge Allison was deeply moved and concluding a brief speech of appreciation of the honor bestowed upon him, said:

"The greatest thing in the world is love, and I want to say to the people who conceived this thought, my friends, I wouldn't exchange one of them for all the gold in the world."

Underneath is a photograph of Judge Allison.

New Yorker Trades Small Silver Nugget For Bit of Mountain

In exchange for a bit of Stone Mountain granite, W. J. Meyers, secretary of the United Light and Power company, of New York, has sent "a little nugget of silver," as he expressed it, to add to the Stone Mountain memorial fund.

The contribution was sent to Mrs. B. M. Boykin, Atlanta woman who is prominent in the drive for funds with which to complete the work. Mrs. Boykin suggested sending small pieces of granite from the mountain to certain persons in all parts of the country, the idea meeting with success.

A Page of News for Monday from High's May Festival Sale!

Founded on Quality Merchandise and the Desire To Be of Genuine Service to the Community

Integrity Builds Public Confidence

¶ What are the factors that make a successfu store? A convenient location for one thing. A capable organization for another. Ampl capital to name still another. Most important of all, integrity!

¶ There is no one thing that gives a store such a solid foundation as quality merchandise. And there is no undermining force to compare with inferior merchandise--no matter how low the price at which it is offered.

¶ An audit of our books just completed shows that we have had the largest April business we ever enjoyed. We wish to express our thanks to our patrons for the confidence which this proves they have in High's.

QUANTITY PRODUCTION AID TO CAR MAKERS

Five hundred million lock washers were purchased in one year by one automobile manufacturing corporation in this country. Most of the European automobile manufacturers buy this small but important unit a few thousand or so at a time and pay the small quantity price. This same American producer purchases 375,000 tons of steel every 12 months. European manufacturers buy three or four thousand tons. This same condition obtain right down through the entire automobile manufacturing process. This is the reason why American-made automobiles can be shipped abroad, pay a stiff import duty and yet compete with foreign cars, according to R. K. Jack, chief engineer of the Olds Motor Works, Lansing, Michigan.

"European manufacturers still continue to use hand instead of machinery methods and to buy in small quantities," said Mr. Jack. "Only cheap labor makes it possible for them to operate at all. Quantity purchasing and its use to the utmost by the two big outstanding producers in this country is almost incomprehensible to the European mind.

"Frequently I have been asked how we could produce a six-cylinder car like the Oldsmobile at less than $800. This exceptional purchasing power of the General Motors Corporation is one of the answers. Where we would use one lock washer, for instance, General Motors buys approximately 500 for its other units, as well as Oldsmobile. Every item going into the car, from sheet steel to bearings, from radiator to rear axle, represents a saving through this gigantic purchasing power.

"Frankly, if the Olds Motor Works had to go 'on its own,' designing, testing and buying without the aid of the parent organization, the price of the present Oldsmobile would be substantially (several hundred dollars) more than it now is. To sell the car at its present price without these things, there would have to be sacrificed many things not discernible to the eye, but which would materially reduce its power, strength and durability.

"It is only by the introduction and perfection of such wholesale methods of purchasing and producing that the automotive industry in this country has grown to its present commanding position. These features also have made possible a real 'living wage' for those employed in the industry, and made the employment of the automobile for both business and pleasure possible to nearly everybody."

Willys-Overland, Inc., Service Crew And Their Modern Daylight Shop

The above picture is Service Manager Dickert and his group of service men who have just won a nation-wide contest for efficient and thorough service on Willys-Knight and Overland cars. "Every man in our shop is a proven expert on the above named cars and we can at all times give the highest quality of work to be had, no matter where you go," states Mr. Dickert.

Franklin Employees Receive Awards for Helpful Suggestions

Cash prizes aggregating $3,932 were distributed to 254 employees of the Franklin Automobile company on the evening of April 22, in connection with the termination of the fifth Franklin suggestion contest conducted by the Franklin company for its workers.

Prizes were awarded at a testimonial banquet given to prize winners, officials of the company and heads of departments taking part in the ceremony. The prizes ranged from $400 downwards. The suggestion system, inaugurated at the Franklin plant on March 21, 1921, has been thoroughly successful and many hundreds of valuable ideas have been advanced by the employees tending either to improve the quality of the Franklin car or to cut down the cost of production without imparing quality.

One group of prizes was set aside for hourly workers, another group for foremen and assistant foremen and a third group for salaried employees other than heads of departments, this arrangement precluding the possibility of foremen competing against workmen. Since the introduction of the system, a total of $20,159 has been distributed among the employees.

Gold Discovered Under Floor of Dealer's Garage

Grass Valley, Cal., May 3.—When Atherton B. Snyder started to excavate for an underground gasoline tank in his garage here, he struck gold-bearing ore a few feet below the surface.

Mr. Snyder had the ore assayed and found that it contained a considerable quantity of gold. He kept going deeper and geeting more gold and reported to the Chester N. Weaver company, Studebaker distributors at San Francisco, that between selling Studebaker cars and mining gold, he had his hands full. In a few weeks, as the shaft sunk deeper, his garage was full, too—full of dirt from the excavation.

The miners were bringing up so much ore that the Snyder service department was getting too crowded for comfort. By that time, however, he had taken enough money out of the mine to pay for the garage.

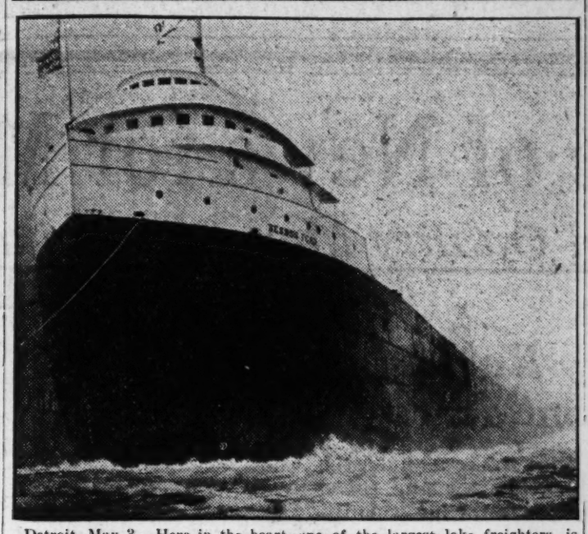

But the congested condition could not continue. It reached a point where Snyder had to give up the mine or give up the garage. Since so many Studebakers were being sold in Grass Valley, Mr. Snyder began to do some figuring.

Studebaker had been doing business for 72 years, he knew, while his gold mine might "peter out" any day. He deliberated on the problem for a short time and decided to close up his gold mine and stick to his Studebakers.

He closed up the shaft leading into the garage and sold the underground rights to a gold mining company which is now working underneath the surface of the garage. But Mr. Snyder stipulated in his contract that the mining operations were not to interfere with his garage business.

When asked if he didn't have difficulty making up his mind to abandon the gold mine, Mr. Snyder said: "Not much. Why bother with a gold mine when you've such a substantial business as the contract for Studebaker? A gold mine is a fickle thing, uncertain at best, liable to quit on you at any time. But selling Studebakers is a sure thing. I'll keep my garage." And he has.

Ford Adds Ships to Holdings

Detroit, May 3.—Here in the heart of the Ford industries another step was taken today to link these great manufacturing plants more closely and securely with the sources of raw materials, when the Ford Motor company's second steel freighter, the Benson Ford, was launched at the shipyards of the Great Lakes Engineering works.

The ship, which is named after Henry Ford's grandson, Benson, second son of Edsel B. Ford, was launched at 11:30 a. m.

The new vessel will go into service about July 15, joining the Henry Ford II, which was launched about two months ago, and will carry iron ore from the Ford mines in northern Michigan to the great blast furnaces at the River Rouge plant of the company here. On trips from Detroit the boats will carry Ford coal to the upper peninsula of Michigan.

The Benson Ford, which will be one of the largest lake freighters, is of standard type lake bulk freight steamer design, 612 feet over all, with a 62-foot beam and a cargo carrying capacity of 13,000 tons. It will carry a crew of approximately forty men.

Like the Henry Ford II, it is a motor ship, operated by a Diesel engine of the Sun-Duxford two-cycle type which will develop 3,000 horsepower. Tanks with a capacity of 300 tons will carry fuel oil for the operation of the main engines and the auxiliary Diesel motors which will drive the electric generators to provide electric current for the operation of the many pumps and auxiliaries.

The fresh water supply for the cabins is carried in two tanks with a total capacity of 20,000 gallons. This water supply before going to the rooms is all filtered and purified. The usual practice on vessels is to supply distilled water for drinking purposes only and furnish raw water for all other purposes. In this case, however, all water will be purified so that there will be no water on the ship which is not perfectly safe to drink.

All living rooms will be heated by electricity and all cooking done on electric ranges. In fact, the electrical equipment throughout the vessel will be complete in every detail.

All auxiliary machinery such as pumps, anchor windlass, mooring winches, and winches for opening and closing the hatches will be electrically driven.

Main whistles mounted on the stack will be electrically operated and in this connection there will be installed on the foremast of the vessel an illuminated letter "F" which will flash in unison with the operation of the main whistles. The name "Ford" written in script, mounted on each side of the stack, will be artistically illuminated.

The navigating equipment will be the most complete of any ship on the Great Lakes. In addition to the usual outfit of magnetic compasses, deep sea sounding machine and patent log, the ship will be equipped with one main Gyro compass, with five repeaters, a continuous recording log, a continuous sounding machine, a submarine signal device, radio direction finder and draft indicator.

School of Health Plans To Remember Mothers of Nation

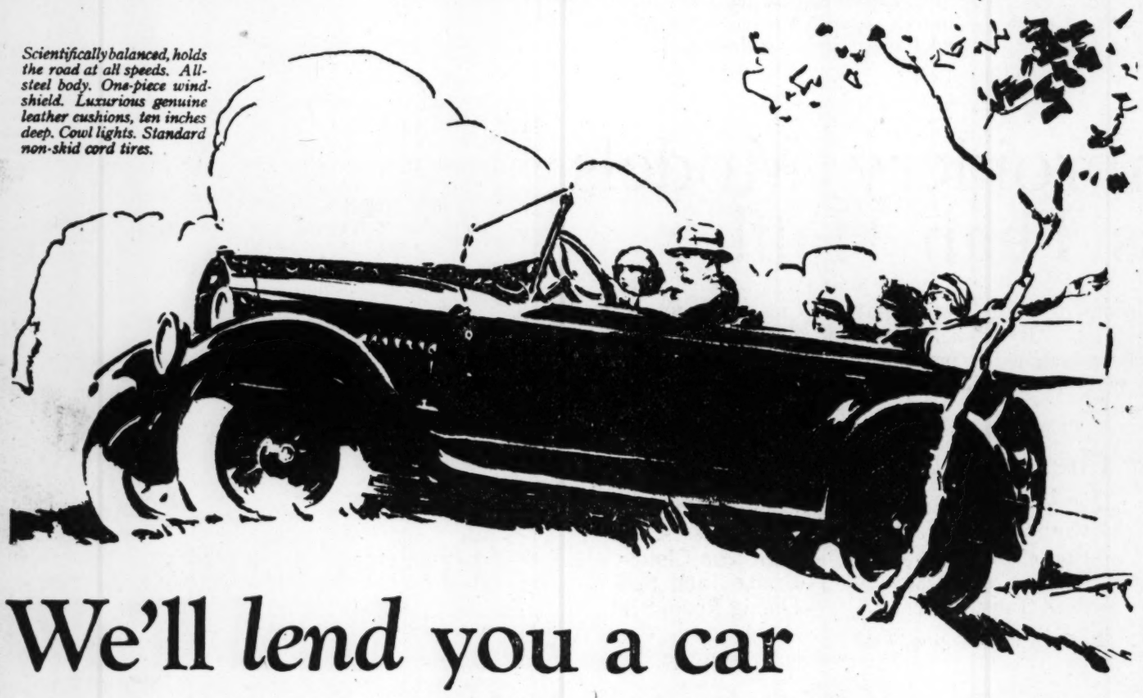

At the regular meeting of the New Thought School of Health to be held Sunday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock at the chamber of commerce, "Mother's Day" will be observed with appropriate exercises. Sunday also has been designated as Alliance Day and a full attendance of members of the International New Thought alliance in this district is expected.

Queen Mary's leisure hours are invariably occupied with feminine pursuits, and she does a vast amount of needlework. According to one member of the royal household, the queen frequently does more sewing in a day than the average housewife does in a week.

AIR PRESSURE GAUGE NEEDED FOR BALLOONS

With the increasing popularity of balloon tires has arisen the necessity for revised inflation pressures. And with new inflation pressures has come an added necessity for closer check on this important phase of tire life.

It is obvious that with no decrease in load per wheel on a car and with greatly lessened air pressure, it is inevitable that the motorist must not permit the air pressure to vary to any great extent.

If 10 pounds of air escapes from a high pressure tire for which the manufacturer recommended an inflation of 60 pounds, for example, there is a loss of 16 2-3 per cent or one-sixth of the entire amount of air. On the other hand, a loss of 10 pounds of air (an equal amount) from a balloon tire for which the recommended inflation is only 30 pounds, means a loss of 33 1-3 per cent or one-third of the entire quantity.

Inasmuch as any tire is built to withstand all reasonable road shocks at certain recommended pressures, it naturally follows that the resistance is lessened with any variation from recommended inflation pressures. With balloon tires, according to Miller balloon tire experts, in which the loss of a few pounds of air becomes a far greater percentage of the total than is the case with high pressure tires, it is even more essential to check inflation pressures carefully.

E. S. STREET. A. L. BELLE ISLE.

The Belle Isle-Street company local Ford and Lincoln dealers have announced the opening of their new and exclusive Lincoln sales and service department in the Lullwater building on the corner of West Peachtree and Grant place.,

Their new building gives them a more spacious and more attractive sales room as well as a larger service station which has been re-equipped with more and better equipment.,

A corps of trained Lincoln mechanics will care for the service needs of all Lincoln owners, and a sales force thoroughly familiar with the Lincoln car will handle Lincoln sale intereses.

Mr. Belle Isle states that both he and Mr. Street will give the Lincoln department their active supervision and direction.

Chevrolet Chief Optimistic After Tour of States

C. Earl Dawson, general sales manager of the Chevrolet Motor company, has just returned to Detroit headquarters from a two-months' trip, visiting the various sales zones of the company from New England and the east down to Texas. and as far west as the Pacific coast. He was accompanied on the western half of the trip by R. H. Grant, assistant to W. S. Knudsen, president of Chevrolet Motor company, and A. R. Kroh, manager of the retail development division.

"One thing that impressed us all most forcibly on this coast-to-coast trip," said Mr. Dawson, "is the very marked change in make-up of the men selling our cars. Increased sales are coming not because prospective buyers are necessarily more numerous or more ready or more willing to buy than in the past; they are coming because the salesmen are going after them with an intelligence fully equal to their energy.

"The salesman today is showing a very real desire to know everything he can about his product. He wants the "straight" of it—the what, the how, the why of it, and we are helping him to get it all. With such a combination as this, can you wonder that we are confident of record sales for 1924?"

Mr. Dawson stated that he expected Chevrolet to go over the top this year with the biggest sales in the history of the company.

"Our production schedule for 1924 is on the most pretentious basis we have ever had. This has been brought about by greater values put into the cars, the increasing demand for economical transportation, the greater purchasing power of the public due to the higher value today of the Chevrolet automobile dollar—155 against 100 in 1913, and the enthusiastic cooperation of our more than 6,000 dealers and 11,000 service stations throughout the country to give the maximum of service and satisfaction to our customers.

"While it is still too early to estimate accurately just what the year holds for us in view of our tremendously increased production, there is this much that can be said: Sales are already running 21 per cent better than durng the corresponding period in 1923—I understand the general average for the same period for all makes of cars is 15 per cent less than last year's sales—and the heavy spring and summer demand, which we have never been able adequately to meet in the past, is still ahead of us.

"1922 was the banner year in the automobile industry. Nevertheless, Chevrolet went ahead by close to 100 per cent in 1923. The outlook is quite satisfying that in 1924 we will break all previous records."

New Radio Station Opened in Chicago By Calumet Company

The latest powerful radio station to make its debut in the United States is station WQJ, of Chicago, the broadcasting station of the Calmuet Baking Powder company. One of the most elaborate studios in the nation has been constructed in Rainbow Gardens, Chicago, and a group of that city's most popular musical stars will be heard regularly via the new microphone of the new station.

Station WQJ will not confine the program to musical features solely, varying the offerings to include household hints, cooking recipes, suggestions for the many ways in which Calumet baking powders may be used in preparation of food, and many other unique and helpful programs.

In week days the station takes the air from 11 o'clock to noon each morning; from 3 to 4 o'clock in the afternoon; from 8 to 9 o'clock at night, and from 10 o'clock each night to 2 o'clock in thte morning.

On Sundays musical programs will be broadcast from 3 to 4 o'clock in the afternoon and from 8 to 10 observed on Monday night, after 7 observed on Monday night,s after 7 o'clock.

CENTRAL LODGE NO. 28 TO CONFER DEGREES

Central lodge, No. 28, Independent Order of Odd Fellows, will hold a ceremonial, conferring the third degree, at the regular meeting to be held Monday night at 8 o'clock at the Odd Fellows hall, corner of Broad and Alabama streets.

A large class of candidates will receive the degree and this will probably be the last ceremonial before the assembly of the grand lodge meeting here, May 28-29.

Union Reaches 3,169.

The Neighborhood union reached 3,169 persons last month through lectures and demonstrations of health and sanitation, through the four clinics held at four of the public schools and the cooking school at Rush Memorial church conducted by Miss Ruth Sweatt, according to announcement Saturday.

The Neighborhood union staff is perfecting palns for the "better home" week which will be fostered by this organization, and is also making plans for a city-wide mother's day program.

Singing Is Feature.

Singing by Evangelist James Keyes, Mrs. Keyes and Mrs. Legrand is an interesting feature of the revival services now in progress at West End Christian church.

Evangelist Keyes has a rich baritone voice, while Mrs. Keyes and Mrs. LeGrand are sopranos. Solos, duets and trios by the trio are proving very helpful in the services, it is stated.

Services will continue through May 11, each night at 7:30 o'clock.

AUTOMOBILE MEN MEET MAY 21 AT THE CECIL

BY C. V. HOHENSTEIN.

The next general membership meeting of the Atlanta Automobile association is set for Wednesday evening, May 21, roof garden, Cecil hotel. This is expected to be one of the most constructive sessions ever held by the association from a strictly business standpoint. The association is divided into two general classifications: namely, automobile dealers, which includes all those engaged in the sale of automobiles and trucks and allied automotive trade lines, which includes all other businesses of every character, outside of those engaged in the sale of automobiles and trucks, and comprises battery dealers, tire dealers, auto finance companies, retail accessory dealers and auto equipment companies of every description.

Several prominent members of each division have been selected to tell in an interesting way, how both divisions of the association can serve each other to the best advantage. Speakers from the automobile dealers' division will tell how the allied trade lines can cooperate to the best advantage with the automobile dealers, and speakers from the allied automotive trade lines will reverse the proposition, from the standpoint of their division.

Sam Porter, president of the association, will preside, assisted by Harry Sommers, chairman of the automobile dealers' division, and W. R. C. Smith, chairman of the allied automotive trade lines' division.

Wylie West and Fat Elrod, joint chairmen of the entertainment committee of the association, will present a number of interesting entertainment features of the evening. The usual musical program will be rendered by an orchestra, and the occasion will be fully in keeping with many previous monthly membership meetings.

Outing Committee.

The following committee has been appointed by President Sam Porter, of the Atlanta Automobile association, to make arrangements for the annual summer outing of the association, to be held at one of the country clubs some time in June. The committee is composed of Wylie West, chairman; Fat Elrod, Fred G. Tegder, Harry Sommers, W. R. C. Smith and A. S. Campbell. The celebration will be open to members, their wives and lady friends. The afternoon will probably be taken up with a golf tournament, a swimming contest, and other sports. In the evening a dinner will be served, accompanied by an entertainment and followed by a dance. As a part of the evening program a beautiful silver trophy, donated last year by the Automobile Credit Sales company, and another handsome trophy, donated by The Southern Automotive Dealer, will be awarded to the team and individual making the low score during the golf match. Full details will be furnished at a later date.

$175,000 IS ASKED IN DAMAGE SUITS

Damage suits for a total of $175,000 were filed Saturday in the city court of Atlanta.

Clyde Wood, messenger boy, sued the L. & N. railroad and Fair & Martin, Inc., for $100,000 for injuries he says he received when he fell through an elevator shaft in the L. & N. building. He claims he was answering a call put in by Fair & Martin, Inc., and attempted to use the freight elevator, falling down the shaft "because no gates were provided." Attorneys Kemper & Hornbuckle represent him.

Roy Cook, former motorcycle policeman of East Point, sued the Atlanta Gas Light company for $50,000 for loss of a leg resulting, he said, from being struck by the defendant's truck while the plaintiff was chasing a traffic law violator. Attorneys Reuben R. Arnold & Lowry Arnold represent Cook.

Mrs. Henrietta S. Groover sued the L. & N. and W. & A. railroads for $20,000 for alleged damages to her face received in a wreck between an L. & N. passenger train and a W. & A. freight train at Howell station, February 15. Her husband, J. P. Groover, sued for $5,000 for the loss of his wife's services.

LAST SERVICE HELD FOR WILLIAM HOPPER

Oakman, Ga., May 3.—(Special.)—Funeral services for William Hopper, pioneer citizen of Gordon county, who died at his home near Ranger, were held Thursday. Interment was in the family cemetery near his home.

Mr. Hopper was one of the best known citizens of this section of the state. He was a member of the Methodist church and was prominently connected with many civic and philanthropic movements in this community.

He is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Clarke, of Cartersville, and Mrs. Wiley Neal, of Ranger, and three sons, T. W. Hopper, of Dalton; Joe Hopper, of Ranger, and Quillian Hopper, of Alabama.

Dr. E. D. Burton, president of Chicago university, says it takes at least $10,000,000 adequately to endow a modern medical school.

SALES AND SERVICE MOVES INTO NEW HOME

AT WEST PEACHTREE STREET AND GRANT PLACE

The Belle Isle Street Company, Lincoln Sales and Service representatives in Atlanta, have moved into their new and larger home at West Peachtree Street and Grant Place which will be devoted exclusively to the handling of Lincoln Cars.

This announcement is significant to both present and prospective Lincoln owners. More adequate and fitting display space is provided as a setting for Lincoln models, and service facilities have been augmented to assure most prompt and efficient workmanship.

Here the prospective motor car purchaser can observe at his leisure the dignity and beauty of Lincoln body and coach designs, the luxury of appointments and, above all, the marvellous engineering skill apparent in the minutest part of the 60 degree Lincoln motor.

A cordial invitation is extended to the public to see the impressive showing of Lincolns in these display-rooms.

GREAT BELLS TO GIVE CONCERTS FOR NATION

Plans for erection of a great Carillon, an instrument composed of huge musical bells, whose music can be carried on the waves of the air into every state in the union, are now under way by the National Carillon association, of Washington, D. C. It is proposed to erect a magnificent tower, three hundred and fifty feet high, at Washington, to house these bells, which will be fifty-four in number. The whole project is intended as a memorial, known as the National Peace Carillon, in commemoration of the high idealism and unselfish effort, that exaltation of spirit, that marked the national consciousness of America during the dark days of the great World war.

The bells are to cover a range of four and a half octaves. The largest, weighing a trifle over ten tons, will be tuned to the pitch of E-flat. This will be known as the "Bell of the Allies." The next in the scale, sounding the pitch of E., will weigh 18,832 pounds and will bear the name and coat of arms of the state of New York. The third will be the Pennsylvania bell, about eight tons in weight, in the key of F. The other states will follow in the order of their total number of casualties in the World war.

It is now possible to tune bells to the accuracy of a single vibration, thus the completed instrument will be worthy of the performance of the greatest masters. Weekly concerts, which will be audible over a great range of territory around Washington, are planned. These also will be broadcast over the radio to the entire nation.

Checks from contributors should be made payable to the National Carillon association and sent to that organization, at 723-725 Colorado building, Washington, D. C.

MORE SUNNY WEATHER

Slightly Higher Temperature Today Seen.

Weather prospects today are for sunshine and slightly higher temperature than that of Saturday. C. F. von Herrmann, official forecaster for this vicinity, stated that there was nothing disagreeable in sight on the weather map and that prospects are for a continuation of the delightful spring weather at least for several days to come.

With the exception of light showers in the lake region and central Mississippi valley, the weather is fair and moderately cool practically all over the country. A little cloudiness is noted near the gulf coast.

Atlanta's temperature Saturday went above the 70-degree point, while at 7 o'clock Saturday morning it was 56 degrees.

Rachmaninoff Plays With Great Orchestra For Victor Records

One of the greatest contributions to the musical season is the release this week of three great Victor records in which Rachmaninoff merges his great art with that of Stokowski and Philadelphia orchestra. These records contain two whole movements of Rachmaninoff's own "Concerto No. 2 in C Minor," with the composer at the piano himself, banked with the surge and sweep of the great symphony orchestra.

Four of the late Edward MacDowell's beautiful melodies, two for soprano and two for baritone, are included on a record this week. Olive Kline and Royal Dadmun sing them. "Long Ago, Sweetheart Mine" and "A Maid Sings Light" are the soprano numbers. "The Swan Bent Low" is a love-lullaby combination, while "The Sea" is rich and sonorous.

"Yield Not to Temptation" is a solo by Edgar Kiefer, accompanied by an orchestra. "Bringing In the Sheaves" is sung by Trinity Mixed quartet.

Hilo Hawaiian orchestra plays "Hula Hula Dream Girl" and "Sad Hawaiian Sea," featuring the characteristic Hawaiian wail produced on steel Hawaiian guitars.

Marcia Freer and Henry Burr sing a duet this week, "What'll I Do?" On the other side Henry Burr sings a solo, "She's Everybody's Sweetheart."

Waring's Pennsylvanians and Whitey Kaufman's Original Pennsylvania Serenaders make three fox-trots and a waltz. "Memory Lane" is a nice, slow waltz. "Down Home Blues" is a fox-trot.

Kaufman's boys make two fox-trots, "From One Till Two" and "In a Charleston Cabin."

A word which, though now uncomplimentary, was once quite the reverse is conceited, which meant full of ideas or originality.

A bevy of Atlanta's most gifted young dancers, Warner's Seven Aces, Miss Betty Ennis, solo dancer, and Miss Jessie Calvert, favorite "blues" singer, will share honors at the annual Springtime Frolic of members of the Kappa Alpha fraternity, to be held Wednesday night at the Piedmont Driving club.

The tiny dancers are pupils of Miss Nellie Sullivan, widely known teacher of dancing, and have undergone special preparation for the part they will play in the big frolic. Miss Ennis and Miss Calvert form a uo of entertainers capable of keeping up the frolicsome spirit of the occasion, and Warner's Seven Aces, long known as the south's foremost dance orchestra, will enliven the affair with popular dance music.

"A blanket invitation," Quimby Melton, president of the Atlanta Kappa Alpha Alumni association, said Saturday, "has been issued to every Kappa Alpha who can get to Atlanta."

Delegations of Kappa Alphas from nearby cities are planning to attend the affair, and the five active chapters in Georgia will probably turn out en masse, it was stated.

Record Number Of Art Entries Seen This Year

Indications Saturday were that entries for the ninth annual exhibition of the Atlanta Art association will exceed those at any previous exhibition, according to Mrs. John Cooper, in charge of receiving entries.

Mrs. Cooper will be in the Gallery Intime, Woman's club building, from 10 to 2 o'clock Monday to complete reception of entries. The exhibition is intended to give a complete view of the work of Atlanta artists. All works of art accepted must be the original work of artists living in Atlanta or suburbs.

Oil paintings, water colors, pastels, chalk, charcoal, pen and ink and pencil drawings, sculpture, ceramics, dyeing, jewelry and other crafts will be accepted. All entries will be passed on by a hanging jury on Tuesday and will then be considered by the prize judges.

The Inman prize of $50 is to be awarded annually to the artist producing the best work of art shown. This prize, given by Mrs. Samuel Inman, cannot be awarded to an artist who has won it at a previous exhibition. Prizes of $20 for fine arts, $20 for craft, and $5 for student work are offered by the association. Mrs. Ten Eyck Brown offers a prize of $10 for the best drawing shown. Honorable mentions may be awarded by the judges in every media.

A reception and private view of the exhibition will be held Saturday night, May 10. The exhibition will be open to the public from Sunday, May 11, until Friday, May 23.

CORNELL UNIVERSITY HEAD TO VISIT ATLANTA

Dr. Livingston Farrand, president of Cornell university and formerly head of the American Red Cross, is expected to visit Atlanta this week in connection with the 20th annual meeting of the National Tuberculosis association, which will be held here Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Dr. Farrand is president of the National Tuberculosis association and will preside over business sessions of the annual meeting, which is being arranged under the auspices of the Georgia Tuberculosis association. This is the first time during the 20 years of its existence that the annual meeting has been held in the south, it is stated.

Known now as one of the foremost educators in the country, Dr. Farrand earlier in life gained renown in the world-wide fight against tuberculosis. Since 1905 he has been closely associated with national agencies for the study and prevention of the "white plague" and with other phases of the public health service, having served as editor of the American Journal of Public Health for a number of years.

The spread of tuberculosis in France after two years of war became an international concern, and Dr. Farrand was selected by the International Health board in 1917 to direct the fight against the disease in France. After the close of the war he was elected chairman of the central committee of the American Red Cross. He resigned the presidency of the University of Colorado which he then held, and lived in Washington until his inauguration as president of Cornell university in October, 1922.

The Cornell alumni of Atlanta and the state of Georgia will entertain informally for Dr. Farrand at a dinner at the Biltmore hotel at 7:30 o'clock Wednesday evening. The dinner is open to all former students of Cornell university, who may make reservations by communicating with either Howard See, president, or Charles D. Orme, secretary of the Cornell Club of Atlanta.

CIVIC ORGANIZATIONS AID SAFETY MEETING

Members of every civic club in Atlanta and those of other organizations devoted to public welfare have been given special invitations to attend the big safety council meeting Friday night at 7:30 o'clock, at the First Baptist church, when traffic problems will be discussed by several speakers.

The appalling increase in the number of traffic accidents which are growing even faster than the number of cars and trucks in use, has awakened the public to the necessity of some method of bombating it, in the opinion of officers of the Atalnta Safety Council. They do not believe that more laws are needed, though they do recommend certain changes in the traffic ordinances. In accord with safety organizations throughout the country, they base their hopes on arousing public sentiment to a realization of dangers of careless driving and careless walking.

Reuben R. Arnold will be the principal speaker of the evening. He will be introduced by Judge Shepard Bryan, president of the Atlanta Safety Council. Pupils of the Faith public school will give a demonstration of safety instruction work in this school.

AMERICUS TO GET SOCIETY 48 OF LEGION

Americus, Ga., May 3.—(Special.) A locale voiture, "La Societe 40 Hommes et 8 Chevaux," will be organized here next Thursday afternoon, when 50 members of the society and the American Legion come here from Columbus to install the new chapter.

The public part of the ceremony will take place at 4 o'clock Thursday afternoon when Pheophites will be paraded through the streets here.

The society is the playground of the American Legion. Only legionnaires are eligible for membership.

THOMAS H. JOY HEADS NASHVILLE ROTARIANS

Thomas H. Joy, of the Joy Floral company, of Atlanta, was elected president of the Nashville Rotary club for his second term at a recent meeting of the board of directors. Mr. Joy makes frequent trips to Atlanta in connection with his business, and is well known here.

He is a charter member of the Nashville organization, and served as temporary secretary of the Nashville at its organization meeting. The minutes of the first session, which now adorn the wall of the Rotary club office, bear the signature of Rotarian Joy.

He served on the board of directors during 1918 and 1919 and was president during the latter year. He has participated in committee work in practically all big movements undertaken by the club, and was a chairman this year in the boys' week campaign, which proved a huge success.

He was also chairman of the "On-to-Chattanooga" committee for the district convention held in that city a few weeks ago, and was a member of the Nashville delegation to the international convention in St. Louis last June.

The Joy Floral company, with which Mr. Joy is affiliated, owns and operates the largest floral gardens in the south.

PREACHERS TO URGE COLLEGE TRAINING

Dr. Elam F. Dempsey, secretary of education of the North Georgia conference of the Southern Methodist church, has designated today as "Go-to-College day" for the conference, and pastors are expected to deliver sermons dealing with the importance of higher educational training.

Appropriate literature will be distributed among young men and women who are graduating from high schools in this area. There will be, it is estimated, four or five thousand high school graduates in the northern portion of the state. The object of "go-to-college day" is to urge upon these young people that they complete their education by adding the training of the college to that of the high school.

While specifically directed, of course, to urging young men and women of the Methodist denomination to enter the colleges of their own church, still the influence of "Go-to-College day" programs is much wider than denominational lines, and throughout the Southern Methodist church this day has resulted in not only increasing the attendance at Methodist institutions, but it has increased that of both state institutions and other denominational institutions of learning.

Among the Norwegians there is a belief that stockings knit out of yarn spun from dog's hair will cure pneumatism.

The Lodestar of the Business Mariner

Business mariners—those who are steering important ventures among the perils of the everyday business world — may accept The Constitution's A-B-C Classified Section as their guiding star.

And that's the whole story in a nutshell!

But—it takes more than these few words to point out ALL of the classified section's advantages.

There's the matter of quick-finding, for instance. You will notice that all classified offers are both numerically and alphabetically arranged. You can find what you want in a flash!

Then there is the matter of the low cost of these ads, as well as the low prices they quote. This section has more advantages than you can imagine.

Regular classified reading will show you this is so!

YOU CAN broadcast your wants to nearly every home in this vicinity through a classified ad.

Fitting Your Needs With Tailored Exactness

The A-B-C Classified Section of The Constitution has two—instead of one or none—sets of quick-finding "devices." Both letters and figures index and classify its offers.

This makes it a matter of a few seconds to find just the opportunity you are seeking.

The A-B-C Classified Section gathers ALL the opportunities which are born in or around Atlanta. It lists both the common or garden variety and the extremely unusual offers of the community.

This makes it capable of filling all your wants—no matter how strange and unusual they may be.

The A-B-C Classified Section is absolutely reliable in every way. A rigid censorship excludes misrepresentation of any sort.

This makes it worthy of your implicit trust.

And all these things make reading it daily a matter of common-sense duty!

EAST LAKE HEIGHTS
Great Enhancement Due

WITHIN a block of entrance to beautiful East Lake, with all its attractions—golf, tennis, swimming, fishing, dancing; a fine school; churches; artesian water; 10-minute car schedule in busy hour; water, light, sewerage, sidewalks. A beautiful plot of ground—about 30 lots already sold; many improved. Only about 60 lots unsold; 125 pretty homes built around this property within the last 12 months. Lots like these in other cities, with much less attractive features, selling from $2,000 to $6,000.

EAST LAKE property has had but little advertising. Despite that it is one of the prettiest home-building sections around Atlanta; only a few miles out. East Lake Heights lies just north of entrance to club property. Think of buying a beautiful level lot for $12 to $25 per front foot, with all improvements. It is only a matter of time—and short time—until it will be selling around $300 per front foot—then you will see where you missed a BIG OPPORTUNITY. Buy a lot NOW, see H. M. Ashe.

ST. GEORGE APARTMENTS
984 Peachtree Street

HAVE proven so immediately popular with discriminating people—among which may be mentioned:

(1) ITS LOCATION in the very heart of Atlanta's and the south's most famous residence section—under one roof, a number of reasonably priced dwellings, each with a vista like that of a millionaire's home—an outlook from each exposure commanding superb views of Ansley Park, the Brookwood and Peachtree Road sections, the newly developed Spring street district and a new and attractive "sky line" of Atlanta's business district.

OCCUPANTS are delighted with the splendid foliage of the forest trees and rare shrubbery surrounding the apartment. A riot of color is presented by the many handsome flower gardens surrounding the St. George, and the breezes wafted through the large, airy rooms are burdened with the fragrant incense from millions of brilliant blossoms.

(2) ITS PROXIMITY to churches, schools, parks, golf courses, tennis courts, swimming pools and other open-air delights. Its nearness and its ease of approach to the center of Atlanta's business activities, making it well-nigh ideal for the home-loving business or professional man.

(3) THE COMFORT, convenience and luxuries that have been built into the structure, leaving nothing to be desired by those who wish to dwell amid the surroundings of the modern hotel or apartment, enjoying every advantage to be gained therefrom without the sacrifice of that "atmosphere of home" so dear to us all—in other words, living under the most delightful conditions of the real home of elegance and culture, with none of the annoyances and responsibilities incident to keeping house.

(4) THE AIRY, well lighted rooms—suites of various sizes, to meet the requirements of all, from the bachelor who wishes a combined sitting and bedroom (with bath and other accessories that make it complete) to the five-room apartment for the family. The elevators, operating at all hours, the presence of maids, porters, messengers, outside and community telephone connections, profuse electrical installations, private delivery system (obviating the necessity for delivery men to enter the apartment), built-in conveniences for the kitchen and breakfast rooms, perfect cuisine and delightful possibilities for having your meals served in the dining room or in your own apartment.

THESE conveniences and luxuries are made possible through the famous Grant-Jeter hotel service, which has been inaugurated in the St. George and other high-class apartments under the sole agency of this company. It is designed to satisfy the most exacting type of home-loving people, and experience has demonstrated that it will more than please.

Auction---Auction
TWO ABSOLUTE AUCTION SALES OF HIGH-CLASS RESIDENTIAL PROPERTY

TUESDAY, MAY 6TH
AT 2 O'CLOCK
THIRTY BEAUTIFUL LOTS

On State street, between Sixth and Tenth streets, we are going to sell at ABSOLUTE AUCTION thirty building lots.

THE LOCATION is ideal, within one block of the Luckie Street car line and running right up to Tenth street; within a short distance of schools, a community center, and parks; adjoining Peters Park, one of Atlanta's finest residential sections, and within a few blocks of the famous Biltmore Hotel, right along the path of Atlanta's growth.

Improvements are all down, the street is paved, and the property has gas, water, electricity sewerage, etc.

MR. INVESTOR—MR. BUILDER! Go out and look over this property. If interested, attend the sale; you can buy it at your own price.

Terms are 1-3 cash and the balance in one, two and three years. Every purchaser will be given a title policy by the Atlanta Title and Trust Co.

Take Luckie Street car, get off at State street, or drive out West Tenth street to State street. A big brass band will be on hand to entertain you.

REMEMBER the date, Tuesday, May 6, at 2 o'clock.

ABSOLUTE AUCTION—RAIN OR SHINE
You Name the Price, We Deliver the Property

THURSDAY, MAY 8TH
AT 2 O'CLOCK
TWENTY BUILDING LOTS
TWO BRAND NEW BUNGALOWS

On Boulevard DeKalb and Montgomery street, we are going to sell at absolute auction, twenty beautiful lots and two brand new bungalows.

These lots are on Boulevard DeKalb, one block east of Whiteford avenue and on Montgomery street running off from Boulevard DeKalb. Within one block of the South Decatur car line and within one block of the Whiteford Avenue school; the location is ideal for homebuilding, away from the smoke and noise of the city, a place where children can get out in the open and enjoy life as they should.

Boulevard KeKalb is paved and side walks are down. The property has every convenience except gas.

There are two brand new six-room bungalows on Montgomery street to be included in the sale. One of them is arranged for two families and has servant's quarters in the basement. If you want a home at your own price, don't fail to attend this auction. The terms are 1-3 cash and the balance easy.

Take South Decatur car, get off at Whiteford avenue and walk two blocks north, or get off at Boulevard DeKalb and walk one block west. Our signs are on the property. A big brass band will be on hand to entertain you.

REMEMBER the date, Thursday, May 8 at 2 o'clock.

ABSOLUTE AUCTION—RAIN OR SHINE
You Name the Price, We Deliver the Property.

During the past two years we have conducted fifteen successful auctions of property in and around Atlanta, all sales having been confirmed, and fifteen satisfied clients have been added to our already largs list built upon the merits and years of experience of our organization. We have justly earned the reputation—"WORLD'S FOREMOST AUCTIONEERS."

Tech Wins A. A. U. Track Meet in Close Race With Ga.

Sens, Nixon, Cleckley Set Records

BY JOHN STATON.

Thrills galore greeted the spectators of the Southeastern A. A. U. meet for colleges held on Grant field yesterday afternoon. Tech, successfully passing the crisis in the 220-yard low hurdles, forged ahead in the closing moments of the meet, and won the point trophy, with a total of 47. Georgia pushed hard at all times, and leading part the way, was second with 44 points. The A. A. C. showed remarkable strength in some departments, and amassed a total of 37 points during the afternoon's competition.

Hervey Cleckley, iron man of Georgia, showed of what fine material he is constructed yesterday. He won both the 100 and 220-yard dashes, after first winning a heat in each of three events.

Sens Breaks Record.

Lee Sens showed them a thing or two yesterday by taking all the hurdle races. More, he broke the Southeastern A. A. U. record in the 120 yard high hurdles. However, it was his own record that he lowered.

In the 440-yard low hurdles, run for the first time in a Southeastern A. A. U. meet, Lee set the extremely good time of 59.9 seconds for his contemporaries to shoot to. Incidetally he was high point scorer with 15.

There were so many entries in the quarter-mile race yesterday that it was necessary to run this event off in heats. Harold Hill, a senior at Tech, won his heat, and then repeated in the finals. Harold's great victories were hailed with delight yesterday, for it marked the accomplishment of an ideal for him.

When a freshman, Harold went out for track. His first attempt was in the 100-yard dash, but he did not have quite the speed to stack up as a first-place man. The next year he was shifted to the 220. Again he found his inability to place first. Last year he took up the quarter, and if ever a man took his track seriously, it was Harold. His two wins yesterday show the result of his earnest endeavor for four years. Coincident with the meet, three or four A. A. U. records were broken, but the excitement between the schools was so tense at all times that not much ear was given to the record-breaking.

Nixon Shatters Shot Mark.

Big Nixon, Tech freshman, broke the Southeastern A. A. U. record in the shot put yesterday when he tossed the 16-pound sphere 41 feet 9 inches. Tiny Roberts held the record up to this throw with 41 feet, 8 1-2 inches.

Cleckley, of Georgia, broke the Southeastern A. A. U. record in the 220-yard dash. His time was 22.8 seconds. The record was previously held by Anderson, of Tech, with 23 seconds flat. Hervey also tied Red Barron's record in the 100-yard dash.

The crisis of the meet came in the finals of the 220-yard low hurdles. Tech was trailing, and counting the points as they would probably be divided in the subsequent events. Tech needed points in the low hurdles to win. Sens, of course, was way out in front for a first place. But three men, Hull and Rosser, of Tech, and Ryther, of Georgia, fought desperately for second down the straightaway. Ryther cleared the last hurdle in second place, but right at the finish line, he was displaced in order by Hull and Rosser.

In that event, Tech got five points, Georgia one. Had second place gone to Georgia, it would have won the high point trophy by one point.

The most closely contested event of the day, with the possible exception of the finals in the quarter, was the second heat of the quarter. In this event, five men finished within a yard of each other. That race was certainly a thriller.

Summaries of Meet.

The summaries of events are as follows:

Virginia To Play Tech Nine Two Games Here This Week

University, Va., May 3.—Earle Neale, coach of baseball and football at the University of Virginia, merits a large measure of praise for the showing that has been made by the 1924 baseball team in the first part of the season. The nine is now away on its southern trip, having played North Carolina yesterday and this afternoon. Monday it will go to Athens for a game with Georgia and on Wednesday and Thursday it will play Georgia Tech in Atlanta.

Coach Neale came to the University of Virginia late in the winter of 1923. His baseball squad that year was ragged and inexperienced and lost game after game in the opening of the season. Teaching these men to play baseball was a slow process, but Coach Neale succeeded in doing it so well that the Virginians not only won games from Georgia, South Carolina, Maryland, Davidson, Virginia Polytechnic institute and North Carolina at the close of last season, but also took the first nine contests played this year.

Have Good Record.

Two games each from Amherst and Cornell and one from Roanoke, Hampden-Sidney, Washington and Lee, William and Mary and Syracuse were taken before the first defeat was administered by Georgia. The next day Virginia evened the series. When Virginia Military institute canceled on short notice the Quantico Marines were called in and these Devil-Dogs won the first shut-out. Ragged fielding cost the home game with North Carolina, but the series with Georgia Tech was split.

Of the fifteen men taken on the trip this year nine are letter men from last year. These are Captain Parrish, catcher; Bronaugh, first base; Deal, third base; Dietrick, shortstop; Hubbard, McCoy and Kindley, fielders, and Holland and Maphis, pitchers. Arnold, second base; Luther, catcher, and Lee, pitcher, were on the 1923 squad and only Diffey, outfielder, and Farmer and Beard, pitchers, were on the freshman team last season.

Of these men only a few will be lost to the team next season, and as Coach Neale is under contract until June, 1925, it would seem that Virginia's success on the diamond is almost assured.

Coach Neale will leave May 15, at the end of the season, to go with the Cincinnati Reds as chief assistant to Manager Hendricks. He will return to the university on September 1 to start football practice. Coach Neale played with Cincinnati for eight seasons and was an outfielder during the series when the Reds won the world's championship.

TECH TENNIS TEAM BEATS SEWANEE

The Tech tennis team successfully vanquished Sewanee yesterday by a 5 to 1 score. The matches were played on the East Lake courts. This is the third consecutive victory for the Tech team, and puts the boys well in line for southern championship honors. The team had previously defeated Alabama and Furman.

Two more matches remain on the Tech schedule. The first is the S. I. C. meet, to be held in Atlanta in the space of a week or so. The next is the Georgia State meet, to be held at East Lake on May 16.

The hardest match of the afternoon was played between K. G. Matheson, of Tech, and A. Allen, of Sewanee. K. G. finally succeeded in vanquishing Allen after five strenuous sets. The play was 4-6, 7-5, 5-7, 7-5, 8-6.

Van Winkle of Tech defeated Bill Nauts, Sewanee, 6-3, 6-2, 6-1. Carnes of Tech defeated Potter Allen 7-5, 6-2, 6-1. Wingate Jackson, Tech, defeated Dick Nauts, Sewanee, 4-6, 6-4, 7-5, 2-6, 6-4.

In doubles, Matheson and Van Winkle defeated Allen and Allen 6-1, 9-7, 6-2. Nauts and Nauts defeated Carnes and Jackson, 6-3, 6-2, 6-3.

Illinois Wins.

South Bend, Ind., May 3.—Illinois captured first place in all but one event in its annual track meet with Notre Dame this afternoon and won by a score of 102 to 24. In the javelin throw, Oberst of Notre Dame, won with a heave of 192 feet, 11 inches, a bare inch better than the throw made by Angier of Illinois, western champion.

Zev Easily Wins Race at Jamaica

New York, May 3.—A champion came back today at the Jamaica track. Zev, best of the American three-year-olds in 1923, won the Kings county handicap with ease over a distance of 1 1-16 miles, at the unprofitable odds of 1 to 6.

It was Zev's second start of the Jamaica meeting which is the opening meet of the Metropolitan season. Last week he was beaten by St. James in the Paumonok stakes but the race was only a sprint and Zev had to carry 130 pounds. Over the longer distance today Zev's stamina counted and he had no great trouble leading his stablemate, Mad Play, across the line. Sunsini, a four-year-old gelding owned by W. S. Kilmer, the owner of Exterminator, was third.

'Colonel Gilmore' Shows Fast Time

Louisville, Ky., May 3.—Colonel Gilmore, in a workout at Churchill Downs today, ran a mile in 1:41 2-5, the fastest time for the distance of any pre-Kentucky derby trial for the season. It was one-fifth of a second faster than the best previous trial made by Wise Counsellor.

King Corbin II and Bourbon Boy, Peter Coyne's derby eligibles, worked a mile in 1:42 2-5.

HIGH SCHOOL RELAY RECORD ESTABLISHED

Madison, Wis., May 3.—A new national high school relay record was established today by Washington High school, Cedar Rapids, Iowa, in the quarter-mile relay event of the first annual University of Wisconsin interscholastic relay meet.

The Iowa school lowered the mark it set at the Drake races in the quarter-mile relay from 45 3-5 seconds to 44 8-10 seconds.

Amateur Federation Plans First Annual Track Meet

The Atlanta District Amateur Athletic Federation will hold its first annual field day meet Saturday afternoon, May 10, at Piedmont park. The committee working on the plans for the meet which will be both swimming and track events, announce that everything is in readiness and that all entries are urged to communicate with I. C. Methaney at the Y. M. C. A. before Monday night as all entries will close at 6 o'clock.

Entry blanks were mailed out early last week and a good number of entries have been made at the Y. M. C. A. headquarters. Those in charge of the events are Dr. J. B. Crenshaw, of Georgia Tech; Steve Styron, of the Epworth League union, and I. C. Methaney, physical director of the Y. M. C. A.

The entries will be divided into five separate divisions.

The events for the boys in division A, 81 to 95 pounds, 50-yard dash, 75-yard dash and standing broad jump.

Division B, 96 to 110 pounds, 50 and 75-yard dashes, standing and running broad jumps.

Division C, 111 to 125 pounds, 75 and 100-yard dashes, running broad jump and running high jump.

Division D, 126 to 135 pounds, 75 and 100-yard dashes, running high jump and running broad jump.

The open events will be as follows: 100-yard dash, 220-yard dash, 440 yard dash, 880-yard dash, running high jump, running broad jump, pole vault, discus throw and 12-pound shot put.

Another feature of the track events will be the relays, a relay for each division will be run.

Only members of the organizations holding membership in the Federation are eligible for entrants, for both the swimming and track events.

The swimming events for men are as follows: 50, 100, 200 and 440-yard, free-style dashes; 100-yard-broad and 100-yard back-stroke races and fancy diving.

Events for girls and women for the track and field will be held.

Tilden Winner Of Tennis Title

Philadelphia, May 3.—William T. Tilden II., national singles tennis champion, won the middle Atlantic states clay court singles title today by defeating Manual Alonzo, Spanish Davis cup star, 3-6, 6-2, 5-7, 6-4, 6-4.

R. Norris Williams, of Philadelphia, and Samuel Hardy, of New York, won the middle Atlantic states clay court doubles tennis title by defeating William T. Tilden II., and Samuel Weiner, of Philadelphia, his youthful protege, 2-6, 6-3, 6-2, 12-10.

Jack To Suspend Work in Movies

Los Angeles, Cal., May 3.—Jack Dempsey, heavyweight boxer, is preparing to suspend his motion picture work following his conditional acceptance of Tex Rickard's offer to meet Harry Wills, the negro fighter in a Jersey City bout next September. Jack Kearns, the champion's manager, announced Dempsey's picture work would stop while the fight negotiations are being perfected.

Penn Is Barely Winner of Meet

New Haven, Conn., May 3.—University of Pennsylvania, by strength in field events, in ability of Rose, her entrant in the broad jump, to do half an inch better than Cummings, of Yale, after a four-man tie in the pole vault at 12 feet, 6 inches, won the triangular meet with Yale and Dartmouth with 55 1-2 points, this afternoon. Yale was a close second with 55 1-4 points, and Dartmouth third, with 24 1-4 points.

The athletes from New Hampshire were left behind quickly after the track events had been settled, but they were good contenders on the cinders, taking 21 points as against 22 for Pennsylvania, and 22 which fell to Yale. In the field events, however, Pensylvania was the strongest, taking 33 1-2 points to 26 1-4 by Yale while Dartmouth just nosed in on two events which added 2 1-4 points to her previous figures.

In the track events Yale and Pennsylvania each took three firsts and Dartmouth took two and in the field Pennsylvania took four firsts, Yale one, and two—the high jump and pole vault—required a division of points.

LOOKING FOR CLOSE RACE IN 100-YD.

BY HOWARD E. PILL.

Montgomery, Ala., May 1.—Track experts through the southern conference are predicting a merry battle in 100-yard dash when the crack sprinters of 18 Dixie colleges gather at Cramton bowl here on May 9 and 10. Practically every school in the group is boasting an entry in this event who has shown class in former performances.

Chandler, chunky speedster of Clemson, copped the century in the 1923 meet here, stepping the distance in exactly 10 flat. Critics have agreed that with the classy competition in the south this year this mark will be lowered providing weather conditions are favorable.

Chandler will return this year in an effort to hang on to his title of 1923. His chief competitors are expected to be: Pepper, of Mississippi A. and M.; Minor, of Sewanee; Brown, of Tulane; Nelson, of Auburn; Hussey, of Alabama; Tracy, of Kentucky; Cleckley, of Georgia, and Roundtree, of Vanderbilt.

Pepper, of the Mississippi Aggies, and Minor, of Sewanee, staged a beautiful battle in the hundred at the recent Georgia Tech relay games, this pair finishing in practically a dead heat with Berryman, of Centre. Berryman, who was awarded first place after considerable discussion by the judges, was clocked by three watches in 9 4-5. Both Pepper and Minor showed worlds of class and will be closely watched here next week.

Brown, of Tulane, noted football star, was timed in 10 flat recently in a dual meet with Alabama. Hussey, Crimson sprinter, copped second honors at this meet. Cleckley, of Georgia, and Nelson, of Auburn, had a neck and neck affair in the century sprint at the Auburn-Georgia dual affair a week or so ago.

A corps of men has been busy at Cramton bowl this week putting the fast cinder oval in shape for the two-day carnival next week. Jumping pits and runways have been laid out and work has already begun on these details.

Paddock Fails To Break Mark

Seattle, Wash., May 3.—Charles Paddock, "world's fastest human," failed today in the fifth annual Washington relay carnival here to break the world record in the 100-yard dash. He ran the event in 10 1-10 seconds.

Olympics To Open Today In Paris

Paris, May 3.—After solemn ceremonies, almost as sombre as the funeral flub-dub attending the obsequies of a grand duke, the plunk of a boot against a football will resound through the Olympic stadium Sunday afternoon, and the summer section of the great international athletic tournament will be on. The king and queen of Rumania will be the principal guests of honor on Sunday because the Rumanian rugby team will be meeting the French team in the first of the matches. The American team, which won the Olympic championship four years ago, will be seated in positions of honor also, being the defending champions.

Strangely, Great Britain, the native home of Rugby football, will have no team in the Olympic matches this year. The field is reduced to the three already mentioned, Rumania, France and the United States. Rumania has captured the middle European championship and will therefore represent a wide territory, but it is expected that France and the United States will fight it out for the championship in the challenge match.

While it is conceded that the Americans are physically better than the Frenchmen and that the Americans are better tacklers and faster players on their feet, French experts feel that the Americans are handicapped by their adherance to the so-called New Zealand style of formation.

The French are amazed at the sincerity with which the Americans train. They do not smoke or drink and they are in the hay every night at 10:30, while the French and Rumanian players train as they please.

The track in the stadium, for the major part of the games, was completed Friday and representatives of foreign nations here pronounced it as being almost perfect.

Paris is already well filled with visitors, although the big track and field games do not start until July. Many of the hotels are now crowded and reservations are being refused for the period during the major part of the games.

The French Olympic committee is perplexed over the demand made in the press that Mlle. Suzanne Lenglen, world's tennis champion, be selected to take the oath for the French athletes when the teams are sworn in during the ceremonies that will open the stadium for the big games in July.

Chacolet Wins Pimlico Feature

Baltimore, May 3.—Before a crowd of 20,000 persons, Chacolet, owned by Hal Price Headley and ridden by Jockey Garner, won the rich Dixie stakes, the $25,000 feature of the card at Pimlico this afternoon. J. S. Cosden's Martingale, C. Krummer riding, was second and Revenue Agent, the property of G. A. Cochran, with Hastings up, ran third. The time for the mile and three-sixteenths for three-year olds and up, was 1:59 1-5.

Flint Stone, well played in the race, broke his leg at the head of the stretch and had to be destroyed.

Martingale made all the pace and only succumbed in the last few strides. Chacolet came from the rear under a powerful ride to win by a head, Martingale second, a neck in front of Revenue Agent.

Hastings, on Revenue Agent, claimed a foul against Martingale but it was not allowed.

Bill McCabe Is Put Out of Contest

New Orleans, La., May 3.—(Special.) — Atlanta's Crackers were dusted off 4 to 3 yesterday afternoon at Heinemann park but not without a struggle. Jack Hollingsworth, after breezing along for seven innings found himself called upon to weather a terrific storm in the eighth.

The storm abated only when Centerfielder McCabe of the Crackers, and Manager Bert Niehoff were led off the field by the gendarmes.

Umpire Campbell, who was umpiring the bases, could join Hollingsworth and the rest of the Pelicans in attesting, the Crackers are a fighting set of gents.

Because when McCabe was called out at second in the eighth, when he was trying to steal the keystone, "Mac" switched the Cracker attack from Hollingsworth to Campbell.

Jumping up from beneath the none-too-sylphlike form of "Dutch" Hoffman, who had rudely dug the rutabaga into Mac's shins for the second out, McCabe rushed at the umpire.

"I'm not out," yelled McCabe, thrusting his face within an inch of the umpire's determined and relentless visage.

"You are out," yelled Campbell, sticking his chin out.

"I ain't." "You are." "I ain't." "You are." "You're a liar." "I ain't." "You are." "I ain't." were the heated ejaculations snapped out within a second's time as they stood, chin to chin.

Bill Hits Ump.

McCabe ran out of conversation and breath and, seeing the umpire had it on him in the natural gas department he pushed a wicked left hand under Campbell's throat and hurled him back. Campbell waded in for more.

McCabe pushed another left to throat. Campbell counters with left push to chest. (They were fighting a la Harry Greb—not really hitting at each other, just pushing.)

"Dutch" Hoffman, who was trying to act as referee, separated the men, but Campbell got in the last push and McCabe got his Irish up.

He broke away and carried the battle to Campbell, scoring with a couple of more pushes. Campbell puts his dukes up and was prepared to repel more shoves, but McCabe, forgetting it was a pushing contest, lands a nasty left hook to the chin, rocking Campbell. He was following up his opportunity when the police stopped it. McCabe's round.

Bert Niehoff, all dolled up in a straw kady and in citizens clothes, dashed out on the field. He made himself obnoxious and was ordered from the lists. The police escorted McCabe out of the arena and shooed Niehoff into the boxes. Brock, who had hit for Dumont, played in centerfield and McLughiln faced the Pelicans in the eighth inning.

Dumont had hurled wild, but baffling ball all the while he was on the mound. But his own wildness in the third inning let in two runs and "Red" Smith's semi-professional third-basing in the fifth let in two more and that found George on the nil side of a 4 to 0 count when the seventh inning was over.

Crackers Score Three.

Hollingsworth had been going along steadily, helped out of a hole once by a brilliant stop by Jackson, but keeping the Crackers at bay for the most part and apparently having the game tucked away when he started the eighth by walking Haworth. Brock, hitting for Dumont, lashed a clean single to left and Zoellers, after much argument and fussing and fuming with Umpire Pigue over balls and strikes, singled to right, Haworth being held at third. The bases were full and both Gene Caldera and "Pug" Cavet were warming up.

McCabe, next up, shot a hot grounder to Jackson, who made a fine stop but a bad throw to Hoffman at second. Haworth had scored on the grounder and Brock tallied on the bad throw, Zoellers going all the way to third. Burrus drove a fly to center, Zoellers scoring on the catch. McCabe then became covetous of second base, but was shiped by Bob Dowie.

The Crackers gave Hollingsworth and the fans a little thrill in the ninth, but it amounted to naught. With two out Krehmyer walked and stole second, but Haworth's fly into short center was was gathered in by Maury Schick on the dead run and the day was won.

New Haven, Conn., May 3.—Pennsylvania won the triangular field and track meet with Yale and Dartmouth this afternoon by a quarter of a point. The final score was: Pennsylvania 55 1-2 points; Yale, 55 1-4; Dartmouth, 24 1-4.

CRACKERS TO RETURN MONDAY FOR TWO-WEEKS STAY

Birmingham and Nashville Will Furnish Opposition During the Coming Week

Manager Bert Niehoff and his Cracker ball team will return to Spiller field Monday afternoon and immediately start a series of games that will last two weeks, before hitting the road again. In the coming two weeks' home stay the Crackers will play Birmingham three games, Nashville three, Memphis three and Little Rock three. There will be an intermission next Sunday with an off day.

The games during the past week have been very satisfactory considering the conditions under which the games were played and it must also be taken into consideration that the Crackers were playing in two towns where rivalry is the keynote whenever an Atlanta baseball team is around.

During the past week the Crackers have won two games and lost two, which is not a bad record for being on the road. The hitting of the team has picked up considerably and those players that were around the bottom of the list in hitting have shown a spurt and as a result more runs than usual have been shoved across the plate.

McCabe, who seemed to be in a slump in batting, has recovered his eye and his average has been raised from the .170 mark to around .300 in two weeks, which is not bad hitting for Southern league baseball. During the past three days McCabe has hit at a terrific clip and when he returns to Spiller field he should be ready to give the fans some good hitting.

Benny Karr, Ray Francis, George Dumont and Hollis McLaughlin seem to be the best pitchers that Bert Niehoff can depend upon. Benny was handled rather roughly last Sunday afternoon in Mobile but managed to keep the opposition well in hand desite the 15 safeties that were secured off his delivery. He came back with a 11 to 3 victory Friday afternoon against the Pels and thus broke even in the number of games won and lost for the week.

Francis Pitches Well.

Francis got away with a beautiful 11-inning game last Tuesday afternoon against the Bears and should go good this week.

The early sporting predictions in the Southern race seem to have been greatly exaggerated and now the weaklings have soared to respected heights. Memphis and Little Rock, two of the dark horses, will appear here and Atlanta fans will have an opportunity of witnessing them in action on Spiller field during the coming home stay.

The opposition that the Crackers encountered this week are no weaklings by any means, for it must be taken into consideration that the Barons, who are here Monday afternoon, recently bumped the New Orleans Pels off in the best three out of four games and then ran roughshod over the Mobile Bears all in the same week.

Any team that can take the measure of both New Orleans and Mobile in the same week will bear close inspection.

Nashville will afford plenty of action for the Crackers Thursday, Friday and Saturday with a handful of real good baseball players. Dode Paskert, a Cracker of many years ago, will make his first Southern league appearance here this season next Thursday afternoon as a member of Jimmy Hamilton's Nashville Volunteers.

NATIONAL LEAGUE

Pittsburg, May 3.—Pittsburg made a clean sweep of the series by defeating St. Louis 6 to 5 today. Manager McKeechnie used three pitchers, while Stuart went the entire route for the Cardinals. Rain fell during half of the game, making the ball too wet for fast handling.

NORTON ENTERS MEET TO BE HELD IN JULY

St. Louis, May 3.—Brian I. C. Norton, international tennis star, has entered the singles and doubles of the national clay court tennis tournament here the week of July 7, it was announced tonight. He has not named his partner.

The former South African, in addition to holding the doubles championship of the United States with William T. Tilden, of Philadelphia, is ranked number 8 in the United States player list.

Reds Are Winners.

Chicago, May 3.—Cincinnati bunched hits behind Chicago's errors and easily won the final game of the series today, 7 to 3. Pete Donohue pitched a steady game, tightening up in the pinches. Daubert led the attack for the visitors with four hits, one a double, and a walk in five trips to the plate.

Herring Meets Mason Monday

Columbus, Ga., May 3.—Fight fans of this section will turn out in numbers to see Harry Mason, European lightweight, and Red Herring, Birmingham, southern lightweight championship claimant, battle here on the evening of May 5.

Mason was expected to arrive in the United States this week and in Columbus in time for several days' work, it is announced. Herring has been here for the past week, working out daily and is said to be in fine form.

AMERICAN LEAGUE

Sox Hammer Out Win.

Philadelphia, May 3.—The Boston Red Sox hammered out a 9 to 6 victory over the Philadelphia Athletics today. Pinch hitters were numerous. Boston added five runs to their total in the ninth and then stopped the Mackmen's savage attack after they had scored three runs. Amos Strunk celebrated his return to the Athletics by pinch hitting in the seventh and getting a single.

Memphis Wins Another.

Memphis, Tenn., May 3.—Memphis ran its string of consecutive victories to ten today by defeating Chattanooga, 6 to 3. Today's victory for the Chickasaws while Atlanta was losing to New Orleans increased the Memphis lead at the top of the list in the pennant race to three games. Opportune hitting of two Chattanooga pitchers gave Memphis today's game.

Petrels Rally To Take Final Game from Georgia

Oglethorpe Batters Have Little Trouble During Pantone's Time on Mound

BY DELACEY ALLEN.

Athens, Ga., May 3.—(Special.)—Some wise old philosopher said "it's a long lane that has no turning," and the game between Georgia and Oglethorpe today bore mute evidence of the fact that it was an authentic statement. The lane almost turned yesterday but luck and determination kept it straight, by an eighth inning rally, so the Petrels evidently determined not to give Dame Fortune another such chance today, and started off with a drive in the first two innings that won them the game, the score being 8 to 1.

Partridge and Maurer were safe in the first inning by errors. Pantone, pitching for Georgia, struck Bryant out, but Parrish hit a high fly over second scoring both runners, when the ball fell safely. Morris then singled scoring Parrish for their third run of the inning. Morris was thrown out at second and Barbee ended the inning by striking valiantly at three of Pantone's curves.

Kemp opened up the second inning with a triple to left and scored on Wall's single. Willis then struck out, but Partridge, who has developed into a real second baseman, followed with another triple. Maurer was safe on an error, and then Bryant, Parrish and Morris singled in succession, driving in a total of five runs. At this juncture of the game Coach White replaced Pantone with Chambers, who held the Petrels scoreless for the remainder of the game.

Willis Plays Well.

Lefty Willis, a portside underhanded flinger, accomplished the feat today that the Petrels have been striving for since they actively entered into college athletics, namely winning a game from the Bulldogs. He pitched a masterful game throughout and deserves a great deal of credit for this game being added up on the right side of their column. However, his teammates accorded him almost perfect support and played with the determination of taking any chance in order to win.

Cliff Pantone wasn't right today after his two hard games on the northern trip and that in part accounts for the Petrels' heavy scoring. "Panny" held Virginia for nine innings without an earned run, and only allowed one of the same order to Yale, but the strain, considering the weather conditions under which he had worked, must have weakened him considerably. Chambers pitched brilliant ball for the time he was in the box and showed more stuff than he has heretofore displayed this season.

Virginia comes to Georgia Monday for the rub game of the series, both teams having won one each from the other. Maphis will probably work for them with either Chambers or Sale in the box for Georgia.

Boys and Girls in Keds Meet at Spiller's

1,000 BOYS AND GIRLS TAKE PART IN KEDS FIELD EVENTS

Something like 1,000 kids, ranging in age from eight to eighteen, cavorted all over Spiller Field Saturday afternoon in the first big Keds field and track meet ever held in Atlanta. The affair was staged by The United States Tire and Rubber company.

In fact, there were so many kids on hand for the event that one additional event had to be created to take care of the overflow that wasn't qualified for events already scheduled.

The whole affair was directed by "Red" Barron, former Georgia Tech football, baseball and track star. Prizes in the shape of gold watches, radio receiving sets, cameras, roller skates, and baseballs, bats and gloves were awarded winners.

After all the events had been run off before the crowd that occupied the stands several scores of girls under 12 years old were left who hadn't had a chance at the bacon, so the extra event, a 50-yard dash for girls under 12 years was started. The prize for this event will be announced Monday.

The whole thing was so successful that the United States Tire and Rubber company is planning on a similar meet next year. The only requirement for contesting was that the applicant have on a pair of Keds, sports shoes manufactured by the company sponsoring the meet.

Summaries of Meet.

40-Yard Dash for Boys, 8-10: Roy Thompson, one-tube radio set.

Running Broad Jump for Boys, 17-18: W. Lighton, gold watch.

GA. TECH WINS SWIMMING MEET

Charleston, S. C., May 3.—Georgia Tech easily won a triangular swimming meet with the College of Charleston and The Citadel here tonight with 57 points. The College of Charleston was second with 18 points and the Citadel third with 13 points.

Hollingsworth and Meyers, both of Georgia Tech, tied for first place in individual point scoring with ten points each.

Spartans Win In Eighth.

Greenville, S. C., May 3.—Spartanburg scored ten runs in the eighth inning, four of which counted on Hines' home run, to beat Greenville, 14 to 11, in a free hitting and erratic contest this afternoon. The Spinners attempted a rally in their half of the eighth and shoved across three on Beck's home run. Wertz was given poor support and the side should have been retired in the eighth with no runs but for errors which prolonged Spartanburg's chances and they took advantage of it with terrific hitting and racing on Greenville's costly miscues.

Macon Loses Another.

Charlotte, N. C., May 3.—Charlotte took the deciding game of the series from Macon today by a score of 14 to 7. Hard hitting by the locals in the fifth and the wildness of Gallagher in the first innings gave the locals the game.

Manager Kennedy had to shelve two pitchers and bring in Wright to prevent the Peaches from tieing up the ball game and winning when they suddenly developed a vicious batting attack.

Tygers' Winning Streak Broken.

Asheville, N. C., May 3.—Augusta's winning streak received a hard jolt here today when the Tourists pounded Harry Smythe for three hits and three runs in the seventh inning, which gave them a commanding lead, while Sam Gibson, pitching a faultless brand of baseball, held the visitors to four hits, one of which was a home run and the Higginsmen copped the last game of the series, 5 to 2.

It was the Tygers' first loss in 12 starts, but a well-earned one for the Tourists. Brilliant fielding on the part of both teams on hits which would have gone for extra base hits kept the spectators, who turned out for the first Saturday game, keyed up to a high pitch of excitement. Brummitt, the Tourists' center fielder, speared two long flies which would have been three-base hits.

Montgomery, Ala., May 3.—(Special.)—The Mississippi A & M. Maroons added another conference scalp to their rapidly growing total at Cramton bowl Saturday afternoon, walloping the Auburn Tigers, 4 to 0. The contest was one of the fastest played in the local stadium this season, requiring just a bit over an hour and a half.

Flinger Austin, of the Aggies, kept the Plainsmen well in hand during the nine frames and only once did the Orange and Blue threaten to do any material damage. A beautiful throw by Turner from right field cut off Ed Allen at the plate in the eighth, this being the lone Tiger flurry.

Auburn managed to get runners on the paths in every frame save two. But more than half the Tiger bingles off Austin came with two men down, only two Plainsmen reaching third during the skirmish. Ed Allen, Auburn center fielder, rapped out three singles in four tries to lead the Tiger batting order, while Davis was the only other member of the outfit to get more than one.

Scores in First.

A. & M. put over its first tally in the initial session, counting on Myers' single, a walk, infield out and Turner's sacrifice fly. Myers' second bingle, Amsler's double and Turner's rimely blow put over two more in the third. Myers clouted safely again in the fifth, continued to second when Market juggled the pellet, moved up on Hopper's short safety and chalked up on Turner's second sacrifice fly to Market. This ended the scoring for the afternoon.

Myers and Hopper each collected three wallops and every man in the Aggie batting order hit safely once except Howell. Myers fielded sensationally at short, while Turner's pegging in right caught a man each at second and home. Howell, at second, did not get a fielding chance during the entire game.

New York, May 3—Suggesting that the spirit of the player-writer resolution has been misinterpreted by the so-called insurgent element of the United States Lawn Tennis association, four former presidents of the U. S. L. T. A. have written to President George Wightman, of Boston, in defense of the ruling.

The writers of the letter, Henry W. Slocum, George T. Adee, Julian S. Myrick and Dwight F. Davis, assert that they believe "the vital principle at stake has been lost sight of in the maze of personalities" and contend that when this principle is understood by the public, criticism will cease.

The letter in part follows:

"We notice with much regret the personal turn taken in the public discussion of the so-called player-writer resolution which was adopted by the United States Lawn Tennis association at its last annual meeting, the enforcement of which is not to take place until January 1, 1926. The enforcement date was set in fairness to the players who had previously made contracts to write tennis articles in 1924 and to give them the opportunity to make other arrangements as to their livelihood in the event of their being affected by this resolution.

"In the criticism of the association's position on this question it seems to us that the vital principle at stake has been lost sight of in the maze of personalities. The policy of the association has been, and we trust always will be, that tennis must be kept an amateur game.

Claims They Are Right.

"By the adoption of the player-writer resolution, the association is enforcing the underlying and foundation principle of amateur sport; that no amateur shall be permitted to make a sport of his business or to make a livelihood out of the game.

"Can you visualize acclaiming our national champions of the future in the knowledge that whether they have been tennis writers or not, the winning championship means for them an easily made income of from $5,000 to $10,000, or possibly $15,000 a year, if they are willing to accept it? This income depends but little on their literary ability; it is merely the money value for publicity purposes of their names at the head of a newspaper column. To a corresponding degree, the same thing will be true of less important titles and tournaments.

"We feel sure that so soon as the tennis public understands the principle involved, you will receive the unqualified approval from the public at large which the tennis membership in our clubs already has given you by an overwhelming majority.

"Tennis must always be kept an amateur sport and we pledge you and your administration our loyal support in your efforts to carry on the policies and traditions which have made the game great."

NAVY TRACK ATHLETES BEAT JOHNS HOPKINS

Annapolis, Md., May 3.—Midshipmen field and track athletes outclassed the representatives of University of Pittsburg and Johns Hopkins university in a triangular meet here today, the Middies amassing a total of 64 1-2 points against 32 1-2 for Pittsburg and 29 for Hopkins.

A surprising feature of the meet was the defeat of Booth, Hopkins crack miler. He was outdistanced by Shepherd, of Navy.

Killinger's Crew Jumps On Allison in the Early Frames And Piles Up Big Lead

State College, Pa., May 3.—Jumping on Allison's southpaw slants in the early innings and piling up a commanding lead, Penn State made a clean sweep of the Georgia Tech series today by blanking the southerners 6 to 0 in a game that was frequently interrupted by showers.

Harrelson hurled masterly ball for the Nittany Lions and was given great support by his mates. Kahn, who replaced Allison in the third, also pitched well for Tech and deserved a better fate.

Hosts of fathers of Penn State students, here for the annual fathers' day celebration, were driven to cover by a heavy rain in the third inning, when the game was delayed for almost an hour. There was no more scoring when play was resumed, both pitchers having the game well in hand.

Aside from a tendency to wildness, Harrelson was complete master of the situation, fanning eight of the visitors, but walking seven. Although Tech registered six hits, three of them by Wycoff, only two men reached third during the contest and one of those was advanced when Harrelson purposely passed Jennings in the second inning to load the bases and then fanned Allison for the third out.

Mahoney singled in the first, and Palm and Loeffler drew walks. McVicker's timely single scored two, but Loeffler was thrown out at third. In the second Mairs walked but was forced by Kerstetter. Harrelson drew a pass and after Reed flied out, Mahoney was safe on Baum's error, filling the bags. Mike Palm's two-bagger cleaned them, three runs scoring.

Scores on Yeoman's Error.

McVicker went all the way around in the third when his single went through Yeoman to the football stands. This was the only run off Kahn.

Two fast double plays, Baum to Wycoff and Reed to Slattery, were the fielding features. "Doug" Wycoff was the only visitor who could fathom Harrelson's twisters, the big boy getting three singles and a walk out of five trips to the plate. Jennings' double with two out in the eighth went for nought when Harrelson fanned Kahn. Dennick played a fine game in the field for Tech.

Thirty-One Cars Entered in Race

Indianapolis, Ind., May 3.—Thirty-one cars are officially entered in the twelfth international 500-mile automobile race to be held at the Indianapolis motor speedway, May 30, it was announced today. Entries closed at midnight, May 1.

For the first time in several years no foreign machine will be brought to this country for the contest. A German car, re-designed and made faster by American engineers, has been entered.

America's greatest automobile drivers will have mounts. Among the veterans who will participate in the race are Eddie Hearne, 1923 A. A. A. driving champion; Tommy Milton, winner of last year's 500-mile event; Cliff Durant, Harry Hartz, Jimmy Murphy, Harlan Fengler, Ira Vail and Joe Boyer.

Make Poor Showing.

Rome, May 3.—The Italian Olympic tennis team made a poor start in the international match against Germany, winning only one of four singles events today.

ROBERTSON GIVES VIEWS ON U. S. OLYMPIC CHANCES

Coach of Team Believes That American Stars Will Be Victorious at Paris

BY ROBERT EDGREN.

Lawson Robertson, American Olympic team track coach, stood on Franklin Field, Philadelphia, watching the work of a couple of hundred sprinters, middle and long distance runners. There were a few visitors but most of the men were Pennsylvania team candidates.

Robertson, who is a tall fellow, has a habit of dropping his head forward as if looking at the ground, seemingly indifferent to everything going on around him. But while his head bobs down his eyes, rolled upward and peering through heavy eyebrows, miss absolutely nothing. No lifted heel or slighted knee action escaped his notice.

"What are our chances in the Olympic games this year?"

Sometimes Lawson is diplomatic, even evasive, in a Scotch way. But not this time.

"We will win at Paris," he said positively. "We will have a team at least as strong in average scoring strength through the progtam of events as any we ever had. In some events we will be stronger than ever before.

Robertson an Athlete of Yore.

"The only thing that may cut into our points in the greater strength of European teams. Every country competing is likely to have much better athletes than ever before, and we are going to be up against a lot of hard competition. Especially from Finland. Those Finns are corking athletes. They're going to give us our heaviest rivalry in the field events, where they may about break even with us. They have some wonderful runners too—Nurmi, for instance, who has broken the world's records for a mile and some of the metric distances. But I think it is in the field events they shine most. They are big, lean, powerful men, born athletes. They don't have many luxuries in Finland, and they're hard and full of endurance. They're all-around athletes—most of them."

If anyone should know all about all around athletes Lawson Robertson is the man. I used to compete with Lawson when he was an amateur and saw him in perhaps a hundred contests. He was a pal of Martin Sheridan, Harry Hillman, Harvey Cohn, Paul Pilgrim, Ray Ewry, Jack Eller, John Flanagan and all that bunch of great old timers who used to mop up Olympic points. Lawson's favorite event was the hundred yard dash. He won his place on the Olympic team that went to Athens in 1906 by beating Jimmy Rector, of New Orleans, in the hundred at the tryouts, running in 10 seconds flat. But he could do a score of athletic feats: anything from picking up seven billiard balls with one hand to copping a standing high jump. In the Athens Olympics Robertson was second to Ewry in the high jump and placed in the standing broad jump, although these were events he added to his list while on the trip. He could throw a discus, put a shot, high jump, run hurdles, or shoot kelly pool. Anything that required strength or speed or skill was his dish.

European Governments Foster Sport.

"Before the last Olympics," Lawson explained, returning to the Finns, "Finland sent a special commission over here to study our training methods and get some of the fine points of the American way of doing things. They went back after traveling over the United States full of new ideas. The result was that the Finn shot putter, pole vaulters, jumpers, discus throwers and runners had all the best points of our style, developed here, and some corking good ideas of their own that put their men right up among the champions and record breakers.

"Other countries sent men over to compete, or study American methods. We were ahead of the rest of the world, and they knew it and were willing to learn. Even England, the home of athletic sports, picked up something from us. They are beginning to develop good weight throwers and field event men this year, though they never had any before without depending on the Irish and an occasional stray Scotchman. Sweden learned American stuff through Ernie Hjertberg, and sent some men here to study sports. Other countries have had American coaches.

"This year Sweden, France, England, Finland, Belgium and Italy will be especially active. They are ahead of us in one thing. Their athletic sports are being fostered by their governments. Active government support in European countries will account for increased strength in competition we'll have to meet in Paris.

Nurmi Shortening Distance.

"There isn't much use in talking about individual athletes," said Lawson. "Every week now is likely to bring out stars we never heard of before. When the tryouts are over and our team selections made the athletic map may be all changed. Some men we're sure of today will drop out, and men we haven't counted on at all will have earned places. But there's one event that I think will be a real feature of the meet. That's the fifteen hundred metre race, in which Nurmi, the Finn who broke the mile record last fall, will be opposed by Joie Ray, our best middle distance man so far this year. Nurmi is one of the greatest runners I've ever seen, but I think Joie will beat him. The Finn may be faster. He has run faster than Ray ever ran. But the Finn is a runner and Ray is a runner and a racer. Ray is training for that one race. He has all the experience in the world, in a judge of pace, knows when to go out. He has racing judgment. And he's absolutely game. Both men in perfect condition, I think Ray can beat Nurmi.

"Why don't we win more long distance events?" Lawson was asked.

"We don't try to," shot back the coach. "American runners soon find out that they can get more glory with less strain in the shorter races. Many of our mile runners started out to run five or ten miles. Ray started as a five mile runner and gradually dropped back to shorter distances. He could run more races if they were shorter, and he had the speed as well as the endurance. Nurmi, of Finland, is learning the same thing. He is cutting down his distances. The Finns seem to be something like the Americans in temperament. Americans want quick action.

They don't have the patience to jog all day—unless it's something very much worth while like the Marathon race. Of course there are exceptions—I'm just talking about the majority of athletes. Sprinting has always been popular in this country, and look at the number of men we have this year who can run under ten seconds every time out. There's Paddock, with a dozen others close on his heels and hot to beat his records. If Paddock has taken good care of himself, I don't see any reason why he shouldn't be as fast as ever, and I think he has.

Not So Big in the East.

"France had good long distance men last time. They'll have some good distance men at Paris. Long distance running is a favorite sport in France. Funny, the French have always been regarded as quick and volatile, but here we find them at their best in the long grinds. In the war they discovered they had astonishing endurance, so after the war they began to use that stamina and develop distance runners.

"There are exceptions, of course," he said, "but in the events that combine greatest speed with strength—like the field events—most of our best men will come from the Pacific coast, from Washington to southern California. Climate may have something to do with it, but mostly it's because there we have the purest American strain. Men grow big out there. They're long armed and long legged and husky like men from some of the New England states—natural athletes."

Lawson lowered his voice to a whisper and put on the funny smile he wears when about to pull some comical remark—he's good deal of a comedian at times.

"Here in the east—in the big cities—" he said, "some of the short-legged European stock is mixing in with the race. It's affecting athletics."

Lawson wore his serious Scotch expression now. When he puts that on there's no telling whether he's joking or not. There may be something it it, at that.

TICKETS ON SALE FOR FIGHT

In spite of the fact that prices for the seats to the Young Stribling-Dan O'Dowd fight at the city auditorium on May 20 have been boosted, orders for reservations have been coming in to the offices of the Southern Athletic club headquarters at the Kimball House.

In explaining the boost of prices, H. J. Gewinner, matchmaker for the club, stated that an all-star card is being arranged with Stribling as the headliner. Two ten-round bouts between well-known fighters and a good preliminary is in the making and there is no doubt but what fans will get their money's worth.

Just who will make up the remainder of the card is not certain at the present but Gewinner is working hard on the arrangements.

A new seating arrangement in the auditorium has been worked out where more people than ever before can be taken care of. This will allow many of the fans who were turned away at the last fight a chance to see Stribling in action.

11 NEW MARKS SET IN "Y" MEET

During the fourth annual indoor boys' championship track and field meet of the Central Y. M. C. A. held Saturday morning, 11 former local records were knocked silly by the marks made by the contestants.

In the Junior A division, Lewis Connally, winning four events, smashed two former records, one in the 75-yard dash and another in the snap for distance. Connally beat the 75-yard time of 12 seconds by slipping 1-5 from it and in the snap for distance, beat the former record of 3 feet 9 1-2 inches by making 4 feet 6 inches. Connally, by his fine performance, scored a total of 20 points and was high man for the meet. He holds the title of junior champion for this year.

In the Junior B division, Tom Reeder won first place in three events, breaking three former records, the 75-yard dash mark of 11 seconds in making it in 10 4-5 seconds. In the 100-yard dash he clipped 1-5 from the former record and in the snap for distance, made 6 feet 5 1-4 inches against the record of 5 feet 11 1-2 inches. Tom Reeder was only two points under Connally, making a total of 18 points.

Four records were broken in the Junior C division, Howard Williams making the 75-yard dash in 10 3-5 seconds as compared to the former record of 11 2-5 seconds. Roy Tinsley sent two former records flying when he did the snap for distance for 7 feet 10 inches, the former record being 4 feet 10 inches, and in the standing broad jump made 8 feet 3 inches against 7 feet 11 inches. Charles Bawsell joined the record throng when he did the 2 pot. race in 9 4-5 seconds, against 11 seconds of last year. Howard Williams tied for second place in the meet, scoring 18 points along with Tom Reeder.

Summary of Events.

Junior C Division—

Fifty-yard dash, H. Williams, J. Shearer, R. Tinsley and J. Turman tied for third. Time 7 1-5 seconds. 75-yard dash, H. Williams, J. Turman, C. Krame; time, 10.3 seconds. 100-yard dash, C. Bawsell, H. Williams, J. Shearer; time 14 seconds. 220-yard dash, H. Williams, J. Shearer, C. Bawsell; time .33 seconds. Standing broad jump, R. Tinsley, J. Turman, J. Shearer, distance 8 feet 3 inches. Snap for distance, R. Tinsley, C. Bawsell, distance 7 feet 10 inches.

Junior B division—50-yard dash, W. Jones and F. Wilson tied for first, P. Brown, time 7.3 seconds. 75-yard dash, T. Reeder, J. Branner, J. Butler, time 10.4 seconds. 100-yard dash, T. Reeder, R. Reeves and P. Blake tied for second, time 14.2 seconds. Standing broad jump, W. Jones, P. Blake, J. Brannan and J. Butler, tied for third, distance 8 feet, 3 inches. Snap for distance, T. Reeder, F. Wilson, P. Brown, distance 6 feet 5 1-4 inches. Running high jump, H. Ragsdale, L. Moseley and R. Reeves tied for second.

Double Bill At Fort Today

Fort McPherson will be the scene of many activities during the coming week. Beginning this afternoon a double-header will be played on the Fort diamond between the Infantry nine and the Federal Prison nine starting at 1:30 o'clock, followed by an Infantry game with Oakland City team of the Spalding league.

The rest of the week will be devoted to track meets, field events, target practices, boxing and all other forms of sport for the entire company will leave within the next week or so for Camp McClellan at Anniston, Ala., for the annual summer camp.

The double-header this afternoon should be interesting and the Sunday baseball fans are invited to witness the games.

Company I will give a farewell dinner to all of the men in the company and their friends and families during the latter part of the week.

The Russian Church in America, at a convention recently held in Detroit, Mich., declared itself independent of the home church, but has also decided not to join the Protestant Episcopal church.

Many Good Games Feature Amateur Card Saturday

PERRIN LEAGUE.

The Coca Cola team won an interesting 5 to 4 game from the Atlanta Utility Works Saturday afternoon in the third round of the Atlanta amateur baseball schedule.

Both teams played hard, clean baseball and only the good pitching of Star and the pinch hitting of the Coca Cola team was responsible for the victory. The game was called in the eighth inning because of darkness.

The score:			R.	H.	E.
Atlanta Utility	100	001 02	4	7	6

Batteries: Star and Mallory; Kight and Lawrence.

Paper Company Wins.

The Atlanta Paper Company team won its third straight game in the Perrin league, defeating Whittier Mills nine by a score of 11 to 3 on the Whittier Mills diamond.

The game was featured by the pitching of McEeachen, who struck out 14 of the Whittier Mills batters. The Paper Company team scored seven runs in the third inning on bunched hits coupled with errors on the part of the Whittier Mills infielders.

Hood Team Loses.

The Atlanta Terra Cotta nine won a hitting bee from the Hood Brick Company team. The final score was 22 to 12. The features of the game were the hitting of both teams. Morgan and Peace did the heavy hitting for the winners, while Bray and Peek hit well for the losers.

"Hello Boys" Win.

The American Telephone Company won an interesting game, 12 to 11, from the Railway Mail service nine Saturday afternoon on the Fort McPherson diamond. Both teams secured a total of 12 hits each but the Railway Mail Service hitters did not take advantage of the 12 errors made by the American Telephone players. The Mail Service team had numerous opportunities to win the game but failed to take advantage of the breaks of the game.

The score:			R.	H.	E.
R. M. S.	311	130 101	11	12	3
American T.	202	160 001	12	12	12

Perrin Sunday School League.

Grant Park Methodist won a game from the Boethians Saturday afternoon at Piedmont park by a score of 4 to 3. The Boethians scored a run in each of the first three innings, and then the Grant park team settled down and played a wonderful defensive game during the remaining 6 innings.

The game was tied up in the eighth inning by Grant park and won in the ninth inning. Sawyers allowed the Boethians only four scattered hits and had good control.

The score:			R.	H.	E.
Poethians	111	000 000	3	4	2
Grant Park	011	000 011	4	8	2

Batteries: Elliott and Holbrook, Sawyers and Cash.

Inman Park Wins, 3-0.

The Loyalty class won a well played game of ball from the Inman Park Presbyterian nine Saturday afternoon by a score of 3 to 0. The game was featured by the pitching of Evans of the Loyalty Class and Turner of the losers. Evans allowed only 1 hit while his opposing moundsmen allowed only 6. The game was cut short because of the late start and could not be finished because of darkness.

Inman Park .000 000 00—0	1	0

Batteries: Evans and Reeves; Turner and White.

East Side Easy Winners.

East Side Baptists won a slow and uninteresting game of ball from the Central Baptist nine by a score of 13 to 2 Saturday afternoon on the Fulton bag diamond. The game started off as a pitchers' battle but resulted in a slow care-free game after the sixth inning.

The score by innings:	R.	H.	E.
Cen. Bap. ..000 000 002—	2	6	6
E. S. Bap. ..103 070 020—13	14	2

Capitol View Wins, 20 to 11.

Capitol View Baptist won a free hitting contest from the Moreland Avenue Baptist nine by a score of 20 to 11 in the third round of the Atlanta Amateur baseball schedule. The game was featured by the hitting of both clubs. A total of 30 hits were recorded during the game. It was very evident from the very first inning that the game was to be a hitting bee.

The score:			R.	H.	E.
C. V. B.	530	050 61x	20	17	4

Batteries: Summer, Roberts and Johnson, Olson; Sawyer, Prestley and Bobo.

ROYAL LEAGUE.

Pulling a great rally in the eighth inning, the Brown Mill team won an interesting 11 to 9 game from the College Park team Saturday afternoon on the Brown Mill diamond.

The College Park team was leading the Brown Mill nine until the eighth inning, when the Mill lads began to pound Roberts all over the diamond and when the inning was over seven runs had crossed the plate. Errors played a very important part in the victory.

Pep Class Loses 9 to 7.

Georgia Avenue Presbyterian defeated the Pep class baseball team by a score of 9 to 7 in a well-played game Saturday afternoon. The entire Georgia Avenue team played good baseball and hit in the pinches. The runs came in bunches and by timely pinch hitting. Three runs, in the first, second and seventh innings were enough to win the game.

The Pep class fought hard and came back with a rally in the ninth inning that sent three runners across the plate only to lose a chance to tie the score when the needed pinch poke was missing.

The score:			R.	H.	E.
Ga. Ave. Pres.	330	000 300	9	9	2
Pep Class	000	400 003	7	8	3

Batteries: Baker, Skinner and Logarmarsino; Irvin and Kling.

Kirkwood Wins.

Kirkwood defeated I. C. S. S., 10 to 5, in a listless game Saturday afternoon. After the first inning was over it was a question of how many runs would be made during the game but the Kirkwood team played a much better brand of defensive baseball as the game progressed.

Spalding League.

The Knights of Columbus won a close game from the Junior Chamber of Commerce yesterday by the score of 5 to 4. Brewer and Jenks knocked home runs and Maloney and Fowler each hit for three bases. Adams, pitching for the Junior Chamber, struck out 10 men and Bradley for the Knights retired 9 in the same manner.

Score by innings:	R.
Junior Chamber.... 010 201 000—	4
K. of C. ..... 020 000 30x—	5

Oakland Beats Police.

The Police Department baseball team was defeated by the Oakland City nine Saturday afternoon, 9 to 3. After the second inning there was no doubt as to the outcome of the game. The Police scored their three runs in the first two innings and in the third the Oakland boys took the lead by two runs and were never headed thereafter. Byers started for Oakland City, but when the Cops got four long hits off of him, he was relieved by Baker.

The hitting of Blodgett, H. Morris and Beasley featured. Beasley hit a long homer in the ninth and made a good catch after falling in centerfield.

Score by innings:	R.
Police ..... 120 000 000—	3
Oakland ..... 203 100 12x—	9

Batteries: Bradley, Lewis and Maddox; Byers, Baker and Morris.

Baracas Beat Steel Co.

The Gordon Street Baracas won a game from the Atlantic Steel Company at the southeast Piedmont diamond Saturday evening by the score of 8 to 3, after many curses had been heaped upon the name of the man who caused the diamond to be plowed up last fall. The ground was so rough that the players debated from 3:50 to 5 o'clock whether or not they should play the game, but Umpire Turner finally got them reconciled to playing the game, and it went off as per schedule.

Score by innings:	R.

Peachtree Road Wins.

The Peachtree Road Presbyterians won an easy game from the First Methodist team Saturday afternoon by the score of 10 to 0. The pitching of McFarland, who struck out 19 men, was a decided feature of the game. He allowed the Methodists only one hit, while his side was accumulating a total of 14 hits. The fielding of Bob McCullough and "Mac" Johnson also featured.

Can Co. Beats Ku Klux.

In a rather slow game the American Can company team evened the average of the lead held by the K. K. K. team in the Dixie league by beating them, 11 to 7. This gives the Can company 1 lost and 1 won for a percentage of .500 and the same standing holds for the Ku Kluxers. Numerous errors by K. K. K. accounted for several of the Can company runs. Donnegan pitched a good game and kept the Kluxers' hits scattered. The game was played at Camp Gordon.

F. E. F. Beats Western Electric.

The F. E. F. team won a clean victory over the Western Electric team Saturday afternoon by the score of 5 to 3. The pitching of Dickerson for the winning team was excellent and the home run knocked by Vining was one of the features. This allows the F. E. F. team to keep its standing of 1000 per cent and puts the Electrics down to second place.

Fire Fighters Win.

The Atlanta Fire Department team won its second game of the year Saturday morning, defeating the Western Union nine by a score of 13 to 10 at Piedmont park. The game was featured by the hitting and pitching of Casey of the fire department.

This is the second meeting of the two teams and both times the Fire Department nine has won by large scores.

Sunday School League.

The Sunday School league opened its third season with two good games at Piedmont park yesterday afternoon.

In the first game the Druid Hills Presbyterians won from the Druid Hills Methodists by the score of 6 to 3. Both of these teams played ball after the first inning and their friends predict that they are both going to be contenders for the pennant in this league.

In the second game the Druid Hills Baptists won from the Westminster Presbyterians in a hard-fought game that see-sawed all through the nine innings, the Baptists winning out in the ninth by the score of 7 to 5.

This game was witnessed by a large crowd of loyal rooters on both sides, who encouraged their teams to do their best to win.

City League.

President Charles A. Wickersham, of the Georgia & West Point railroad, pitched three strikes to the first batter in the opening game of the city league yesterday in the game between the Georgia & West Point and Southern Bell teams on the West Point grounds on Wylie street.

The game was won by the railroad team by the score of 12 to 1, mainly because the Bell boys were unable to reach first base.

The railroad team has been strengthened very much since last year and is going to be a factor to be considered with all year in the pennant race in this league.

The batteries were Ford and Jones for the Georgia-West Point; Hartzel and Aspinwall, for Southern Bell.

Georgia Railway Team Wins.

The Georgia Railway and Power team won their opening game in the city league, winning from the Pacesetters by the score of 5 to 0 at Piedmont park yesterday afternoon.

The Railway team appears to be as good if not better than in former years, while only one new man Chatham, an outfielder, appeared in the line-up. The other men show the benefit of playing together for several years.

The Pacesetters, however, have a very good team and will win games in the city league.

Benton, a left-hander, is a new addition to the moundsmen in Atlanta, and pitched a fine game all the way. Six errors of his teammates were responsible for the runs scored against him.

With the exception of one bad inning, it was a very interesting game from the spectator's point of view.

BY GORDON KEITH.

Preps have been very active athletically during the past week, staging or taking part in a big track meet at Tech, losing one of the seven clubs from the league for the remainder of the season, with several shakeups occurring in the baseball standings, and with the race for the old rag drawing rapidly to an eventful close.

University was, to all appearances, sitting on top of the prep baseball world last Sunday with little to worry about, because the Bluebirds had a perfect average of five straight wins. Tech High was down in third place in a tie with G. M. A. with three losses to its credit and only four victories. Marist was a half jump behind the league leaders with five wins and one defeat.

University had lost one game during the week's play, and won none, while Tech High has had one of the defeats cancelled and in the meantime enjoyed a perfect week by defeating both Marist and G. M. A. Marist was beaten again the last of the week by Boys' High, and seems to be in a bad slump. G. M. A. had won four straight until the cadets ran against Tech High, and looked to be headed for the top, but the Smithies stopped its winning streak and sent it down the scale a distance.

FREEMAN IS WINNER OF SHOOT

H. D. Freeman won the weekly gun club shoot Saturday afternoon with a perfect score of 50 out of 50 single shot tries. He was closely followed by H. J. Foster and Dr. J. S. Deer who had a record of 49 out of a possible 50 targets.

H. J. Foster led the field from the 16-yard line with 24 out of the 25. Dr. J. C. Wrtight was second with 23 out of the 25.

Baptists Get Three Runs In Eighth

Macon, Ga., May 3.—(Special.)—The "Woff" of the Wofford Terriers failed to materialize again this afternoon to the extent of presenting an impassable barrier to the Orange and Black sphere-pelting aggregation, and as a consequence the South Carolinians went down for the second time in as many engagements, this time by a 4 to 1 tally.

Had it not been that the Woffordite hurler, Bailey, relaxed in the eighth inning and let the Baptists slam out three hits, one of them a two-bagger, besides walking two other of the Maconites, the story might have been different, or else a no-decision affair. The shadows of the Central City grandstand were growing longer and longer with the score 1-1 when the little Spartanburger gave way.

Wofford's lone score came when Lindsey, second slabman, hit a single and was brought into the home region by a double from Bailey. In the ninth, a futile attempt was made to grasp their waning chances of taking back the bacon and the South Carolina coach sent in Blakely to bat for Holcomb and Wolfe for Lindsey, but they, too, only hit to the Baptist fielders.

Hamilton, Mercer twirler, struck out five of the Woffordians, while Bailey sent only four of the Baptists back to the dug-out. Hamilton also walked only one of the visitors as opposed to three passed to first by the Wofford moundsman.

AN UNWISE MEASURE.

The Howell-Barkley bill to abolish the railroad labor board, as provided in the Esch-Cummings transportation act, and proposing to adopt the war scheme of national boards of adjustment, will come up on the floor of the house Monday next as a special order.

A rather peculiar but not unorthodox situation developed regarding this bill in committee. Before the hearings were begun, at which the proponents and opponents could be invited to testify, the bill was appealed to the house floor direct under the new rule which gives 150 members that opportunity, the committee thus being discharged from consideration.

The bill is a direct strike at the railroads and especially at the short-line roads. The latter have had a hard pull even under the liberal treatment accorded them in the transportation act, several short lines in Georgia, to illustrate, having been junked in the past three years. This bill, it is claimed, would completely wipe out most of them, and thereby throw a hardship upon hundreds of thousands of people who live on and are served only by short-line railroads.

The measure fixes present rates of pay, rules and working conditions by law, and prohibits any change of any of them until after the carrier has given at least 30 days' written notice of intended change, and has had a conference with representatives selected by employees to pass upon proposed changes. It specifically provides that employees may select as representatives persons having no direct interest.

It declares carriers and employees must exert every reasonable effort to make and maintain agreements concerning rates of pay, rules, or working conditions, and the bill provides national boards of adjustment for settlement of disputes arising out of such agreements.

It declares the occupational classification of employees established by the interstate commerce commission shall be the legal classification of all persons engaged in any capacity in the service of carriers, and prohibits any change in such classification until a hearing shall be had before the interstate commerce commission after due notice given to the employees.

It is claimed that the features incorporated in the above three paragraphs will result in forcing upon short-line railroads a system of collective bargaining instead of dealing with individual employees, and that the legal classification as proposed will prevent having an employee engage in any other work than that which comes within his particular classification.

It provides intricate machinery for settling disputes, and under the terms of the bill representatives in negotiations are not required to be selected from those directly interested in the dispute, but may be selected from any vocation, calling or profession.

The proposed bill declares nothing in it shall be construed to make the quitting of labor or service an illegal act, and that regardless of contract no court of the United States or of any state shall issue any process to compel the performance of labor or service by an employee without his consent.

It repeals title III of the transportation act of 1920, which establishes a labor board for settlement of disputes and makes no provision for such protection to the public as is afforded in present law.

The bill has some strong advocates in congress, and it is understood to have a powerful lobby behind it. That it has some good features, as most bills have, is undeniable.

On the other hand there is one basic thought that should always guide in transportation legislation, and that is that fair and just treatment to railroads is the best economic policy for all the people. Railroads develop a country and the greater their own success the greater service they can be to all the people, materially and otherwise.

At the same time railroads must understand that cooperation is not a one-sided proposition, and that in seeking the cooperation of the people they must also give it.

They deserve to be treated fairly—the stockholders deserve a reasonable return on their investments. Under the transportation act this is guaranteed, and more than this is denied.

In this day of economic reconstruction there is no place for radical legislation that will destroy.

GOOD ROADS MECCA.

A news dispatch in today's Constitution from Albuquerque, N. M., tells of the extensive preparations in that city for the national convention of the United States Good Roads association and of the Bankhead Highway association.

Delegates have been appointed from every state in the union and radio stations all over America are carrying almost daily references to the program. The convention is being electrically advertised on Broadway in New York city, and in addition to the convention there will be a national exposition of roads machinery and building material, the United States government being one of the largest exhibitors through its federal aid department.

A great many Georgians will go to this convention, as this state is keenly interested in the Bankhead highway, which swings through the eastern seaboard states from Washington to Atlanta and thence through the southwestern states, following the old '49 trails into San Diego, Cal. It is one of the most ambitious of the transcontinental highway projects and tremendous progress has been made in the linking up of the various finished projects along the route.

Colonel Beacham Cameron, of North Carolina, is president, and Mrs. Albert Thornton, Sr., of Atlanta, chairman of the Woman's division. In conjunction with a great group of enthusiastic co-workers these two notable southerners have done valiant work on this great undertaking.

The director general of the United States Good Roads association and the Bankhead is Colonel J. A. Rountree, of Birmingham, an indefatigable worker in the cause of highway development and a pioneer to whom great credit belongs for his years of untiring service in the cause.

HONORING JUDGE ALLISON

Elsewhere in The Constitution today is a photographic reproduction of a great and magnificent granite memorial marker which was erected by associates and friends of Judge M. M. Allison, president of the Dixie Highway association since its formation in 1915.

It stands on Walden's Ridge, near Chattanooga, the highest point on the entire highway, which is being rapidly linked up between the northern and southern objectives, Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., and Miami, Fla.

The marker was appropriately unveiled as an everlasting tribute to the foresight, courage, energy and constructive resourcefulness of Judge Allison, in making a great reality out of a dream of less than ten years ago.

In the ceremonies, many of his co-workers in the building of the Dixie highway participated, and many beautiful and all-deserving tributes were paid to him, while the lifting of the veil revealed the following inscription carved deep into the granite:

"This memorial is erected by the people of the United States to mark their appreciation of the great service rendered our country by Judge M. M. Allison, president of the Dixie Highway association since its organization in 1915.

"The Dixie highway was founded upon his faith, his hope and his far vision; his indefatigable labor throughout the states wherein it winds its useful way made possible its realization."

That "appreciation" tells the whole story and tells it concisely, but truthfully and well.

No man in the south has contributed more to the development of the south—indeed the whole country, for it is a national project—than Judge Allison in his faithful and untiring work in this one outstanding interstate highway project.

At the inception of this great transcontinental highway movement, the idea was considered a laudable one, but few had hopes of its ultimate accomplishment within any reasonable time. Judge Allison called into conference prominent men of each state along the route, encouraged and inspired them with his own enthusiasm, and thus with able and enthusiastic co-workers began the development systematically, the main objective always being to connect the various links into a strong and unbreakable chain.

Today the highway is graded all the way from the Great Lakes to Florida and much of it has been paved. The breaks in the chain are almost wholly confined to Georgia, and these are now being linked with encouraging rapidity.

At the annual meeting of the association in Savannah May 21, assurance will be given of the completion of the great work at an early date.

The marker to Judge Allison is abundantly deserved, and this great highway that means so much to the material interests of the country, and especially the south, will stand like the old roads of Rome as a monument to his foresight and his enterprise that will live through the ages.

THE SUREST WAY.

Judge Ogden Persons, of Forsyth, Ga., sitting in the emergency division of the Fulton county criminal court, made a remarkable statement about the protection that people generally accord to bootleggers.

In passing a fine sentence upon a negress, who acknowledged possession of liquor but disclaimed ownership, the judge is quoted as saying:

"It is a remarkable thing that no one in America tells the truth about liquor. Men and women will die and go to hell before they will tell the truth about it.

"And that's the reason we can't enforce prohibition now.

"Men, white men, reliable and trustworthy in every other respect, lie about whisky. They come to court and go on the witness stand under oath and swear falsely to save some bootlegger from being involved in the transaction and maybe going to the chaingang.

"It is not any one class of people. All of them do it, or so it seems."

Those who testify know, in a general way, that the purchaser of liquor, under the Volstead act, is as guilty of a violation of law as the seller, and therefore feel no doubt that an admission means pleading guilty in advance to a possible indictment that might subsequently be issued.

Not many men will "squeal" on their partners in crime.

Judge Persons has performed a good service in calling attention to this very evident situation, and has cited one of the main reasons why prohibition is not being enforced.

Enforcement, however, will never be encouraged by the whisky patron. The situation demands an aroused public conscience to law enforcement all along the line. The bootlegger will pass out when whisky buying stops.

Better results will be obtained in this manner than by expecting whisky patrons to turn state's evidence. They will not do it.

THEN, WHY NOT?

On this page is another communication from Hon. John Bostwick, county school superintendent-elect of Morgan couhty, on the question of a state bond issue for highways and also for education, suggesting the allocation of equal funds to the two interests.

Mr. Bostwick bases his communication upon an address made by Commissioner W. T. Anderson, of the state highway department, before the Atlanta Kiwanians during the past week.

Mr. Anderson advocates a state bond authorization of sufficient magnitude to complete the statewide program agreed upon, and asserts that such an issue authorized, with annual sales of bonds sufficient to meet the demands of the year, will be the most economical and certainly the most satisfying method of solving the state-wide highway problem in Georgia. He is entirely right, and so is Mr. Bostwick entirely right in his position that such an authorization will be voted by the people only upon the condition that a specified amount of the proceeds from the sale of such bonds shall be utilized in providing betterments for the state's higher educational institutions, and a specified amount for improving and making more efficient the state's common school system.

This is exactly what North Carolina did, and the progress that state is making in all lines, industrially, agriculturally, financially, educationally and socially, is today proverbial throughout America, at least, if not the world.

When the legislature of North Carolina decided upon a constructive state-wide highway program, to be pushed with all possible expedition through the sale of state bonds, it decided also upon an enlarged university system, an enlarged agricultural and normal college system, and an improved common school system. The bond issue therefore was authorized for roads and education, the two coordinated, and they swept the state.

Then why not the same program in Georgia?

Mr. Bostwick is entirely correct in his prediction that any proposed bond issue that does not carry a fair allocation of proceeds for improving the urgent needs of education will fail; and conversely, a bond issue that does fairly link these two great objectives, highway construction and better schools, will win.

Some of the candidates may have platforms to run under when it rains, but they're pretty soon "rained out."

A home-town philosopher has it about right in this: "When our friend, the Sun, takes a day off, to rest up, he starts the growlers going, and when he resumes business at the old stand, they never give him a word of thanks."

A PLEA FOR ANDY GUMP.

The public has recently been justly and deeply grieved over the domestic tribulations of Andy Gump! And why not? Here is a man of national reputation, chinless but far from spineless, deserted by his erstwhile faithful Min, and forced by wagging tongues and imagined jealousies to seek surcease of sorrow amid the madding crowd's ignoble strife. A pathetic picture he is—but a picture with a moral!

Let the highbrows lift their eyebrows if they will! Let them shudder perceptibly at the "comic strips" of the daily paper—which must be read cautiously and quickly. Lifted eyebrows and cultivated shudders will not suffice to destroy the importance or the influence of Andy and his associates in crime.

A sad and solemn survey of the national appetite as regards reading matter leads us to the rather startling conclusion — startling at least to the highbrows—that those who read the funny strips are of a higher type than those who turn in scorn from the doings of Andy Gump and Min, to devour the doings of Harry K. Thaw—those who read with delight that Grover Cleveland Bergdoll, wealthy draft evader, is rumored to have left the Fatherland for America, that Luis Firpo, Wild Bull of the Pampas, may return to the ring if fed with enough soothing syrup!

Andy is neither a pervert nor a slacker nor a physical brute. He is a plain American citizen, who temporarily has lost his way and is doing his best to get back to Min. The happy reunion will no doubt soon occur—and all the nation will rejoice.

DR. SUTTON HONORED.

The Georgia Education association, with a present membership of practically 5,000, has honored itself and a great educator by the election of Dr. Willis A. Sutton as president for the ensuing year.

Dr. Sutton is the superintendent of the Atlanta public school system, and is a forceful worker in the cause of education throughout the state and south. He is an appealing orator, a man of strong moral convictions, and an indefatigable worker.

The state association has had a remarkable career under the administration of the retiring president, Professor A. G. Cleveland, of Valdosta.

During his term of service, ably assisted by Professor Kyle Alfriend, dean of Bessie Tift college, as secretary, and by a strong board of officials and directors, the membership of the association has more than trebled within the year.

The meeting that has just been held at Savannah was the largest in the association's history, and illustrated an awakening in educational interest in Georgia that is wholesomely significant.

THE FIRST ANNIVERSARY.

On this page is a communication from the secretary of the Nacoochee-Hiawassee Highway association that is of peculiar interest to every citizen of the mountain sections of the state. It calls attention to first anniversary convention which will be held on the 2d of June and at some point to be selected. At this convention, which will be largely attended by people from every county of north, central and southwest Georgia the mountain highway projects of the association, some of which are encouragingly under way, will be discussed, and the great question of securing the proposed national park for some section of the Georgia mountains will be enthusiastically entered into. This park is to be located somewhere in the southern Apalachians, by order of the government, and all the states interested are earnestly at work for the same. The commission, appointed by Secretary Work to choose the site, will visit the Georgia mountains in June. A delegation from the Nacoochee-Hiawassee association will assist in conducting the commission while in Georgia.

It is not proposed, as many have erroneously believed, to convert the national forest in Georgia into a national park. It would be a mistake to do so. The national Forestry bureau is rapidly developing these Georgia forests into rest, health and recreational grounds at the present and spending a great deal of money in the work. The proposition is to have the park entirely independent of the national forests.

The Nacoochee-Hiawassee association was organized to carry on the work outlined in The Constitution's government expedition of June, 1922. It was organized one year to a day later and this anniversary occasion will celebrate its first year's achievements, which have been remarkable in real constructive highway development.

Maurice Maeterlink has brought a suit for damages against a film corporation because it rejected some of his scenarios. If all the "rejected" could do that, they'd at least get their names in the papers.

The Little Home

BY FRANK L. STANTON

O little Home, on the lifelong way,
With One at the door, still calling
The sunshine-children home from play,—
They come in the evening now, grown gray,
With a song to sing, and a prayer to pray,
With the later shadows falling.

Home—to rest in its love and light:
Home—from the homeless Night.

The stars shine welcome, the home-winds sing
To the hearts the world would sever
Of a hearth that shines, and of arms that cling
In the little world where Love is King
And high to heaven the loved bells ring
Of peace and rest forever.

Home—for the infinite gift of Rest,
Sweet as a child's on a mother's breast.

The World's Window

The World Is Growing Better.

BY PIERRE VAN PAASSEN

The world is getting better. There are abundant signs. Not only in the international field, to be sure, but in the daily contact and relations of fellow human beings. Men are taking an active interest in reclaiming criminals from the underworld. That is a Christian attitude. No longer is the released convict avoided like a leper. To be kicked, despised and forsaken is no longer to be his fate. He comes from a hospital where he has undergone a cure. He has expatiated his crime. There must be some welcome for him upon his return to society. Preparations are made in some cities that he may take up the studies he should have taken up earlier in life. Crime is regarded as a disease. And in most instances a curable disease. That is the new attitude on crime—one phase of the world's progress—a great and significant step.

In many American cities they are holding a "law and order week." "Be a good citizen," we are advised on placards. Good citizenship, however, does not consist in merely observing the major laws. Good citizenship means observance of all the laws of the country. Prohibition included. In too many cases the man with a little flask on his hip pocket falls within the clutches of the law, while in the fashionable clubs there is no interference with the regular consumption of spirituous liquors. In such cases the fashionable club is a hotbed of lawlessness, a breeder of discontent, a place where the laws of the country are defied as in a den of bandits.

The pope praises the American people. He says this nation has shown true Christian charity in caring for millions of unfortunates in Europe. It's true the name of America is called blessed today, in different sections of the world. There are millions living anolg the broad waters of the Volga who owe their lives to American generosity, and other millions in Germany, Armenia and the Near East. The University of Louvain has been completed and as an everlasting tribute to the United States this inscription has been placed over the front entrance: "Destroyed by Teutonic furor, rebuilt through American generosity." Yet of greater value than all inscriptions of stone are the grateful thoughts that dwell in the hearts of millions of human beings.

While agitators are exerting every effort to cement the whole Orient together in a gigantic league against white supremacy, the black plague sweeps aver the Punjab and threatens Afghanistan and southern Mongolia. Instead of allowing that "scourge of God" an unchecked reign, surgeons, physicians and nurses from England, Holland, the United States, France and Japan are rushing to the rescue. Self-preservation? Perhaps that also. But it would be easier to throw up a cordon sanitaire, a barrier to the diseased regions and isolate the affected sections. This would save the lives of scores and perhaps hundreds of valuable medical experts. And at the same time it would make a tremendous gap in the populations, which are to rise against the white powers, according to the plan of the agitators. But that is not the way humanitarians view the situation. They go in to save first. Later the other problem will come up for discussion. They rely on reason and common sense to avert a panic and mass destruction.

Chancellor Marx of Germany enters the Ruhr and says that his government seeks world reconciliation. He says Germany lost the war and is anxious to pay for the damage. That is a ray of light amid the dark clouds of Europe. A significant admission to be made at this time. French officers in the audiences, sent by General Degoutte, the military governor, wait for the word of swaggering insult. But it does not come. Marx talks about reconciliation. World reconciliation. He is right. Not only Germany but also France and Belgium need change their attitude of senseless vindictiveness. There is nothing gained by strangling the German nation. In the first place it is a Herculean task and in the second place should Germany go to smash on the rocks of French militarism, the first nation to follow in the abyss of anarchy and despair is France herself.

Strange things are going on behind the scenes in Russia. Trotsky, banned for six months, comes back and talks a language that is understood all over the world. Without sacrificing his communist principles, Trotsky makes this important declaration: "As long as we live in a world where communism is not universally accepted, where bourgeois governments dominate, we must try and seek the confidence of those governments and the only way to win that confidence is by paying our debts. Not only the debts contracted by ourselves and Kerensky, but the old czarist debt as well." Trotsky is violently denounced for his opinions by George Zinovieff, chairman of the executive committee of the Third Internationale. But the fact that he even made these utterances is significant and important. A couple of years ago he would have faced a death sentence and been punished as a traitor to the revolution. Not so now. Some people are beginning to think in Russia. The revolution like a stupendous wave swept up the shores of Muscovy. The tide is receding now. Water seeks its normal level.

Arabs and Jews in the Holy Land have asked the high commissioner of that country to call a conference where mutual grievances may be discussed and eliminated. That is a worthy spirit. That is the way things can be settled in the right way. Bloodshed and hatred will never accomplish anything. The high commissioner holds his sessions advised by the chief rabbi of the Jewish faith, the Mohammedan grand vizier and the archbishop of the orthodox church. The greatest harmony prevails and the discussions generally develop in the interests of all the people in the country. For besides being a Jew, with a clear, logical mind, the commissioner, Sir Herbert Samuels, is a Britisher. He belongs to a people that understands the science of governing. Reason and common sense will solve the difficulties between different elements in Palestine.

The world is growing better There are abundant signs. Men are coming to the point of view that force is answered with force, that nothing is gained with blood and iron. Belgium and Holland are not going to war over the disputed Flemish regions north of the Scheldt river. They will call their seventh commission of arbitration to see if an understanding can be reached. In the old days brothers would be killing brothers long before this. That idea seems to have gone by the board. A new spirit has invaded the councils of nations. True, the diplomats are stirring uneasily. Their gain and glory lies in secrecy and vile intrigue. But if the people are to decide matters, if the men who are to do the bleeding and the dying are to settle disputed questions, there will be more and more reason and more round-table conferences before the sword is unsheathed and the machine guns begin to spit death and mutilation.

People Will Vote Bonds For Schools and Roads

Editor Constitution: I notice in your paper of April 30 a report of an address by W. T. Anderson, a member of the highway commission, delivered at a luncheon of the Kiwanis club, at the Ansley hotel on April 28.

He made it very clear that an adequate road system for Georgia would result in an enormous saving to the people of the state.

I agree with Mr. Anderson that good roads are very necessary, and that Georgia should have a system of roads equal to those of other progressive states. I also agree with him that it will require lots of money for such a system and that a bond issue is the proper way to get it.

The matter, however, of educating and training the 1,000,000 children of this state in a manner that will make them efficient, successful and worthy citizens is the most important question now confronting the people of Georgia.

The people of Georgia will never vote for the adoption of a bond issue for roads unless there is a provision for better support of the higher institutions of learning and the common schools of Georgia.

The state colleges are badly handicapped on account of insufficient funds. School buildings in the country counties are in many cases very inadequate, the 10,000 school teachers who are doing the most important work of any class of officials of the state are working for their board and clothes.

I agree with Mr. Anderson in his bold and persistent advocacy of more money for good roads and if the highway commission will join with the educational interests of the state in the advocacy of a $100,000,000 bond issue for schools and roads on a 50-50 basis, it will carry.

I feel certain the general assembly at the coming session would pass an act submitting this question to the voters for ratification at this fall's election.

A bond issue of this kind would have the support of the good roads people, all the state colleges, 600 county and city superintendents, 10,000 teachers and 200,000 friends of these miserably paid servants of the state.

In reply to my letter to Hon. John N. Holder, of recent date, in regard to a bond issue for roads and schools, Mr. Holder says:

I heartily concur in your views that when Georgia votes an issue of bonds that it should provide for education as well as good roads. These two great questions go hand in hand. One cannot be separated from the other. I will be glad to cooperate with the educational forces of the state along the line of your suggestion.

Realizing the great need for more funds for the state colleges, the common schools and the roads of the state, I suggest a meeting at an early date of the highway commission, the presidents of all the state colleges and the state board of education for the purpose of deciding definitely about a bond issue for the purpose of providing funds for schools and roads.

The Critic Criticized.

BY M. ASHBY JONES, D.D.

Some weeks ago in this column I took occasion to call attention to the biography of Woodrow Wilson, by Mr. David Lawrence, which was then appearing in a number of American newspapers. I was careful to say: "Of course, no adequate criticism of this work could be made before its completion," but took the liberty of criticizing three pictures which Mr. Lawrence gave of Mr. Wilson which I felt tended to make a false impression upon the reader. Recently I received a letter from Mr. Lawrence in reply to my criticism which, at his request, I am very glad to publish:

"Dear Doctor Jones: I have just read your article of March 30, and I wondered after completing it, whether you had been reading what I had written on Wilson, or somebody else's work. I was not aware that I had disagreed anywhere in the book with your judgment of the character of Wilson, to the effect that 'he did test men by their attitude and loyalty to the great principles and high ideals.'

"The newspaper serial, of course, was an abbreviation of the book, which is now on the presses of George H. Doran company, and will be available the latter part of this month, or the first of May. When you read it, I think you will find some of the interpretations you have made are not borne out by what I have written.

"Bear in mind that in many of the cases about which I wrote, I was not interpreting, or taking something secondhand, but I actually received my impression firsthand. I cannot agree with you that just because Woodrow Wilson was human enough on some occasions to take personal affront at personal opposition he necessarily was portrayed as a small man. Woodrow Wilson's place in history will be far more secure if his defects are not glossed over too much by his supporters, and if his virtues are set apart in their proper proportions.

"I think you really owe it to me to publish this letter in your column, don't you?

"Sincerely yours,
"DAVID LAWRENCE."

Impressions vs. Interpretations.

I was particularly interested in Mr. Lawrence's statement, "I wondered whether you had been reading what I had written on Mr. Wilson or somebody else's work." The significant thing about anything one writes is the impression which it makes upon the reader. It is so often true that this impression differs radically from the impression one wants to convey. What disturbed me was not Mr. Lawrence's personal opinion of Woodrow Wilson, but the impression which I believed, and still believe, his pictures of Mr. Wilson made on his readers.

I was also interested in Mr. Lawrence's statement, "I was not interpreting or taking something secondhand, but I actually received my impression firsthand." As a matter of fact, Mr. Lawrence's distinction between "interpreting" and "impression" is not a good one. All that one can write about a man or an event is the impression which the man or the event makes upon him. Mr. Lawrence's whole work is Woodrow Wilson's impression on David Lawrence—or Woodrow Wilson in terms of David Lawrence. So, Mr. Lawrence necessarily selected out of his wealth of personal experiences those things which he considered most significant of the character of Mr. Wilson. It was inevitable that in doing this he should give his "interpretation" of Wilson.

My criticism was necessarily based on the "impression" which Mr. Lawrence's interpretation made on me as a reader. And here is the substance of the criticism which I made: "I raise no objection to the author's giving his own interpretation, but I do object to his telling a part of a story in such a manner as to make his interpretation apparently true. I insist that a just biographer should at least have told all the significant facts which bore upon this incident and thus have given his readers an opportunity for intelligent judgment." So I would have it clear that my objection to Mr. Lawrence as a biographer was in his selection of certain portions of the story, which, in itself, is often a very deadly method of interpretation.

Witness vs. Historian.

Allow me also to raise a question as to the value of "first-hand" impressions. There is a popular fallacy that "one who was present" must know more about an incident than one who was not. It is true that the final verdict must be made up from the combined testimony of those who "were present." However, the verdict itself can seldom be left to eyewitnesses. This is true because of the very nearness of the eyewitnesses and the psychic differences in the witnesses themselves. Widely different phases of the same experiences will impress themselves upon different witnesses as being the most significant or important. For this reason, our truest and most helpful historians have never been eyewitnesses, but gathering, as best they can, all the contemporary testimony, they weigh its value and deliver their best judgment.

I hope Mr. Lawrence will forgive me for saying that he is one of our most important and interesting witnesses concerning the life of Woodrow Wilson but must be denied the honored place of his biographer.

Nacoochee-Hiawassee Highway Ass'n. Will Hold Anniversary Convention June 2

Editor Constitution: The Nacoochee-Hiawassee Highway association will celebrate its first anniversary on June 2, 1924. This will also be the second anniversary of The Atlanta Constitution-government forest tour through the mountains of northeast Georgia, which stimulated so much interest in the construction of good roads in this wonderful region.

This association laid a broad foundation for development at its first meeting last June. Its purpose is to encourage and cooperate in every possible way the building of roads of all types in this mountain country, with the view of developing a complete system of mountain roads. To that end the association has worked out plans whereby several Georgia counties are now working together on important projects which will give splendid lateral connections for our state highways as well as most desirable local roads.

Project No. 1 of this association branches off from state route No. 11 at Cleveland and extends northward through Helen and Hiawassee to Haysville, N. C. The state highway commission agreed to release $5,000 of White county's bond money for the link of this important road project between Cleveland and Helen, and together with the cooperation of local citizens there a surprising amount of work has been accomplished up to the present time. Between Helen and Hiawassee this road crosses the Blue Ridge mountains through an old deer pass which the Indians knew as "The Way," or in other words the now famous Unicoi Gap. A four-mile link was surveyed here on a good grade by our state highway department and Towns county promptly allocated $5,000 of her first gas tax funds for this mountain crossing. County lines were not considered, for the mountain barrier between Hiawassee and Helen was the greatest obstacle to progress that the great section north of the mountain has had in the past, and Towns county set a splendid precedent by spending her first gas tax money on the south side of this mountain in White county. But White county responded in the true spirit of cooperation and entered into a contract to match Towns county's funds on this mountain link of the road, and there is no question now about these two counties receiving more aid from the outside in the future. Clay county, North Carolina, has already completed the link in the road from the state line north to Haysville. Towns county will spend her next gas tax funds on the three-mile link between Hiawassee and the state line toward Haysville, and it is hoped that perhaps the Georgia state highway department will be able to underwrite this link and begin the construction north from Hiawassee at an early date so as to let the people of the Hiawassee valley have this badly needed outlet and inlet. It should be pointed out that the people of Clay county, North Carolina, are more anxious to get this connection south through Hiawassee into Georgia than they are to have any other connection out of their beautiful county, and these people have repeatedly shown that they are vitally interested in the road through Unicoi Gap, as well as our state system of roads in Georgia. Since the Towns county officials have pledged the first $5,000 of gas tax funds for this county on Unicoi Gap, and since the present ordinary of this county is ready to pledge the next gas tax money in advance for the link between Hiawassee and the state line toward Haysville, and then expresses willingness to concentrate on this link and the link from Young Harris north toward Warne, N. C., as soon as the state highway department begins work there, this association will be interested in considering these matters at its next meeting with a view of helping in good road work wherever possible.

Another branch road from this project No. 1 has been considered by the association, and it is hoped that some plan can be made for a road between Helen and Clarksville down the Nacoochee valley.

Much progress is being made now in the matter of projects No. 2, No. 3 and No. 4, which connect state highways with forest roads in the Toccoa basin. The counties of Union, Lumpkin and Fannin have allocated $5,000 each from their gas tax funds for these important projects, and this plan of the association has been approved by the United States forest service and the Georgia state highway commission, as well as the United States bureau of public roads. The forest service allocated $40,000 for this work in 1922, but state funds were needed for cooperation under the law, and the plan of this association has secured $10,000 worth of supervision, surveys and explosives from the state, as well as the $15,000 allocated by the three counties mentioned above. This total of $65,000 will be sufficient for opening up the basin, according to the engineers making the preliminary reports, from three directions at the same time and thus give the inlets from the direction of Blairsville, Dahlonega and Morganton. A survey party is at work now locating the forest roads and connections with state routes, and this big Y in the Toccoa basin will bring great development of recreational uses of the national forests lands here on the Cherokee area in Georgia.

The program for the next meeting of the association is being arranged and prominent Georgians from several sections of the state are expected to take part. Government officials from Washington, D. C., have been invited to speak on that occasion, and one of the largest good road meetings ever held in Georgia is being planned. Much new business will be before the association at that time and all who are interested in good roads for this mountain region are invited to attend and take part in this constructive and far-reaching work.

The place of the meeting will be announced soon. Several towns are being considered at this time, and it is thought that some place along our project No. 1 should be chosen for this year's meeting, as it will be possible to hold next year's meeting in the vicinity of the forest road development in the Toccoa basin of the Cherokee National park.

WEEKLY BIBLE TALKS

Does Divine Care Exist?

By WILLIAM JENNINGS BRYAN.

Text of Today's Bible Talk by Mr. Bryan.

(2 Kings 11:1-4, 11-18)

And when Athaliah the mother of Ahaziah saw that her son was dead, she arose and destroyed all the seed royal.

But Jehosheba, the daughter of king Joram, sister of Ahaziah, took Joash the son of Ahaziah, and stole him from among the king's sons which were slain; and they hid him, even him and his nurse, in the bed chamber from Athaliah, so that he was not slain.

And he was with her hid in the house of the Lord six years. And Athaliah did reign over the land.

And the seventh year Jehoiada sent and fetched the rulers over hundreds, with the captains and the guard, and brought them to him into the house of the Lord, and made a covenant with them, and took an oath of them in the house of the Lord, and shewed them the king's son.

And the guard stood, every man with his weapons in his hand, round about the king, from the right corner of the temple to the left corner of the temple, along by the altar and the temple.

And he brought forth the king's son, and put the crown upon him, and gave him the testimony; and they anointed him; and they clapped their hands, and said, God save the king.

And when Athaliah heard the noise of the guard and of the people, she came to the people into the temple of the Lord.

And when she looked, behold, the king stood by a pillar, as the manner was, and the princes and the trumpeters by the king, and all the people of the land rejoiced, and blew with trumpets: and Athaliah rent her clothes, and cried, Treason, Treason.

But Jehoiada the priest commanded the captains of the hundreds, the officers of the host, and said unto them, Have her forth without the ranges: and him that followeth her kill with the sword. For the priest had said, Let her not be slain in the house of the Lord.

And they laid hands on her; and she went by the way by which the horses came into the king's house: and there was she slain.

And Jehoiada made a covenant between the Lord and the king and the people, and they should be the Lord's people; between the king also and the people.

And all the people of the land went into the house of Baal, and brake it down; his altars and his images brake they in pieces thoroughly, and slew Mattan the priest of Baal before the altars. And the priest appointed officers over the house of the Lord.

An incident in the history of the little kingdom of Judah which is woven around a cruel woman, a devoted priest and a rescued child who became king gives us our principal theme for today's Bible Talk—is there such a thing in human affairs as divine care?

If a virtue line were drawn through the period of Judah's history from King Rehoboam to the reign of the rescued boy Joash, it would show great fluctuation between the highest and the lowest points reached by the royal families.

Abijah, the son of Rehoboam, accomplished little during his short reign of three years. He tolerated heathenism and was defeated in his effort to capture the northern kingdom.

Asa, the son of Abijah, reigned for forty-one years, his being the third in length of the kings of Judah. He was the author of some reforms, religious and political, and won the only victory for his people over the Egyptians.

Jehoshaphat, the son of Asa, reigned for twenty-five years. He resisted all the temptations to idol worship and sent priests and Levites throughout the land to instruct the people in the law. He was also successful in war. His greatest sin seems to have been the contracting of an alliance for his son Jehoram with Athaliah, the daughter of Ahab and Jezebel.

Jezebel's Evil Daughter.

Jehoram succeeded his father and soon fell under the evil influence of his wife, who inherited the evil spirit of her infamous mother. He introduced Baal worship into Jerusalem. He murdered his six younger brothers, besides killing some of the nobles of Judah. He reigned only eight years.

Ahaziah, his son only reigned a year, dying at the age of twenty-three, from a wound received in battle.

At this point, Athaliah unsurped the throne, taking the precaution to kill, as she thought, all of Ahaziah's children—all the royal seed.

She was the first woman queen and was, besides, a foreigner, half Israelite and half Phoenecian. She was, however, so fierce a personality that all were afraid to resist her sway.

Her tyranny lasted for six years, at which time she found that Joash, the youngest son of Ahaziah, had escaped her.

Joash was only a year old when his brothers met their death; he owed his rescue to Jehosheba, his father's sister. Her husband, Jehoiada, was a priest and was evidently in her confidence.

During these six long years, Joash was kept hidden in a bed chamber in Jehovah's house.

God's Mysterious Care.

Among Christians as well as among Jews, the saving of this member of the royal line of Judah has always been regarded, and properly so, as evidence of that divine care which protects those to whom God has assigned an important work.

We may not understand the meaning of each circumstance as it passes before us, but when we look back over history, we see an unbroken thread of life connecting characters whose cooperation has been necessary to the carrying out of God's plan.

Human agencies are interwoven, often without conscious cooperation. Each link in the chain is a perfectly natural act, seemingly prompted by motives easily explained, and yet there are so many of these links that the chances become almost infinite in number—so many that coincidence would not account for their combination.

If the world is built upon a plan and man is a part of the plan and here for a purpose, it is not unreasonable that the God who put him here should guard him and preserve him for alloted tasks.

Those who deny providential care may be divided into two classes; viz., those who do not believe in a personal God and those who think that God would not have time for, or interest in, the everyday affairs of man.

Christ's Proof.

It is not worth while to argue God's providences with the first class; until they are convinced that there is a personal God, they naturally reject everything that relates to God's power, wisdom, or love.

Those in the second class need only to be convinced of the infinitude of God's love and that man is of sufficient importance to be worthy of God's attention.

We have the proof in Christ's own words; He declared that man's life is precious in the sight of God—that even the hairs of his head are numbered and that a sparrow cannot fall to the ground without His notice.

What better evidence could be given?

What more proof can be asked.

What illustrations would be more convincing?

If the hairs of the head, which no man would attempt to count, are numbered by the Almighty, how can the purposes, the plans and the thoughts of man be a matter of indifference to the Heavenly Father?

If the flight of each one of the innumerable birds that inhabit the earth is known to its Maker, how much more carefully must the Creator guard man, whom He has made but a little lower than the angels?

God's Perfect Handiwork.

And why should we regard as unreasonable such constant and minute attention to the affairs of human beings?

The perfection that characterizes all of God's handiwork, from the tiniest insect to the largest mammal, is proof conclusive of intelligent design, and proof just as conclusive of infinite care.

Every living thing is supplied with organs that function without conscious effort of the creature; not a living thing could exist if it were compelled consciously to direct its breathing, its nutritive organs or the circulation of its blood. A break down in any part of the machinery means death, but there is no break down in the normal life of anything.

It is impossible for man to comprehend the greatness of the God who is the Author of all things, but, granting the existence of such a God, it is inconceivable that anything that He created could be beneath His notice or beyond the reach of His loving care—much less man to whom He gave dominion over all the earth.

The incalculable gulf that separates man from the living things that are nearest to him measures the certainty of God's solicitude for man, His only worshipper.

God Shapes Our Lives.

We are justified, therefore, in accepting as a fact that God is interested in man's destiny—that there is "a divinity that shapes our ends."

The boy Joash is but one of innumerable illustrations of providential care, but the fact that he was in the royal line that was being preserved for a particular purpose makes the reason for his preservation more clear.

The priest, Jehoiada, proceeded with discretion to reinstate Joash.

He brought together the captains and, making a covenant with them revealed to them the existence of the young monarch.

Having set his guards, he produced the king's son, crowned him in their presence, and gave him the testimony—the Book of the Law. Then he was proclaimed king, annointed and saluted.

When his wicked grandmother heard the noise, she hastened to the house of Jehovah and, seeing the young king occupying the royal place by the pillar, cried, "Treason!" and rent her clothes. Jehoiada, who was in command, gave directions for her safe conduct to a place outside the house where she could be slain without sacrilege.

"God's People."

The killing of a monarch was not a rare thing in those days; it was rather the rule than the exception, but that which followed showed the spirit of the priest and the spirit of the people.

Jehoiada made a covenant between God and the king and the people "that they should be the Lord's people."

What a world of meaning in that phrase!

Some of the kings had led their people away into the worship of idols into the offering of incense to images, but the priest who had been instrumental in restoring the crown to the young king whom his wife had saved from death, reestablished the covenant relationship between God and His chosen people and invoked the divine blessing on the tribe of Judah.

The worship of Baal was discontinued; the house erected to him was broken down and his altars and images destroyed. Again a nation was "in tune with the infinite."

Joash reigned for forty years and during a large part of the time he was loyal to God and successful as a ruler. He repaired the temple which, then more than a century old, had been neglected.

Joash's Weakness.

Special mention is made of the manner in which he trusted those who superintended the restoration of the temple. He required no audit of those who handled the money, so great was his confidence in their integrity.

Jehoiada, who played so important a part in the career of Joash, died at an advanced age and was buried with great ceremony. Then came the test of Joash and he revealed a weakness which did not disclose itself while he had the beloved priest to lean upon and to direct him.

When this support was removed and he was compelled to stand alone, he developed an aristocratic spirit and was led into idolatry. He departed so far from the teachings of the good Jehoiada that he encouraged the slaying of Zechariah, the son of Jehoiada, who remonstrated with the king for restoring the worship of Baal and Astarte.

When Joash deserted God, God deserted him and left him to the wrath of King Hazael of Syria, from whom Joash purchased the freedom of Jerusalem by turning over to the king of Syria all the gold of the temple and palace.

Glaring Ingratitude.

Finally, he was murdered by the friends of Zechariah to avenge the death of the priest.

It was a fitting punishment for his apostasy that his place in the sepulchre of the kings was occupied by his great benefactor Jehoiada while Joash himself was denied that honor.

We wonder that one so signally saved from slaughter and inducted into office under such evidences of divine favor should have been disloyal in the latter years of his life. And yet we have today cases of ingratitude just as glaring.

A multitude can be found even in Christian lands who owe everything they have and are to the mercy and goodness of the Heavenly Father, and yet never lift their hearts to the Heavenly Father in gratitude or petition Him for guidance.

Instead of worshipping God, they worship gods as false as the gods of the heathen, and that, too, with all the light thrown upon man's pathway today by the lamp of God's Word and the thousands of years of experience.

Things New and Old About the Bible

Books Speculative and Practical

By REV. W. P. KING,
Pastor First Methodist Church, Gainesville, Ga.

In the main, the most popular books are books dealing with the eternal subject of religion. Charles Scribner's Sons have just published "What Is Modernism?" by Dr. Leighton Parks, and "The World's Living Religions," by Dr. Robert Ernest Hume.

Following the Sunday last December when Leighton Parks voiced his opinion in the great issue confronting the Christian church, he received hundreds of letters. They came from almost every state in the union, from Canada, England and Australia.

His book is an earnest attempt to answer these questions. The origin of modernism, as a theological term, is found in the encyclical of Pope Piux X, in 1907, which contains a denunciation of certain modern ideas which were held by a minority element in the Roman Catholic church. Modernism is a very indefinite term and there are modernists and modernists, just as there are traditionalists and traditionalists.

The book of Dr. Hume aims to lay a foundation on the basis of which a thoughtful reader can reach a real understanding of the essential differences between the extant religions of the world and an adequate knowledge of their origin, literature, history and values.

This volume is a marvel of condensation and it is doubtful whether there can be found within the same compass so satisfactory a discussion of the whole subject of religion. The author mentions twelve religions that have passed away and eleven living religions. We do not understand why Dr. Hume omitted Mormonism, which would increase the list to twelve living religions.

The eleven living religions given by the author with the number of adherents are:

Christianity, 557,000,000; Confucianism, 250,000,000; Mohammedanism, 230,000,000; Hinduism, 217,000,000; Buddhism, 137,000,000; Taoism, 43,000,000; Shintoism, 16,000,000; Judaism, 11,000,000; Sikhism, 3,000,000; Jainism, 1,000,000, and Zoroastrianism, 100,000.

All of these religions have personal founders with the exceptions of Hinduism and Shintoism. The author gives a summary of the characteristics of each religion, and the preeminence of Chrisianity stands out with clear distinctness. This volume is a valuable addition to any library.

George H. Doran company are publishers of some booklets, "Jesus Christ—What Is His Significance?" and "Victory Over Temptation," both by Sherwood Eddy, which are free from controversialism. A wide circulation of these booklets would be helpful in laying the emphasis on the central verities of practical Christian faith and conduct.

These publishers announce also "God's Book Speaking for Itself," by Rev. C. C. Cook; "Collier of Manchester," by Professor George Jackson, and "Evolution Versus Creation," the second in the series of fundamentalist-modernist debates by Drs. Straton and Potter.

No Helpful Message.

Dr. Cook is in harmony with the main body of Christendom in his attack on various cults. But with his advocacy of "verbal plenary inspiration" and his defense of the literalism of fundamentalism he can bring no helpful message to our generation.

The book of Professor George Jackson is the biorgraphy of S. F. Collier of Manchester, who is an almost perfect exemplification of practical Christianity, in his pastorate for a third of a century of a great institutional church. He was a pioneer in making a new application of the old gospel.

The controversy between Dr. Straton, the Baptist, and Dr. Potter, the Unitarian, is of doubtful value. It makes very interesting reading, but a large number of intelligent and well-informed Christians are not represented either by Dr. Straton, the extreme reactionary, or Dr. Potter, the extreme radical. The Association Press has recently sent out some volumes of unusual merit. "About Jesus," by Dr. Edward Increase Bosworth, is a booklet containing thirty studies about Jesus, which is a masterful condensation of the principal elements in the ministry and teaching of Jesus. "Men, Women and God," by Dr. A. Herbert Gray, is a valuable contribution concerning the sex question. The author states, "It may even be said that the evils that come through the mismanagement of sex relations have beaten every civilization up to the present." The reading of this volume would serve to mitigate the divorce evil.

Other Books.

"Modern Problems as Jesus Saw Them," by Dr. H. H. Horne, contains twelve studies beginning with "Jesus and War" and closing with "Jesus and Missions." The author is a believer in both the individual and social gospel and makes an illuminating discussion. "Confronting Young Men With the Living Christ," by John R. Mott. Mr. Mott gives a survey of the work of the Young Men's Christian Association among the students of the world. The wise leadership of John R. Mott is seen in the words, "The battle today is not over mere details and externals, but relates to the very citadel of our own faith—the superhuman character of Christ and of the revelation which acquaints us with Him. Without a divine Christ in an absolutely unique sense and with only a revelation which differs in nothing essential from the literature of other religions, the word Christian loses its true meaning."

"Bubbles and Roseleaves," published by the Abingdon Press, is another volume by the versatile and brilliant essayist, F. W. Boreham. His name is a misnomer, for he is as far from "boring" people as any writer of his generation.

Boreham is acknowledged by all who have read his books to be a writer of undoubted genius. He says of himself that he has a "genius for a comfortable armchair and a blazing fire." But those who have touched his charming personality through the medium of his books—and there are thousands such scattered through the world—gladly affirm that his genius has a far wider range than that. This present volume—the fourteenth of the series—bears evidence anew of the quality, expansiveness and variety of his genius. In it he discourses upon many things, some commonplace, some unusual, some extraordinary, all unique. He begins with Old Envelopes, continues with a discussion of the Front Door Bell, the Green Chair, Living Dogs and Dead Lions, New Brooms, A Good Wife and a Gallant Ship; then he pores over Odd Volumes like a confirmed devotee, advances to a consideration of such quaint and curious themes as Fish-Pens, Edged Tools, Old Photographs, A Box of Blocks and Piecrust, and he concludes very properly with a piece called "All's Well That Ends Well," which is not a critical examination of Shakespeare's matchless play, but the story of a ludicrous mix-up that also terminates very happily.

HEALTH TALKS

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.

BUILDING MATERIALS.

Of the three classes of food—fat, protein and carbohydrate—the protein alone, according to the older conception of nutrition students, was building material utilized in the growth and development of the body as well as the repair of wear. From this older idea grew the erratic notion that lean meat, which is chiefly protein, yields strength and energy and should therefore be the important part of the meal for an athlete or for one doing hard muscular work of any kind.

The body has two vital needs; first, for building material and repairs; second, for fuel. The nitrogenous foods (proteins) furnish the material for building, for nitrogen is an essential part of every cell in plant or animal. The carbonaceous foods (sugars, starches, fats) furnish the material for fuel, the oxidation or combustion of which in the body yields heat and energy.

The average adult require a minimum about two ounces of protein, according to the estimations of American physiologists, to maintain the repair of the body for twenty-four hours. In other words about two ounces daily maintains nitrogen equilibrium—which means that the body receives enough nitrogen to replace the nitrogene excreted from the body daily. According to some European nutrition authorities, Hindhede the Danish physiologist particularly, considerably less than two ounces of protein daily will keep an adult in good condition. When the protein ration falls below the amount necessary for nitrogen equilibrium, whether that be two ounces or one and one-half ounces daily, wasting and weakening will occur, in experimental or perhaps rare circumstances of deprivation, even while the body weight is increasing by the accumulation of fat. Here is a fact which should interest misinformed mothers.

Ounce for ounce, any form of sugar or starch yields precisely the same amount of energy as protein does, namely, about 125 calories (protein or carbohydrate having a fuel value of 4 calories to the gram.) So when it comes to working energy to sustain a laborer, an athlete or a tramp who actually tramps, a pound of sugar, candy, chocolate bar or cooked potato will serve as well as a pound of beef or eggs or cheese. Indeed, as I have often urged here, people who do hard muscular work play vigorously, or get plenty of general exercise may and should indulge freely in the sweets they naturally crave—and this applies particularly to children that play as hard as regular children ought to play. For children who keep dressed up pretty and are not permitted to indulge in rough play, the warnings against candy and sweets uttered by the doctors and child specialists should be heeded.

Protein is like clay—the material from which building material is made. To utilize the clay to build with—well, that's another story.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Exposure Brings Health.

Sometime ago I think you told about schools or sanitoriums where children are exposed to severe cold and rigorous outdoor treatment. I should like to know more about them. For what things are children sent to such places and up to what age are they taken?—Miss B. E.

Answer.—Not in my department. I have occasionally referred to open air schoolrooms, and sanitoriums or hospitals where the open air treatment for tuberculosis and other diseases is employed, and the Rollier or sun bath treatment. These involve no exposure to severe cold or rigorous conditions. The little ones are never subjected to discomfort nor permitted to suffer from cold.

General Streptococcus.

What is meant by a general streptococcus?—M. B. W.

Answer.—A kind of blood poisoning. The streptococcus is a type of germ which produces suppuration which has a tendency to spread through the system or at lest the germs tend to spread and set up inflammation or suppuration whereever they may lodge. Such infections often occurs from a focus of streptococcus infection about the throat or teeth or gums.

Confessions of a Columnist

Breaking Into Print

By O. O. McINTYRE.

The greatest joy a newspaper columnist gets out of his job is opening the morning mail. Of course, he is the target for many barbed shafts but as a general thing his correspondents are kind. Those who may have been provoked to wrath as a rule are anonymous and after all the anonymous letter is nothing to worry about. Scratch the anonymous letter writer and you generally find the dog poisoner.

The attempt to appeal to the public taste in newspapers for many years is one of the most pleasurable tasks I know. Experience has taught me the most difficult part of the job is the effort to prevent the repetitious and obvious monotony of subject. If I do not achieve mixed tempo I am chided.

If I touch upon the same subject twice I am rebuked. And now and then the job is so arduous that I want to jump up from my typewriter and scream. I know a versatile columnist who, in the throes of creation, often leaves his typewriter and touches the floor ten times just to try to stimulate a change of thought. Still, as I say, it is pleasant work and I believe adds a mite to the sum total of human happiness.

I have decided to pass along the subject matter of a day's mail just as it was opened. If the readers are like myself they like to read other people's letters even though in this case no names will be used. So here they are with comments of my own:

A Sad Case.

"I am a young man 19 years old and want to write for newspapers. Do you think I could become your assistant? I won two prize essay contests in my high school literary club."

I do not need an assistant, but there is no reason why you cannot write for newspapers. I am one of those foolish sentimentalists who believes a man can do almost anything—if he tries hard enough.

"Dear sir. This account is—"

Never mind that one! We'll skip it.

"I read in a newspaper periodical that you are contemplating a trip around the world. I am wondering if you need a secretary. I am 21 years old and am now employed as a stenographer in a produce house."

If I can rake up some money to pay the passage for myself and wife I am lucky. Stick to the produce business.

"You are a lover of dogs. Why don't you write something against vivisection? Don't you think it is a disgrace?

I think vivisection is cruel and have often lifted a feeble voice against it.

"Dear McIntyre: It seems to me this article falls short of the original intention that we discussed while I was in Americh. I am returning it, suggesting that you do it over. Can't you get a little more steam in the introduction? Your article before this was splendid, but this seems to lack the punch."

He is no doubt right but I will not do it over. Once having written an article I never want to see it again—not even in print.

"I don't know what you said about me in your column but it must have been flattering. That letter you forwarded me was from a girl in Montana, enclosing her photograph and trying to vamp me. At my age those things seem highly complimentary."

Well! Well!

"Noticing your reference to suspenders, I am sending you three pairs I know will please you."

Thanks. Now perhaps some pants maker will have an idea.

"It seems to me your literary output has never been of such a low order as those of the last week. Usually you are cheery and clever, but frankly, the last week you were terrible. Are you losing your fine touch?"

No, madam. I have had an ulcerated tooth.

"Do you know some nice, quiet hotel where one may secure a room and bath for $2 a day? I would like to be near the shopping district."

If I knew of such a hotel, I'd be living there myself.

"As chairman of the arrangement committee I am inviting you to be one of the speakers at the Eskay Social club of Grand street, on next Thursday evining. A dinner will be served at 7 o'clock."

They don't know what they are in for, but I'll accept. After all, a dinner is a dinner these days.

"I've been trying to get you on the telephone for three days. Some very impertinent person answers and always says you are not in and does not know when you will be. I have a letter to you from a friend of yours in Cincinnati. Will you be good enough to let me know what hour will be convenient?"

The "impertinent person' is a servant. She is a good servant too, but does not like to answer the telephone. Otherwise she is perfect.

"What about writing an article on the friendliness of New York? I am a buyer and come there three times a year. I never encountered such uniform courtesy as I find in your city."

I have written of this many times.

Telegram: "I am ashamed joking about spats. I didn't know that you wore them until I saw you leaving."

S'allright! I've been kidded by experts. After all, I have to do something to give the idea I am a city slicker.

This is a sure fire proposition. Your name has been given to us by a prominent banker and we want you in on the ground floor."

I've been in on the ground floor before but always found it was the cellar. You made one mistake. I do not know any prominent bankers.

Anonymous: "When you say that New York musical revues are appealing only to those who like salicious stuff you are telling a deliberate falsehood. Who are you anyway to set yourself up as an oracle for the theater?"

I'm just a country boy trying to get along but so far I have never written an anonymous letter.

"I have followed you for years. I have been with you to Europe, to California, to Mexico and to New York and I shed a tear with you over the loss of Junior. I know you are aman with a big generous heart and that is why I am writing you. I need money—not much—but enough to tide me over a bad period."

I might have known there was a catch somewhere.

"You wrote recently of having visited two roof bungalows. Can you tell me where they are situated? Are they open to the public?"

One is owned by Henry L. Doherty on State street and the other by Earl Carrol on Seventh avenue. They are private homes and not open to the public.

"I wish sometime you would visit the Automat and write of the interesting crowds you see there."

I'll do that some time. I'm at home there except when I have a sore thumb.

Postcard: "Constantinople: There is an inn here named after you—The Dumbell."

Is that so? Also one in England—The Fathead.

That, outside of a few circulars, composed the day's mail. The contents—somewhat delted—follow in sequence I submit that it is rather interesting. It is why the columnist is merry and bright.

Young Harris Students Aid In Forestry Preservation

Young Harris, Ga., May 3.—(Special.)—One of the features of "Forest Protection Week" in this section was the planting of about 5,000 red spruce seedlings on the north slopes of Enotah mountain, the highest peak in Georgia, by the forest rangers of the P. & V. Land Co., assisted by students and teachers of Young Harris college.

The first reforestation work in the state was begun on this massive mountain a few years ago, when Norway spruce was used in the experimental planting, officials say. This tree species is not native of Georgia, the southern boundry of the spruce belt being in North Carolina, but the Southern Appalachian Forest experiment station furnished the seedlings when B. H. Stone, forester and agent for the P. & V. Land Co., applied for the establishment of this forest plantation work. The first reforestation in Georgia has added a new tree species for the state.

Changes Predicted.

The spruce is growing well here, and as it requires higher altitudes in the southern part of its range, it has an ideal situation on Enotah mountain at the elevation of 4,800 feet, and even down to 3,500 feet above sea level. It is believed that a most interesting thing will happen as a result of continued growth and the development of spruce forest conditions here in Georgia, for as different plant and wild life is found in the spruce belt than is now found in these mountains further south, both the fauna and the flora will very probably be changed in the future in this immediate locality on account of this extension of the spruce forests southward.

Local interest in forest protection has been steadily increasing since 1915. The private forestry work, fire prevention and suppression methods, and the cooperative system of the land company have not only brought beneficial results on the 60,000 acres of timbered lands owned by this company, but all land owners in Towns and Union counties have profited by the work. Increased young growth, accelerated growth to larger trees, and the development of natural reproduction shows for itself in the absence of forest fires.

Fire Protection.

Prior to 1915 fully 60 per cent of these lands were burned over each year, but since protective work was begun at that time, and thinking citizens of these two counties began to lend cordial cooperation, this annual burned area has been reduced to an average of about one-tenth of 1 per cent. Lookout stations and patrolment give protection, therefore, to a much larger territory than is controlled by these owners, and their 100 miles of telephone lines in the two counties cover a larger territory than is covered by the government on both national forests in Georgia. The lookout station on Enotah mountain is the hub of this protective system, and many miles of graded trails also add to the effectiveness of this private forestry work.

College Students Assist.

The Young Harris Forestry club was organized two years ago with Dr. R. C. Coleman as president, and Prof. Grady Miller as secretary. Students of the college and members of the club enjoy week-end trips to lookout stations on several of the mountain peaks. Patrolmen's cabins are headquarters for hikes, and recreational trips are given over to useful work, such as helping plant the spruce seedlings. Students and teachers take an interest in fire prevention work also, and the boys have given aid when called upon to fight forest fires. The planting is done largely by the girl students, who accompany Miss Mary Sue Wakeford, history teacher in the college, on week-end trips to Enotah.

Young Harris college will close for the summer within a few weeks, and early in June the University of Georgia Forestry school will reopen the Enotah Forestry camp near the foot of the mountain for which the camp is named. Practical training is given students in the summer camp, and the University of Georgia has the free use of lands for educational purposes.

Brotherhood Class Of Fairburn Visit College Park Class

More than 50 members of the Brotherhood class of Fairburn, Ga., will be guests today of the Men's Bible class of the First Baptist church of College Park.

The Evangelistic club, of which J. M. McDaris is president, will have charge of the services at the evening hour. A special program, including the class quartet and the class orchestra, has been arranged for this hour.

On next Sunday a mothers' day service has been planned, in which the entire Sunday school of the church will participate. A special musical program is expected to feature this service.

ATLANTA TO OBSERVE NATIONAL MUSIC WEEK

Impressive services will mark the beginning today of Atlanta's observance of National Musical week. Sunday school members will gather on the steps of many of the largest churches for special song services, followed in the afternoon by a community musical service at Wesley Memorial church.

Throughout the week special programs will be rendered, civic organizations, prominent speakers, many of the leading stores and practically all music lovers of the city participating.

Dr. Sigmund Spaeth, widely known critic, author and lecturer of New York, will be principal speaker at a number of affairs, including the service at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon which is sponsored by the woman's division of the Chamber of Commerce. An elaborate musical program, participated in by leading artists of the city, will feature the afternoon service.

The Atlanta Symphony orchestra string quartet, under direction of Enrico Leide; Yaarab Chanters, led by Frank Cundell; a concert in Piedmont park, under direction of Signor Emilio Volpi; a number of concerts by other leading and well-known artists during the week, and a score of other features are scheduled.

Music stores, leading merchants, a number of churches and schools and other leading civic organizations will join in making the week in Atlanta a round of special musical attractions.

Daily Features.

Helen Knox Spain, general chairman in charge of the program for Atlanta, will be assisted by Mrs. A. C. Boatman this afternoon in hymn singing at the meeting at Wesley Memorial church.

An unusual feature of the week's program is the arrangement to give a concert each afternoon at 3:30 o'clock in Peachtree Arcade. Other daily features include radio programs.

At the service this afternoon the chorus of the Music club will sing "Night," written by Florence Colson, an Atlanta composer. This song will precede the address by Dr. Spaeth. Miss Lula Clark King will lead the chorus, with Mrs. Charles Chalmers, accompanist.

L. M. Lester Is Named Griffin School Head; Get Military Training

Griffin, Ga., May 3.—(Special.)—It was announced by the board of education today that they had unanimously selected L. M. Lester, of Fayetteville, superintendent of Griffin schools for the coming year, to succeed J. A. Jones, who resigned recently after filling the position for the past thirteen years.

The local board of education has been advised that Griffin High school has been granted government aid in military training under the national defense act, section 56.

"My Rheumatism is gone—"

There's glorious joy in knowing this—that more Red-Blood-Cells stops Rheumatism, and that S.S.S. builds Blood-Cells.

"There are thousands of you men and women, just like myself, slaves to rheumatism, muscle pains, joint pains, and horrible stiffness. I had the wrong idea about rheumatism for 15 years. I didn't realize that increasing blood-cells had the effect of completely knocking out rheumatic impurities from the system. That is why I began using S. S. S.! Say what you will, I never knew such startling results were possible. Well, folks, besides knocking out my rheumatism it gave me back some of the strength I used to have way back! I've got a better color in my face, my appetite is dandy. I don't use my crutches any more. I'm walking around straight-up on two young legs!" S. S. S. makes people talk about themselves the way it builds up their strength. By building blood-cells it builds nerve strength for young folks who ought to have more, and for older people who have little. It stops pimples, boils, blackheads, eczema, chases away blood impurities. You can always rely on it. Start S. S. S. today for that rheumatism. You'll feel the difference shortly. S. S. S. is sold at all good drug stores. The large size is the more economical.

ELINOR GLYN'S 3 WEEKS AT THE METROPOLITAN

That immortal romance of Elinor Glyn's "Three Weeks," for which the public has long awaited in cinema form, will be offered by the Metropolitan theater this week.

And in all of those intimate touches and dramatic appeal for which the book is noted, its transference to the screen has lost none of the strong appeal, its finely developed plot or its thrill in episodes.

There are few who are not familiar with this great story—the incident of the Tiger skin, the revels of the Sardalian court, the Swiss romance, Venice nights breathing love and danger, the spy, the fight in the canal, the lover's revenge and then those fastly developed episodes that bring the story to a whirlwind finish.

It has been called by many the greatest love story of all time. Certainly it is one which will live forever, and now that it has come to the screen in all of its force and splendor, it undoubtedly will prove a cinema classic, just as the world pronounced it in written form a deathless masterpiece.

It brings a notable cast of characters, outstanding in which are Conrad Nagel and Aileen Pringle. The strong supporting cast includes such actors as John Sainpolis, H. Reeves-Smith, Helen Dunbar and Stuart Holmes.

For its presentation Enrico Leide has arranged an exceptional musical program, beginning with his overture, "The Fortune Teller," by Victor Herbert, in which he leads his brilliant orchestra into fresh triumph.

Mr. Leide chose this selection for the Metropolitan overture because it is by an American composer, in observance of National Music week.

"In the Garden of Tomorrow," by Jesse L. Deppen, is the musical theme for the picture and its rendition by the popular director and his orchestra adds materially to the enjoyability of the great picture. It, too, was written by an American composer and rounds out the all-American program.

Fun From the Press and Metropolitan Kinograms are among other features of the splendid program.

"Beauty is health—and health is beauty," says Mae Murray, the vivacious screen star who will appear on the screen at Alamo No. 2 this week in her big success "The French Doll." "What benefits the one is beneficial to the other, for the two that it is impossible to deal with one are to my mind so closely connected without considering the other.

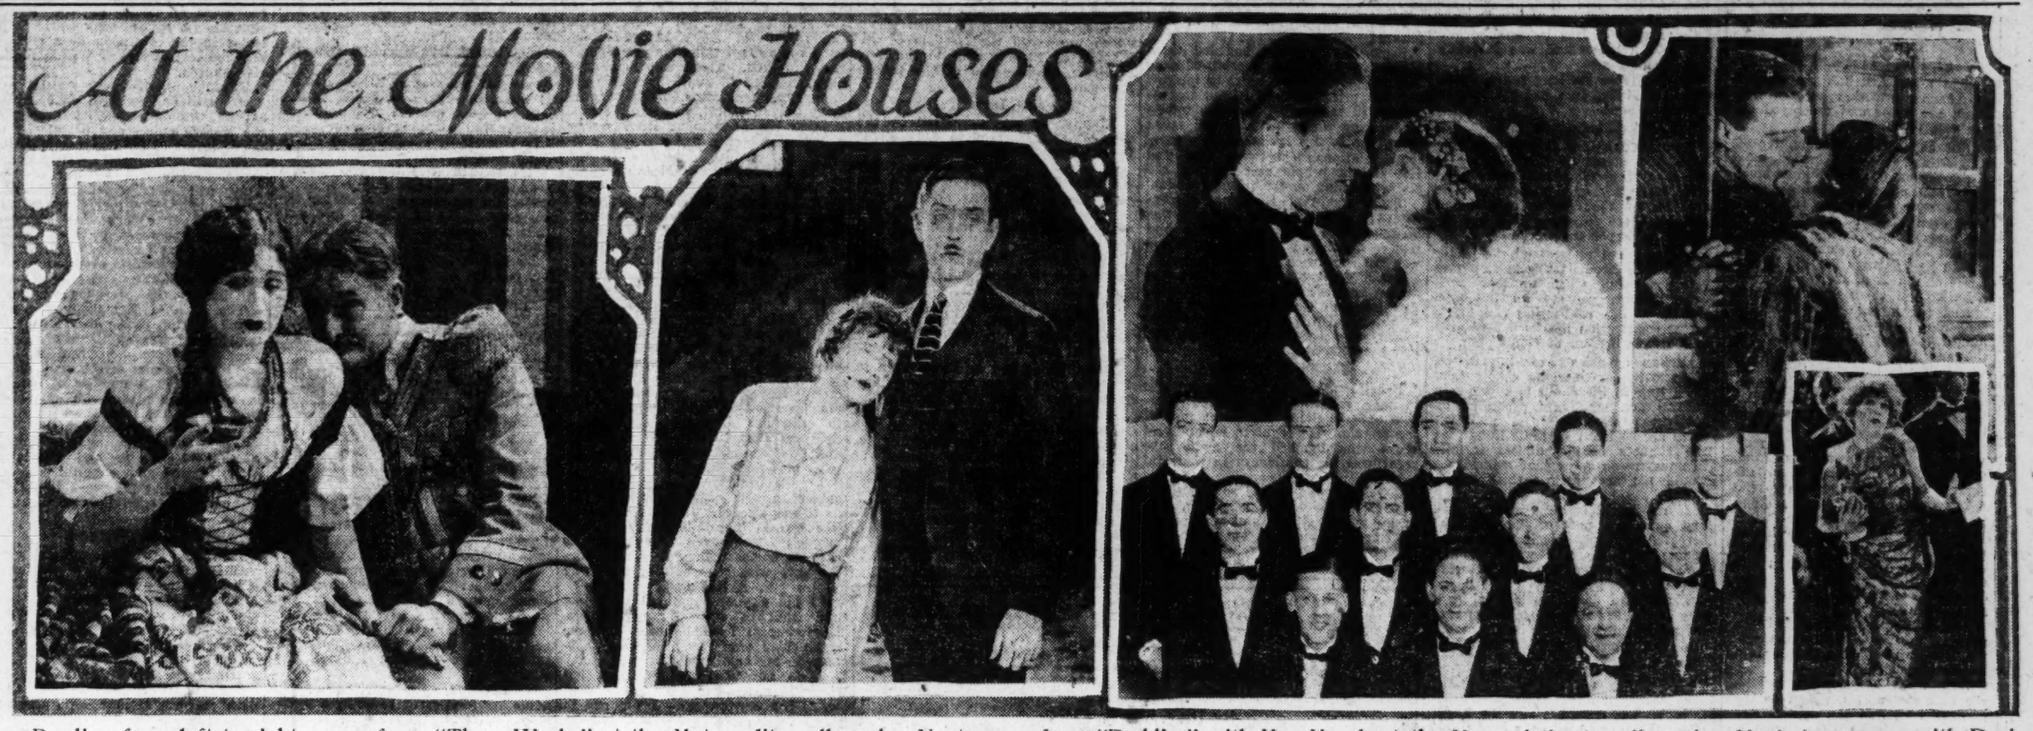

"Therefore, when I mention dancing as my first aid to beauty, I mean it is also my first aid to good health. Dancing has always been an all around solace to me. It has given me the most complete mental and physical relaxation. There is the mental joy of creation, devising new steps, expressing new emotions, living other people's lives.

"Then there is the physical pleasure, the thrill that comes when one has fully awakened to the joy of life."

Miss Murray's theory is well brought out in "The French Doll," the screen version of the famous stage play which ran on Broadway for a record run. The supporting cast includes Rod La Roque, Orville Caldwell, Willard Louis, Bernard Randall and others.

On Thursday and Friday Johnnie Hines will be shown in his latest laugh provoking comedy drama entitled "Conductor 1492," and Saturday's attraction will be a new thrill picture featuring Richard Talmadge.

At the Movie Houses

BELASCO'S "DADDIES" HOWARD'S ATTRACTION

Taken From Great Stage Success, Starring Mae Marsh.

"Daddies" is the story of five bachelors. No, there is no inconsistency here. See the "daddies" were all bachelors to begin with, confirmed and foresworn champions of the state of single blessedness. They became daddies by adopting a bevy of war orphans. The process of making an honest-to-goodness dad out of a determined bachelor is exemplified in all its delicious humor in the screen version of David Belasco's great stage success, "Daddies," at the Howard all this week.

The story opens with five heart-free college men who decide that there shall be no place for women in their happy journeys through life. They thereupon form a bachelor club, which demands a $5,000 contribution from any member who seeks his release from the club for matrimonial purposes.

From its inception the club is a success. However, certain women members of the club members' semi-immediate family bring pressure to bear upon the theme of selfishness which they claim the club typifies. In a measure to deflect this torrent of criticism the members decide to adopt a war orphan each. Then the fun begins. Jumping into the sacred state of fatherhood by the adoption route has its complications. The situations are mirth-provoking in the extreme. These situations finally reach a climax where the would-be bachelors agree that "the hand that rocks the cradle" is a mighty necessary appendage to have about the house on a squally night. The picture comes to a finish in as pleasing a solution of the problems presented as could be wished.

"Daddies" is presented by a most capable cast, including Harry Myers, Mae Marsh and other prominent screen celebrities. Willard Louis and Claude Gillingwater head the supporting cast.

This week has been designated as National Music week and in support of this great movement Conductor Buel B. Risinger will present an all-American potpourri under the caption of "East, West, North and South," with contrasted melodies from these sections of our country. Needless to say some old favorite southern sings will be included. Some of the selections are "Way Down East," "Bambalina," "The West," "Natoma," "Home, Sweet Home," "Yankee Doodle," and then Mr. Risinger goes to the south with his melodies and you are left to guess what they are.

"The Ballad of Fishers' Boarding House" is the Howard petite drama. It is a one-reel drama of life taken from Rudyard Kipling's famous poem.

Vincent Lopez Juniors Jazz orchestra, coming direct from New York, will be the prologue. When the patrons of the Howard hear this orchestra they will be hearing the most famous boys band in the world. All the members of this orchestra are between the ages of 16 and 18. The boys appear on the stage in Eaton suits and will be seen on the streets in the same attire. Vincent Lopez is the author of many of the most popular dance pieces of today and has one of the most famous orchestras in the country. He got the idea of making a famous boy band and started to work training the boys he selected. When at last he finished with their instruction he called the critics in to hear them and they pronounced them "great." The bringing of this band to Atlanta is another achievement for the Howard in exclusive stage attractions.

TOM MIX AT LOEW'S IN "LONE STAR RANGERS"

A Thrilling Western Texas Ranger Story.

Tom Mix, beloved king of the saddle, and "Tony," his wonder horse, will be at Loew's Grand theater all this week in one of the most thrilling stories of the plains ever written. It is Zane Grey's novel, "The Lone Star Ranger," and the screen adaptation of the story has lost none of the thrills that readers will remember in this great book.

It is the story of the life of the Texas Rangers who went out to get their man despite hazard and obstacle. It is such a stirring, hard riding part, replete with romance that has made Tom the famous actor he is. Lamber Hill, who directed the picture, took his company to the plains of Texas that he might instill into the picture every element of beauty and interest that has become traditional to the Lone Star State.

There is not a dull moment in this photoplay, and the acting is so realistic that it will seem as if the virile, robust cowboy is appearing in person.

The story opens with Tom Mix in the role of Duane, an outlaw who is feared in every part of Texas. Texas Rangers are on his trail and at last the bandit is captured. And then a sporting proposition is made by the Texas Rangers. Duane is told if he will break up a famous band that has terrorized Texas he will be given his pardon. Just how Duane accomplishes this is just one thrill after another. There is a love theme in the picture which makes it all the more interesting.

"The Lone Star Ranger," the famous story by Zane Grey and which story William Fox has made into such an excellent screen production, has been read by 10,000,000 people since its publication in 1915. The noted author's work has been through more than seventeen editions and from the demand that still exists it is likely that it will pass through many more before it is finally shelved.

It is a story of life on the plains of Texas that is most realistic, with thrilling moments aplenty, and Tom Mix is the one screen star who is best able to carry the lead in this wonderful story. There are moments in the picture that will make you find yourself right on the edge of your seat from excitement. It is a thriller of the highest order.

Bille Dove, the feminine lead, formerly was with the Ziegfeld Follies and her sterling screening qualities speak well of Mr. Fox's selection. Her support is flawless. Others in the cast besides "Tony," the wonder horse, are L. C. Shumway, Stanton Heck, Ed Peil, Frank Clark, William Conklin, Minna Redman, Tom Lingham and Francis Carpenter.

In all the picture, "The Lone Star Ranger," will provide the best entertainment that has been seen in Atlanta in many months. It is one of the best pictures in which the king of the saddle has starred, and you can't afford to miss it.

"RESTLESS WIVES" IS RIALTO'S FEATURE

Atlanta-Made Film, "The Reporter," Is Added Attraction.

A story full of emotional fervor, interspersed liberally with comedy touches makes of "Restless Wives," the feature screen attraction at the Rialto theater this week, a compellingly interesting screen drama, replete with romance and thrilling adventure.

In addition to this film cinema achievement the Rialto presents this week an Atlanta-made motion picture, full of Atlanta scenes and Atlanta people, as an added feature to the splendid program.

It is entitled "The Reporter," having to do with the vicissitudes of an industrious newspaper man, whose work leads him into many parts of the city, thus affording many different scenes that will at once be familiar to Atlantans.

It is a comedy, produced by recognized film leaders who have been at work on Atlanta streets for several weeks with clicking cameras and painted actors. The cast, with the exception of the leading man and leading woman, is made up entirely of Atlanta talent.

"Restless Wives" is a society melodrama with a new slant on marital perplexities. Many screen favorites appear in its cast, outstanding among whom are Doris Kenyon, James Rennie and Montagu Love.

It is a story true to life of today, the story of a good-hearted young wife who is buffeted about by the influence of society friends, the wild, restless life of pleasure-seekers anxious for new thrills.

Polly Morrison, who is portrayed by Doris Kenyon, is the super-product of a restless age. She was spoiled by an indulgent, spendthrift father and when she weds she stakes all on love with the same reckless spirit of sportsmanship that she has played every game in life.

But she found this a much more difficult game—one not so easy to is unconquerable and the way it is done makes "Restless Wives" a living, pulsing story of a soul. Don't miss it.

Theatre Talk

CONDUCTED by LORENZO JONES JR.

'THE HUMMING BIRD' AT LYRIC THIS WEEK

All those who thought the Lyric Players could not keep up the pace set in "The Love Child" last week are destined to delightful disillusionment when they see Wilfred Lytell, Isabelle Lowe and the rest of the company in "The Humming Bird" this week.

The play is the same one which Maude Fulton wrote and starred in at the Ritz theater, New York, and in a triumphant trans-continental tour and the same one which was the basis for the photoplay in which Atlantans recently saw Gloria Swanson at the Howard theater.

Miss Isabelle Lowe is to be "Toinette," the fascinating mixture of lilacs and TNT whom dramatic critics have called the greatest feminine character of the modern stage. The dual personality gives Miss Lowe a superb vehicle.

Lytell as Reporter.

Mr. Lytell is to be "Philip Carey," the New York newspaper cub reporter who falls in love with Toinette before he knows that the adorable shop-girl is the notorious French desperado, "The Humming Bird," who he is trying to capture.

Gus Forbes is to be "Charlot," the Parisian Apache and lover of "Toinette" during her career as queen of the underworld and who follows her in her flight to America to protect her from the pursuing police and to press his hopeless love.

Will Lloyd has the role of "General LeFerriere," whose battered armies had been saved from rout at the gates of Paris by the brigade of cutthroats rallied by "The Humming Bird" from the dives of the city to serve La France in her hour of direst need. He, like young Carey, was unaware that the saviour of Paris and the dangerous and elusive "Humming Bird" were one and the same small girl. He leads the hunt to bring her to justice and to the gallows for a hundred crimes charged against her.

Miss Loraine Bernard, Miss Marion White, Miss Jane Stuart, Rankin Mansfield, Stuart Beebe and Robert Smiley all figure prominently in the events of Toinette's escape to America, her brilliant thrust to establish a new name and new respectability for herself in a land where she thought her lurid past would be unknown, and in the spectacular clash of plot and counterplot which brings her into the shadow of the guillotine.

Brilliant Production.

Like "The Love Child," this week's offering is to be a "production de luxe." The action transpires in an artist's studio in Greenwich village, in a fashionable modiste's shop on Fifth avenue and in the luxurious drawing room of a society leader. The feminine members of the company had received Saturday an array of gowns more elaborate than they have worn in any former production, all models in the latest fashion note of spring. Stage settings such as are usually seen only in fashionable New York theaters at prices five to ten times as high as Lyric prices had been contrived for the week.

"Ladies' Bargain Night" is still to be observed for the opening performance and advance seat sales through Saturday night indicated that the usual capacity attendance would greet "The Humming Bird's" premiere at the Lyric. A number of choice seats will still be available when the box office opens Monday morning.

Advance sales for other performances during the week were unusually heavy although it was said to be certain that good accommodations could be provided for late-comers at all performances except, probably, the Monday night performance. Thursday night will afford the best chance for getting choice orchestra seats without advance reservations.

BALDWIN PLAYERS WILL PLAY BROADWAY JONES

Romaine Callendar Is New Member of Company at the Atlanta Theater.

This week the Baldwin Players will present at the Atlanta theater the biggest thing they have yet attempted, the production of "Broadway Jones," the amazingly popular George M. Cohan success in which Cohan himself took the lead when it played on the "Great White Way."

And all details of the performance will be as nearly perfect as the ingenuity of the talented players can make them under the expert direction of Jack Hayden, who supervises such things.

John B. Litel, always popular, will appear in the best role he has had since his return to Atlanta, in the "name role," the characterizaton that Cohan himself filled on Broadway.

Miss Selena Royle, beautiful and talented, should appear to excellent advantage in the feminine lead, a characterization that is expected to add materially to her constantly increasing host of admirers.

Another thing: "Broadway Jones" will witness the return to Atlanta of Romaine Callendar, who helped John B. Litel make stock history when the two were together in the Forsyth Players a year and a half ago. Callendar is fresh from "Merton of the Movies," which closed recently after a run of 81 consecutive weeks on Broadway.

Heavy reservations for "Broadway Jones" already have been made, but Manager Baldwin announces that numbers of choice seats are still available for those who call early.

"The Breaking Point."

(Coming Soon.)

Patsy Ruth Miller gained her first experience in the world's most difficult theater. At the age of fourteen, she created roles for herself anl played them in real life.

Dreaming of a theatrical career from her earliest days, the charming young Paramount actress who is featured wfth Nita Naldi, George Fawcett and Matt Moore in the Herbert Brenon Paramount production, "The Breaking Point," to be shown at the Howard theater soon, seized every opportunity to play various characters which presented themselves to her imagination.

It was the custom of the Miller family to spend vacations at popular health resorts. Whenever Patsy Ruth Miller found herself safely away from home circles in St. Louis, she created a new character for herself and acted it for the benefit of new acquaintances at the resort. One year she was a South American refugee. Another year she presented herself as the daughter of a Russian revolutionary. Her fertile imagination was never at a loss for colorful roles to portray. Her chief interest lay in making strangers believe she was several years older than she actually was. For this purpose she made raids upon her mother's wardrobe. She was so successful in adding to her age that her new acquaintances never doubted her stories.

In "The Breaking Point" Miss Miller plays a role which she considers offers her greater opportunities than any she has yet played.

Romaine Callender In Atlanta After 12 Months' Absence

With the presentation this week of "Broadway Jones," the Baldwin players will again introduce to Atlanta a stock actor whose popularity with Atlanta theatergoers ranks side by side with that of John B. Litel, popular leading man, in the person of Romaine Callendar, late of "Merton of the Movies," the big Broadway hit, and formerly of the Forsyth players before that stock organization moved from the Forsyth to the Lyric theater.

The return of Mr. Callendar to Atlanta is considered a distinct tribute to the managerial ability of Walter Baldwin, director of the Baldwin players, who directed both Litel and Callendar when that pair was working side by side with the Forsyth players.

When Romaine Callendar left Atlanta in the late summer of 1922 he carried with him the friendship of scores of Atlanta people who liked him as an actor and almost loved him personally.

He went to New York and there became the temperamental director in the cast of "Merton of the Movies," the success that "made" Glenn Hunter, the star. And when the New York critics saw the show they gave Callendar almost as much credit as they gave Hunter.

"Merton" closed Saturday night a week ago and went to London. Callendar had his choice—London or Atlanta—and he took Atlanta, which satisfied everybody except London.

Romaine Callendar ranks today as one of the leading supporting actors on the American stage. Of a stage family, his father was a distinguished English actor and playwright, he has been closely associated with theatricals all of his life and during his career has played with practically every stage celebrity of modern times.

In "Broadway Jones," the production for the Atlanta theater this week, he is given a splendid opening vehicle for his return to Atlanta.

"Broadway Jones" is a big George M. Cohan success in which Cohan himself took the "lead" on Broadway. John Litel, of course, will do the honors in the Cohan role, but Callendar, as second man, will have abundant opportunities, as will the remainder of the cast.

It ought to be a good show, made doubly enjoyable by the fact that Romaine Callendar will again be in the cast.

Six hundred Americans are writing to an equal number of Germans as a result of the efforts of the German Central Office for German-American correspondence, opened in Leipsic, by Professor Hartmann, as a means of learning German and English.

President James R. Angell, of Yale University, recently made the remark that his college is not a rich man's college and approximately one-third of the undergraduates are earning a part or all of their expenses.

COMEDY ACT HEADS KEITH'S VAUDEVILLE

Modern photography has relegated the old-fashioned tintype into the discard. But its memory is far from extinct, as is shown in the act of Chic York and Rose King, who are using it as a basis for an eccentric bit of comedy patter and song as the headlining feature of the vaudeville program at Keith's Forsyth theater the first three days of this week.

This couple of novelty entertainers have taken one of these old pictures of the long ago and engaged in pertinent conversation and pertinent songs. Their stage presence is splendid and their performance is thoroughly enjoyable.

In using "The Old Family Tintype" as the title for the decidedly modern song and pattery, they have created something new, in fact it is a genuine novelty.

Also the bill includes the El Rey sisters in a scintillating dance revue. Now dancing efficiency is by no means uncommon. There are any number of artistic dancers, but there are very few who accomplish their graceful maneuvers on skates. Among the foremost of these few are the El Rey sisters. As dancers they can easily hold their own in most any company and as skaters they are probably unexcelled. They have combined the two into a pleasing bit of vaudeville.

The greatest male singing organization in the world was composed of a group of Welsh coal miners. Every member of the Fort Nash choir was a miner. So Pennsylvania has followed suit, her coal fields providing an exceptionally fine male quartet, which is another act on the bill.

Each of the singers has been a miner. During a recent labor disorder they sang publicly to raise funds for their cause. They were "discovered" and success in vaudeville came instantaneously.

Chong and Rosie Moey present their Chinese version of American songs and dances in a fast number. They have chosen for their selection the most popular of the present jazz melodies and are offering them in a way few Americans could beat.

Another feature of this act is the fancy hand embroidered and gorgeously colored costumes of the team.

Walter Gilbert, the "talkative contortionist," proves himself very versatile in his skit in which he does a little bit of this and a little bit of that.

A Pathe news reel and an installment of Aesop's Fables complete the program.

MUSICAL NOVELTY ACT TOPS LOEW'S PROGRAM

"Polly's Pearls," one of the biggest vaudeville acts to come to Atlanta this season, will be seen at Loew's Grand theater this week as the headline attraction of a splendid bill of vaudeville. A one-act musical novelty it is, with two scenes and cast of six. On the other hand the management offers Tom Mix, king of the saddle, in "The Lone Star Ranger," one of the most thrilling stories ever written.

"Polly's Pearls," which has been enthusiastically received in the north and east, is an act that is full of songs, musical numbers and comedy, and the songs and music are new. Starring in this production are George Taylor, the Rogers sisters and Julia Dunbar, a quartet of artists who are well known on the vaudeville stage. "Polly's Pearls" is a different kind of vaudeville act, and in this respect it will prove most entertaining. There is not a dull moment in the two scenes.

The Three Rounders have an act that is called "A Harmony Cocktail With a Dash of Mirth," and it is just that. There is just loads of harmony in this skit and just enough fun to make it the more entertaining. The Three Rounders are true exponents of harmony and they introduce songs that the audience likes. From start to finish this act will just naturally win you. When it comes to harmony "The Three Rounders" have "nothing else but."

Caufield, Ritchie and company have a boy and girl revue that is fifteen minutes of real entertainment. It is different from the song and dance revue in that the real keynote of the act is dancing. Mr. Caulfield and Miss Ritchie will be found to be two of the cleverest dancers ever seen on a local vaudeville stage. With this company is Buddie Pagglucca, whose work at the piano will prove a big feature of the act. Pagglucca is said to be one of the best pianists touring a vaudeville circuit.

Belle and LeClair take you down to New York's East Side and the Bowery in their skit, "The Tryout." These two artists take off the characters of a Bowery tough and his girl in true Bowery style. They sing and they dance, and their dancing is eccentric in the extreme. There is some real fun in this sketch and Belle and LeClair promise to be one of the big hits of the bill.

The Bellis Duo are acrobats who stroll from the beaten path and give some new stunts that will prove most entertaining. They are strictly novelty acrobats and their stunts are sure to bring a great deal of applause.

Tom Mix has one of the greatest parts of his career as an outlaw and then a member of the Texas Rangers in the photoplay, "The Lone Star Ranger." He is supported by Tony, his famous horse, and Miss Billie Dove, the Follies beauty.

Paramount's "Triumph."

That critical minds can find no fault with the realism displayed in Cecil B. DeMille's new picture, "Triumph," is the claim made by those who have seen the new Paramount production.

Instead of acts built on the studio stage, many of the most important scenes of this picture were shot in the actual locale. A tremendous can factory, pounding out millions of the tin containers each year, the ball and banquet rooms of what is now one of the world's largest hotels, the new Los Angeles Biltmore, the glittering barber shop of that same building and an actual modiste's shop, appear with all the distinctive paraphernalia.

LOPEZ'S JAZZ JUNIORS AT HOWARD THEATER

When Vincent Lopez's Junior Jazz orchestra comes to the Howard Monday Atlantans will have the opportunity of hearing the most famous boys' orchestra in the world. All the members of this orchestra are between the ages of 16 and 18 years, and every one of them play for the sheer love of the music they are playing.

The boys appear on the stage in Eton suits and also on the street in the same style of clothing. They are accompanied by a chaperon who enforces the rules of their clean living which have been set down by Vincent Lopez, the "daddy" of jazz music.

Vincent Lopez is the author of many of the most popular dance pieces of today, and has one of the most famous orchestras in the country. He got the idea of making a famous boy band and started to work training the boys he selected. He worked and worked with them until he had them perfect and then called in the music critics to listen to them play. The critics were unanimous in their praise of the boys' work.

The bringing of this band to Atlanta is another achievement for the Howard theater in exclusive attractions.

BOOK REVIEWS IN TABLOID

The Story of a Great Schoolmaster. Being a plain account of the life and ideas of Sanderson of Oundle, by H. G. Wells, and of whom the author writes, "I think him beyond question the greatest man I have ever known with any degree of intimacy."

Mr. Wells has woven his story around F. W. Sanderson, headmaster of the Oundle school, whose new ideas in education are attractive as well as practical.

So it is around this English schoolmaster, also a friend, that this great writer of "Outline of History," which has been voted the most popular book since 1900, pours out the inspiration of his heart in a biography of Sanderson of Oundle.

Mr. Wells and the great schoolmaster, were not unlike, they had many things in common, both possessing ideals that brought them close together, and it is not strange that the author should select him for the subject for this wonderful story.

Another strong point in this book is its influence in the cause of education, portraying the ideals of the schoolmaster who fearlessly and unhesitatingly turned away from long established customs and cherished traditions in an effort to broaden his work in the school room by training the minds of the young that life is worth while if lived along the right lines.

As one of the critics writes, "What Mr. Sanderson sought to accomplish for education in England will be found, after all, to differ little from what has been often attempted, and with some success, in America. The introduction of the scientific method into all branches of study is something we have heard much about in recent years. The laboratory method of instruction is no novelty today."

As is well known it has been for many years a very earnest work of men and women to bring into the bounds of the schools—preparatory schools and colleges—the ideas and the practical thoughts of the great outside world so that when the students—boys and girls—leave the school room for the work for which they have been trained, they present knowledge, confidence, and "at home" appearance which has heretofore been unknown to the graduate.

Mr. Wells shows in his work his admiration and friendship for the man who has been able to accomplish this—it is always the men behind the methods and schemes and problems who are analyzed and summed us as much as the work they have presented for the benefit of their fellow man. MacMillan Co. New York.

JOHN BURROUGHS.

The Real John Burroughs. By William Sloane Kennedy. Illustrations with photographs. Anything written about the great naturalist whose pictures are known to every school child, therefore, this new book will be appreciated by lovers of Burroughs and lovers of nature, and no figure stands out more attractively than that of the man who has been given praise by the whole world.

In this book Mr. Kennedy tries to lift Burroughs out of the false trappings with which he has been clothed and the result is that the real John Burroughs proves to be a greater, a bigger, and a more lovable character than ever before. In this story it has been the author's aim to write the truth as he knew it, and his long association with and friendship for Burroughs places him in a position to present the truth before the lovers of this great man.

Realizing that in his nature studies he had failed to make them complete he requested the author to prepare a study on the nightingale. This he has done and it is a beautiful and rare description of the nightingale and its songs in its various haunts in Italy and England, including two of Burroughs' favorite poems and several specimens of his little known but pretty verses on birds and flowers. Funk and Wagnalls Company, New York.

John Burroughs and the Nightingale. Nature lovers have always wondered at the lack of descriptive material of the nightingale, the acknowledged leader among all of the song birds of the world. Probably nothing which holds such a commanding position in its particular sphere has had so little written about it.

Even John Burroughs, great naturalist that he was, devoted but scant attention to the nightingale. Realizing this deficiency in his writings, he especially requested William Sloane Kennedy to prepare a literary description and esthetic study of the nightingale and its song in its various haunts in Italy and England. The carrying out of Mr. Burroughs' request fills in a conspicuous gap in Burroughs' bird studies, and provides lovers of nature with a most charming and splendidly vivid description of the nightingale and its song—the only one of its kind.

Mr. Kennedy has incorporated this study in his new volume. This new volume is a memoir fresh, fearless, and virile in tone, a personal recollection and a just estimate of the great naturalist. Above all, it is an honest criticism and appraisal of a man who has suffered, as have others before him, from too fulsome praise. It portrays Burroughs not only as the author saw and knew him, but as Burroughs portrayed himself through his own letters to the author.

Because they shed much light on Burroughs' character, Mr. Kennedy has included two of Burroughs' favorite poems and several specimens of his little-known though pretty poems on birds and flowers.

The whole tone of the book is befitting the character of the man about whom it was written—simple, straightforward, keen, and irresistibly attractive. Mr. Kennedy pictures the great naturalist's life in his various surroundings, and stresses the points in his character which have made him an international figure. It is a complete study and one which lovers of Burroughs and lovers of nature will revel in.

COTTON.

"Cotton," by Edna Turpin, is a subject that appeals to the south—it has been the glory of the south. There is no fairy tale that is more beautiful than the story of King Cotton; there is no plant that is more beautiful than the cotton plant from the time its leaves begin to sprout, then the blooms, then the bolls and then the beautiful fleecy white blossom bursts through its bond in all its glory. It has ben proven that no other plant can take the place of cotton.

The people of the south, much less of other sections, do not know the real value of the cotton plant, how valuable it is from the time it blooms to the time it takes its place in one position or another all over the whole country. The only way to realize its value is to try to do without the many things that are made from the cotton plant. Let some member of a community have a "cottonless" party and find out what a lonely party it would be without this product.

This little book gives the story of the world's greatest asset—it is the world's greatest clothing material and one of its greatest history makers. The south claims the cotton plant, out generously gives its product to the whole world.

As to the facts surrounding this priceless gift, we leave that for other writers, though the book is really a valuable sketch of American history. It begins to weave a beautiful story around King Cotton, tells how cotton became a rival in the Land of Wool, in fact the whole story is told here—no, not the whole story, for there will be chapters and chapters in the future telling of the value of the cotton plant.

The illustrations begin with cotton blossoms and bolls—like the beautiful orange blossoms of Florida there are buds, blossoms, green and ripe bolls all at the same time.

The Constitution has so many requests for the beautiful tribute paid to the cotton plant by Henry W. Grady, that we are reproducing it herewith:

The Cotton Plant.

What a royal plant it is!

The world waits in attendance on its growth.

The shower that falls whispering on its leaves is heard around the earth.

The sun that shines on it is tempered by the prayers of all people.

The frost that chills it and the dew that descends from the stars is noted, and the trespass of a little worm on its green leaf is more to England than the advance of the Russian army on her Asian outposts.

It is gold from the instant it puts forth its tiny shoot. Its fibre is current in every bank, and when loosing its fleece to the sun, it floats a banner that glorifies the field of the humble farmer; that man is marshaled under a flag that will compel the allegiance of the world, and wring tribute from every nation on earth.

It is the heritage that God gave to this people forever as their own when He arched our skies, established our mountains, girt us about with the ocean, loosed the breezes, tempered the sunshine, and measured the rain.

Ours and our children's forever.

As princely a talent as ever came from His hand to mortal stewardship.

A POPULAR BOOK ON ETIQUETTE.

A new book has recently been published covering a much discussed subject—a subject perhaps that has always been of special interest, it may have been discussed a great deal in colonial days—but just at this time it is not only much discussed—perhaps too much discussed from one point of view, and it may be that too many books have been written about it, many of the younger generation may be giving too much time to it, some may think, but, after all, it is a very important subject if rightly discussed at this time, and a very important subject to be distributed if written as a publication by the right author, and has the right publishers.

Upon receiving "Vogue's Book of Etiquette," published by the editors of Vogue, we realized that we were handling a new style book, but without any pause we plunged into it knowing that as usual Vogue was giving its readers something worth while, though this time on the subject of etiquette.

A recent letter from Conde Nast, publisher, is almost as interesting as the book itself, and for which reason we are giving one paragraph below:

"Vogue disapproves of the conception of etiquette as a code of formal laws, the violation of which means social damnation—a conception which has grown out of the many advertisements scaring people into buying books which will supposedly give them savior faire for every occasion. Vogue believes that good manners are founded on right feeling, so its Book of Etiquette not only sets forth what people of the best breeding do under certain circumstances, but the reasons for their behavior, the philosophy of polite manners."

The handsome volume of nearly 600 pages presents the present day customs of social intercourse with the rules for their correct observance, and the best talent of Vogue's editors has been devoted to the development of a book which has the highest position ever bestowed on Miss Etiquette.

As is well known, Vogue represents the correct thing in everything—that means from the best society of generations now passed, and it is, therefore, far superior to anything that has been contributed to the world of etiquette.

When social customs change, when styles change, and when books change, Vogue is always to be found the leader, and it can be relied upon not only in the matters of dress, but it is an authority on the subject of when to wear them, what style should be for different occasions, and what the conduct of the wearer should be on these occasions.

Chapter III on general behavior—"In Street, Shop and Office"—is very important in the instructions it tries to impress upon the reader. "Manners in the Street" is just as important as "Manners at the Table." "Conversation and Character" is another important subject.

There are 32 chapters and each chapter covers a very important feature written by those who were instilled in the ways of polite society generations ago, and the book should be a worthwhile book in every home. Another very important chapter is "Conventions of Washington Official Society;" "Etiquette in Other Countries," etc.

Conde Nast Publications, New York. Price $4.00.

SHAKING THE DUST.

Harris Jay Griston has written an authentic renovation of "The Merchant of Venice" with a most interesting preface by Dr. Daniel A. Huebsch.

This volume has been given many complimentary press notices, among them being the following:

"To say that the book is revolutionary is putting it lightly. But, withal, it is founded on a logic and a careful study of the play which cannot be denied. The theory advanced is of more than casual interest to the student of Shakespeare, and the possibilities are innumerable. Sufficient to say that they will interest any student of Shakespeare. The volume is well worth perusing."

"As Dr. Huebsch points out in his preface, Mr. Griston, courageously and with no faltering hand, does brush off the dust of generally accepted notions some three centuries old in his treatment of 'The Merchant of Venice' . . . clear presentation of facts should be known to all who read 'The Merchant of Venice' . . . for the sake of truth and justice, may its readers be legion."

"Your production certainly contains some interesting and valuable material . . . Personally, I feel that you have shown beyond all reasonable doubt that the story of the play originated in the fourth century."

Another very attractive criticism of the book is written by one who thoroughly understands the whys and wherefores of "The Merchant of Venice." A clear-eyed, clear-minded young lawyer looks at Shakespeare with the dust-covered spectacles of tradition. What he sees in the fresh, amazing, but undeniable truth regarding "The Merchant of Venice"—invisible heretofore to the critics and scholars of the past three centuries, is worth reading.

The book is interesting rather than dull. Shylock, Portia and Antonio take their true places, play their roles in fine style, and the lovers of "The Merchant of Venice" will have new ideas presented for their admiration and appreciation. (Cosmopolis Press, New York.)

HOW I CAME TO WRITE "DOCTOR DOOLITTLE."

By Hugh Lofting.

My children at home wanted letters from me—and they wanted them with illustrations rather than without. There seemed very little of interest to write to youngsters from the front: the news was either too horrible or too dull. And it was all censored. One thing, however, that kept forcing itself more and more on my attention was the very considerable part the animals were playing in the world war and that as time went on they too seemed to become fatalists.

Oftentimes you would see a cat stalking along the ruins throughout a heavy bombardment, in a town that had been shelled more than once before in that same cat's recollection. She was taking her chances with the rest of us. And the horses, too, learned to accept resignedly and unperturbed the falling of high explosives in their immediate neighborhood. But their fate was different from the men's. However seriously a soldier was wounded, his life was not despaired of; all the resources of a surgery highly developed by the war were brought to his aid. A seriously wounded horse was put out by a timely bullet.

This did not seem quite fair. If we made the animals take the same chances as we did ourselves, why did we not give them similar attention when wounded? But obviously to develop a horse-surgery as good as that of our casualty clearing stations would necessitate a knowledge of horse language.

That was the beginning of the idea; an eccentric country physician with a bent for natural history and a great love of pets, who finally decides to give up his human practice for the more difficult, more sincere and, for him, more attractive therapy of the animal kingdom. He is challenged by the difficulty of the work—for obviously it requires a much cleverer brain to become a good animal doctor (who must first acquire all animal languages and physiologies) than it does to take care of the mere human hypochondriac.

This was a new plot for my narrative letter for the children. Later several people, notably my wife, said I ought to submit it for publication. I did, after some elaboration, and it was accepted.

Up to that my writing had been for grown-ups. Now they won't let me write for adults any more. However, I have had a lot of fun out of writing Doctor Doolittle.

MISCELLANEOUS BOOKS.

America's Place in the World. By Herbert Adams Gibbons, who is well known as the author of "The New Map of Europe," "An Introduction to World Politics," etc. There are less than two hundred pages devoted to the discussion of this subject and yet it is written in such simple language and in such clear, comprehensive style that it will prove interesting to any reader of public affairs.

He has based his argument upon the history and the peculiar structure of our government, discussing why up to the twentieth century there was no need for an aggressive policy.

Readers will not fail to note that Dr. Gibbons' article is based on years of study and deep thinking, and in studying it, it would be to the interest of the reader to notice how deeply he brings out the strong points that are of vital interest to all our citizens.

This book will be of interest and will be an influence in the many discussions that are now in evidence on the subject of America's ideas in its relation to the rest of the world. The Century Co., New York.

CURRENT MAGAZINES.

The Century for May has for its frontispiece a reprint of Frank Brangwyn's picture entitled "A May Holiday." The leading article, "If We Are to Prevent the Next War," is another interesting contribution by Bertrand Russell, with a paragraph of introduction by the editor. "The Politics of Oil," by Charles Merz, who goes to the bottom of the oil story and makes it quite entertaining; "Finding a School for Your Boy," by Joseph H. Odell; "A Sensible Immigration Policy," (editorial) by Glenn Frank; "Music Students in New York;" "Alice in Literal-Land," "An Allegory of the War in the Churches;" "Democracy in American Factories—What Happens When Workmen Help You Manage?" Among the stories are the following: "The God of Good Bricks," by Granville Barker; "Love in Africa;" "Parable of the Rich Householder," by Charles H. Levermore, etc.

Scribner's for May is filled with many attractively illustrated articles—selections that will please the readers. The frontispiece is entitled to "Sinbad and the Elephants," from a decorative panel by J. M. Sert; "In the Land Where the Elephants Are," with illustrations from photographs made by Kermit Roosevelt; "The White Monkey (serial), by John Galsworthy; "Quenching America's Mental Thirst," with poems and stories which will appeal to the reader.

The American Review of Reviews for May covers every subject of interest with frontispiece of General Charles G. Dawes, head of the board of experts which reported on April 9 on Germany's financial capacity. This magazine discusses politics, here, there and everywhere, and it has made its discussions more attractive by photographic illustrations of Ralston of Indiana, Copeland of New York, John W. Davis of West Virginia, Charles G. Dawes of Chicago, and others whose names are familiar to the readers.

G. L. Miller Bond Officials To Attend Meeting Here

More than 20 officers and sales executives of G. L. Miller and company, Atlanta real estate bond house with offices in many large cities of the country, will assemble here Monday morning for a series of conferences Monday and Tuesday. Conferences will be held at the Biltmore hotel.

Within the past eighteen months, the G. L. Miller and company has opened an eastern sales headquarters in New York city and established branches in some of the principal cities in the north and east. These offices have been responsible for the sale of more than $10,000,000 of southern real estate securities since that time, a large portion of which have been on Atlanta buildings, it is stated.

The meeting here will give several of the newer members of the organization their first intimate touch with present southern development, particularly as typified by recent Atlanta expansion. Important sales policies will also be under discussion.

Monday will be devoted to conferences at the Biltmore, followed in the evening by an elaborate dinner at the same hotel at which special features will be introduced. Tuesday morning, after a short conference at the headquarters of the company, in the Hurt building, the entire party will be taken on a sight seeing tour in a Dixie coach. The route will be so arranged as to pass by the numerous Miller-financed buildings of the city, the cyclorama at Grant park, the Confederate Memorial on Stone mountain and through residential sections. Luncheon will be served on the dining terrace of the Pershing Point apartments.

Officers of Company.

The officers and executives from the New York headquarters will include G. L. Miller, president of the company; R. J. Francis, vice president; A. B. Weller, general sales manager; H. E. Fortier, manager for Manhattan; C. W. Roberts, New York county; J. M. Sinclair, Long Island; F. H. Van Horn, New Jersey, and A. D. McKeige, correspondence division.

Branch managers in attendance will include R. F. Schmitz, vice president and manager of the Philadelphia office; E. M. Seibert, Pittsburg; D. D. Deitzer, Buffalo; N. P. Gardner, St Louis; W. J. Galloway, Memphis; W. M. Brown and R. E. Mooney, Knoxville, and Albert Luffman, Jacksonville.

Atlanta executives acting as hosts are Paul T. Arnold, secretary; Gerald M. Goodman, assistant general sales manager; Frank C. Eastman, southeastern sales manager; Armond Carroll, manager of the survey department; W. H. Pickett, assistant secretary, and E. C. Ruplev, [illegible] sales manager.

Have You Piles?

Then You Have Something to Learn

Thousands who have piles have not learned that quick and permanent relief can only be accomplished with internal medicine. Neither cutting nor any amount of treatment with ointments and suppositories will remove the cause.

Bad circulation causes piles. There is a complete stagnation of blood in the lower bowel and a weakening of the parts. Dr. J. S. Leonhardt was first to find the remedy. His prescription, HEM-ROID, is now sold by all druggists. Dr. Leonhardt tried it in 1,000 cases with the marvelous record of success in 98 per cent and then decided it should be sold under a rigid money-back guarantee.

Don't waste any more time with outside applications. Get a package of HEM-ROID from Jacobs' Drug stores today. It has given safe and lasting relief to thousands and should do the same for you—it seldom fails. —(adv.)

WHY HE SUCCEEDED

One of the best known men in the United States by reason of his authorship of the Common Sense Medical Adviser was Dr. R. V. Pierce. He was successful in his profession, in politics and socially because of his keen observation and his unusual ability to use his knowledge to good ends. He noted early in his medical career that many of the home remedies crudely prepared from roots, barks and herbs produced astonishingly satisfactory results. His many analyses of native medicinal plants, extending over a number of years, enabled him to prepare Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery which has been used by thousands of sick folks during the last half century with ever increasing appreciation of its virtues. It is purely vegetable and contains no habit-forming drugs. It is alterative in its action on the blood, liver and skin; tonic in its effects on the stomach and digestive apparatus; and eliminative in its operation on the intestines and other organs regulating the disposal of body waste. It increases the appetite, stimulates the digestion, enriches the blood, clears the skin of eruptions and blemishes, banishes aches and pains, and makes both men and women feel as they did when they were young and care free.

Ask your nearest druggist for Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, in tablet or liquid form, or send 10 cents for trial package of tablets to Dr. Pierce's Invalids' Hotel in Buffalo, N. Y., and write for free medical advice.—(adv.)

Since Closed Car Comforts Cost No More

Why Buy An Open Car?

The Coach—Exclusive to Hudson and Essex is the Only Type that Gives All These Advantages

The issue with motor car buyers this year is closed car comforts at open car cost.

That transcends all other considerations. For no one who knows closed car comforts will be satisfied with an open car.

The Coach is responsible for this issue. It is a Hudson-Essex invention. It is exclusive to Hudson and Essex. No other type and no other car gives closed car comforts at open car cost.

No Wonder the Coach Owner Is Envied

It affords pride of ownership by its smart, handsome appearance and the personal comfort it provides.

All-year utility is supplied.

And a mechanical excellence in performance and reliability of either Hudson or Essex that everyone knows.

The Coach costs but little more than the open models of either Hudson or Essex. The extra cost of closed models on other cars is from $300 up, even on the lowest priced cars. More than 135,000 Coaches are in service. Sales exceed 3,000 every week. Everyone prefers a closed car. The Coach alone is the quality car within the reach of all. No wonder the Coach on Hudson and Essex is the world's largest selling six-cylinder closed car.

It is the Car for Everyone

In two and one-half years the Coach has proved a staunchness and reliability never before associated with a closed car. In all service in every part of the world it satisfies the pride of ownership. It gives all the utility you get in any closed car. No one who knows will be content with anything less than closed car comforts, and the Coach alone gives those comforts at open car cost.

Hudson and Essex Are of one Quality

Both are the creations of the same engineers. They are built in the same shops by the same workmen under the same patents. There is no difference in quality of material or workmanship.

The price you want to pay for a car will decide whether it shall be a Hudson or Essex. The closed car advantages of the Coach and its price leave no other consideration.

Important Notice To Buyers

The remarkable value offered in Hudson and Essex is matched by the astonishingly low parts prices and the progressive service policy that keeps maintenance down to a minimum. Be sure and get parts price list from your dealer.

U.S. Construction Conditions on A Sound Basis

Construction conditions do not warrant the panicky stories which have been circulated, according to men who have been lending money in large amounts on construction in all sections of the country. While one is optimistic the other is not so much, and says that new work should be closely scrutinized so that there might not be an oversupply of construction in any particular line. He feels, however, that this will be the greatest building year in the history of the country and there is nothing on the horizon of the industry or material field to justify the expectations of a lower scale of wages or prices this year.

Caution is urged not because of danger lurking ahead, but merely to keep within bounds the tendency to break records or which may sometimes be mistaken for progress. With caution construction work will be kept on a level basic, which is economically better than extreme conditions. A general lull in construction, even for a short time, would have the effect of buckling the smooth-running machinery of business so badly as to be felt for some time after.

Still Short 35 Per Cent.

In the opinion of William J. Moore, president of the American Bond and Mortgage company, the building situation this year does not hold as many elements of danger as it did last year, even though we are headed for a record-breaking year. He says:

"In the middle of 1923 only about 35 per cent of the housing deficit had been made up—now it is estimated that about 65 per cent has been made up. Even with this progress there will still be at the end of the year a shortage of about $3,000,000,000 worth of building, exclusive of $2,000,000,000 of construction such as railroads, public utilities or government work. This total does not include the value of buildings to replace obsolete and dilapidated structures. At present there is a deficit of about $8,000,000,000 worth of construction, of which only $5,000,000,000 can be accomplished even under the most favorable conditions.

"President Coolidge realizes that the housing situation is not a problem limited in itself, but is woven into and dependent on a large number of economic factors over which there can be no control. The real problem is entirely outside the field of the construction industry.

Costs Will Be Stable.

"Construction costs will be fairly stable during 1924 since these depend on four factors which cannot be expected to show much variation—and these factors are clearly recognized by the government departments interested. These factors are: The present wage levels in the materials and building industries, which are fairly stable; coal prices, an important element in costs, which tend to be higher rather than lower; freight rates, which at present, according to the railroads, are not producing an adequate yield; general living costs, which have been practically stable for nearly two years.

"The same influences that retarded building wage reductions in 1923 prevail today. They are: The limited supply of skilled laborers and mechanics; the advancing age and retiring of large numbers of these mechanics, without a corresponding replacement of apprentices; a strong demand for building labor because of the continued building deficit.

"The capacity of the construction industry is limited by the capacity of the most inadequate trade. In some trades the labor shortage exceeds 50 per cent at strategic times, especially in the case of lathers, plasterers and masons—and in most other key trades there is a shortage. The result is that the whole industry is handicaped."—New York Herald-Tribune.

Peachtree Store Brings $100,000 For 7 Years' Rent

For a total rental of $100,000, the property at 77 Peachtree street, a store and basement, has been leased to E. J. Perkerson & Co., well-known merchants, for a term of seven years. The lease was transacted by Ward Fitzpatrick, well-known realtor, acting for John L. Moore & Sons, who control a number of business locations along Peachtree street.

The store leased to E. J. Perkerson & Co. measures approximately 15 feet on Peachtree street, running back about 150 feet. The small size of the property and the large sum paid annually for its use is said to indicate the extreme value of business property in this section of Atlanta. The price paid is $1,000 a year per front foot. It is understood that the Perkerson company will occupy the above location.

"ONE MONTH FREE" SIGN ON DISPLAY

Bay Ridge real estate men have retrieved the old "one month free" sign from the dark corners of cellars where these blazon printed words were flung when it was discovered a few years ago that the city had a shortage of apartments. They are again displayed in the windows of agents in this section of Brooklyn.

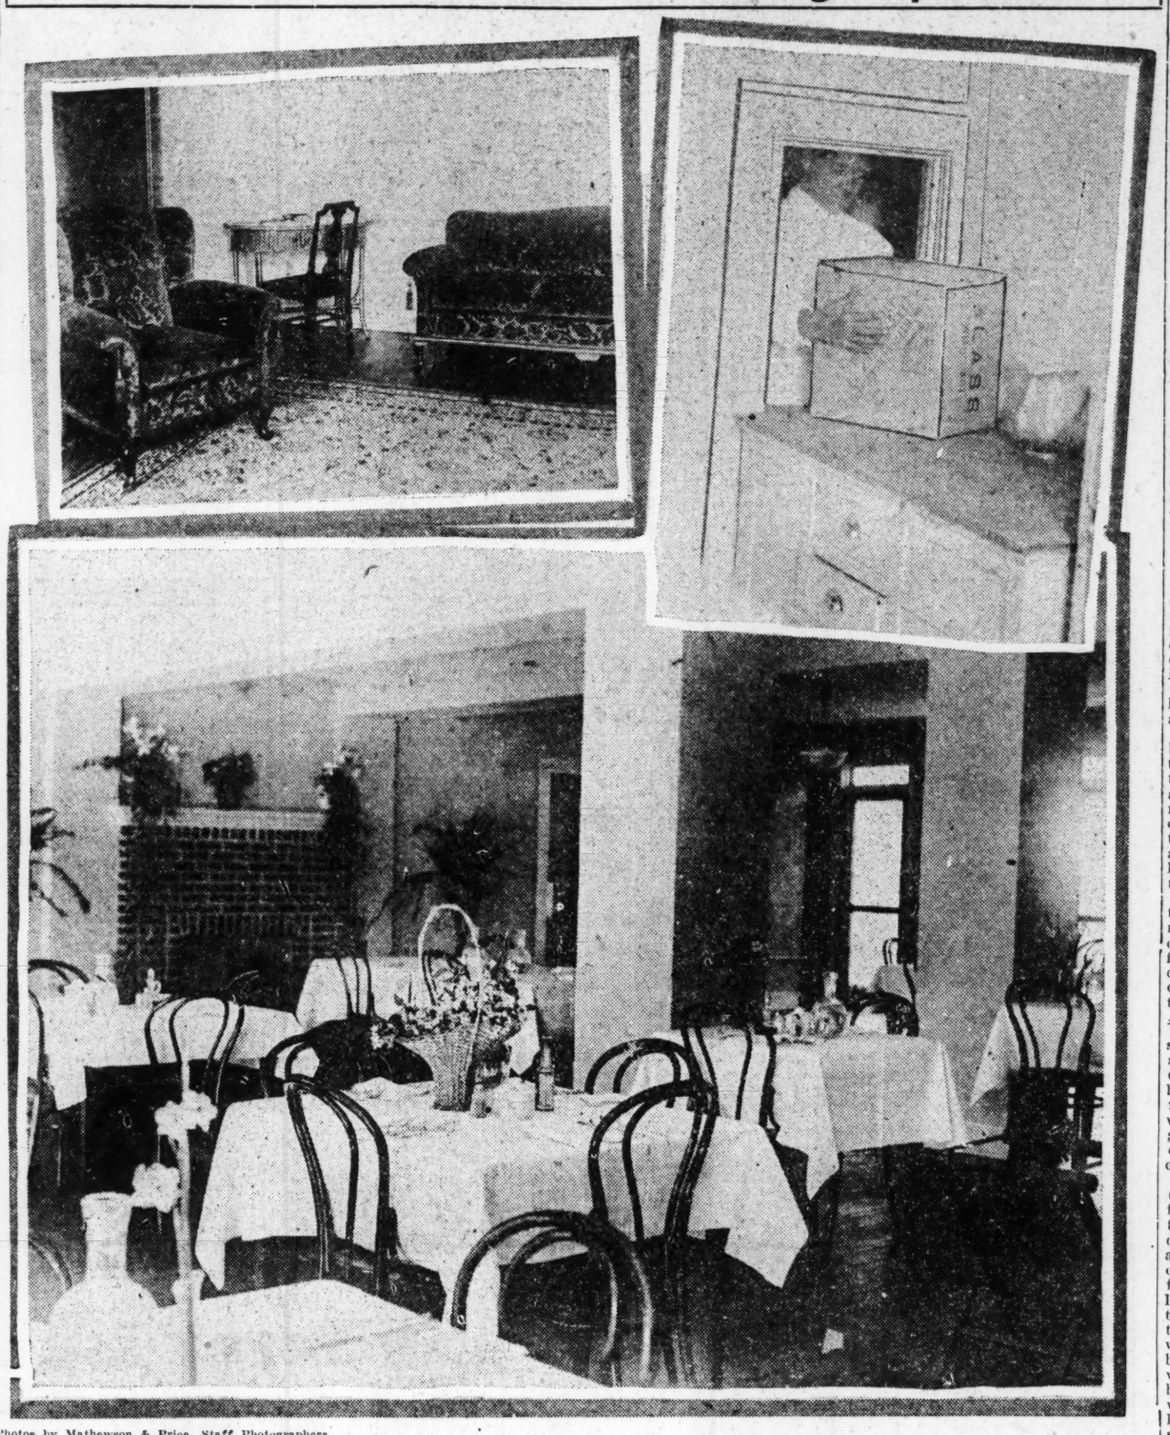

INVENTION OF INTEREST TO ARCHITECTS AND ENGINEERS

A contrivance to automatically open and close windows during and following rain has been placed on the market in Atlanta through T. R. Stephenson, 91 Spring street, whose telephone number is Walnut 1621, and who is southern representative for the Gravitation Window and Door Opener and Closer company.

The thing is an invention of John L. Stowers, of Havana, Cuba, and while effective for buildings of all kinds, is especially designed for use in hotels, office buildings and warehouses. The contrivance automatically closes windows when rain starts, and opens them when the rain ends. It is claimed that no attention needs to be paid the thing, as it operates without being touched, and will last as long as the building.

Architects and engineers are invited to see it in operation, or get in touch with the local representatives and they will call and explain the operation in detail.—(adv.)

Interior Views of Handsome St. George Apartments

Adding to the many luxuries and conveniences that have been built into the apartment, a modern type of service that in many ways solves the vexing servant problem, and preserving to a large degree the atmosphere of home which forms so strong an attraction to the people of this section, the St. George apartment at 984 Peachtree street has been rendered one of the most popular establishments of its kind in Atlanta, according to information given out by the Grant-Jeter company, sole agents for this splendid apartment.

The St. George apartment, located in the very heart of Atlanta's and the south's most famous residence district, was thrown open to its patrons during the past month, and many of its highly modern suites, ranging in size from the one-room bachelor apartment to the five-room dwelling for the average-sized family, have been leased on long terms to people of discriminating taste, who desire all the comforts and luxuries provided by the best hotel, with none of the annoyances and responsibilities incident to keeping house.

Convenient Location.

Within a convenient distance from the center of the city and served with a splendid system of transportation in addition to the many well-paved streets leading to the center of the city, the St. George commands a vista equal to that enjoyed by the most expensive homes in Ansley Park, Brookwood and other high-type residence sections.

Its proximity to schools, churches, parks, swimming pools, golf links, tennis courts and other amusement places, also adds to the attractiveness of the St. George. The beauty of its surroundings, with the magnificent forest trees and shrubbery, the many handsome flower gardens and the handsome homes, is another feature which is said to have given great pleasure and delight to the occupants of this apartment. Fine views of Atlanta's most beautiful residence sections may be had from the St. George apartments.

The interior arrangement of the St George, with large, well-lighted and efficiently ventilated rooms, is another attractive feature of the structure. The designers of the apartment provided every convenience that is known to modern apartment house practice, including doorbeds, built-in kitchen cabinets, private delivery arrangements, obviating the entrance of delivery men and others coming to the apartment for the purpose of delivering packages, etc. It has insulated halls and bedrooms, insuring against noises incident to the entrance and exit of tenants and others. There are profuse installations of electrical connections for all purposes; bath and toilet equipment of the most modern and elegant type, and other improvements and devices that make the present-day apartment practically ideal.

"G.-J. Hotel Service."

To the above advantages the Grant-Jeter company, sole agents of the apartment, have added the famous hotel service introduced so successfully, it is declared, by this concern into its large local apartments. This service, which solves in a great degree the perplexing servant problem, provides not only for maids, porters and other servants, who may be called at all hours, but includes all-hour elevator service, ice and ice-water delivery to the rooms, messenger service and other minute details of domestic service. It also provides for the culinary department of the household, a large dining room having been established on the ground floor, where patrons of the apartment may be served. Meals may also be served in apartments, the food being prepared by experienced chefs, under the direction of a corps of housekeepers, stewards and assistants, who give detailed supervision to the preparation and service of the meals.

The popularity of the splendid apartment is evidenced, it is declared, by the large list of occupants now living in the building, which has been open but a short time.

Seen From the Auction Block

BY THE AUCTIONEER

TRUST CO. OF GEORGIA'S NEW REALTY DEPARTMENT.

With the completion of the handsome new quarters of the Atlanta and Lowry National bank, which necessitated many changes in the ground floor of the Trust Company of Georgia building, at the corner of North Pryor street and Edgewood avenue, the real estate department of the latter company was improved and enlarged, rendering these offices among the most modern and handsome business quarters in the city. The real estate department of the Trust Company of Georgia, under the management of Charles A. Hopkins, is one of the most important business concerns of its nature in Atlanta, and it is said to have handled a number of the outstanding transactions of the recent months. The renting department, which is also said to be in a most flourishing condition, is under the direction of G. M. Taylor, a well-known figure in the business and real estate world of Atlanta. Patrons of the Trust Company of Georgia realty department have extended many congratulations to those employed in this branch of the big concern, and many expressions of admiration have been made by clients and visitors with reference to the handsome new offices.

ATLANTA TO HAVE LONG SUBWAY—EWING'S PREDICTION.

"Before the present generation has passed away," said J. H. Ewing, pioneer among the Atlanta real estate dealers, and one of the men responsible in a large measure for the record-breaking development of the Spring street district, "we will have a tunnel driven right under the center of Atlanta's business section, extending from about Peachtree and Cain or Harris street, on the north, almost to West End. This subway," continued the realty man, "will be forced upon the people by the growing vehicular traffic, and it will become so vitally demanded that it will have to be bored in spite of the gigantic undertaking and the consequent expense."

Mr. Ewing declared that something must be done within a short time to relieve the ever-increasing burden of traffic that flows along Atlanta's business arteries, and stated further that temporary relief can be had by speeding up the flow of traffic, getting more action into slow-moving vehicles that obstruct the tide and by restricting downtown parking.

Other Atlantans who have given deep thought to the local traffic situation and who have expressed the conviction that a remedy will have to be found for the congestion that prevails during business hours in the downtown section, have suggested various ways for relieving the pressure. Among the suggestions that seem to promise a measure of relief, but which could not be accomplished without a vast outlay of money and the sacrifice of a bit of highly valuable frontage, is a plan for a system of arcades along the business streets. By this plan, it has been stated, a portion of the sidewalks on the narrow downtown streets could be given to driveway, forcing each property owner to set back his building a certain number of feet for the sidewalk, over which the second story of the building could extend, making an arcade, such as are the rule in many of the streets of Paris, France, and other foreign cities. The arcade plan would be made to widen the downtown business streets by 20 or more feet, and with the buildings set in so far as the ground floor is concerned, ten feet on each side, there would be plenty of room for foot passengers to travel.

The arcade proposal, if adopted (and who can say that it will not be forced upon Atlanta by the growing tide of travel), would cost a great deal of money, and it would also be an expensive item for each property owner to sacrifice ten feet on the front of such parcels as those on Peachtree and Whitehall streets, but the value of property is based upon the number of people who pass it or visit it in a given time, and it has been stated that the greater ease with which larger numbers of people would be permitted to traverse the streets would more than compensate for the loss of the frontage and the cost of setting back the ground floor of the structures.

Beautiful Colonial Court Apartments

Handsome new apartment, to be known as "Colonial Court," now being erected by J. H. Ewing & Sons on Ponce de Leon avenue, near Highland avenue. The handsome building will be of the most modern and elegant type, provided with all up-to-date conveniences and luxuries and will be a most beautiful addition to the many splendid buildings of its kind in that section of Atlanta. It will have 30 apartments—2, 3 and 4 rooms each. J. H. Ewing & Sons will be exclusive agents for the apartment.

Building Needs Still Very Great, Says B. M. Swett

The building shortage is not disappearing as rapidly as the financial investment in new construction would indicate, says B. M. Swett, of the Lehigh Portland Cement company.

"It is possible to compute with reasonable accuracy," says Mr. Swett, "the quantity of construction work required annually per capita of population, and, assuming 1913 as a normal year, we find that the normal volume of construction required in 1924 is approximately 120 per cent of the 1913 volume. My use of the word 'volume' means the actual quantity of construction, not the value of construction as value is determined by variation in cost.

"By adding the normal construction requirements for each year since 1913 and comparing these with the actual volume of construction accomplished during each intervening year we arrive at a fair measure of the volume of construction remaining in arrears to the extent of fully a year's building program.

"In 1923 the normal construction would have been about 118 per cent of the 1913 needs. The actual volume of construction in 1923 was approximately 140 per cent of 1913; therefore, last year's record of building construction program was only 20 per cent above the normal needs and within the next few years normal growth will reach a point where a program like the 1923 record will only supply actual needs.

"There is a vast need for school buildings, public works, public utilities, construction work, together with tremendous amounts of street, bridge and highway construction to meet the needs of our rapidly growing centers of population, and it is very evident that construction work must continue at its present rate for some years longer if the needs of the country are to be supplied.

"As such businesses as transportation, steel, plumbing, heating equipment, household furnishings, etc., are dependent upon the building industry for their continued prosperity, the continuance of building activities will contribute in keeping the business of the country at its present high levels."

HOWARD INAUGURATES NEW LUMBER BUSINESS.

Information has been received of the opening of a new Atlanta lumber business, to be known as the J. R. Howard Lumber company, 236 Peters street. This concern, which is headed by J. R. Howard, formerly with an Atlanta lumber company, will handle lumber of different kinds and will also carry a full line of various building materials, according to the announcement. A large parcel of land has been taken by the company, on which a yard for the storage of lumber and warehouses for the other building materials will be established. This lot has a long frontage on the railroad, and other facilities have been afforded for the quick and efficient handling of the company's stock. The office of the company is located in a modern brick building which stands upon the property.

ASHBY STREET PAVING MEETS APPROVAL.

Many expressions of appreciation have been heard from property owners and residents in West End over the paving of that portion of Ashby street between Gordon and the newly developed residence section that followed the building of the Joe Brown Junior High school. Work is going forward with dispatch, and like Peeples street, Ashby will soon be one of the best thoroughfares in that popular portion of the city.

MIRROR SHOULD BE PLACED AT MURPHY AVE. UNDERPASS.

In order that the danger of wrecks as a result of rapidly driven automobiles and trucks attempting to pass each other at the corner of Glenn street and Murphy avenue where Glenn street merges into Gordon, passing under the Central and West Point tracks, it has been suggested that a mirror be placed at this dangerous underpass in such manner as to indicate to drivers from both directions whether or not other vehicles are approaching. The street is none too wide at this point, and as there is a constantly increasing flow of traffic, it is believed to be a most vital demand that precautionary measures be taken before a fatal wreck takes place.

THOUSANDS OF PEOPLE VISIT BEAUTIFUL PARKS.

Notwithstanding the high wind that prevailed for a greater portion of the day Sunday, many thousands of Atlantans visited the parks, all of which are said to be highly attractive and beautiful with the bright green foliage of the forest trees and shrubbery and the riot of colors rendered by the many brilliant and fragrant blossoms.

"Atlanta's parks have never been in a more splendid condition," said a citizen, "at this time of the year, and thousands of people, young and old, were more than delighted with their visits paid to these breathing spaces during the past week." Notwithstanding that Piedmont park, Grant park and other beautiful pleasure grounds of the city are some distance removed from the center of town, and further still from other sections of the city, the people are attracted to them by the thousands on Sundays, holidays and in the evenings during the spring and summer months. The bright sunshine for the past few days has served to develop the brilliant foliage and the beautiful flowers, and as summer approaches the people will find added pleasures in the swimming pools that will open within a short time. There were many visitors to Lakewood, also, during the last week, and an extremely large crowd, the cool weather considered, was said to have been present at this resort last Sunday.

MORRIS & SMITH ERECT MANY NEW HOUSES.

According to recent announcements, the well-known real estate firm of Morris & Smith, 812 Austell building, is having erected a total of twenty-five houses on Paine avenue, to be disposed of to colored people. These houses, which are of four rooms each, are said to be erected under the most modern plans, and they are appointed in the most approved manner. Each house contains, among other conveniences, a modernly installed bath, and there are many innovations included in this class of property that will add greatly to the "better homes for colored people" movement.

Morris & Smith, who have had wide experience in the local real estate field, make a specialty of building homes for the better class of negroes, having disposed of many residences of the modern kind to colored people on easy terms.

RECENT STORM DAMAGES RESIDENCE PROPERTY.

Giving information to the effect that the violent storm sweeping over Atlanta and the south during the past few days, did much damage to the improvements in the Lullwater subdivision, and in other portions of the north side of the city, J. H. Ewing, o fthe realty firm of J. H. Ewing & Sons, declared that much repair work will have to be done in various sections of Fulton and DeKalb counties, as a result of the wind and water damage to recently installed improvements. The demand, however, for choice residence property to repair all damage with as much dispatch as possible in order to be ready for the rush that is expected to follow settled weather.

MAY EXTEND ELLIOTT STREET, IT IS RUMORED.

Information was received within the past few days of the possibility of a renewal of former efforts to widen and extend Elliott street, a thoroughfare running along the tracks of the Southern railway, just as the railway line approaches the Terminal station. The extension of this street to Mitchell, and widening it for its entire length to an 80 or 100-foot street, would aid greatly the handling of traffic across the city, from the Marietta street section to West End, and that part of the city. These sections are now served with what are said to be thoroughly inadequate traffic arteries, including Magnolia street viaduct, Jones avenue, Simpson street, and further toward the center of the city, Spring street viaduct, and the other centrally located bridges crossing the railroad tracks. Should Elliott street be extended and widened, it is claimed, a new route could be used to west Atlanta, which would relieve to a large extent the flow of traffic that now uses the more centrally located and much more congested viaducts in efforts to reach the south and west sides from the north side of Atlanta. A large tract of land adjacent to the railroads and capable of furnishing many fine manufacturing sites, west of the Terminal station, would also be served by the improvement of Elliott street.

REEVES RECOVERS FROM ILLNESS.

Levi W. Reeves, former secretary of the Atlanta real estate board, and one of the best known realty men in the city, is reported to have recovered his health after an attack of "flu" which confined him to his home in north Atlanta for several days last week. Mr. Reeves, who was a commercial traveling man before entering his present real estate profession, numbers his friends in large figures, in Atlanta, as well as over the entire state. He is connected with the popular firm of Evans & Dodd, Candler building, and it is expected that he will be at his office during the coming week.

IMPROVEMENTS BEING MADE ON SPRING STREET VIADUCT.

Following the lead of the Terminal hotel, which was the first to complete its ground floor connection with the million-dollar Spring street viaduct, causing its office and lobby to open onto the big bridge, the Ridley-Yates company, well-known dry goods and millinery firm, is remodeling its big store in such manner as to bring its entrance also in line with the viaduct. There are to be other improvements, it was stated, in the Ridley-Yates building, and it is declared that this establishment will have a highly modern and splendidly appointed home when the work is completed.

NEW SALESMAN MAKES FINE RECORD.

Determined to make good with his house from the very beginning, Fain C. Thompson, who has just closed his second week with the well-known firm of F. P. & Geo. J. Morris, is said to have begun his career by making three large sales. The announcement of Mr. Thompson's connection was carried recently in this column, and predictions were made by his friends and business associates that he would experience a splendid success in the local realty field.

REALTY FIRM ERECTING FINE MODERN BUNGALOWS.

Three modernly appointed and handsomely designed brick bungalows are being built on Second avenue, Decatur, it has been announced by the well-known Atlanta real estate house of F. P. and George J. Morris. These buildings, which are said to be of the most desirable and attractive type, are expected to be complete within the next two weeks and will be offered to the home-buying public at prices ranging from $6,250 to $6,750.

BRYAN ON THE SICK LIST FOR SEVERAL DAYS.

Suffering with a severe cold, which threatened graver results for a time, Paul Bryan, of the well-known firm of M. C. Kiser Real Estate company, was confined to his room for several days. He has sufficiently recovered, it is declared, to again take up his duties, and will be at his office Monday.

"BUSINESS AS USUAL"—JOHN J. THOMPSON.

With a large and attractive list of properties, and with a live-wire staff of salesmen to keep things moving, the firm of John J. Thompson company reports a most active and satisfactory week, just past. Mr. Thompson, head of the firm, is highly optimistic with reference to Atlanta home property, which is a specialty of his house, and he does not hesitate to point to a splendid summer's business during 1924. The office of this popular firm is in the Candler building.

GAY DOING AT JESTER'S OLD MILL DECLARES SENCY.

Reporting big crowds and jolly young people from the city, who gather for dances and other amusements at Jester's old mill, J. W. Sency, of Woodward-Watson Realty company, Candler building, declares this resort to be increasing all the time in popularity. With a beautiful little lake, a dancing pavilion and other adjuncts calculated to heighten the pleasure of the nightly visitors, Jester's old mill is the scene of much gaiety, and according to Mr. Sency, who lives nearby, there are many Atlantans owning and occupying summer camps and residences near the resort. The dancing pavilion there is said to be one of the largest and most pleasant in the county, and many young people of Atlanta drive out there for the dances.

Modern Device To Record Building Progress

Gude & Company, well-known Atlanta contracting concern, has erected many of the most important structures in the city, and who are now building the handsome Henry Grady hotel at Peachtree and Cain streets, have installed a most unique device for keeping tab on the progress of the structure. This device, which bears a resemblance to a huge thermometer, not only shows how far the big building has progressed toward completion, but it also gives an indication of the various dates upon which different stages are expected to be reached. The immense "thermometer" is in plain sight of passengers along the street, and a glance will serve to inform interested ones just what time the big hotel will reach its various stages of construction. As may be seen from a look at the above cut, the hotel began on April 10. The black portion of the indication column shows it to be more than one-third complete on April 30. The roof is expected to go on in June, according to the indicator scale.

Mrs. Gurley's Bridge-Tea Honors Mrs. Bone, Recent Bride

Mrs. Crawford Gurley was hostess at an elaborate bridge-tea Saturday afternoon at her home on Shadow Lawn avenue, the occasion in compliment to Mrs. Walter Jennings Bone, Jr., a recent bride, who before her marriage was Miss Katherine Roberts.

The reception rooms were attractively decorated with bright garden flowers, including pink hydrangeas, lilacs and snapdragons, in baskets and vases. The tea table was covered with a handsome lace cloth and gracing the center was a silver basket of pink carnations and lavendar sweetpeas. Silver candlesticks held pink lighted tapers, and alternated with pink and lavendar mints in silver compotes.

The prizes were French novelties. Mrs. Bone was beautifully gowned in plum-colored chiffon embroidered in silver and a picture hat to match.

Mrs. Gurley wore a gown of black crepe with white trimming. She was assisted in entertaining by her mother, Mrs. Joseph A. Willingham, who wore a black satin gown elaborately beaded.

Beautiful Alabama Bride-Elect

Miss Ellen Caroline Pitts, beautiful daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Edwin Pitts, of Montgomery, Ala., whose marriage to John Sheffield Owens, Jr., of Atlanta, will be a social event of brilliance June 4 in Montgomery.

Miss Brown Weds Mr. Tillman.

Announcement is made of the marriage of Miss Palma Brown, of Fairplay, near Rutledge, youngest daughter of George Alexander Brown, to Thomas B. Tillman, of Monroe, Ga., the ceremony being performed by Rev. E. A. Caldwell, of Monroe, on Thursday, April 24, being witnessed by a few close friends.

After a short honeymoon they will be at home to their friends at the home of the groom's parents, near Monroe, Ga.

Miss Foy Weds Frank Simmons At Beautiful Home Ceremony

Statesboro, Ga., May 3.—A wedding of great interest, owing to the prominence of the two families, not only in Statesboro, but the entire state, was that of Miss Louise Olliff Foy and Frank Simmons, which was solemnized Wednesday evening at 8:30 o'clock at the home of the bride's parents, Dr. and Mrs. J. E. Donehoo.

Rev. W. T. Granade, pastor of the Baptist church, performed the impressive marriage service in the presence of a large assemblage of relatives and friends.

Beautiful Decorations.

An artistic selection of wedding music was rendered by Mrs. Eugene Wallace at the piano and Miss Evelyn Bradley, violinist, of Savannah, while the guests were assembling. Immediately preceding the entry of the bridal party Mrs. Roger Holland sang beautifully "Because" by d'Hardelot, and during the reception the Statesboro orchestra furnished the music.

The handsome home was the scene of great beauty, with quantities of magnificent palms and smilax as decorations. The altar was banked high with stately palms and ferns standing against a background of white latticework entwined with smilax. Placed at intervals were candelabra holding burning tapers. Wicker baskets on pedestals and tied with fluffy bows of white tulle held Easter lilies.

Bridal Party.

First to descend the stairs were the little ribbon-bearers, Allie Blanche Donehoo and Cecile Brannen, wearing dresses of orchid georgette trimmed in lace.

The bridesmaids with the groomsmen were the next to descend the stairs; Miss Virginia Crouch, of Griffin, and Shelton Paschal, of Atlanta; Miss Beth Allen, of Elberton, and Waldo Floyd, of Augusta; Miss Lucye Blitch, of Statesboro, and Dr. Julian Quattlebaum, of Savannah. The bridesmaids wore exquisite gowns of georgette in pastel shades, and carried shower bouquets of sweetheart roses and sweet peas.

Mrs. Bruce Olliff, sister of the bride, was matron, wearing a most becoming gown of cherry-red georgette trimmed in brilliants and carried a shower bouquet of sunset roses and valley lilies.

Miss Nita Donehoo, sister of the bride, and Homer Simmons, brother of the groom, were junior bridesmaid and groomsman, and entered together. Miss Donehoo wore a gown similar to those of the other bridesmaids and carried Ophelia roses.

The maid of honor, Miss Clara Leck DeLoach, entered alone wearing a lovely gown of silk lace and ribbons in light shades, and carried an arm bouquet of sweet peas and valley lilies.

Preceding the bride came the dainty little flower girl, Fay Foy, niece of the bride, carrying a basket of pink sweet peas.

The bride was given in marriage by her brother, Inman Foy, being joined at the altar by the groom and best man, J. P. Foy, a brother of the bride.

Lovely Bride.

The bride was radiantly beautiful in her bridal robe of duchess satin. The close-fitting bodice was finished with a deep yoke of rare lace extending over her pretty shoulders. The skirt was made in bouffant style with ornaments of orange blossoms at the waist line. The beautiful veil which fell in misty folds at the back to form a court train, was confined to her hair by a regal coronet of orange blossoms placed low on her forehead. Her gorgeous bouquet was of orchids, bride's roses and lilies of the valley.

Mrs. Donehoo, mother of the bride, wore a gown of beige crepe Romaine with an exquisite collar of old lace. She wore a corsage of orchids and valley lilies.

Mrs. Simmons is the daughter of Mrs. Donehoo and the late Manassas Foy. Her parental grandparents were Mr. and Mrs. George Washington Foy and were direct descendants of the Salzburgers. The bride attended Shorter college, taking a prominent part in all school activities.

Mr. Simmons is a descendant of wealthy and influential families of Bulloch county. He is a member of Sigma Chi fraternity, having attended the University of Georgia, and is now one of the most prominent young business men of Statesboro.

Among the out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. E. K. DeLoach, of Columbia, S. C.; Mrs. J. H. Ash, of Oliver; Mrs. W. H. Dorsey, Mrs. John Kennedy, Mrs. P. A. Skelton, Dr. and Mrs. Lehman Williams and Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Wallace of Savannah.

During the evening Mr. Simmons and his bride left for a wedding trip in the north. Mrs. Simmons traveled in a smart three-piece suit of green covert charmeen, the collar and cuffs being trimmed in squirrel. She wore a becoming close-fitting hat of green straw trimmed with burnt goose feathers.

Seiz-Shaw Engagement Centers Wide Social Interest

Centering interest to a large circle of friends throughout the state is the announcement in today's paper of the engagement of Miss Ruth Louise Seiz to Raymond Grosvenor Shaw.

Miss Seiz is the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Emil Charles Seiz, Sr., and a sister of Charles Seiz, Jr. Her father is one of Atlanta's leading citizens, taking an active part in the civic and constructive life of this city, being a prominent architect and builder and responsible for some of Atlanta's largest building developments.

Miss Seiz received her education at North Avenue Presbyterian school and Washington seminary. She is a talented artist and has studied under several noted teachers. She is an attractive young woman with a most charming personality, easily winning friends, and is an admired member of the social set.

Mr. Shaw is the son of Mrs. Hattie L. Shaw, of Augusta, Ga., and brother of Mrs. F. A. Whitaker, of Macon; Mrs. George F. Hill, of Atlanta; Edward E. Shaw, of Honolulu, Hawaii, and Byron A. Shaw, of Miami, Fla.

He attended the Lanier High school of Macon and finished his education at Georgia Tech. He is a prominent young architect and engineer, and was connected with the Wisconsin Bridge and Iron company, of Milwaukee, at its offices in Detroit and Milwaukee. Since coming to Atlanta three years ago he has been connected with Robert & Co., Inc., architects and engineers, of Atlanta and Dallas.

The wedding will be an event of July, taking place at the home of the bride's parents, "Rosedale," on Peachtree road.

Day, Mrs. Ed Byrd, Mrs. Bessie Wallace, Miss Nellie Wallace, Miss Helen Mayes, Mrs. J. F. Mayes and others.

Mrs. Tumlin Weds J. C. Wallace.

Mrs. Flora May Tumlin and J. C. Wallace were married on Saturday afternoon at 5 o'clock at the Druid Hills Methodist church. Rev. Dr. A. M. Pierce, pastor of the Druid Hills Methodist church, officiated at the ceremony.

Immediately after the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Wallace left on their wedding trip. The bride is a daughter of the late W. H. Poole, of Douglasville, Ga. Mr. Wallace is the son of the late William P. Wallace, of Rutledge, Ga., and is prominently connected with the Atlanta Trust company.

Mr. and Mrs. Wallace are now at home to their friends at 42 St. Louis place.

Frye-Saunders Wedding Is Event Of Saturday in Griffin

Griffin, May 3.—A beautiful church wedding of Saturday afternoon was that of Miss Vivian Frye and William Henry Saunders, which occurred at 4 o'clock at the First Baptist church.

The church was handsomely decorated for the occasion. The chancel was banked with growing plants, palms, ferns and Easter lilies. In the center of the chancel was a tall white wicker basket of Easter lilies and long graceful sprays of white snapdragons. In front of the chancel were two cathedral baskets filled with Easter lilies and swainsona and on either side of the altar, on a pedestal were Easter lilies. Within the organ rail were two handsome palms and two floor baskets of white snapdragons.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Leon M. Latimer, in the presence of the family and a few intimate friends.

The bride entered with her brother, Dr. Augustus Frye, and was met at the altar by the groom and his best man, Clinton Brooks, of Atlanta.

The bride was beautiful in black canton crepe appliqued in sprays of small white roses and white leaves at intervals. The skirt drapery and sleeves were braided in narrow black and white braid. A small black hat, trimmed in white flowers and a neck piece of white fox fur, completed the costume. Her only ornament was a string of Oriental pearls. She carried a shower bouquet of bride roses and valley lilies.

An informal reception was held immediately after the ceremony at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Samuel B. Frye, on Tenth street. A color motif of white and green was carried out in the decorations in the home. Easter lilies and white snapdragons filled large baskets on tables in the long living room.

The bride's table in the dining room was overlaid with a handsome cluny lace cover. The central decoration was a bowl of Easter lilies, white snapdragons and swainsona encircled by four crystal candlesticks holding white unshaded tapers.

Mrs. Homer Wilson, Miss Marian Gresham, Miss Marie Connally, Misses Mary Virginia and Julia Homer Wilson asisted in entertaining.

Mrs. G. C. Saunders, of Forsyth, the groom's mother, was gowned in dark blue crepe de chine with a blue hat to match, trimmed in small roses in the pastel shades.

Mr. and Mrs. Saunders left later in the afternoon for a motor trip to Chattanooga and other points in Tennessee and Alabama, and on their return will be at home with the bride's mother, Mrs. Samuel B. Frye.

The out-of-town guests at the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. G. C. Saunders, Miss Margaret Saunders and Mrs. Nisbit Wright, of Forsyth; Miss Marie Connally and Clinton Brooks, of Atlanta.

Women Voters Change Date of Meeting.

The regular board meeting of the Atlanta League of Woman Voters, which is usually held on the first Tuesday of every month, has been postponed until the second Tuesday of this month, which will be May 13.

Mrs. Sanford Gay, president of the league, calls attention of all board members to this change in date.

Mrs. Paul LaBlant, secretary of the league, will remind the members of the board a few days before the meeting, but special attention is called to this notice to avoid all confusion.

Shriners' Dance Is Postponed.

The Shrine ball which was scheduled to take place on Wednesday, May 21, has been postponed and will take place at the Biltmore hotel on Friday, May 23, in order not to conflict with the meeting of the Knight Templars.

Miss O'Gorman Weds Victor Dorr.

Augusta, May 3.—The marriage of Miss Caroline O'Gorman and Victor Dorr was solemnized Tuesday morning at the Blackville Catholic church.

Nuptial mass was celebrated. Father Guinn and Father Mackin officiated, with Matthew Rice and Henry Murn, of Augusta, as altar boys. Music was rendered by Mrs. W. B. Bailey, of Blackville, and Thomas Hennesay, of Charleston. The historic little church was decorated with snowy dogwood and delicate garlands of smilax, the altar vases being filled with white roses. There were no attendants and the ushers, Farrell O'Gorman, of Blackville, and Edwin Dorr, of Augusta, preceded the bride, who entered on the arm of her father. The bride was attractive in her wedding gown of soft white crepe trimmed with point lace finished in round length with cape effect. She wore a white picture hat and carried a shower bouquet.

Following the church ceremony a buffet breakfast and reception was held at the home of the bride.

The bride's going away gown was a smart traveling suit of beige roshanara crepe embroidered in beige and worn with a beige hat. Mr. and Mrs. Dorr left in their car for North Carolina and on their return will be at home at 450 Telfair street.

Friendship Circle Is Entertained.

Mrs. J. W. Varnon entertained the members of the Friendship circle at her home, 319 Lucile avenue, Wednesday, April 30.

Mrs. S. H. Browning read an interesting article by Crane. After the business meeting luncheon was served and a social hour enjoyed.

Dr. Hosic Will Speak.

All members of the Parent-Teacher association are cordially invited to hear Dr. James Fleming Hosic, of Columbia university, speak Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the Baptist tabernacle.

Dr. Hosic is one of America's foremost educators and is brought to Atlanta by the Atlanta Public School Teachers' association.

We have never advertised the cleaning of Gloves

Because, first of all, we charge so little for cleaning a pair of gloves that it is not profitable work for us.

Secondly, because it has been the habit of the cleaning industry not to feature gloves, since the public might be tempted to judge a cleaner's whole service by the class of work he did on gloves—one of the most difficult articles to clean.

We, however, are not afraid to be judged by our work on gloves. Our glove cleaning department today is on a par with our whole business.

Take white kid gloves, for instance. We remove every stain—even those caused by perspiration. They are cleaned white as new. But, best feature of all, they have that soft, velvety finish which is the hall-mark of good glove cleaning.

If you have never tried Stoddard's service we invite you to make a test of our ability by sending us a pair of gloves to be cleaned. We pay return postage.

Mrs. Edgar Neely Is Elected President of Drama League

Mrs. Edgar Neely was reelected president of the Drama League of Atlanta at the annual meeting during the past week. Mrs. Neely, during her first term as president of the organization, proved herself a most able executive and much was accomplished under her leadership for promotion of good drama in the community.

Other officers elected for the ensuing year are: Mrs. John M. Slaton, first vice president; Mrs. J. E. Somerfield, second vice president; Mrs. Merrill Hutchinson, third vice-president; Mrs. Marvin Perry, secretary; Mrs. Sinclair Jacobs, assistant secretary; Robert Moore, treasurer.

Members of the executive board are as follows: Mrs. Dudley Cowles, Mrs. E. P. McBurney, Mrs. J. P. Billups, Cyrill B. Smith, Mrs. Frank M. Inman, Miss Frances Gooch, Mrs. John R. Hornady, Mrs. W. D. Welborn, Mrs. Bolling Jones, Miss Cleveland Zahner, Mrs. Albert Thornton, Jr., Mrs. Edward H. Barnes. Ex-officio members of the board are: Mrs. Emma Garrett Boyd, Mrs. W. C. Jarnagin, Rev. W. W. Memminger, Mrs. Dudley Cowles, Mrs. W. C. Spiker. Honorary members are: Mrs. Clifford Walker, Miss Carolyn Cobb, Mrs. Armand Carroll.

Mrs. Neely presented some of the plans of the executive board for next year's work at the recent meeting, and from all indications the Atlanta Drama league will go forward now in accomplishing some of its most constructive work. Famous artists will come to Atlanta under the auspices of the league next winter and plans are being formed to accomplish much along the line of play producing. There are many artists among the Atlanta Drama league group, who will give especial attention to the training of those who wish to enter into the play-producing work.

Mrs. Neely has appointed some of her standing committees for the coming year as follows: Mrs. Robert F. Moore, chairman of guaranty fund committee; Mrs. John R. Hornady, chairman of press committee. The program committee is composed of the following: Mrs. J. B. Somerfield, Mrs. Albert Thornton, Jr., Mrs. Louis Moss. Other committees will be announced later.

Tech Fraternities To Occupy Boxes At Musical Play

The rows and boxes which each of the Tech fraternities will occupy at the Tech night performance of "The Seventh Veil," musical play which the Georgia Tech Marionettes are presenting at the Atlanta Woman's club theater on May 16 and 17, were determined Wednesday in the drawing held for that purpose. Four of the fraternities were fortunate to secure boxes in addition to their rows. The other fraternities with their guests will be seated in the rows they drew.

The four boxes were won by Chi Psi, Pi Kappa Phi, Sigma Chi and Theta Chi fraternities. The other fraternities will be seated as follows: Alpha Tau Omega, row J; Beta Theta Pi, row M; Chi Phi, row I; Delta Sigma Phi, row G; Delta Tau Delta, row O; Kappa Alpha, row P; Kappa Sigma, row F; Phi Delta Theta, row C; Phi Kappa Sigma, row R; Phi Sigma Kappa, row D; Pi Kappa Alpha, row S; Pi Lambda Delta, row T; Sigma Alpha Epsilon, row L; Sigma Nu, row K; Sigma Phi Epsilon, row N.

The first dress rehearsal of "The Seventh Veil" is to be held the first of this week. Two hundred costumes have been completed and will be used in practically all rehearsals from now on in order that the "ladies" of the chorus and cast may become accustomed to their feminine attire. The principals in the feminine roles wear some very elaborate and beautiful costumes. Landon Clark, who takes the part of Salome in the play, has seven gorgeous costumes which he wears at various times during the play. Some of the prettiest of the costumes will be displayed in Rich's windows next week, through the kindness of that store.

That the music which has been written for "The Seventh Veil" is destined to become very popular when published, is shown by the fact that Warner's Seven Aces has chosen one of the songs from the play for their next record release. The number chosen, which is in the May issue of Okeh records, is "I'd Like To Be Your Shiek for Awhile," written by Harry J. Pomar for the play.

W. E. Sickel, director of the Marionette orchestra, has reorganized and is enlarging the orchestra in preparation for "The Seventh Veil." Among his organization will be found some of the most accomplished musicians at Tech. The orchestra will number about fifteen when complete. Those now selected are: Violins, Harbour, Landers and Warren; cornets, Frederick and Seigel; clarinet, Sickel; trombone, Strickland; bass, Munger; drums, Lyons, and piano, Myers.

Mrs. Kurt Mueller To Present Pupils.

Mrs. Kurt Mueller will sponsor a concert at Phillips & Crew's Steinway hall on May 9, at which the outstanding feature will be the rendition of Tschaikowsky's "Nature and Love." This will be the first time this beautiful music has been given in the south, according to Mrs. Mueller, and the solo parts will be taken by several of Mrs. Mueller's pupils. The chorus will be sung by members of Mrs. Mueller's vocal class. The public is invited to attend.

All American Music To Be Rendered by Atlanta Music Club

A program of American music will be given by the Atlanta Music Club on Wednesday morning as its contribution to the country-wide observance of national music week. The concert will be held in the auditorium of the Woman's Club and will begin at 10:30.

Mrs. Armond Carroll is the chairman in charge of the program. Assisting her are several of the leading musicians of the city who will appear as soloists, and the chorus of the Atlanta Music Club, under the direction of Miss Lula Clark King, with Mrs. Charles Chalmers as accompanist.

Soloists appearing will be Mrs. W. O. Chears, soprano; Mrs. Mary Miller Trownsell, violin; Miss Blanche Roberts, Miss Pauline Landon and Miss Marjorie Randall, piano.

Mrs. Chears, whose exquisite voice and charming personality have endeared her singing to thousands of Atlanta music lovers, is one of the leading choir singers of the city and has been heard in concert on numerous occasions. Mrs. Trownsell, who as Miss Mary Miller, was the second violin of the Banner Quartet which was prominent in Atlanta musical life several years ago, is a violinist of delightful artistry.

Miss Blanche Roberts, of College Park, has recently become one of the most sought after of the younger pianists of the city. Her recent appearance before the state federation of music clubs at Sandersville was the occasion of an ovation for her, and she has been engaged as pianist in the Atlanta Trio, appearing in Gainesville with this organization on Friday. Both Miss Landon and Miss Randall are young artists of promise and have been heard several times within the past year.

The program will offer examples of the work of many well known American composers, most notable of whom are McDowell, John Powell, Cadman and Stephen Foster. Of particular popular interest at the present time will be the inclusion of the "Melody" by Major Charles G. Dawes, the dominant American figure in world politics of the moment and a master genius of extremely varied gifts.

Mrs. DeLos Hill, president of the club, is urging all members of the club to be present to enjoy one of the most significant programs of the season. She also extends to those who have not yet joined the club an invitation to present their applications at the door on the morning of the concert.

The complete program is as follows:

1. America, the Beautiful—official national anthem of the National Federation of Music Clubs—sung by the audience.
2. Two American Folk Songs, Foster—Atlanta Music club chorus.
3. Valse Caprice (for two pianos)—Misses Pauline Landon and Marjorie Randall.
4. (a) Barcarolle, Francis McMillen; (b) Melody, Major General Charles G. Dawes—Mrs. Mary Miller Trownsell.
5. (a) The Swan Sings to the Lily; (b) A Maid Sings Light; (c) The Sea, McDowell—Mrs. W. O. Chears.
6. Sonata in A Major (risoluto con nobile), Cadman—Miss Blanche Roberts.
7. (a) Night, Florence Golson; (b) Rain, Curran—Music club chorus.
8. Sonata Virginianesque ("At the Big House"), John Powell—Mrs. Trownsell, violin; Mrs. Carroll, piano.
9. (a) The Nightingale Has a Lyre of Gold, Whelpley; (b) Were I a Bird, Fred Knight Logan—Mrs. Chears.
10. Our America, Augusta E. Stetson—sung by the audience.

College Park Club Emphasizes Music.

The College Park Music Study club held a business session last Wednesday afternoon. Mrs. Hugh Couch presided.

The executive board presented the following recommendations: First, that a department of drama be added to the club's activities; second, that the following be appointed a nominating committee, Mrs. S. R. Young, Mrs. Colson, Mrs. Wynton Thomas, Mrs. H. F. Matthews and Mrs. J. W. Stephenson. The recommendations were accepted.

Mrs. Clarence Wall gave an account of the junior club's work. She recommended that the club be divided into junior and juvenile departments and that directors be appointed for each division.

Miss Grace Kener, chairman of membership, announced that 15 active members had been received into the club during the year.

The club expressed appreciation of its two artist members, Miss Blanche Roberts, who is pianist in the Artist Trio, which is giving a series of concerts over the state, and Mrs. Florence Golson Bateman, whose compositions are being enthusiastically received in professional circles.

Interest was expressed in plans for the celebration of national music week which begins Sunday, May 4. All the local pastors were asked to emphasize the value of good music in services of worship. Church choirs, Sunday schools, Bible classes, Missionary societies, civic clubs and other organizations were urged to present special music. The club, in body, will attend the grand concert at Wesley Memorial on Sunday afternoon and will occupy reserved seats. The chorus will sit on the platform. During the week community sings will be held at the homes of Mrs. Clarence Wall, Miss Lucile Mason, Mrs. Dorothy Hale, Mrs. H. E. Wall, Mrs. Hugh Couch, Mrs. J. D. Conley, Miss Eloise Olds and others.

Perhaps the most delightful feature of the afternoon's program was the interpretation of the chorus "Night," by its composer Mrs. Florence Golson Bateman. This beautiful composition will be rendered by the Atlanta club chorus under the directorship of Miss Lula Clarke King on Sunday afternoon. The Brenaus Glee club will present "Springtime," another of Mrs. Bateman's compositions, during music week.

Mrs. Neely Entertains French Alliance.

The members of the French alliance had a very interesting meeting at the home of Mrs. Edgar Neely, hostess for the alliance, on Thursday. In the absence of Charles G. Loridans, the president, and Mrs. John M. Slaton and Mrs. W. D. Welborn, first and second vice president, Mrs. C. Carl Lewis presided.

A most enjoyable program was rendered by three of the members of the alliance. Mrs. Lenair read a very interesting book, "Le Passi," by Colette Yver; Paul Sydel read some beautiful poems by Paul Geraldy, and Adrien Serac also read some lovely poems. A social hour followed the meeting.

Prominent Psychologist

Mrs. Gertrude Steele Chambers, psychologist of note, who has been giving lectures on "The New Science of Successful Living," under the auspices of the Human Progress association, of New York City, at the Central Congregational church, during the past week.

Federation of Arts Will Hold Annual Convention

Washington, D. C.,—Announcement has been made that the fifteenth annual convention of the American Federation of Arts will be held in Washington on May 14, 15 and 16. It is the custom for the national art organization to hold alternate annual conventions at the national capital, where its headquarters are found in the historic Octagon house. The convention last May was held in St. Louis, Mo., at the Chase hotel.

These conventions are attended by delegates from all the leading art organizations of the country. All persons interested in the development of the knowledge and appreciation of art in this country are welcomed. At the sessions matters of national and local interest are discussed. The delegates, representing several hundred thousand members in their local chapters, take action on important national matters pertaining to art. At present the organization is helping to arouse interest in securing a building to house the National Gallery of Art. This is the only civilized country in the world which has no suitable building for its national art gallery. Valuable bequests of objects of art are every year being lost to the nation because of there being no suitable building in which to place them for permanent exhibition.

The members of the American Federation of Arts are people who have an appreciation of national as well as local responsibility. In art as in political matters the time has come when no community may wisely confine its interest to the affairs within its own narrow boundaries. What affects the appreciation of art in the next state, sooner or later affects the community across the state line. Less people will ask why they should become members of a national organization, and still less what they themselves will receive from such affiliation.

The Atlanta invitation committee is composed of the following members: Mrs. Edwin W. More, chairman; J. J. Haverty, vice chairman; Mrs. Gilbert Fraser, Miss Virginia Woolley, Mrs. H. B. Hosmer, Mrs. Henry W. Todd, Mrs. A. F. Drew, Mrs. S. M. Inman, Miss Rose Moran, Mrs. George Hinman, Miss Ruth Northen, Miss Kate Edwards, Miss Adelaide Everhardt, Mrs. J. O. Wynn, Mrs. T. T. Stevens, Mrs. Joseph Moody, Mrs. Joseph Lamar, Miss May Haverty, Mrs. Alonzo Richardson, Mrs. E. P. McBurney, Miss Nell Van Hook, Mrs. Arthur W. Chase, Mrs. Walter Hill, Miss M. A. H. Smith, Mrs. D. McKinley, Mrs. Frank Lowenstein, Mrs. Marvin Underwood, Miss Mela Wellborn, Mrs. A. E. Thornton, Mrs. E. K. Turner, Mrs. John Cooper, Mrs. Ten Eyck Brown, C. B. Bidwell, Francis P. Smith, Harold Bush-Brown, J. J. Haverty, J. Carroll Payne, John Skinner, W. Woods White.

The American Federation of Arts is at present conducting a campaign for membership throughout the country.

There are three different classes of membership, associated membership at $5.00 per year which carries with it the American Magazine of Art, a monthly publication, dealing with all matters pertaining to Art, both American and foreign; free admission to museums throughout the country upon presentation of membership card; notices of important art matters; and invitation to annual conventions.

Active membership, dues $10 a year. Same privileges as above and in addition the loan of portfolios of etchings and other original prints for examination and purchase. Sustaining membership: dues $100 a year. All the foregoing, privileges and copies of the Sales Bulletins and the American Art Annual on request. Life membership, one payment of $500. Perpetual memberships are chiefly for those who generously wish to lend support to the organization.

Junior Music Club To Mark Music Week With Lovely Program

As part of Atlanta's celebration of National Music week, the Atlanta Junior Music club, under the direction of Miss Madeline Kelpp, will give a program at 8 o'clock on Wednesday, May 7, at Cable hall. There will be no admission charge and the public is cordially invited.

The program will be opened by the Junior Music club orchestra under direction of Mrs. Morgan Stephens.

A cantata, "The Little Gipsy," by Geibel, will be given in which parts will b taken by Katherine Kay, Joe Beth Apperson, Ruth Jones, Gladstone Pursley, Florence Goldberg, Mary Barnes. Miss Ruth Weegand will be director and the accompanist Eleanor McDonald.

Master Chris Conyers, first honor pupil North Side Public School violin classes, will play a group of violin solos.

"A Hungarian Dance," by Brahms, will be played by Miss Gene Lee, first honor pupil Morgan-Stephens Conservatory of Music.

The program will be closed with the "Turkish March," Mozart, and "Toy Symphony," first movement, Romberg, played by Junior Music club orchestra and Morgan-Stephens Conservatory orchestra, directed by Mrs. Morgan-Stephens.

Camp Fire Girls Aid Music Week.

The Camp Fire Girls as a national organization are backing National Music week throughout the country.

Miss Helen Knox Spain, who is in charge of Music week in Atlanta, has entrusted to them a large share of the responsibility for the week of May 4 to 10, which is to be observed with particular emphasis on music. Atlanta Camp Fire has accepted the responsibility and is working to prove unfailing interest and ability in promoting civic movements.

Arrangements have been made through the Camp Fire executive, Miss Mary Louise Wilson, for an afternoon or evening of music at the Atlanta Children's home, Home of the Friendless, Old Woman's home, Home for Incurables, and Battle Hill sanitarium. The Epworth league union of the city has offered its services in putting on these programs.

The Georgia Children's Home association and the Confederate Veterans' home will have music rendered during the week by the Tatapochon Camp Fire Girls of Joseph Brown Junior High school. The young people's class of the Grace Methodist church Sunday school has been secured to lend assistance in the work and they will be responsible for a musical entertainment at the Scottish Rite hospital. The orchestra of the First Christian Sunday school, under the leadership of Paul McCash, will give an evening of music at the Southern Christian home. Hospital No. 48 will be cared for with regard to music during the week by Miss Ruth Hinman and Miss Edith Moore, who are in charge of arranging the program. Mrs. B. M. Hood's group of Camp Fire will put on a program at Sheltering Arms. The four homes under the Sheltering Arms will have musical plans as the result of Camp Fire interest. Camp Fire Girls are also working toward music to be given by every Sunday school in the city. Singing on the steps of the various churches will reach people. Neighborhood singing is another important part of the National Music week that has been assigned to the care of Camp Fire by Miss Spain. Group singing in every neighborhood will be encouraged.

Mrs. Parry Sends News of Girl Scout Convention

Direct from the scene of action comes news of the Girl Scout national convention held in Chicago during the past week at which several hundred delegates representing nearly every state in the union were present. Mrs. Harvey L. Parry, director of the Atlanta troops, and Mrs. J. G. Thrower, secretary, went as delegates from Atlanta. A letter from Mrs. Parry contains much interest concerning the activities of the convention.

She writes: "The convention was splendid—so full of inspiration and interest. Representatives are here from 40 states and those states which did not send delegates sent excellent reports. Of great interest was the report from Hawaii where there are about 1,500 Girl Scouts under our national council. In the United States we have now about 168,000 Girl Scouts and 8,000 leaders." Aside from the spirit of the convention the actual figures and facts which prove the marvelous spreading of scouting have been inspirational, and all of these things are packed into the enthusiastic letter from the enthusiastic Atlanta director.

Training Course.

"A training course for leaders was held the week before the convention," continues the letter from Mrs. Parry. "It was a wonderful success. Held at Druce lake, it had an ideal location. Some 120 leaders were there, divided into three groups, four patrols in each group. The patrol method of training was used with much emphasis laid upon nature lore, hikes, out-of-door games and cooking, country dancing and singing games.

"I was elected," writes Mrs. Parry, "a member of the nominating committee to represent region 6." The nominating committee, let it be explained, was vested with power to nominate the board of directors. Mrs. Parry rejoiced over the reception of her report of the Atlanta health trail which came to a close a few short weeks ago with a tremendous flourish. A number of other cities have, upon hearing the report, planned to have a health trail of their own.

President's Letter.

"One of the high lights of the convention," said Mrs. Parry, "was a letter from President Coolidge which was read at the opening session. The president praised the work of the Girl Scouts and gave it his hearty endorsement and good wishes."

Mrs. Parry will be back in Atlanta the early part of next week, but Mrs. Thrower will remain in Chicago a little longer, returning the latter part of the week. These two delegates from Atlanta are filled with the spirit of scouting and with a desire that Atlanta stand at the top with its Girl Scout record.

East Point Social News.

Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Suttles and family have moved into their new home, in Colonial Hill.

Mrs. John Sullivan and Mrs. Jim C. Orr and young daughter have arrived from Washington, D. C., and will spend the summer with Mrs. J. M. Orr and other relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Baker have returned to Hartwell, after a short visit with relatives.

A pleasant affair of the week was the dinner party entertained by Mrs. W. Poland in honor of Mrs. W. N. Edge, of Valdosta, who is the guest of Mrs. E. G. Clinkscales.

Mesdames R. B. Callahan, A. J. McDuffie, E. G. Slinkscales, R. L. Branton and E. G. Nabell represented the P.-T. A.'s at the fifth district conference in Kirkwood.

Mrs. C. D. Owens is attending the P.-T. A. in Savannah.

Mrs. J. W. Bragwell has returned after spending several weeks in Chattanooga, Tenn., with her daughter, Mrs. Rannie White.

Misses Blanche and Addie Jarrett have returned to Athens after a visit with their sister, Mrs. George C. Christian.

Mrs. W. P. Adams is slowly recovernig from a severe attack of rheumatism.

Miss Alliene Boyle is recovering from a few days' illness.

Mrs. D. W. Allen, of Stone Mountain, who has been ill at a private sanitarium for several days, has been removed to the home of her daughter, Mrs. J. E. Goode.

Mrs. J. E. Lee, of Stockbridge, who will leave in a few days for Chicago, was the guest of her sister, Mrs. J. S. Suttles, during the past week.

Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Bryant and family have moved into their new home on Dorsey avenue.

Miss Lucille Shannon is in Savannah attending the P.-T. A. convention.

Miss Arnoldina Thorton, of Elberton, and Miss Helen Arnold, of Stephens, were guests of Mrs. L. H. Caveny and Miss Nellie Caveny during the past week.

Missionary Society Holds Meeting.

The Missionary society of St. Paul's Methodist church held its regular half-year all-day study class in the main auditorium April 29 with a delegation of about 150.

The meeting was opened with prayer by Mrs. Floyd Field, a guest of honor who is very much loved. Mrs. M. A. Reiter then gave the devotional. The song "The Japanese Sandman" was very beautifully rendered by Miss Martha Crowe and Mrs. W. Lloyd Horne with Miss Carol Gifford playing the accompaniment. The program, under the leadership of the efficient superintendent of the Mission Study class, Mrs. W. O. Gifford, was very much enjoyed.

"Japan on the Upward Trail" was the subject for study. Mrs. Gifford introduced the different characters instrumental in building Japan. The following ladies dressed in costumes representing the characters, told just what work she had done: Mrs. W. M. Pharr, Mrs. I. P. Little, Mrs. J. C. Glover, Mrs. John Green, Mrs. H. C. Holbrock, Mrs. G. J. Carnes, Mrs. W. C. Raines, Mrs. W. M. Fudge, Mrs. S. C. Styron, Mrs. S. S. Howle, Mrs. B. Huert, Mrs. J. C. Ellis, Mrs. Ralph Wise, Mrs. Marie Stone, Mrs. Jack Lane, Mrs. Taylor, Miss Carol Gifford, Mrs. B. J. Sewell, Mrs. T. Irby, Mrs. J. K. Shippey, Mrs. Welborne, Mrs. K. K. Kelley, Mrs. Candler Brunsfield, Mrs. L. L. Schelport, Mrs. A. Parks, Mrs. Theo Beiter, Mrs. T. J. Castleberry, Mrs. W. W. Jackson, Mrs. Hopkins.

Matrons' Class Gives Party.

On last Friday evening the regular monthly social meeting of the Young Matrons' Bible class of Martha Brown Sunday school was held at the home of Mrs. C. L. Shimp, 41 Delaware avenue. A lot of interest was taken in the contest of making costumes from newspapers. The first prize was won by Mrs. Maynard and Mrs. Sudderth; the booby prize by Mrs. Harmon and Mrs. Moore. Punch and tea were served by Mrs. M. M. Minor.

The following ladies were present: Mrs. J. J. Hardin, Mrs. S. H. Griffin, Mrs. George Meyer, Mrs. Byron Austin, Mrs. C. B. Everitt, Jr., Mrs. B. T. Maynard, Mrs. M. M. Minor, Mrs. E. O. Hollingsworth, Mrs. C. E. Clarke, Mrs. L. A. Foster, Mrs. Leo Sudderth, Mrs. Paul Moore, Mrs. C. B. McWilliams, Mrs. W. F. Jones, Mrs. Harry LaSalle, Mrs. Roy Putnam, Mrs. Fred Hooks, Mrs. S. C. Roby, Mrs. O. G. Buffington, Mrs. J. C. Stone, Mrs. Adams, Mrs. Byron Minor, Mrs. R. L. Harmon.

New York Visitor Is Entertained.

A lovely compliment to Mrs. J. C. Goodrich, of New York, was the theater party and tea given by Mrs. Carlton Brooks, on Saturday. Mrs. Goodrich is the guest of Mrs. L. L. Boyer.

After the theater tea was served at the Elks' club. The tea table was placed in the main dining room and was covered with a beautiful lace cloth, the central decoration being a glass basket holding pink carnations. Vases holding jonquils were on either end and at intervals were silver dishes filled with pink and green mints. At each plate was a miniature pink basket holding salted nuts.

Mrs. Goodrich was lovely in a model of blue crepe and a hat of black straw.

Mrs. Brooks wore black lace over black satin and black hat trimmed with yellow.

Buckeye Club Holds Meeting.

The Buckeye Woman's club met on Tuesday afternoon, April 29, at 3 o'clock in the parlors of the Liberal Christian church, on West Peachtree street.

Mrs. Fred J. White and Mrs. W. E. Quillian, who were the hostesses for the afternoon, gave a beautiful and an artistic program.

Dr. Ernest Bowden delighted his hearers by his reading of some American gems of poetry. Mrs. Sanders gave two beautiful violin selections.

Mrs. Quillian sang a group of songs, "A Star," "A Memory," and "On De Banks Ob De River Jordan." She was accompanied by Miss Lucile Vale, of Cartersville. Mrs. Fred White read "Flurette" in her own delightful manner.

The program for the afternoon was especially beautiful and enjoyed by about forty members. The room was decorated with dogwood and azaleas. Mrs. Arthur Neal Robinson served punch.

Prior to the program there was a short business session during which Mrs. Edwin M. Helbig presided. The club voted to give ten dollars to the Travelers' Aid society and five dollars toward entertaining the meeting of the State Federation of Women's Clubs to be held in Atlanta during the early fall.

The following nominating committee was appointed: Mrs. D. O. Smith, chairman, Mrs. S. G. Hunter, and Mrs. J. L. Murphy. The election of officers will take pace on May 27, when the club will meet at the home of Mrs. Roy S. Mather, 28 Fairview road. Mrs. W. R. Wilson and Mrs. J. E. Whiteman will be assisting hostesses.

Annual reports will be given at that time and members are requested to be ready to respond to "Why We Left Ohio." On Friday, May 9, there will be an all-day sewing at the home of Mrs. E. R. Lowry, 37 Zachry street. A full attendance is urged as garments for the Needlework Guild of America will be made.

At Tuesday's meeting Mrs. S. M. Hastings was welcomed into the club as a new member. Mrs. Warren G. Harding is honorary life president of the Buckeye Woman's club. In acknowledgement of a 1923-'24 year book having been sent to her recently, the following letter has been received:

Washington, D. C., April 19, '24.

My dear Mrs. Helbig:

I was so pleased to receive the year book and very interested to read it. I want to congratulate you upon having such a constructive program and I am sure it must be gratifying to the women of the club to feel that besides the pleasure of gathering together on many delightful occasions, you are also doing such fine philanthropic and educational work.

Please extend my greetings and good wishes to your membership, and believe me, with kind regards to you and Mr. Helbig,

Sincerely yours,
Florence Kling Harding.

Kentucky Club Plans Open Session at Druid Hills Club

The Kentucky club of Atlanta held an unusually interesting meeting Tuesday afternoon at the Wren's Nest, on Gordon street, with Mrs. Arthur Hale as hostess. One feature of the meeting was the announcement of plans for the open session the club is to have at the Druid Hills Golf club on the night of the last Tuesday in May.

The open meeting is being arranged primarily for the entertainment of the fathers, husbands and sons of the members of the club, and it was also voted to invite the Kentucky students at Georgia Tech, Emory university, Oglethorpe university, and Agnes Scott college.

During the business session, the club indorsed the founder's and children's roll plans of the Stone Mountain Monumental association, and pledged its cooperation in the memorial work. This action was taken on motion of Mrs. W. B. Price-Smith.

Mrs. W. H. Willson was chairman of the program committee, while Mrs. Abner Hord, president, presided at the business session. Mrs. George Denman read an interesting paper on "Pioneers of Kentucky," and Mrs. Mary Tremor played two beautiful piano selections of her own composition, the score having been written by her grandson, T. Guy Woolford, Jr. Owing to the length of the program, Mrs. Robert Taylor Connally postponed until a later meeting the reading of a diary she has kept during a stay in the Kentucky mountains.

Reservations for the meeting at the Druid Hills Golf club may be made with Mrs. F. W. Minnich, treasurer, Hemlock 2780, or Mrs. Cleburne E. Gregory, secretary, Ivy 4244-W.

JUNIOR THRIFT COMMITTEE TO STAGE CONTEST AT CLUB

Junior Thrift Committee To Stage Essay Contest

Of interest to the girls and boys of the junior high schools, of the seventh and eighth grades, will be the essay contest put on by the junior thrift committee of the Atlanta Woman's club, with Mrs. Otis Poundstone, chairman.

"My Thrift Plan for a College Education" will be the subject for the essay and it is the desire of the committee that as many young people as possible may enter this contest.

The Metropolitan Insurance company has offered $10 as a prize to each of the four junior high schools for the best essay on the above subject. This courtesy came through Ransom Wright, of the company.

Essays must be in by the 15th of May and the prizes will be awarded as soon as they can be passed on by the judges. Those appointed as judges by Mrs. Alonzo Richardson, president of the Atlanta Woman's club, are: Mrs. Poundstone, chairman; Mrs. John R. Hornady, Mrs. W. F. Melton, Mrs. D. F. Stevenson, Mrs. Rogers Wilson, Mrs. C. L. Dean, Mrs. L. H. Presson, Mrs. W. W. Alexander, Mrs. C. V. Hohenstein, Mrs. Charles Goodman, Mrs. Murray Howard, Mrs. Arthur Merrill, Mrs. Dudley Glass.

Requirements for the contest will be given through the schools and it is announced that the essays will be limited to 500 words. The Metropolitan Insurance company has been advocating junior thrift for some years and is especially cooperative with the junior thrift committee of the Woman's club in promoting this splendid trait in children. Mrs. Poundstone, chairman, is enthusiastic over the outcome of the essay contest and feels that a great many children will benefit in a very big way, by bringing to their attention through the medium of writing the value of thrift and economy.

STATE TOUR TO BE MADE BY PRESIDENT

Mrs. Alonzo Richardson, president of the Atlanta Woman's club and director-elect for the state of Georgia in the General Federation of Women's clubs, will leave the first of the week to visit several districts of the state where meetings are being held, and she has been requested to address the clubwomen.

On Monday, Mrs. Richardson will be tendered a luncheon by the clubwomen of Tennville, Georgia, and will address that body of club workers on Tuesday. Wednesday, she attends the district meeting in Sandersville, where she has also been requested to talk on Federation work. Thursday and Friday, she will visit the tenth district meeting, of which Mrs. E. R. Hines is president and after addressing the women of the district will talk on Federation activities before the Thompson woman's club, of which Mrs. Ira Farmer, is president. Last week she had the pleasure of being with the seventh district workers, at Rockmart, where she delivered an address on "What Federation is Doing."

A meeting of the county Federation at McDonough will take place Friday, at which time Mrs. Richardson will speak before the women of the clubs there. On the 23rd of the month, she will take part in the program of the sixth district meeting, which will be held in Barnesville, Georgia.

The Atlanta Woman's club will be represented at the Savannah Economic State conference, by Miss Mollie Whitehead, who will have with her a splendid exhibit from the home taken from the millinery, interior decorations and other vocation classes of the department.

Mrs. Alonzo Richardson, president of the club, is especially anxious that a full delegation of Georgia women attend the California Federation convention in June and urges those who wish to go, to communicate with the office of the club and though the club list of delegates has been filled, she will make every effort to find another organization and place each woman so she may attend as a delegate. So many going from the Woman's club, as delegates, are members of other organizations, that it will be easy to make every woman attending, a delegate from some club, belonging to the General Federation, which will give them the privilages of a delegate at the convention.

King's Daughters To Have Meeting.

The local assembly of the Daughters of the King will hold the semi-annual meeting at St. Luke's church, May 8, at 5:30 in the afternoon.

There will be a service in the church and an address by Dr. Wilmer. Supper will be served at 6:30 in the rear of the church, followed by a business meeting.

These hours are arranged so that the busy women may have the privilege of attending and they are earnestly requested to be present.

The supper is 25 cents and all women interested in knowing more of the work of the Daughters of the King are invited. Kindly phone the directors of the respective chapters or Mrs. F. B. Lippitt for supper reservations.

FEDERATION NEWS COMPLIMENTS WOMAN'S CLUB

The May issue of the General Federation News, which has just reached Atlanta during the last week, is full of interesting items concerning club work and the California Federation convention and carries the following announcement and tribute to the Atlanta Woman's club: "The Atlanta Woman's club, largest federated club in Georgia, has tendered to Mrs. T. T. Stevens, president of the Atlanta City Federation, next hostess, use of its plant for the entertainment of the Georgia state convention. The Atlanta Woman's club is an outstanding one in the country, and has the only clubhouse large enough to entertain the state meeting. Mrs. Alonzo Richardson, formerly citizenship chairman in the General Federation of Women's Clubs, and director-elect, is president.

Fraternity Will Honor Sponsor.

Of unusual interest is the announcement of the formal dance to be given by the members of the Sigma Pi Phi fraternity of Boys' High school, May 16, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Corker, on Fairview road, Druid Hills.

This affair will be given in honor of the fraternity sponsor, Miss Elizabeth Carithers, and will assemble members of the college and high school social contingent and a group of out-of-town guests.

Teaching parrots to talk is the unusual way in which one woman in New York city earns a living. It is a task that requires patience and skill.

CLUB PRESIDENT IS HONORED AT LOVELY TEA

Entertaining in honor of Mrs. Alonzo Richardson, president of the Atlanta Woman's club, Friday afternoon, Mrs. D. F. Stevenson and Mrs. W. W. Alexander were hostesses at one of the most delightful parties of the season.

Gathered around a beautifully appointed table, adorned with bright azaleas and spring wild flowers, about fifty friends of the club president enjoyed an informal hour, while Mrs. Stevenson and Mrs. Alexander presented the honor guest and invited friends.

Seated at the speaker's table with Mrs. Richardson and the hostesses were Mrs. Bryan Collier, Mrs. Norman Sharp, Mrs. W. F. Melton, Mrs. W. D. Alexander, Mrs. Price-Smith, Mrs. Alyce Taylor and others.

Mrs. Richardson responded to a beautiful tribute from Mrs. Alexander, telling something of the splendid cooperation she had received from the club members during her past year's administration and how she had grown to love the club and its members during the five or six years she has been engaged in the work.

Mrs. Stevenson also spoke of the splendid work of Mrs. Richardson and emphasized the fact that she was greatly appreciated by all of her coworkers. Mrs. Norman Sharp responded to Mrs. Stevenson's tribute to her as the incoming president of the club with words of appreciation.

Mrs. Bryan Collier, after giving a toast to Mrs. Richardson, paid tribute to Mrs. Stevenson and told of the distinguished lineage of which she is a descendant. Mrs. Collier is the writer of a volume of "Our Southern Women," and quoted her information from authoritative records.

Mrs. Price-Smith, Mrs. Melton, Mrs. Brower and several friends of the honor guest paid lovely tributes to their present club leader. Mrs. Hohenstein quoted a beautiful poem, fitting Mrs. Richardson into the poem, as its object. Mrs. John Hornady spoke of the Woman's club from the view point of its press agent, and likened it to a beautiful peepshow, where hundreds of flowers were encased beneath a glass and Mrs. Richardson was the center flower where other blossoms, as her officers, clustered about her, until she had become so radiant and beautiful that the little child could no longer keep her, but the mother organization, the General Federation of Women's clubs, must need her and though her associates are loath to give her up, they are willing to surrender her to the mother organization, as the director and chieftain of the Georgia club women.

Mrs. Richardson commented highly upon the beautiful services rendered to the club by Mrs. T. C. Simmons, hostess for the club, and Mrs. Hyde, who has in charge the culinary department. Those invited to meet the club president were Mrs. Clifford Walker, Mrs. Jacques Futrelle, Mrs. Corra Harris, Mrs. Adelaide Howell Bower, Mrs. Bryan Collier, Mrs. A. P. Brantley, Mrs. W. S. Coleman, Miss Carolyn Cobb, Mrs. Enrico Leide, Mrs. A. McD. Wilson, Mrs. G. L. Brandon, Mrs. T. E. Simmons, Mrs. Sharp, Mrs. Price-Smith, Mrs. W. F. Melton, Mrs. Hamilton Douglas, Mrs. E. V. Carter, Mrs. Alyce Taylor, Mrs. W. L. Moore, Mrs. G. L. Brower, Mrs. John R. Hornady, Mrs. Cleve Webb, Mrs. W. E. Floding, Mrs. William Fisch, Mrs. Calvin Stanford, Mrs. C. I. Mitchell, Mrs. S. P. Neely, Mrs. Thomas Ripley, Mrs. Claudia Wood, Mrs. W. D. Alexander, Mrs. Flora McDaniel Pitts, Mrs. J. E. Springer, Mrs. J. P. Billups, Mrs. Earl Scott, Mrs. Charles Robertson, Mrs. A. S. Crain, Mrs. J. E. Miller, Mrs. Lucien Harris, Mrs. Kriegshaber, Mrs. Julian Bailey, Mrs. Chaffee, Mrs. Hinton Clarke, Mrs. Stilson, Mrs. Fred Scanling, Mrs. Hohenstein, Mrs. Stanford, Mrs. Wolfe, Mrs. H. A. Manning, Mrs. Norman Poole, Mrs. Helbig, Mrs. Rogers Wilson.

FLOWER LOVERS' DIVISION TO HOLD MEETING

The flower lovers' division of the Atlanta Woman's club will meet Thursday morning, May 8, at 10:30 o'clock, at the clubhouse, 946 Peachtree street.

Mrs. Charles Goodman will give an interesting talk on "How to Plan a Garden."

All members of this department are urged to be present.

SCRAP BOOK TO BE SHOWN AT CLUB HOUSE

Mrs. Julian Bailey desires to announce that the Atlanta Woman's club scrapbook will be at the clubhouse after May 10 in order that the department charimen may have access to it in forming their yearly reports.

DR. SPAETH TO FEATURE MUSIC WEEK

Dr. Sigmund Spaeth, of New York city, music critic and writer on all forms of music, will appear at the Woman's club Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Dr. Spaeth will give an illustrated talk on music. In compliment to Dr. Spaeth the Atlanta Kinder orchestra, under direction of Mrs. H. R. Acosta, will play a program. This program is being given as the Atlanta Woman's club contribution to National Music Week. It is open to the public without admission charge.

Psychology Meeting To Be Held at Ansley.

The Atlanta Psychological society, Mrs. Rose Mae Ashby, president, will meet Sunday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock in the mahogany room of the Ansley hotel. The subject of the lecture will be "Psycho Analysis and Complexes."

Mrs. Ashby will not only tell what complexes are, but will aso tell how to get rid of them.

CITIZENSHIP CLASS TO GIVE PROGRAM

The citizenship class of the Atlanta Woman's club will meet Wednesday morning, May 7, at 10:30 o'clock at the clubhouse. Mrs. R. L. Turman, chairman, will conduct the program. The eleventh and twelfth lessons of the textbook will be discussed, the subjects being: "What the State Does for the Farmers" and "Our Public Schools."

This is the next to the last meeting of the club year and the instructor of the class, Mrs. Turman, is especially anxious for a full attendance, so that the study book may be completed and the two remaniing lessons may be taken up at the last meeting.

NEW CLASSES IN MILLINERY TO BEGIN

The millinery classes which are proving so popular with the women of the city will feature sport hats, georgettes, leghorns and other popular summer materials, according to Mrs. Mae Bailey, the most efficient teacher. The new classes will begin Tuesday at the Atlanta Woman's club and will include a course of eight lessons for $2.00, and are open to every one, whether a club member or not.

Some registrations have already been made, but there are still a few vacancies, and those interested are urged to communicate with Mrs. Bailey at once.

"WILLOW WALK" WILL BE READ AT MEETING

The literature class of the Atlanta Woman's club, Mrs. D. F. Stevenson, chairman, will meet Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock in the clubhouse at 946 Peachtree.

The subject for the afternoon study will be: "The Supernatural and Psychological." The first example of phychological story will be "Willow Walk," by Sinclair Lewis. This story is one of the best examples of suspense to be found. The second story, "How It Happened," by A. Conan Doyle, will be a treatment of the supernatural. The third story will be "Willow Pond," by Helen Ellwanger Handford.

The serial story will be read in its entirety by Mrs. W. F. Melton, who contributed the first installment; the second being written by Mrs. Rogers A. Wilson; third, by Mrs. A. S. Crain; the three collaborating on the fourth chapter.

There will be a report by Mrs. C. L. Dean on the poetry contest, of which she is chairman, with Miss Martha Washington Morel and Mrs. S. P. Neely as co-chairmen. Mrs. Dean has offered $5 as a prize for the best poem submitted, the same not to be more than 30 lines and to be in the hands of the judges by May 13. The contset is open to all Atlantans and those of the suburbs.

As this is the last meeting of the class for the club year, a good attendance is requested.

Decatur Woman's Club Enrolls Two Hundred Charter Members

The charter membership roll of the Decatur Woman's club closed on April 30 with a total of 215 members whose names will be enrolled as charter members of Decatur's recently organized woman's club.

Permanent quarters for meetings of the club proper and the various committees are being sought and various locations are being considered with the idea in view of purchasing a suitable home for the club or having a clubhouse built.

A number of interesting social events to be given by the club are on the calendar for the near future, announcement of which will be made shortly.

Tuesday, May 20, will be "Decatur day" at the art exhibition of the Grand Central art galleries of New York, to be held at the Atlanta Biltmore hotel for two weeks, commencing May 17, and the Decatur Woman's club will be hostess for the one day of Tuesday, May 20.

Mrs. Frank B. Pond, president of the club, announces the appointment of the following committee from the club who will have charge of the entertainment features for that day. Mrs. W. D. Hoyt, chairman; Mrs. W. S. Young, Mrs. Ulrich Green, Mrs. D. P. McGeachy and Mrs. William Alden.

The admission to this exhibition of the most wonderful collection of pictures and sculpture ever shown in the south is open and free to the public.

Bowdon O. E. S. Celebrates Birthday.

The evening of April 28 will be long remembered by the members of Bowdon chapter O. E. S. Each one put forth unusual effort to help in this celebration of the first birthday as an organized body under the jurisdiction of the Grand Chapter O. E. S. of Georgia.

After opening in due form the following program was rendered in an impressive manner: Music, Holy Night; reading, Signs and Passes, Mrs. Maud Lipham; obligation ceremony, by officers of chapter; solo, The End of a Perfect Day; address The Valuable Service to Humanity of an Unselfish Life, by Honorable James Beall, of Carrollton, Ga.; reading, Reverence for Our Flag, Miss Evilee Beck; address, The Scriptural Lessons of the Chapter and Their Application to Every Individual, by Judge Leon Hood, Carrollton, Ga.; closing song, Blest Be the Tie; chapter closed in due form; refreshments of ice cream and cake.

South Atlanta District Meeting.

The South Atlanta district meeting of the North Georgia conference will be held in St. Paul's church, Atlanta, Tuesday and Wednesday, May 6 and 7.

The meeting will be opened at 9:30 o'clock. Delegates from 37 auxiliaries will attend.

The program will cover every department of the work, and is planned to help each officer become more efficient in her department.

On Tuesday morning reports will be given. Tuesday afternoon Mrs. Tilly will have charge of the junior and baby division work. Wednesday morning devoted to institute work; Wednesday afternoon Mrs. Striplin and the young people will present the work in the "Hall of Fame" contest.

Tuesday night at 7:30 o'clock Mrs. Wallace Rogers will present "Following Our Boxes with Stereopticon."

Good devotionals and inspirational addresses will have a large part on the program.

Representative to Porto Rico

Photograph by Stephenson Studio.

Mrs. Joseph E. Haley, who was recently appointed grand representative of the Order of the Eastern Star to Porto Rico, is one of Atlanta's most popular and prominent civic workers. Mrs. Haley has been elected for six consecutive terms to the board of lady visitors to the Atlanta public schools. She is an active member of the Atlanta Woman's club and is vice president of the Star club.

Kirkwood Civic League To Hold First Session of New Year

The meeting of the Kirkwood Civic league on Tuesday, May 6, will be the first session of the new club year.

The president, Mrs. Joseph Smith, will preside. The annual reports of each department and of the section vice presidents are sure to be interesting as so much good work and construction measures have been accomplished during the past year.

The Branham-Hess loving cup will be awarded to the section vice president whose record shows the greatest number of points to her credit in her past year's club work. This annual event is always looked forward to with keen interest by all the club members as well as the section presidents. Mrs. S. W. Bowen, of the first section, has held the cup for the past two years. Prior to that time Mrs. Joseph Smith, who was then section vice president of the first section, held it two consecutive years.

The present section vice presidents are Mrs. Fred Norris, Mrs. M. S. Ransom, Mrs. B. B. Hamby and Mrs. R. H. Bell.

Two business items were unintentionally left out of the report of last meeting; one was a resolution that "Whereas, DeKalb avenue is the main thoroughfare from Fulton to DeKalb county and, whereas, there is now only a narrow road on one side of the street car tracks, making it dangerous where there is such an enormous amount of travel, and, whereas, the pavement on said narrow road is sadly in need of repair, therefore, be it resolved, That the Kirkwood Civic league petition the aldermen and the councilmen of the twelfth ward to take immediate steps to get DeKalb avenue widened." The other resolution authorized the park committee of the league to ask the city through the park commission to put drinking fountains in Kirkwood park.

A full attendance of league members is requested on May 6 and visitors are always welcomed to regular league meetings.

Camp Fire Girls Discuss Choice of Given Names

BY SARAH BELLE BRODNAX.

At noon recess on Friday, Mary and Catherine, who is her very best friend, and all the other Camp Fire girls gathered in a circle and discussed the coming Camp Fire meeting, while they put their lunches together on a big piece of white paper and had a "spread." Mary adores "spreads" and is always planning one. So, with this one in progress and a Camp Fire meeting the very next day to look forward to, there wasn't a happier girl anywhere than our Mary.

Right in the midst of taking a bite out of a sandwich, a great, big, startling idea popped into Mary's mind. "I wonder how I ever came to be named Mary!" she burst out, and a little ripple of laughter went like a wave from one girl to another. "Because it just suits you, Mary, Mary Quite Contrary!" teased Josephine Murray.

Then, they all grew serious. For after all, names are funny things. Just suppose that Mary's mother and father had named her Gwndolyn, for example. It wouldn't have suited her at all. Gwyndolyn sounds so very dignified and stately, and Mary isn't dignified and stately at all. To think of jolly, rosy, delicious Mary going by any other name than her own is disturbing when you really think about it seriously.

Catherine said that she had been named for a great aunt who had loved her mother very, very much. Lottie explained that her real, honest-to-goodness name was Charlotte and that she was called Lottie for short.

Katie May Willis sat very still while this discussion of names was in progress. Her name was so ugly, and she hated it and she was ashamed to put it up beside the pretty names that most of the other girls have.

"Why must some girls have pretty names and some ugly ones like mine, without a bit of choice in the matter?" she wondered silently. "We are going to choose our own names at the next meeting of Camp Fire," she heard Mary saying and her heart began to beat very fast. "Mrs. Wylie said each one of us is to think of a name we want," Mary went on.

Katie May Chooses Name.

Katie May grew very happy and joined in the conversation. "I'm going to have the very loveliest name I can find—something that is like a pretty sunbeam, or a rippling brook with shadows on it, or—something that will make me think of the out-of-doors in spring time!" she thrilled.

The bell rang and the girls had to hurry in to a history lesson. The teacher had a list of the kings of old England written on the board, and after nearly all of them was written something like this: "the good," "the brave," "the just."

"When you see a word like that made a part of the name, you really know something about the person," said the teacher.

"It's just like our Camp Fire names," thought Mary.

The next afternoon at the meeting of the Camp Fire group, Mary told Mrs. Wylie, the guardian, about the history lesson and how nearly all the kings were named by having a suitable phrase tacked on to the name that had been given them when they were very small.

"Yes, when names first began to be given many, many years ago, every name had its own meaning and was suited to the person who bore it. If it was not, something was added to make it suitable," said Mrs. Wylie.

"But we don't have to go as far back as old England," she continued. "For this idea of naming is carried out even more beautifully by our own American Indians, whose poetic love of nature has helped them to express in their names not only the truth that they have seen, but the beauty and mystery they have felt in life.

"Once upon a time there was a wee papoose who came to be named Wapomio. He father, the great brave, took his squaw and his littie one for a long journey in search of food. They rode in his canoe on a very large lake, and one day there was a great storm that tossed the canoe as if it had been a leaf. The brave's brow was like a thunder cloud. But the baby laughed, and a moment later the sun came out through the clouds and soon the waters were quiet. So the big brave, the father, said, 'Let us call her Wapomio, Little Sunbeam, and may she always bring sunshine no matter how heavy the clouds have been.'"

"Oh, what a beautiful story!" breathed Mary. "And what a lovely name!" said Katie May. "The Indians wove poetry into their names as into their decorations on baskets and gowns and tepees, doing nothing thoughtlessly," the guardian went on, and the girls drew closer to hear every word.

"Often they waited many years to give a child a name till the child had won it by showing skill in athletic games, gifts of speech, or by performing some deep of valor. A name won in such a way was not only a source of pride, but a great spur to the person to be worthy of it, and to press on to higher honors."

Fulton Chapter U. D. C. To Meet Thursday.

Mrs. C. D. McDonald and Mrs. B. F. White will entertain the Fulton Chapter U. D. C. at the regular monthly meeting Tuesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at the residence of Mrs. McDonald, 151 Richardson street.

The ways and means committee requests each member to bring a "foot of pennies."

Social Activities At Fort McPherson Feature Dances

The officers' dance held at the Service club on Friday evening was one of the largest and most elaborate.

The club was beautifully decorated and every detail was carried out to make the affair one long to be remembered and much of the success of these affairs is due to Captain Herbert Perrin, the director of the 22nd infantry. Flags, bunting and hundreds of wild flowers made the club a veritable fairyland and about a hundred guests came out from the city to enjoy the dance. Preceding the dance Miss Dorothy Brown was hostess to a large buffet supper when she entertained a number of the younger set from the city including many of the younger set of the army.

Mrs. Benjamin Smith had for her guest for the week-end Mrs. D. W. Russell, of Boston, Mass. She will remain for a few days at the fort.

Mrs. Walter F. Macklin will be hostess at a large bridge party at the Officers' club on Tuesday afternoon, May 6, when she will entertain most of the army women of the division and a few other friends.

Miss Elida Rafenspirger and Miss Grace Waldon will entertain at a large card party at the Officers' club on Thursday, May 8, when they will entertain all the army set.

Major and Mrs. Fred Damon are the guests of their son and daughter, Lieutenant and Mrs. G. E. Bruner, at Fort McPherson, for a short time. Mrs. Damon will be remembered by a wide circle of friends in Atlanta for this was formerly her home. Major and Mrs. Damon are at present stationed at Fort McKinley, near Manila, and are only on a leave to visit the United States and will later go for a short visit to Canada, New York and Washington, D. C., before leaving for San Francisco from which place they will sail for the Philippine Islands. Mrs. Damon will be the honor guest at a number of parties.

The enlisted men of the garrison held a large dance at the Service club on Thursday evening when many of their friends were there to help them have a wonderful time. The club was beautifully decorated with the flags and a good many wild flowers and the music was unusually good, being played by the orchestra of the 22nd infantry band, also a special feature was some extra music rendered by the saxophone quartet.

Bank Club Gives Dance.

An interesting event of Friday evening was a dinner-dance given by the Fulton National Bank club at the East Lake club. Music was furnished by the Peerless Entertainers.

Among those present were: Dr. W. J. Blalock, Mr. Piper, southern representative National Park bank, New York; J. H. Ewing, Mr. and Mrs. G. C. Evans, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Stilman, Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Stephenson, Mr. and Mrs. S. A. Redwine, Mrs. Steele; Misses Ruby George, Louise Stewart, May Everett, Ida Berchenko, Mary Dunlap, Blodwyn Davis; Messrs. James L. Kemper, Charlie Spinks, Paul Goding, Jim Williams, Paul Gunn, Clarence Parr, Fred Barrow, Mendel Berchenko, P. E. Read, C. B. Weatherly, D. S. Coker, W. C. Lewis, C. C. Gilbert, W. W. Sasser, Louis Bloomberg and others.

Hurst Club To Give Dance.

The members and friends of the Hurst Dancing club will dance Wednesday evening at Hurst hall. Music furnished by McCullouy's Georgians. Dancing begins at 8:30 o'clock. Professor Edward S. Hurst will be in charge.

Tango Club To Give Dance.

The members and friends of the Tango club will dance on Saturday evening at Hurst hall, Peachtree and North avenue. Music furnished by McCullouy's Georgians. Dancing begins at 8:30 o'clock. Professor Edward S. Hurst will be in charge.

Miss Green Is Guest At Matinee Party.

Mrs. Earl Chandler was hostess at a box party at the Atlanta theater on Thursday afternoon in honor of her suster, Miss Julia Green, whose wedding will be an event of next week.

Miss Green wore a becoming suit of black satin, trimmed in ermine.

Mrs. W. F. Rambo Is Hostess.

Mrs. W. F. Rambo entertained her bridge club on Wednesday afternoon, April 30, at the home of Mrs. Clyde Suber, in Inman park.

Top score prize was won by Mrs. Sam McCamy and consolation was cut by Mrs. C. A. Perry.

Junior Chamber of Commerce Will Give Dance at Druid Hills

The Junior Chamber of Commerce will entertain its members at a dance at the Druid Hills club Thursday evening, May 8. This is the second of a series of dances which will be given throughout the year for the entertainment of the members of this organization.

Warner's Seven Aces and Vick Myers' Melody orchestra will furnish continous music from 9 to 2 o'clock, and several entertainment features are on the program. Refreshments will be served at midnight.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy LeCraw will act as official hostesses of this important social event, and the officers include Fitzhugh Knox, Jr., first vice president; John M. Slaton, Jr., second vice president; George E. Meyers, third vice president; Leonard B. Davidson, treasurer.

Morgan Blake, Dr. H. B. Kennedy, Kenneth S. Keyes, Robert L. Troy, Horace Russell, Palmer Blackburn, Frank Hooper, Jr., W. B. Disbro, Jr., Louis E. Lanford and Ben Perryman are directors.

Log Cabin Camp Soon To Open

Log Cabin Camp for girls is located in Balsam Gap, near Waynesville, North Carolina, "In the Land of the Sky." This is said to be possibly the highest railroad point east of the Rockies, being something over 4,000 feet above sea level.

The camp is in charge of a faculty and management selected from the best colleges of the South. Miss Ernestine Grote, of Wesleyan College faculty, has been elected dean of the camp, and the faculty is composed of a director of dramatics, physical education, instructor in swimming, horsemanship, marksmanship, arts and crafts. There will also be a camp doctor and trained nurse, chaplain and dietitian.

The equipment of the camp is as complete as any camp in the country. Electric lights, waterworks (hot and cold), with shower baths, basketball and tennis courts and facilities for boating and swimming, horseback riding, fishing and hikes. Only southern camp having polo and golf.

No extra fees; all sports, including horsemanship, taught under competent instructors. Thirty-five saddle horses are kept at camp for use, without charge.

References required from all entrants. For information call Main 4632, or call at 423 Atlanta National Bank building. Number of girls is limited to 50.—(adv.)

Miss Everitt To Be Guest at Dance.

Miss Katherine Everitt, popular candidate in the Elks' popularity contest, will be guest at a kid dance Wednesday evening, May 7, at the Maccabees' hall, third floor McKenzie building, corner Peachtree and James streets.

A special feature of the occasion will be an eccentric toe dance by Miss Paula Jean DeVall.

The college set and members of the various dance fraternities are cordially invited to attend and admission cards may be obtained from Miss Kathryn McNulty, Wa. 3934; Joe Norris, Wa. 1722, or Hem. 4984-J; J. E. McWhite, Hem. 7713-W, or at the door. Couples $1, stags, $1.

The chaperons will be Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Becker, Mr. and Mrs. G. L. Howell, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. O. P. Allen.

Prizes will be given for the best kid costume. Meintzer's seven-piece de luxe orchestra will play.

Inman Park W. M. U. Has Study Class.

The W. M. U. of the Inman Park Baptist church had an all-day study class at the church Tuesday, April 27.

The pastor, Rev. S. A. Cowan, taught "All the World In All the Word." Fourteen women stood the examination.

To Whiten Skin with Lemon

The only harmless way to bleach the skin white is to mix the juice of two lemons with three ounces of Orchard White, which any druggist will supply for a few cents. Shake well in a bottle, and you have a whole quarter-pint of the most wonderful skin whitener, softener and beautifier.

Massage this sweetly fragrant lemon bleach into the face, neck, arms and hands. It can not irritate. Famous stage beauties use it to bring that clear, youthful skin and rosy-white complexion; also as a freckle, sunburn and tan bleach. You must mix this remarkable lotion yourself. It can not be bought ready to use because it acts best immediately after it is prepared.

MEETINGS

The May meeting of the Women's union of the Liberal Christian church will be held at the home of Mrs. Hamilton Douglas, Sr., 2525 Peachtree road, Tuesday, May 6.

This date was chosen in order that Mrs. Nora Gallagher, of Brookline, Mass., national president of the Women's Alliance of the Unitarian church, may be present. A full attendance is urged to welcome Mrs. Gallagher, who will make an address.

Mrs. Douglas will tell of her travels in Europe last summer and there will be a vocal solo by Mrs. Brown.

On Monday, May 5, the annual meeting of Atlanta section, N. C. J. W., will be held at 3 p. m. in the vestry of the temple. A full attendance is urged. Reports of the year's work will be read and officers for 1924-1925 are to be elected. Each member is requested to secure a new member, and bring her to the meeting. The public is cordially invited.

The regular monthly meeting of the Woman's Pioneer society will be held Wednesday afternoon in Edison hall. This being the day set aside for special prayer for universal peace, it is hoped every member will be present, also the members of other federated clubs of the city.

The annual reception of the Y. M. C. A. auxiliary to the members and church representatives will be held Friday, May 9, at 3 o'clock.

The monthly meeting of the American Association of University Women will be held on Wednesday, May 7, at 3:30 o'clock, at Habersham hall. The seniors of the girls' preparatory schools of Atlanta are to be the guests of the association and are hereby extended a cordial invitation to enjoy the delightful program. Miss Ada Lewis will give a reading, "Mary, the Third," and tea will be served by the young coterie of the association.

The Eleventh Ward League of Women Voters will meet on Wednesday at 3 o'clock in the John B. Gordon schoolhouse. An interesting program will be given and everyone interested is invited to attend.

Mrs. H. H. Harris will entertain the Wednesday Morning Study club next Wednesday, May 7, at her country place near Emory university. The club members are requested to assemble at 10:30 o'clock at the residence of Mrs. H. C. Phipps, 27 Druid place. Should the weather be unfavorable Mrs. Harris will entertain the club at the home of Mrs. Phipps.

The regular monthly business meeting of the W. M. S. Third Baptist church will be held at the home of Mrs. C. A. Ridley, 58 West Twelfth street, Monday, May 5, at 2:30 o'clock.

The Atlanta Smith College club will meet Tuesday, May 6, at 3:30 o'clock, at the home of Mrs. Longworthy, 4 Parkside drive.

The executive board of the B. W. M. U. of Georgia will meet Tuesday, May 6, at 12 o'clock, at the Baptist headquarters in the Palmer building.

The Business Women's circle of the Druid Hills Methodist church will meet Thursday evening, May 8, at 6:30 o'clock in the Sunday school room. The devotional service will be led by Mrs. Loftis and Miss Annie Mae Broach will continue her interesting talks on the "Leaven in Japan," also the social committee has arranged a special program, and every member is urged to be present. Circle No. 10, Mrs. L. J. Hulsey, the chairman, will entertain the circle.

Since the world war the war department has recovered nearly $3,000,000,000 from the sale of surplus war material. The United States navy has sold $135,000,000 worth, and more than $20,000,000 of supplies remain to be sold.

The Woman's auxiliary of the West End Baptist church will meet Monday, May 5, at 3 o'clock in the Fidelis class room. A most interesting program will be rendered by the Sunbeams. Every woman in the church is urged to attend this meeting.

The last meeting of the season of the Temple Sisterhood will be held Monday, May 12, the second Monday in May, instead of May 5 as is customary. The election of officers will take place at this meeting and the program will be announced through the press at a later date.

The Atlanta Lodge Ladies' Auxiliary of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen No. 230 will hold their regular meeting at the Red Men's Wigwam, 86 Central avenue, on Tuesday, May 6, at 2:30 p. m. All members are requested to be present.

The regular monthly meeting of the Woman's Missionary society of St. John's M. E. church will be held Monday afternoon, May 5, at 3 o'clock in the church.

The Atlanta Humane society will hold its regular monthly meeting Tuesday afternoon, 4 o'clock, in room 207, Chamber of Commerce building.

The Druid Hills chapter of the Woman's Christian Temperance union will hold its regular meeting Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the Druid Hills Methodist church. An interesting program has been arranged, including echoes from the district meeting.

The Atlanta club of the Georgia State College for Women will meet at the Carnegie library Wednesday, May 7, at 3 o'clock. As this will probably be the last meeting before the teachers leave for their summer vacation, the social committee has planned a very pleasurable hour for them.

The regular monthly meeting of the Junior Red Cross council will be held at 249 Ivy street, 3 p. m., as follows: Colored council, May 5; grammar school council, May 7; junior highs, senior highs and private schools, May 8.

Atlanta chapter No. 57, O. E. S., will hold its regular business meeting in the W. D. Luckie lodge room, corner Lee and Gordon streets, on Friday evening, May 9, at 7:30 o'clock. At 8 o'clock a musical for the benefit of the chapter will be given. Admission 25 cents.

The regular monthly meeting of the Hoosier club will be held at the residence of Mrs. Edwin Reece, 97 South Gordon street, Wednesday afternoon, May 7, at 3 o'clock. All members are urged to be present.

The regular meeting of North Atlanta chapter No. 36, O. E. S., will be held in the Masonic temple, corner of Hemphill avenue and West Tenth street, Monday evening, May 5, at 8 o'clock. After a short business meeting the chapter will entertain at a tacky party. The public is invited.

The board of management of the Joseph Habersham chapter, D. A. R., will hold its regular meeting at the chapter house Wednesday, May 7, at 10 o'clock.

University Women Will Hold Meeting.

There will be the regular monthly meeting of the Atlanta branch of American Association of University Women next Wednesday, May 7, at 3:30 o'clock at Joseph Habersham chapter house. After a very brief business session there is a special treat in store for the members and their friends when Miss Ada Evelyn Lewis will read "Mary the Third," a delightful play given early in the season for the Drama league. This play deals with the problems of life from three angles, that of the grandmother shocked at everything, the mother trying hard to be tolerant and act as peace-maker, and the flapper daughter who is decidedly reactionary in her moral attitude.

There are situations funny as well as serious and Miss Lewis is a finished artist in her interpretation. All who heard her read before realize what a pleasant afternoon is in prospect and those who have not had that pleasure will surely avail themselves of this opportunity.

This being the last meeting of the year, it is open to visitors and prospective members and it is hoped a large crowd will greet Miss Lewis.

Week's Calendar Full Of Notable Events

A brilliant church wedding, May festivals, a birthday party honoring a pioneer citizen of Atlanta, luncheons and teas honoring charming visitors and brides-elect, will feature the week's social calendar. On Tuesday evening, at 8:30 o'clock at All Saints' church, Miss Marion Hutchinson Stearns will be married to Edgar Wood Upton, Jr., in the presence of distinguished representatives of society, and a reception, at which several hundred guests will be entertained by the bride-elect's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Laurence Stearns, will be given at the Piedmont Driving club following the church ceremony.

One of the picturesque and beautiful occasions in which society will be interested in the May pageant, "A Spring Day," to be presented Friday afternoon on the sloping lawn of Washington seminary. The colorful, interesting story furnishes opportunity for talent in dancing and dramatic interpretation and presenting a real May festival program with lovely Miss Nell Brawner as queen, who will be surrounded by her maids and courtiers. The program will open with processional and crowning of the May queen. There are fairies of all kinds; flowers, including poppies, tulips and roses; woodnymphs, pixies, hunters, sunbeams and milkmaids. The story is interwoven in the dances and music, and an orchestra of prominent musicians, Warner's Seven Aces, will play the accompaniments. The pageant is under the direction of Miss Athleen Dickey, physical education instructor, and it will include the entire student body.

Another charming May carnival will be given Friday on the grounds of the Clyde Kipg residence on Ponce de Leon. This festival, principally for the entertainment of children, is given by the Agnes Scott club of Atlanta. Innumerable stunts and games for the amusement of the kiddies have been planned.

Mrs. Elijah Lewis Connally will entertain at an elaborate family dinner on Tuesday evening, May 6, at the "Homestead," the beautiful Connally home in West End. The occasion will celebrate the eighty-sixth birthday of Dr. Connally, distinguished and pioneer citizen of Atlanta. Each year the members of the large family connection gather at "Homestead" to pay tribute to the beloved and highly esteeemd father and grandfather who has long been identified with the social, civic and religious upbuilding of the city.

Mrs. William Sirrine, of Greenville, S. C., the guest of Mrs. M. W. Brooks; Mrs. Charles A. Dana, who is visiting Mrs. Hunter Perry; Mrs. Robert H. Lyon, of Baltimore, the guest of Mrs. J. T. Williams; Mrs. William J. McKenna, of Boston, the guest of Mrs. Bulow Campbell; Mrs. Frank Pollock and Mrs. George Pollock, of Birmingham, who are guests of Mrs. Stirling Elder; Miss De Neale McKenzie, of Salisbury, N. C., are among the charming visitors who will be feted at a series of parties this week.

Miss Fort is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lynn Fort, her mother being formerly Miss Nellie Johnson, of Newnan, Ga. On the maternal side, she is also related to the Orrs and Melsons, of Newnan.

On her paternal side, she is the niece of the late Judge Allen Fort, of Americus, a prominent attorney, and the late Hon. George Fort, of Washington, D. C., assistant treasurer of the United States. The Fort family has long been distinguished in Georgia and southern history and public life, as well as in social activity.

Miss Fort's father is a successful and well-known wholesale drug merchant and is prominently connected with the business world of Atlanta.

The charming bride-elect is a graduate of Washington Seminary, where she was a member of the O. B. X. sorority and the Senior Round Table. She was twice president of her class while at this well-known local institution.

Later Miss Fort attended Miss Beard's school at Orange, N. J., and since her return to Atlanta has been an attractive and popular addition to the city's social contingent. She is also a member of the Atlanta Junior League.

Mr. Lummus is the elder son of Mr. and Mrs. John Newton Lummus, of Miami Beach, Fla., and a brother of Mrs. Emma Lummus Rook, Helen Lummus and Thomas J. Lummus. His father is well known in business circles of Florida and was active in the development of Miami Beach, of which he was the first mayor.

He is the nephew of J. E. Lummus, president of the Southern Bank and Trust company and former mayor of Miami. His uncle, Thomas E. James, formerly mayor of Miami Beach, is a prominent official of the Bank of Biscayne. His mother was formerly Miss Loula E. James, daughter of the late Dr. and Mrs. Thomas E. James, of Florida. Dr. James served as a lieutenant colonel in the war between the states.

When Mr. Lummus graduated from the Staunton Military academy, in Virginia, he held the rank of cadet major. During the war he was stationed at Camp Gordon.

At present Mr. Lummus is secretary and treasurer and a director of the Southern Bank and Trust company and a member of the city council of Miami Beach.

Miss Pitts To Wed John S. Owens, Jr.

Prominent social interest throughout the south centers today in the announcement of the engagement of Miss Ellen Caroline Pitts, of Montgomery, Ala., and John S. Owens, Jr., of Atlanta.

Miss Pitts is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Edwin Pitts, of Montgomery. Mr. Pitts is president of the Pitts Shoe company, and Mrs. Pitts was before her marriage Miss Julia Walters, of the well-known Walters family of Snowdoun, Ala.

The lovely bride-elect attended Hollins college, in Virginia, and since her return to Monigomery has figured prominently in social functions of the young society set. She is a young girl of great charm and possesses a pleasing personality, together with exquisite beauty of the dainty brunette type.

Miss Pitts has often been the guest of friends in Atlanta, where she has been a popular and admired visitor. She was one of the visiting belles attending grand opera, and was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. John Owens.

Mr. Owens is prominent and popular in the business and social circles of Atlanta. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John S. Owens and a brother of Donovan Owens and Mrs. Edward B. Hall, of Morristown, N. J.

He is a graduate of Boys' High school, University of Georgia, and Culver Military institute. Mr. Owens is a popular member of the Chi Phi fraternity, and returned last year from England, where he attended Oxford university after his graduation from the University of Georgia. He is a representative of distinguished families prominent in the early history and upbuilding of Georgia.

Mrs. Huger To Be Guest of Honor.

Important among the social events of next week's calendar will be the tea at which Mrs. Bryan Morel Grant will entertain on Thursday, May 8, at her home, 24 West Eleventh street.

The occasion will honor Mrs. William Huger, one of Atlanta's most popular recent brides. Mrs. Huger was formerly Miss Sarah Cobb Orme, and her wedding was a brilliant social event of the mid-winter.

Kellogg-Orme Announcement Cards.

Captain and Mrs. Walter Gordon Roper have issued cards announcing the marriage of their sister, Mrs. Coeible Venable Kellogg, to Joseph Priestley Orme, on Wednesday, March 26, at the First Presbyterian church in Macon.

Mr. and Mrs. Orme have returned from their wedding journey through Florida and are making their home at Stone Mountain where they will reside for the summer months. They will take an apartment in Atlanta in the fall.

Mrs. Roper will entertain at an informal reception in compliment to her sister, Mrs. Orme, after her return from Baltimore the latter part of May.

Mr. and Mrs. Dunbar At "Hunter Cottage."

Mr. and Mrs. Martin B. Dunbar have taken possession of their summer home, "Hunter Cottage," at Atlantic Beach, Florida. They made the trip to Florida by motor and will be established there for the months of May and June.

Mrs. Dunbar's mother, Mrs. J. T. Dargan, will be her guest after Sunday, arriving from Washington, D. C. where she has spent the past two months visiting her daughter, Mrs. Herbert Blair Hanger.

Dinner-Dance At Piedmont Club.

The regular week-end dinner-dance at the Piedmont Driving club on Saturday evening assembled a large company of the club members and a number of attractive visitors who remained over in the city after the opera season, adding interest and pleasure to the occasion.

The ballroom presented an attractive scene with its lavish decorations of spring blossoms. The tables were placed around the dancing space and were arranged with tall French baskets filled with pink tulips and purple iris. The handles of the baskets were tied with fluffy pink tulle bows.

Mr. and Mrs. John King Ottley were hosts to a party of friends complimenting Mrs. Charles Dana, of New York, who is the charming guest of her sister, Mrs. Hunter Perry. Completing the list were Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. Holland Judkins, Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Banks, Mr. and Mrs. George McCarty, James Alexander and Charles Cason, of New York.

Mr. and Mrs. Dana Belser entertained a small group of friends at dinner.

Mrs. McKenna To Visit in Atlanta.

Mrs. William J. McKenna and her small son, William J. McKenna, III, of Boston, will arrive today to be the guest of Mrs. McKenna's aunt, Mrs. Bulow Campbell, at her home on Andrews drive. Mrs. McKenna was formerly the lovely Miss Isoline Campbell, of Atlanta, and she will be cordially welcomed by a host of friends during her visit of a week in the city.

Mrs. Campbell will entertain at a luncheon in honor of her guest on Wednesday at the Piedmont Driving club. Invited to meet the visitor will be twelve of Mrs. McKenna's intimate friends.

Mrs. Rembert Marshall will entertain in her honor at the dinner-dance at the Piedmont Driving club on Saturday, May 10.

A number of other lovely social affairs will be planned in honor of this former Atlanta belle, the dates to be announced later.

Miss Greene To Wed Mr. Heinz.

The marriage of Miss Julia Greene and William Louis Heinz will be an interesting social event of Saturday, May 10, taking place in the afternoon at 3 o'clock at the home of the bride-elect's mother, Mrs. Kate Greene Hess, in Kirkwood.

The marriage will be solemnized by Rev. Dr. G. F. Venable, of Monroe, Ga., in the presence of the immediate families of the young couple.

Little Miss Betty Heard, niece of the bride-elect and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Judson Heard, of Macon, will be the flower girl and only attendant.

A number of informal social affairs will be given during the week in compliment to Miss Greene.

Miss Nan Stephens Returns to Atlanta.

Miss Nan Stephens has returned to Atlanta, after spending the winter in New York and is receiving a cordial welcome from a host of admiring friends who have followed with great pleasure the record of success made by Miss Stephens in that line of literary work in which success is most difficult to attain, playwrighting. Miss Stephens will spend the summer with her parents at their home on Briarcliff road and plans to give much of the time to work on a new play, destined in all probability to surpass the charm of "Roseanna," declared by critics to be of exceptional merit. Much informal entertaining in honor of Miss Stephens will mark her return and musical and artistic circles will receive new inspiration from the creative genius of Miss Stephens, who is nationally known for her leadership in the National Federation of Music Clubs.

Miss Stephens will share honors with Mrs. Ewell Gay at the luncheon at which Mrs. A Ten Eyck Brown will entertain at the Piedmont Driving club on Thursday. Mrs. Brown was recently elected president of the Fine Arts club to succeed Mrs. Ewell Gay, the president last year. Miss Stephens is honorary president of the Fine Arts club.

Mr. and Mrs. Rhodes Build New Home.

Miss Harriet Rhodes, lovely young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest L. Rhodes, was among the attractive young girls attending the tea dansant at the Broadmoor hotel last Saturday at Colorado Springs, Colo.

Mr. and Mrs. Rhodes are building a very handsome home one block from the Broadmoor, which is located in Broadmoor, the fashionable and exclusive suburb of Colorado Springs. This hotel is more like a wonderful country club and the visiting social leaders and those who reside at Colorado Springs always entertain there.

Al Jolson, the well-known actor, spent a week in April at the Broadmoor and while strolling around the city, he was attracted by the artistic home of Mr. and Mrs. Rhodes. He became most enthusiastic, interviewed the architect, Edward Vinchond, who is a comparatively new resident of Colorado Springs, bought a set of blue prints and asked permission to use the architect's name and to duplicate Mr. and Mrs. Rhodes' home at a point where he will build on the Hudson.

Mr. and Mrs. Rhodes and their daughters, Misses Harriet and Virginia, formerly resided in Atlanta and have a wide circle of friends here. They return at intervals for visits, and are welcomed by many entertainments which are planned in their honor.

Miss McKenzie To Be Honored.

Miss DeNeale McKenzie, of Salisbury, N. C., who is the attractive guest of Mrs. Caleb Maddox, at her home on Sixteenth street, will be honor guest at a number of informal social affairs during her visit.

Mrs. Charles Woodward will entertain at a bridge-tea Tuesday at her home in Ansley Park.

On Wednesday Misses Delphine and Dorothy Popham will honor Miss McKenzie with a bridge-tea at their home on Peachtree street.

Miss Julia Memminger will be hostess Thursday at tea in compliment to Miss McKenzie.

Mrs. Maddox will honor her guest on Saturday with a bridge-tea.

Senior Class Is Entertained.

The first of a number of delightful social affairs to be given the senior class of Washington seminary was the luncheon given Saturday by Miss Emily McPhail at her home on Huntington road.

The handsomely appointed table was overlaid with an exquisite lace cover. Adorning the center was a large silver loving cup filled with pink sweet peas, Ophelia roses and calendulas. Silver vases filled with the same lovely flowers were placed at the four corners of the table. Garlands of vari-colored sweet peas and violets extended from the central decoration and were caught to the vases.

Miss McPhail was assisted in receiving the guests by her mother, Mrs. J. W. Ware. Mrs. Edward Gay, Mrs. George Lindner, Mrs. Charles Northen, Mrs. F. H. Rosier and Mrs. E. C. Lester, of Memphis, Tenn.

The guests included the 35 members of the graduating class and the members of the seminary faculty.

Miss McPhail is a popular student of Washington seminary and will graduate with the class in June.

Miss Whiteside Returns From European Trip.

Miss Mary Brent Whiteside has returned from a three months' trip abroad and is in New York, where she will spend a week before returning to Atlanta. She is an outstanding figure in the world of letters, and her book of verse, "The Eternal Quest," will be published in July, by Erskine McDonald, an English firm.

Mr. and Mrs. Clark W. Booth left yesterday for Birmingham, Ala., where they will visit their mother, Mrs. B. L. Wade.

Brilliant Welcome Party Given Mrs. High By Patriotic Society

A beautiful social event of Friday was the welcome home party given by the members of the Founders and Patriots' society to Mrs. Joseph Madison High, who has recently returned from an extended visit to the Holy Land.

The occasion took place at the home of Mrs. Frank Mason, in Druid Hills. The spacious rooms were elaborately decorated with a profusion of cut flowers and ferns.

Assisting Mrs. Mason in entertaining were Mrs. Nora Northern, Mrs. Anne Adair Foster, Mrs. Plato Durham, Mrs. Preston Arkwright, Mrs. Charles Phillips, Mrs. T. T. Stevens, Mrs. Robert Harvey, Mrs. Clyde King, Mrs. Marion Harper and Miss Nan Stevens.

Pouring tea were Misses Belle Matheson, Mary Harvey, Helen Weichel and Lena Venable Mason.

Mrs. High wore a handsome gown of black crepe combined with black silk lace.

Mrs. Mason was gowned in blue crepe beaded in crystals.

During the afternoon Mrs. High gave a brilliant talk on her travels in Egypt and the Holy Land. Mrs. High is a beloved member of the Founders and Patriots' society, also a number of other patriotic societies. She is one of Atlanta's most prominent women, taking an active part in the social and civic life of the city.

As a token of sincere love, Mrs. J. P. Womble crowned Mrs. High with a wreath of sweet peas in behalf of the members of the society.

The following poem, written by Elwyn Barron and dedicated to Mrs. High was read by Mrs. Wren McGuin:

TO MRS. J. M. HIGH.

There's a Land the world names Holy,
In reverence of One
Who lived for mankind wholly,
God's own begotten Son.

And, they say, when in that region
Each love-taught heart may feel
The throb of memories legion
That still have power for weal,

That will fashion souls to beauty,
Anew inspire the mind
With a gladsome yield to duty
In service of mankind!

But the wonder and the blessing,
And the glory of that Place,
With its spirit sweet caressing
But shine as an added grace.

In a life long consecrated
To self-effacing deeds,
In a work to Christ's related—
The response to human needs!

You have thrilled to the sensation
Of walking where He went,
Have felt the pure exaltation
Of a newer soul content;

But the blessings that enthrone you
And crown your noble mind
Spring from loves of those who've known you
Here where the home ties bind!

With love we fain would shield you,
With love your long days fill;
And may there be revealed you
His love, Who heals all ill.

College Park Club To Hold Last Meeting

The regular meeting of College Park Woman's club will be held Wednesday afternoon, May 7, in the Presbyterian Sunday school auditorium.

The committee on legislation, Mrs. L. C. Algee, chairman, will have charge of the program.

Mrs. R. L. Turman, chairman of efficiency in government of the Atlanta League of Women Voters and editor of Training in Citizenship for Georgia Women, will be the speaker for the afternoon.

Mrs. Trenary, state chairman of legislation and member of the legislative council, will be a guest of the club at this meeting.

Mrs. Jessie Reese Calvert, one of Atlanta's most talented singers, will render several songs.

Mrs. Calvert, through her charming personality and marvelous voice, has become one of Atlanta's most popular young artists.

This is the last meeting of the club year at which a program will be rendered and it is but fitting that we should have at this meeting one of the best speakers in the state and also one of the most talented singers.

ATLANTA BILTMORE
A Hotel That Rises Above All Comparison
THE public is showing an immediate appreciation of the luxurious comforts and service available at the Atlanta Biltmore at such strikingly reasonable prices.
Atlanta Society Folk Are Reveling
In the delightful informality of the supper-dances in the Atlanta Biltmore Dining Room from 9 p. m. to midnight every evening (except Sunday). The finest dance music outside of New York City, furnished by the distinguished Biltmore Rainbow Orchestra, is proving an irresistible lure.
With its glittering smoothness, affording an almost imperceptible resistance to the dancers' feet, the dancing floor in the Biltmore dining room brings visions of a placid mountain lake, wrapt in the crystal solitude of the high places.
There is A la Carte supper service in this undefinable atmosphere of charm and refinement and restrained elegance—service from culinary wizards with whom cooking is a Liberal Art. Cover charge, $1.00 per person.
SYMPHONY CONCERT DINNER (Informal) at 7:30 p. m. Sunday evening. Price $3.50. Augmented Symphony Orchestra under direction of Enrico Leide. In Georgian ballroom.

Better Homes Week To Be Emphasized By Organized Women

Evidencing the interest taken by the women of the Federated clubs throughout the United States in the national "Better Homes in America" movement, is the message sent out by Mrs. Thomas Winter, president of the general federation, asking the cooperation of all club women in the celebration of "Better Homes Week," May 11 to 18.

In Atlanta, the wide interest of club women will be shown in the interest taken by the fifth district federated club women and those of the City Federation of Women's Clubs, which will have a definite part in the effort to make Atlanta's celebration one of true significance to home lovers.

Other women's organizations taking a prominent part in the activities of better homes week are the Parent-Teacher association, under the leadership of Mrs. E. D. McDonald, president of the Parent-Teacher council Mrs. De Los Hill, president of the Music club; the Girl Scouts, under the chairmanship of Mrs. Frank McCormack. The many organizations which are comprehended under these various leaders have all sent representatives which form a part of the Atlanta committee for better homes.

Mrs. H. G. Hastings, president of the fifth district, will be responsible for the "better gardens," which form a necessary part of "better homes." Assisting her are Roy Kerr, of the Dahl Floal company at home one, at 212 Virginia avenue, while the beautiful grounds at No. 2, at 281 Dill avenue, will be in charge of the Lakewood Floral company. Fine vegetable gardens at both houses will be provided by W. B. Deckner.

Mrs. E. D. McDonald has selected from the various schools many attractive features which demonstrate the interest taken by the girls and boys along better home lines.

Mrs. T. T. Stevens, president of the City Federation of Women's Clubs, will be official hostess for better homes week, having on her committees for the afternoon from 2:30 to 6 the representatives, with their committees from the women's organizations, while in the evenings from 7:30 to 8 the representatives from the various men's organizations will be hosts.

The Atlanta Woman's club, Mrs. Alonzo Richardson, president, will function jointly with the Music club, Mrs. De Los Hill, president, on programs throughout the week, both at the homes and over the radio. Mrs. Cleve Webb is in charge of the musical features for the Woman's club, while Mrs. Roger Wilson has arranged the "group talks" at the homes, over the radio and for meetings in general.

LaGrange College News Items.

The staff for The Scroll, LaGrange college paper, for 1924-25, was elected at a meeting of the Quill Drivers' club on Monday night, Miss Agnes Porter was chosen editor-in-chief, with Miss Hazel Stafford assistant. Mrs. Ottley To Give Luncheon At Club for Mrs. J. M. High

Mrs. J. M. High, who has just returned from an extended trip abroad, will be the guest of honor at a beautiful luncheon given by Mrs. J. K. Ottley, at the Atlanta Woman's club, Tuesday, May 13, at 1 o'clock.

The guests will include the members of the executive committee of the woman's board of Oglethorpe university, of which Mrs. Ottley is chairman.

It will be a beautiful compliment to Mrs. High, a valued member of the board, welcoming her home.

Preceding the luncheon there will be an important meeting of the executive committee.

This is the final meeting of this committee before the election of the new officers which will take place at the May meeting of the board.

Plans for the forthcoming commencement wil be discussed and the program outlined for "breaking ground" for the new Lupton hall, on May 31.

Camp Fire Girls To Be Guests At Woman's Club Tea Dance

An interesting social event of May will be the tea-dance to be given on May 15 at the Woman's club in honor of the group of Camp Fire Girls sponsored by the club. The dance will be given by the Junior department of the Atlanta Woman's club, and the hostesses will be Mrs. Alonzo Richardson, Mrs. Charles Goodman, Mrs. Tom Brooke, Miss Mary Louise Wilson, and Miss Sarah Belle Brodnax and Mrs. Heyward Simmons, who are guardians of the group of Camp Fire Girls there.

The invitation list will be comprised of the attractive members of the high-school contingent, and the occasion will be one of the loveliest affairs of the pre-commencement season. Novel favors will be a feature of the afternoon.

The dance on May 15 will be from 4 to 6 o'clock and will be the first of a series of tea-dances to be given in honor of the Camp Fire Girls.

Shorter College News Notes.

Rome, Ga., May 3.—The pre-commencement season at Shorter has been featured by a number of recitals given by students of the departments of music and expression. Two of these affairs marked the week just ended. Miss Marjorie Wood, of Birmingham, was presented on Tuesday evening in senior recital by the department of music. Miss Wood, who is a pupil of Leo C. Holden, rendered a varied program of classic organ selections.

Miss Lora Will Gammage, of Pelham, was presented in senior dramatic recital on Thursday, by her instructor, Mrs. Allie Hayes Richardson, head of the department. Miss Gammage, who is president of the Shorter Players' club, interpreted Justin Huntly McCarthy's "If I Were King."

Rev. E. F. Talmadge, of Toledo, Ohio, who for a week has been the guest of his son, Arthur Talmadge, professor of violin, addressed the Y. W. C. A. at vespers on Sunday evening.

About thirty students enjoyed a motor trip to Chattanooga last Saturday. On the afternoon of the same day the college community, with the exception of those attending Grand Opera in Atlanta and the students, who spent the day sight-seeing in Chattanooga, picnicked at Radio Springs near Rome.

Dean W. D. Furry went to Savannah on Thursday to attend the State Educational convention.

Miss Lucile Aiken, Jenkinsburg, member of the class of '18, spent the week-end at Shorter.

Mrs. M. A. Bush, Barnesville, was the guest recently of her daughter, Miss Louise Bush.

Miss Lucy Kenan Will Speak Before Public Health Nurses

The Atlanta unit of the First District Association of Public Health Nurses will be the guest of Miss Mary Dickinson, executive secretary of the Anti-Tuberculosis association, at their headquarters, 23 East Cain street, on Monday, May 5, at 4 p. m.

Boyce Edens, service secretary of the community chest, will talk to the nurses on "Approaching Another Milestone in Public Health Nursing."

Dr. Joseph Yampolsky, of the children's clinic of the Central Presbyterian church, will discuss "The Syphilie Child as a Social Problem," and Dr. Joseph Bowden, state deputy commissioner of health, will address the nurses on "The Control of Venereal Diseases."

Miss Lucy Kenan, of New York city, parish visitor for "The Little Church Around the Corner," will tell something of the work that she is doing in this capacity, and also of her research work with famous physicians in New York city.

Miss Emma Habenicht, director of nursing service of the Metropolitan Life Insurance company, will act as chairman. All public health nurses are requested to attend.

St. Mark Study Program.

The women of St. Mark's church will hold an all-day devotional and Mission study program Monday, May 5, beginning at 11 o'clock.

Mrs. C. A. Holtzendorf, superintendent of Mission study, will have charge of the following program:

Subject of study, "The Child and America's Future."

"America's Greatest Asset," by Miss Martha Boykin.

Vocal solo, by Mrs. Elizabeth Reeves Andrews.

"Play and Work," by Miss Sarah Hill.

"My Visit to Our Little Brothers and Sisters in the Orphanages of the Near East Relief," by Miss Carolyn Beckham.

Prayer, "Our Boys and Girls," by Mrs. W. H. Griffin.

Luncheon.

Song, by congregation.

"Education in a Democracy," by Miss Jimmie Claud Farmer.

"Christian Nurture in the Church School," Mrs. W. E. Dumas.

Cantata, "The Child and the Swallow," by Glee club from Mrs. Mozley's school, directed by Miss Alma Murphy.

"What the Junior Missionary Society is Doing" (presented by its young officers), by Superintendent Mrs. W. W. Alexander.

"The Child and America's Future," by Miss Mary Lou Barge.

Closing prayer, by Mrs. Elijah Brown.

All the women of the church and the community are cordially invited to attend both morning and afternoon program.

Convention Reports Feature Meeting of Women Voters

Interesting reports and a delightful account of the national convention made by Mrs. Elliott Cheatham featured the quarterly meeting of the Atlanta League of Women Voters, held in the chamber of commerce building Friday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock.

Mrs. Sanford Gay presided and dispatched the routine business quickly, having the report of the treasurer, Mrs. W. W. Lotspeich, and the minutes of the last meeting read by the secretary, Mrs. Paul LaBlant, followed by the reports of the committee chairmen.

Mrs. LaBlant read the reports from the following committee chairmen who were absent: Miss Eleanore Raoul, chairman of organization; Mrs. R. L. Turman, chairman of the efficiency in government committee; Mrs. Roy Brittain, chairman of speakers' bureau. Mrs. Gay praised the work of these three women, giving especial notice to the wonderful work done by Miss Raoul who, as every one knows, "thinks, breathes, talks and sleeps league work."

Two amendments to the constitution were brought before the assembly and discussed. The first was to the effect that men might have a sustaining membership in the league at $5 per year, but no voice in league affairs. This amendment was the subject of much discussion and failed to pass. The other was to the effect that the constitution be so amended as to allow the president of the league to be elected in the same manner as the directors, that there be at least two women on the ticket for president. This passed unanimously.

Mrs. Harry Chamberlain took the chair while Mrs. Sanford Gay made a report of the state league legislative program for the coming year. Mrs. Gay is again legislative chairman for the state.

"The state board," said Mrs. Gay, "has decided to elect two programs, an active and inactive. On the first will go the legislation which must have immediate and active attention. On the second will go the legislation which the league intends by no means to drop, but which must be subordinated at the present to more pressing matters."

On the active program will go the tax bill, in wheih Mrs. L. L. Hendren, state president, is so deeply interested—a bill doing away with the fee system in Fulton county, the Sheppard-Towner bill, and the code commission report. On the inactive program will go the kindergarten bill and the women-in-industry bill.

Mrs. Gay announced that the educational program for the league this year would consist partly in monthly meetings to be held the first Friday in the month, and which would be in the charge of the various committee chairmen. The June meeting will be conducted and arranged by Miss Rhoda Kaufman, and will be on the subject of child welfare.

Mrs. Elliott Cheatham spoke most entertainingly of the convention in Buffalo, which she attended. An interview with Mrs. Cheatham will appear in the press at an early date, for she has much of interest and much that is valuable to Atlantans to tell of the convention.

Georgia Dinner in Washington

The Georgia delegates to the annual congress of the Daughters of the American Revolution entertained at a dinner in the Willard during the congress in honor of Mrs. Livingston Rowe Schuyler, former president general of the United Daughters of the Confederacy. Mrs. Schuyler, now residing in New York, previously resided in Savannah, Ga., and Ocala, Fla.

Georgia delegates attending the dinner in honor of Mrs. Schuyler included such well-known U. D. C. leaders as Mrs. Howard H. McCall, Mrs. Charles Akerman, Mrs. Julia Talmadge, Athens; Mrs. Bun Wylie, Mrs. R. P. Brooks, Mrs. L. F. Cater, of Perry; Mrs. John M. Slaton, Mrs. W. S. Coleman, Mrs Bernard Wolff, Mrs. Robert K. Rambo, Mrs. James L. Logan and Miss Lillian Tidwell, Mrs. Theodore Tiller, of Washington. After the Georgia dinner the guests of honor and the hostess delegation attended the Tuesday night reception of the D. A. R.

Marietta

Marietta, Ga., May 3.—The Memorial association, assisted by Kennesaw chapter, U. D. C., observed Memorial day on Friday, April 25. This was done in order to have the schools in the parade. The weather was ideal, and it was inspiring to see 1,200 boys and girls marching to the cemetery to cover the graves of our soldier dead with beautiful flowers. At the cemetery they passed in review before Judge Frank Jenkins (the speaker of the day), the veterans, the ministers, the Memorial association and Kennesaw chapter.

The parade was led by the Red Men's Drum corps and next was a World war veteran in his uniform, riding a horse, with the bridle, saddle and spurs his grandfather used all four years of the war between the states. He held aloft a tattered, bullet-scarred battle-flag that was presented to the Cherokee Dragons in 1865, to which his grandfather belonged.

The exercises were held at the courthouse, which was decorated with Confederate flags and pictures of Confederate generals. Judge Jenkins made a masterful address, full of history, pathos and patriotism. The children's orchestra rendered "Dixie" and "The Star Spangled Banner." Mrs. Giles sang "The Home-Spun Dress." A guest, Mrs. L. R. Good, of Dallas, Texas, a heroine of the sixties, played "Dixie" as she played it in the sixties, bringing a round of applause.

Dinner was served to the veterans, the speaker and the ministers by the Memorial association and the U. D. C. The thin gray line showed that it is thinning fast and tears filled many eyes to see how feeble those left are now.

Mrs. Mattie Harris Lyon, president of Kennesaw chapter, writes "God bless them. The stories of their bravery are written indelibly in the history of the world. When the bugle has sounded taps for the last one of these gallant soldiers, those who come after them through the ages will continue to honor the holy cause for which they fought and still march to their hallowed mounds with flowers to keep their fragrant watch over the last resting place of the bravest soldier ever known in the history of the world.

"I saw a smile,
To a Confederate, 'twas given, and he was old;
The sun broke forth.
I saw that smile in heaven wrought into gold—
Gold of such luster was never vouchsafed to us;
I saw a toiling soldier bending down, footsore and cold,
A soft hand covered him, the worn gray coat, wrought into gold,
Straightway became imperishable and shall be shown
To smiling angels 'round the judgment throne.
We who walk down life's thorny way
Could make the road a path of flowers if we would try.
Wrought into gold, will make us wondrous rich in heaven,
And every deed we do for them, and kind word given."

The Easiest Way To End Dandruff

There is one sure way that never fails to remove dandruff completely, and that is to dissolve it. This destroys it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and two or three more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

You can get liquid arvon at any drug store and four ounces is all you will need. This simple remedy has never been known to fail.—(adv.)

Be Careful What You Wash Your Hair With

Many soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much free alkali which is very injurious, as it dries the scalp and makes the hair brittle.

The best thing to use is Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo, for this is pure and entirely greaseless. It is inexpensive and beats anything else all to pieces. You can get this at any drug store, and a few ounces will last the whole family for months.

Two or three teaspoonfuls is all that is required. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, cleanses thoroughly, and rinses out easily. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and is soft, fresh looking, bright, fluffy, wavy, and easy to manage. Besides, it loosens and takes out every particle of dust, dirt and dandruff.—(adv.)

Cartersville

Miss Lillian Greene, of Cartersville, writes Bartow chapter of the Daughters of the Confederacy at Cartersville observed Memorial day in a beautiful way.

At noon a luncheon was served at the Park hotel, to which all the Confederate veterans of the county had been invited as guests of honor. Not all of them could be present, but a goodly number were there with a large attendance of the Daughters as hostesses.

Preceding the luncheon the party assembled in the reception room for a social hour. Here the veterans met Mrs. L. R. Goode, a noted U. D. C. worker from Dallas, Texas, who addressed them in words of appreciation. Mrs. Bradley, president of the chapter and official hostess, ushered the guests into the dining hall to the strains of "The Bonny Blue Flag," played by Miss Lucile Vail.

Under the supervision of Mr. and Mrs. Omer the dining room was a place of beauty with its decorations of crimson and white tulips, iris and narcissi in bowls on tables and windows filled with sprays of dogwood blossoms.

The delicious repast was rendered even more enjoyable by a splendid musical program.

Later the dinner guests and others gathered at the city hall for the Memorial day exercises. Dr. W. H. Clarke was master of ceremonies; Rev. G. B. Hulmer, Mrs. Frank Jolley, Dr. I. A. White and Mrs. B. H. Howard took part in the program.

U. D. C. essay contest medals were presented to Miss Irma Vaughan and Miss Alma Strickland.

The address of Dr. White was eloquent in expression of sympathy and praise for those who fought so nobly to preserve the ideals and principles of right for which the south has stood.

The chapter was honored by the presence of Miss Lucile Vail, from Cuba, and Mrs. L. R. Goode, a charter member of the Dallas, Texas, chapter, honorary historian for life of that chapter and appointed as sponsor for the U. C. V. of Texas at the coming reunion at Memphis.

West Point

Fort Tyler chapter, U. D. C., West Point, met April 22, according to Mrs. Charles E. Hill, press chairman. An outstanding feature of the program was a relation of personal experiences in the battle of West Point given by Mrs. W. B. Higginbothem. This battle occurred April 16, 1865.

Memorial exercises, under the leadership of Mrs. C. O. Williams, were held at the auditorium on Memorial day. The address was made by Honorable Harwell G. Davis, attorney-general of Alabama. C. E. Wright was marshal of the day and there was appropriate music. The line of march to the cemetery was led by the Boy Scouts and the school children, followed by the Lanett band, veterans, Daughters of Confederacy and citizens of the town and surrounding country.

Barnesville

The Willie Hunt Smith chapter of the Daughters of the Confederacy, Barnesville, observed Memorial day, Friday morning, April 25. The exercises were held in the Gordon Auditorium.

Colonel Claude Christopher, of Barnesville, delivered the memorial address.

After the exercises, the audience proceeded to the cemetery, where the graves of Confederate and Federal soldiers were decorated with flowers.

At noon, a basket dinner for the veterans and their wives was served by the women of the city at the club house.

Death has been rapidly thinning the ranks of old soldiers of this county for the past few years, and there are now only about 20 veterans on the pension roll of the county. There are nearly 50 widow pensioners.

Mrs. Warner Is Bridge Hostess.

One of the pleasant events of the week was the bridge party given by Mrs. Louis Lionel Warner at her home on Colquitt avenue in honor of Mrs. J. B. Womble, of Concord, N. C., the sister of Mrs. Walter C. Fink. The rooms where the game was played were decorated with a profusion of spring flowers and potted plants.

The first prize was won by Mrs. Walter C. Fink, the second by Mrs. Charles Griffin, the third by Mrs Thomas A. Northen. The consolation was cut by Mrs. J. G. Weddington, the low score going to Mrs. Leidy Shehee.

The guest of honor was presented with two hand-worked handkerchiefs.

The hostess was gowned in blue chiffon heavily embroidered with white crystal beads, and was assisted in entertaining by her mother, Mrs. Ella F. Adams.

West End Woman's Club To Entertain

The literary committee of the West End Woman's club will hold the last meeting of the year Wednesday, May 7, at 3:30. Mrs. Horace Presson, chairman, will entertain the members of the committee at that time in the banquet hall of the Atlanta Woman's club. An attractive program has been arranged with the general topic "Makers of Recent Short Stories."

The following papers will be read: Wilbur Daniel Steele, His Life and Early Training, by Mrs. H. A. Watts; Susan Glasteel, by Mrs. H. C. Ketterer; An Analysis of "The Past," by Mrs. Arthur Burdell.

Benefit Bridge.

The membership committee of the West End Woman's club, Mrs. Chester Johnson, chairman, will sponsor a benefit bridge party, Friday, May 9, at 2:30. All club members and their friends are invited to take part in the afternoon enjoyment. There will be a demonstration of a brand of pineapple served with whipped cream, and each guest will be presented with a useful souvenir. In addition to these attractions there will be several draw prizes.

Reservations may be made through Mrs. Johnson, West 1985. Individual places, 50 cents, tables $2. The committee will entertain in the clubroom, 218 1-2 Lee street.

"Put Moral Issue in All Parties"

BY MRS. AUGUST BURGHARD.

"There were thrills and repeated thrills for white ribboners and all prohibitionists at the convention of the women's national committee for law enforcement in Washington April 10-11. Nothing so encouraging for law observance has happened recently," writes Miss Claire Luzby, an ardent white ribboner, in a recent personal letter, describing that gathering of 1,360 women of note from 35 states.

"Allegiance to the constitution and observance of law. Put the moral issue in all political parties," was the slogan sounded by this gathering of women, sponsored by the highest ladies of the land—Mrs. Calvin Coolidge, Mrs. Warren G. Harding, Mrs. William Howard Taft and Mrs. Preston, formerly Mrs. Grover Cleveland, and presided over at every session by Mrs. Herbert Hoover, except one luncheon when Mrs. Robert Lansing was toastmistress.

President Coolidge Speaks.

The event of the convention was the address by President Coolidge. The chief executive received the party on the steps of the white house and is said to have "smiled genially as he looked over the company." Mrs. Coolidge ran down the steps to stand with the delegates for a group picture. Even the white house kitten, "Tige," is reported to have been present.

"I sometimes wish people would put a little more emphasis upon observance of the law than they do upon its enforcement," said the president. "Now the practical question comes, what can we do to secure enforcement?" he continued. "We have to do what is necessary in all movements for the betterment of the race—have an awakening of the conscience. That is what you represent and why your presence encourages me. It shows not only that we have laws on the statute books, but there is behind them the determination of an awakened conscience which declares to the world that our liberties are to be made forever secure."

After the president's ten minutes' address "we went in and were received in the blue room by Mrs. Coolidge, 'the first lady of the land' shaking hands with all the guests."

Another speaker was Secretary of the Navy Curtis D. Wilber, who "has long been a warm friend of prohibition and law enforcement. He held up as a greater enemy of society than the robber or murderer the man who "violates the law because he does not like it or because he feels he can avoid its penalties. Some people think the Volstead act and the eighteenth amendment a joke, but they are laughing at the Stars and Stripes," he said. "Law enforcement is a matter of patriotism."

Mrs. Henry W. Peabody, chairman of the national women's committee, said in the keynote speech:

"That the law is not enforced in certain sections is no reflection on the law, but reflects seriously on a type of citizen too unintelligent, apathetic, selfish or disloyal to right the wrong. Women who shirk responsibility are equally guilty with men who encourage law-breaking. It is a question whether women will be interested in politics, but women are interested in all practical issues which affect the home and the child. In advancement of these and in loyalty to the government, women have assembled in this capital city from nearly every state in the union representing all political parties and their own organization, to ask and to ask with emphasis of the ballot that this moral issue be included in all parties, and that only men be elected who will honestly enforce all law."

Other Well-Known Speakers.

The secretary of state, Charles Evans Hughes, sent a strong law enforcement message. Among the women speakers who paid discriminating tributes to the Woman's Christian Temperance union were Mrs. Kathleen Norris, the popular novelist; also Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, former equal suffrage leader, who "acknowledged a debt of gratitude to the W. C. T. U."

W. C. T. U. Well Represented.

The W. C. T. U. was ably represented, and the national vice president, Mrs. Ella A. Boole, and the national legislative superintendent, Mrs. Lenna Lowe Yost, were on the findings committee. Mrs. Boole spoke at the luncheon; Mrs. Ida Wise Smith, national superintendent of Christian citizenship, presided for a short time and spoke briefly and Miss Cora Frances Stoddard, national director of scientific temperance instruction and investigation, spoke at the forum.

Recommendations Adopted.

The platform adopted contained the following significant recommendations. "This convention shall formerly petition the national conventions of all political parties to include in their party platforms a strong plank for law enforcement, and specifically for law in connection with the eighteenth amendment and its accompanying enforcing legislation, and whereas the supreme court has declared that the limitation of beverage alcohol content, fixed by congress at one-half of one per cent, is justified in the interest of enforcement, we urge that the party platforms declare against any change."

Adoption by congress of the following measures was recommended:

1. The transfer of the enforcement personnel into the classified civil service, after examination of present employees to eliminate the unfit.

2. For changes in federal and state legislation providing stricter penalties for law breakers.

Program of Future Work.

The program of future work includes formation of state committees of 100 and subcommittees in every county and important city to create and mobilize public sentiment, act as bureaus of information, especially on the stand of candidates, duties of enforcement officials and possible action by citizens, to hold meetings, report law violations, attend trials, secure enforcement planks in state political platforms, secure publicity, circularize candidates, urge women to register and vote and enroll pledges of allegiance to the law.

Mrs. Hoover Is Reelected at Scout Convention

Mrs. Herbert Hoover, still confined to her room because of laryngitis, was unanimously reelected president of the national organization of girl scouts, at the convention in Chicago during the past week.

This is the 10th annual convention of the girl scouts and according to all reports, the most interesting and profitable one.

The other officers elected are: Mrs. Arthur, O. Choate, New York, first vice president; Mrs. Julius Rosenwald, Chicago, second vice president; Mrs. William Hoffman, Barrington, R. I., third vice president; Mrs. M. E. Olmstead, Harrisburg, Pa., fourth vice president; Mrs. Frederick H. Brooke, Washington; Mrs. Francis P. Dodge, Mrs. Frederick Edy, Mrs. John Hudson Hall, Jr., Mrs. Leo Arnstein, of New York; Mrs. Julius M. Barnes, Duluth, and Miss E. Gwen Martin, of Philadelphia, directors.

Fulton High P.-T. A. To Meet.

The Fulton High Parent-Teacher association will hold its regular monthly meeting at Fulton High school Thursday, May 8, at 2:30 o'clock. After the business meeting the home economics department will have their annual display, and serve refreshments.

Report 33rd Continental Congress

The ceremony of calling the 33rd congress to order, Monday, April 14, was an impressive one. After assembly sounded by the silver bugles of Arthur Whitcomb and John P. White, marine band musicians, Mrs. Anthony Wayne Cook, president general, was escorted to the platform by the pages who were dressed in white. Mrs. John M. Slaton, of Atlanta, was chairman in charge of the pages.

Mrs. Cook demonstrated her ability as a splendid executive and her gracious and tactful understanding, her courtesy and unusual gift in remembering names and faces add to her popularity. Mrs. Minor, Mrs. Cook's predecessor, was given an ovation upon her first platform appearance. Mrs. Cook's graceful act in resigning as chairman of the committee to build a memorial fountain to the Pilgrim mothers at Plymouth, Mass., and naming Mrs. Minor in her place elicited wide spread applause. The Georgia D. A. R. appreciate the honors shown individual Georgia Daughters by the president general.

There is no partiality shown in the seating of the state delegations as the state regents draw the seat numbers. This year Georgia delegates were seated a little to the rear of the main floor of the auditorium.

Monday night is to many the red letter occasion of the congress. It was then that President Calvin Coolidge addressed the body. To Mr. Coolidge and his wife, who was seated in the president general's box, the delegates gave fitting applause. In his address the president stressed our duties, responsibilities and obligations as enfranchised citizens. Mr. Jusserand, French ambassador, without whom an opening night would seem incomplete; Sir Esme Howard, ambassador from Great Britain, and Secretary of State Hughes gave addresses.

At last congress we waited in vain an hour or more for the scheduled arrival of General Pershing. This year he came all the way from France to pay his respects to the D. A. R., and after an ovation which lasted for some minutes, he spoke, proving an eloquent and finished speaker.

State Regents' Reports.

Changing former customs, all state regents made their reports on Wednesday evening. The state regents marched in procession to the platform where all were seated. The splendid report of Georgia by Mrs. Akerman was well received. Foreign countries were represented, China by the regent from Shanghai; the Philippines and Far East by their state regent, and the chapter in Paris was represented. A pretty scene was enacted as the state regent of Hawaii arose to make her report. Pages threw pink flowers over the neck of Mrs. Cook and yellow flowers on the national officers who accompanied the regent from her island home. The national board of management has taken initial steps toward the organization of a chapter in London, and also in Kolhapur, India.

Nominations for vice presidents general and honorary vice president general were made Wednesday evening to be voted upon the following day. Instead of standing in line to vote, state delegations were called out in groups. This added to the comfort of the voters.

Dr. Rowe, director of the Pan-American Union, presided over the Pan-American celebration Friday night. This was the first time in D. A. R. history a man presided over one of the sessions. Through the center door, as the army band played the national air of a Pan-American country the white robed pages carried the flag of that country to the platform. There a group was formed around a large standard of the flags of the Americas with the Star Spangled Banner in the center. Greetings were extended and addresses made by the ministers of these countries.

The reports of national officers and national chairmen indicate the activities of the D. A. R. are widening in scope. Mrs. Julius Talmadge is national chairman D. A. R. student loan fund, and the national committee follows in part the plan of Georgia, when under Mrs. Land's regency a $5,000 loan fund was given the university.

Greetings from Mrs. Warren G. Harding were read to the congress. It was voted to send Easter greetings and flowers to Mrs. Harding and to Mrs. Woodrow Wilson.

Speakers of Prominence.

Many speakers of prominence brought messages to the congress. Restricted immigration has been advocated by the D. A. R.

Representative Johnson, chairman of house committee on immigration, said "It is our sovereign right to regulate immigration to our shores. . . . I say to you no nation can or will compromise its sovereignty. This nation born of the deeds of your ancestors will never do that. I leave you the assurance that our new immigration legislation, passed by decisive vote in each house, is America's second declaration of independence."

"The organization and function of powerful and influential feminine societies are the most vivifying examples that North America offers to the consideration of the people of South America."—From the minister of Panama.

Mrs. Willebrandt, assistant attorney general, said "Bootlegging is brought about by the social demand and for this reason law obedience is even more important than law enforcement. A rebirth of devotion to the constitution is the crying need of the hour."

Mrs. Walter Rowe in full Indian ceremonial costume, speaking in behalf of the American Indian institute, referred to the question of some, "What is the matter with the American melting pot when the native copper refuses to fuse?" answering "Through education this situation is improved. Help us to train these young leaders in this dangerous passage from old ideals to new."

Mrs. Sloop, head of Mountain school, Crossmore, N. C., called "old clothes woman," last year made $12,000 from the sale of second-hand clothes sent by D. A. R. and in ten years in this same manner a $100,000 building has been put up.

Saturday was the day of resolutions and these will be published in a later issue.

Among guests who attracted special notice were Mrs. Sarah Pollard, of the Vermont delegation, an aunt of President Coolidge; Mrs. Charles J. Bryan, Tennessee, prominent in state and national work, who was attending her 28th congress; Mrs. James Robert McKee, of New York, daughter of the late President and Mrs. Benjaman Harrison, who showed much interest in the memorial to Caroline Scott Harrison, first president general of our society, which is being erected by the D. A. R. at Oxford, Ohio; $20(000 of the $100,000 fund has been collected.

Program of Music.

No report of a continental congress could be complete without mentioning the music, always a treat, and the social features.

Tuesday evening the Georgia delegation, 40 strong, gave a dinner at the New Willard. This proved such a pleasant occasion that it will be an annual affair. After the dinner the delegation attended the D. A. R. reception at Memorial hall.

The reception this year was one of the largest and most brilliant in the history of the society, attended by 3,000 members and friends. Mrs. Cook headed the line which extended all the way across the stage. Guests were given an opportunity to shake hands with the state regents who composed a second line which was stationed in the museum.

President and Mrs. Coolidge received the D. A. R. on Wednesday afternoon at a formal reception in the white house with all appearances of a state function, including marine band and entire corps of white house military and naval aids in full dress uniform. Exactly 2,101 D. A. R. were received by the president and his wife.

Mrs. Larz Anderson, librarian general, gave a ball at her home for the pages.

Representatives from states which had shown interest in the purchase and preservation of Kenmore were guests at the white house. Mrs. McCall, vice president general, and Mrs. Talmadge, newly confirmed regent, were invited to represent Georgia.

On Saturday night there was the usual banquet and it was a feast of wits as well as viands.

Mrs. Cook gave a luncheon to the state regents and on Monday following the close of the 33rd congress, the board of management met.

CHAPTER REPORTS

For the first time, death has broken the ranks of the Hawkinsville chapter. Mrs. J. F. Fleming, a chapter member, died April 25. The chapter mourns the passing of one of its most useful members.

The members of the Joseph Habersham chapter, Atlanta, are to be congratulated on their year book, which is attractive and complete. The report of the current events committee is interesting. Through the kindness of the president general they procured 40 copies of the September D. A. R. magazine for Boy Scout troops of Atlanta. Boy Scouts officials appealed to the chairman for these magazines because of an article on the flag.

The Brunswick chapter will join civic and patriotic bodies in Brunswick in the historical pageant enacting epochs of history to be presented at the formal opening of the great St. Simons highway. Miss Betty S. Rucker, chapter member and head of history department in Glynn academy, will arrange the scenes, and the entire chapter will take part in one depicting the Revolutionary period. The bridge opening will be about June 19, and thousands of Georgians as well as visitors from neighboring states will be in Brunswick for the important event.

Matrons' Class Holds Meeting.

The matrons' class of Woodward Avenue Baptist church, held a business meeting Wednesday, April 30, at the home of Mrs. J. M. McMichael, 126 Rogers avenue.

The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. N. A. Lanford, at 3 p. m., and the business was transacted in due form. Interesting talks were made by the teacher, Mrs. Smith; pastor's wife, Mrs. H. T. Brookshire, and others.

A committee was appointed to write resolutions on the death of one of the members, Mrs. L. A. Kocher.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. H. E. Delany, 376 South Boulevard, May 28, at 3 p. m.

Those present were Mrs. R. L. Dennard, Mrs. R. E. Robertson, Mrs. W. C. Byers, Mrs. J. J. Carter, Mrs. J. R. Hadden, Mrs. J. S. Hutchinson, Mrs. J. H. Branan, Mrs. J. A. Preston, Mrs James Still, Mrs. A. J. Holcombe, Mrs. C. S. Anchors, Mrs. T. P. Singleton, Mrs. H. L. Lloyd, Mrs. A. H. Martin, Mrs. C. F. Schelpert, Mrs. N. A. Lanford, Mrs. W. H. Smith, Mrs. Isabel Buchanan, Mrs. A. L. Johnson, Mrs. Joe Durden, Mrs. H. T. Brookshire, Miss Mable Watt, Mrs. T. G. Young, Mrs. Sidney Wooten, Mrs. J. B. Leamon, Mrs. P. R. Johnson, Mrs. H. E. DeLaney, Mrs. C. W. Miller, Mrs. L. R. Winsley, Mrs. J. M. McMichael, Mrs. W. O. McMichael, Mrs. Maud Williams, Mrs. W. A. Goodman and Mrs. W. O. McDonald, a visitor from Cleveland, Ohio.

Round Table Will Hold Meeting.

The Order of the Round Table will hold an interesting meeting on Saturday. This order is an international organization, being already established in 27 countries. It is governed by a senior council meeting each year in London, and by national councils. The order is open to young people, eight years to 21, and to adults desiring to form tables and to work in the order. The motto of the order is "Love Pure, Speak True, Right Wrong, Follow the King." The Round Table holds up before its knights and companions the figure of the Perfect King and endeavors to inspire them to work in His service. They are free to take as their king any great figure who embodies for them all that is heroic, noble and pure in life. Most of its members have taken as their hero the same divine figure who inspired King Arthur and his knights in the middle ages—the Christ.

A round table group was formed in Atlanta about a year ago, Miss Inez Pergantis is the leading knight for the Atlanta table.

The meeting on Saturday will be of special interest because Mrs. Vida Reed Stone, chief knight of all the tables in America, will preside and meet young people and their parents for the purpose of inspiring them to either join the already existing group or establishing a new one here or in this vicinity.

The meeting will be held at 66 West North avenue, on Saturday afternoon, May 10, at 3 o'clock.

Public is invited to attend.

Mrs. Brantley Announces Appointment Of Mrs. Stafford as State Editor

It gives me pleasure to announce Mrs. Bessie Shaw Stafford as editor of the club page of the Georgia Federation of Women's clubs. Mrs. Stafford has conducted the page as editor pro tem. for the past year and a half with a marked degree of ability and her appointment carries with it the assurance that the high standard of the page will be maintained.

MRS. ARCHIBALD P. BRANTLEY,
President of the Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs.

New State Editor Has Record Of Earnest Work for Federation

The announcement today of the appointment by Mrs. Brantley, president of the Georgia Federation of Clubs, of Mrs. Bessie Shaw Stafford as state editor for the federation, will be received with cordial interest throughout the state.

Mrs. Stafford's work for the past year and a half as editor pro tem. of the official page of the federation in The Sunday Constitution, has received state-wide recognition, especially for its constructiveness and its strict adherence to the highest ideals and purposes of the federation.

As chairman of press and publicity for Georgia I take this opportunity in the absence of Mrs. Stafford, who has been attending the Parent-Teacher association meeting in Savannah, and has remained there to visit friends for a few days, of expressing the approval all Georgia clubwomen will feel in having Mrs. Stafford assume a position made hallowed by the memory of Miss Isma Dooly and carried with signal brilliancy by Miss Louise Dooly through several years. Mrs. Stafford's wide experience in newspaper work, her popularity with clubwomen, her tact and charm qualify her preeminently. The federation will find in Mrs. Stafford broad vision, unfailing sweetness and readiness to give aid in full measure to all the many lines of good work which it puts forward.

The federation is honored and the press and publicity department is most happy in having Mrs. Stafford officially its editor.

MRS. McCORD ROBERTS,
Chairman Department of Press and Publicity.

Notable Speakers Announced for Meet Of 11th District

The fifth annual convention of the 11th District Federation of Women's Clubs will be held May 13 and 14. The Ocilla Woman's club will be hostess, and is one of the oldest clubs in the district. Mrs. J. M. Paulk, the president, and Mrs. D. L. Rogers, chairman of arrangements, are planning a beautiful setting for this meeting.

A 6 o'clock dinner will be the opening feature. This will be followed by the official opening and on the program will appear a group of distinguished women in the club and social life of the state.

While the program has not reached its final stage, advance information is to the effect that from the realm of women's clubdom will come bright particular stars who will speak on appropriate subjects. The speakers will include Mrs. Archibald P. Brantley, state president; Mrs. J. E. Hayes, national recording secretary; Mrs. Clifford Walker, national health leader in welfare work of pre-school age; Mrs. Nichols Peterson, director for life of sate federation; Mrs. Oscar McKenzie, secretary of state federation. Among other distinguished speakers will be Dr. Waller, of the state board of health.

Mrs. Brantley and Mrs. Smith will bring inspiration and suggestions from the recent board meeting in Atlanta. Among the matters of business that will lead in interest will be the election of officers.

According to Mrs. C. R. Hawk, district press chairman, the meeting will be a notable one in many particulars and will assemble a body of women whose constructive ideas are felt in their section—women to whose efforts are due more than any one agency the wonderful improvements that have taken place in the civic life of the towns and cities of the district during the past several years."

Foreign Relations To Be Featured.

Ten foreign-born women of as many nationalities and experts in economics and sociology will feature the great foreign relations day program at the biennial of the General Federation of Women's Clubs to be held in Los Angeles, June 3-13.

Beginning with a noon luncheon for 800, with Mrs. Thomas G. Winter acting as toastmistress, the entire day will be devoted to a discussion of friendly relations with foreign countries and of how these can be bent to an "international will to peace." "Our Relations with Pan-America" will be discussed by Mrs. Elmer Leatherwood, of Utah, wife of Congressman Leatherwood. Mrs. Lee Joseph, of Texas, will talk on "Religion as a Factor in Internationalism."

At an afternoon conference, Mrs. Robert J. Burdette, wife of America's late great humorist and world traveler and chum of Mark Twain, will tell of "American Women's Clubs in Other Lands." Paul Harvey will speak on "Menacing Conditions in Europe." Whiting Williams will tell of working conditions in this and other countries. Mrs. Winter, Mrs. Jeannette Emrich and others will speak.

Mrs. S. B. C. Morgan Is Eloquent Speaker.

Mrs. S. B. C. Morgan, of Savannah, director for life in the Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs, was an eloquent speaker on "Illiteracy" at the luncheon given by the Chatham County Parent-Teacher luncheon given by the executive board to the Georgia Parent-Teacher executive board during the P.-T. A. convention in Savannah last week.

Mrs. Morgan has given a lifetime of work to raising the standards of education in Georgia, and has waged an untiring struggle against illiteracy as a leader in P.-T. A. work, in the D. A. R. and as a devoted supporter of Tallulah Falls Industrial School for Mountain Boys and Girls. The State Association for the Education of Georgia Mountaineers throws its hearty support to Tallulah through Mrs. Morgan and in turn reaches out and brings to the school the interest of individuals all over the United States.

Visitors' Badges To Be Issued.

The California local biennial board states: A visitor's badge will be issued only to those visiting club women, not delegates, who present their club membership cards to the local directory committee, Auditorium building. Visitor's badge admits to visitor's section of convention hall and to any place in the overflow meeting.

The Clubwoman, Here, There and Everywhere

BY LESSIE STRINGELLOW READ,
Director, General Federation of Women's Clubs.

Nellie Burget Miller, poet laureate of Colorado, and chairman of literature in the Fine Arts Department of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, will be in charge of the literature luncheon on Fine Arts day of the Los Angeles biennial convention on June 11, at the Biltmore. Nearly 1,000 men and women, many of whom are listed among America's leading writers, will be present. Mrs. Miller will sound a call to women everywhere to the value and beauty of self-expression.

"Mainsprings of Men."

What is the cause of the country's industrial discontent? What is the cause of the industrial discontent throughout the world? When you want information the best thing to do is to get it first-hand. That is what Whiting Williams has done. Whiting Williams is the vice president of the Hydraulic Steel company, who wanted to know what the man in overalls was worrying about, and so he resigned his office and put on overalls to find out. He decided he'd get to the bottom of the differences between capital and labor by donning the working man's clothes, digging as the working man digs, and suffering all the hardships that the working man declares to capital that he suffers. He walked much of the time and he went where he would most likely come in contact with class hatred. He made a study of strikes, unions, bolshevism and kindred war by-products. Leaving this country he journeyed to Germany, France and Italy, where he worked for his living as a day laborer. First he found a job with the coal diggers in the German Ruhr basin. During the summer of 1920, all unknown to his employers, he worked in the steel plants and the shipyards of Great Britain. He spent 1921 amid grime and grind in France and Belgium. He returned to America and worked for a while as a striker, then he turned strike-breaker, just to get both viewpoints. He gathered facts, and for this work he had a good foundation, having degrees from Oberlin, the University of Berlin and the University of Chicago. At present, as secretary of the Cleveland Welfare association, he is putting his wealth of material at the disposal of people interested in preventing industrial warfare, who wish to study internationalism. Speaking before men and women's clubs of Minneapolis recently, he had that city "by the ears," so to speak. Mrs. Thomas G. Winter has invited him to be the chief speaker on the international relations department program of the clubwomen's convention to be held this summer. His subject will be "Mainsprings of Men."

Lost or Stolen?

Where is the non-partisan world court proposal? women voters are asking Senator Lodge. For fourteen months it has been in the hands of the committee, which even the most conservative believe is long enough. Women's clubs all over the country are going on record approving a court of international arbitration as a non-partisan issue and asking that membership in the world court by the United States be made a part of both democratic and republican platforms.

A National Club.

The Chautauqua Woman's club that meets for a six weeks' session at Chautauqua, New York, every summer, claims Mrs. Thomas S. Edison as a member. The club will this year convene June 30, with Mrs. Percy V. Pennybacker presiding. A course of lectures has been arranged with noted speakers, including Dr. George Vincent, Will Hays, Dr. E. H. Griggs, Mrs. John Booth, Mrs. Arthur Bestor, Dr. Bestor, Edith McClure Patterson, Emily Newell Blair, Mrs. John H. Hammond and Mrs. John D. Sherman. The club has members from every state in the union.

Burbank's Gardens.

Luther Burbank, plant wizard, will open his famous experimental gardens at Santa Rosa, Oanora county, Calif., to clubwomen of the country June 19, according to Mrs. Einar Wismer, 1439 Forty-third avenue, San Francisco, who has the excursion in charge.

Lamar County Clubs Hold Meeting.

Barnesville, Ga., May 3.—The Federated Women's Clubs of Barnesville entertained the Federated Clubs of Lamar county at the club house in Barnesville, Tuesday afternoon, April 33. All the clubs of the county had large delegations present.

A chief feature of the entertainment was the address by Miss Lucille Aiken, vice president of the sixth district clubs, who was introduced by Mrs. J. W. Reeves. There was a splendid musical program.

The hostesses for the meeting were Mrs. M. T. Grace, Mrs. Ed Howard, Mrs. L. S. Fifield, Mrs. Emmett Coleman and Mrs. A. Peacock.

Club Institute at Georgia University Offers Advantages

Preparations for the club institute to be conducted at the University of Georgia, in Athens, from June 30 to July 5, are being rapidly rounded out. Mrs. Lamar Rucker is chairman of the institute, which is to be strictly a federation training school. Dr. Jospeh S. Stewart is lending full support to the program, which has been prepared jointly by Dr. Stewart and Mrs. Rucker and a committee near at hand.

Ida Clyde Clarke is cited as an outstanding attraction and her address will be a feature occasion.

The program has been planned along practical lines for the benefit of Georgia club women, according to Mrs. Walter Hodges, of Hartwell, chairman of press and publicity for the institute. Subjects which will be studied will include parliamentary training, public speaking, constructing club programs, conducting club singing and other special subjects.

A silver loving cup will be awarded the club district sending best exhibit and having the largest attendance. This exhibit will consist of plans and pictures of club houses, year books, ideas for club, and unique work sponsored by clubs.

Entrance fee will be $2 for club course. Railroads have offered special rates of one and one-half fare, provided certificates are procured from Dr. Stewart. Mrs. Hodges requests that prospective students write for these. The Georgian hotel offers rates of from $1 per day to $1.75. Arrangements with cafeterias provide for obtaining three meals a day for $1. The Athens Woman's club will assist in securing accommodations in private homes if that is preferred. Socially, there will be a number of pleasant features, to be fully arranged later.

Mrs. J. E. Hays, under whose guidance the first institutes were held last summer, declares:

"I consider the club institute as conducted last summer at the university of Georgia, a wonderful opportunity for the club women of Georgia. The institute this year will give them a chance to spend a vacation with congenial friends in the cultured city of Athens, and at the same time receive training in the work which they are assuming. It is the best chance I know to spend a pleasant and profitable vacation for a minimum sum."

National Viewpoint.

Mrs. Thomas G. Winter, president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, has informed directors and state presidents that:

"On Monday afternoon, June 9, we are to have a session given to club institutes. I am exceedingly anxious that this should be a real discussion from the floor, but as it is manifestly impossible to cover all phases in two hours, I am going to limit the subjects to the following, (1) Efficient officers and committees. (2) Club ethics. (3) Club houses. (4) Our relation to the public and other organizations. (5) Club finances. (6) Program building for clubs and conventions. We will limit the speeches to three minutes and permit no one to speak twice on the same subject."

Griffin Woman's Club Closes Busy Year.

Griffin, May 3.—The Griffin Woman's club held its regular meeting in the Grantland Memorial Parish house, Thursday afternoon with Mrs. H. P. Stuckey, the president, presiding. The business for the year was closed, checks being made out for all obligations of the club, and a substantial sum left in the treasury for future obligations.

The members of the club have been untiring in their efforts to beautify the school grounds, the parks, the city generally and the Dixie highway in Spalding county. The church yards have also been beautified with flowers, shrubbery and green lawns. The clubwomen will take for their summer work the cleaning up and beautifying of the triangle of grounds across from the depot and in front of the Pimento Canning factory. Mrs. William H. Beck, chairman of city improvement, will have charge of this work.

Mrs. Franklin Sibley, the county demonstration agent, told of her work with the women of the county in the kitchen improvement contest. Mrs. Tibley said that there were thirty contestants more than from any other county in the north Georgia district. All of these had put in waterwork connections with the pumps so that they could have running water in the kitchens. Other equally important improvements were also being made. The Woman's club gave $30 toward prizes for this contest.

Miss Louise Ellis, principal of Kincaid Mills school, told of her school gardens. Miss Ellis spoke of the interest and enthusiasm that the children had shown in this work and in addition the children had received enough money from the sale of the vegetables from the gardens to equip their playground. She also told of the flower gardens that the children had planted on the school grounds and in their home yards.

Mrs. Henry P. Stuckey reported that the ready writers contest in the county schools would be held in May. She spoke of the great improvement in the English work of the county schools that these contests had brought about. This year traveling libraries have been put into each school to aid in this English work.

The following nominating committee was appointed to select officers for the coming year: Mrs. Robert Shepard, Mrs. William H. Beck, Mrs. J. W. McWilliams and Mrs. Mary Neely Smith.

Mrs. Hastings States Rules for Meeting

Mrs. H. G. Hastings, president of the Fifth Disrict Federation of Women's clubs, requests that all resolutions to be brought before the fifth district meeting on May 15 be typed in triplicate and sent to the chairmen of resolutions, Mrs. B. B. Gray, College Park, by the 10 of May. Resolutions will not receive consideration unless this rule is complied with.

Presidents of member clubs are asked by Mrs. Hastings to bring with them to the meeting to be held at Agnes Scott college in Decatur, on May 15, a 100 word report of the year's activities in that particular club. It is, Mrs. Hastings declares, necessary to condemn all matters to be presented before the meeting as a large amount of important business is to come before the executives of the district, preliminary to the meeting at Tallulah Falls school, which is held each year under the title of the annual Tallulah Pilgrimage.

Chairman Home Demonstration In Georgia State Federation

Mrs. Ira Farmer, whose work as leader, speaker and writer on subjects of prime interest to women has given her wide reputation for big achievement.

"The four years' training of a canning club girl not only fits her for a lucrative profession but trains her for the home," declares Mrs. Ira Farmer, chairman of the division of home demonstration in the Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs.

"And she earns while she learns. The four-year report of a Georgia girl lies before me and she averaged $200 per year for that period from one-twentieth of an acre, besides returns from chickens and hogs.

"Eighty per cent of the family income is spent by the women and these girls are taught to keep books, make out statements and budget their expenses. And listen to the aims of these girls. A bank account, a college education, a perennial garden. Thrift, education, a permanent home. If Georgia trains all her girls to these ideals, she need no longer worry about absentee landlordism and a tenant system. And if the Georgia legislature had appropriated the money spent last year for an extra session that never got where it was going, we could put a demonstrator in every county to teach every girl.

"In 1923 the total earnings of the girls was over $300,000 and that of the women far more. One Atlanta firm bought 1,500 jars of fig and watermelon rind preserves from the girls and put them on sale, limiting them one jar to a customer. They were sold out before night. The farmer considered he was making good money last year when he cleared 15 cents per melon. The girls cleared $5 on the rinds, ate the melon and saved the seed. Thousands of dollars worth of figs are going to waste in Georgia because the women do not know how to make a standard pack and we are buying preserves from California. The figs these girls preserve command the same price as the California product.

"One hundred and eighteen of these girls entered college last year and they will take back to their communities an influence that will live down the years. There is no line of work that the Georgia federation can do that will bring so great returns not only to the country but to the state as a whole because on the farm depends the state and on the farm home depends the farm.

"The club women can help by (1) seeing that men are elected to the legislature this year who realize the importance of this work and will vote to meet the Smith-Lever fund. (2) By getting from the county authorities the appropriations to meet the state and federal funds, and by assisting the work locally as they find need. In Harris county the Union community has a revolving educational fund and is sending two boys and a girl to college. In Floyd county the university women maintain a club house where nine girls from the county do cooperative housekeeping at a cost per month per girl of $8.32 and attend high school. They can buy the canned products of these girls or ask the merchants to handle them. They can raise the money for the prizes at the fall fair. And they can give to the home demonstrator, wherever they find her, cooperation and encouragement and support for she is applied education and applied citizenship personified."

Mrs. Brantley Asks Leaders for Facts About Club Houses

Mrs. Archibald P. Brantley, president of the Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs, requests Georgia club women to note the request of Mrs. Rose V. S. Berry, chairman of the department of fine arts in the general federation, which is reprinted below. Mrs. Brantley urges every president of a club which has a club home to reply at once, sending the reply to Mrs. Brantley at Blackshear.

Mrs. Berry's request is as follows:

For some time it has been the desire of the fine arts department to have definite information concerning the number and location of clubhouses, federated and nonfederated, in your state.

Will you please, at your earliest convenience, be kind enough to send me this information as nearly complete as possible?

I would appreciate a notation, an X or dash beside the houses that are expecially modern and well built.

The kind of club house we have, the character of building it is, and what it may mean to the community as a cultural center, has never yet been fully worked out. With this definite information at hand, there may be possible several lines of new and attractive work for our women who have achieved much and carried service for others so far.

Fourth District Announces Days Of Meeting in May

Mrs. Rhodes Browne, president of the fourth district of the Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs, has announced that the annual district meeting will be held in Bowdon, Ga., May 20-21, instead of May 16, as first thought. The change was made on account of conflicting dates.

Mrs. Henry Byrd is president of the Community club of Bowdon, which will be the hostess club.

Last year the entire amount handled by clubs in this district aggregated about $16,000.

The Community club of Bowdon will entertain at the new Log Cabin Club house on May 20 and 21, the convention of the fourth congressional district. The local organization is the only club in Carroll county with membership in the Georgia and General Federation of Women's Clubs.

Led by their president, Mrs. Henry M. Bird, the members of the local club are making extensive and elaborate preparations for the entertainment of the visitors and delegates to the convention, which is to convene on the afternoon of May 20, at the Community Club house.

The convention will be called "Education In Its Highest Perfection."

Outline of program:

Tuesday afternoon, May 20, open house at the Community club; credential committee; hospitality committee. A buffet supper will be served from 7 to 8 o'clock.

Evening session: Methodist church, Mrs. Rhodes Browne and Mrs. Henry Bird, presiding. Federation song; invocation, Rev. C. V. Weathers; special music, members Georgia Glee club; addresses of welcome, Mayor W. A. Stephenson, W. O. Barrow, president Chamber of Commerce; Dr. G. W. Camp, president Bowdon State Normal and Industrial college; Professor J. H. Sims, superintendent city schools; H. J. Reeves, A. E. Fleming, Luther Johnson, Mrs. C. L. Lovvorn, Mrs. J. T. Roberts; introduction of distinguished guests and district officers; greetings, Mrs. Albert Hill, federation treasurer; address, Mrs. A. P. Brantley; benediction, Rev. H. C. Stratton.

Mayor and Mrs. W. A. Stephenson and Mr. and Mrs. Henry M. Bird will entertain later at a reception at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Stephenson for the delegates, visitors, club members and their husbands, and all taking a part in the program and entertainment of the guests.

Wednesday morning session: Mrs. Rhodes Browne, president fourth district, presiding. The president's address, Mrs. Rhodes Browne; reports of the district officers; address, "Greater Tallulah," Mrs. J. K. Ottley; reports from the district chairmen; address, "The Child of the Pre-School Age," Mrs. Clifford Walker.

The guests and club members will be given a motorcade to the Bowdon State Normal and Industrial college, where they will be the guests of the college at a plate luncheon prepared and served under the direction of Miss Iris Smythe Davenport, the instructor of home economics.

Afternoon session, May 21: Mrs. Rhodes Browne, presiding; community singing; address, Dr. C. E. Waller, state board of health; address, "Club Institutes," Mrs. H. D. Russell; reports of clubs, ten minutes given to "What I Like Best in Our Federation"; symposium; reports of committees; election of officers.

A most pleasant feature of the convention, just as the guests are leaving for their homes, will be the farewell party which Dr. and Mrs. W. L. Brooks, as host and hostess, will give them at their handsome Rexall store.

Braselton Club Does Civic Work.

The Woman's Club of Braselton was organized June 20, 1921, and while it is one of the youngest of ninth district clubs, it has caught the spirit of service expressed in the aim: "To do all in our power, in accordance with the will of God to uplift our town, make it cleaner, more healthful, more beautiful, and more blessed."

The motto is Purity, Progress and Perseverance.

Under the leadership of Mrs. George L. Ivey, assisted by the first vice president, Mrs. John O. Braselton, a constructive program of work has been planned for community betterment, civic beauty, and better schools, through library extension.

The outstanding work of the club this year has been in cooperation with the school. Many books have been bought and placed in the library. School grounds have been improved and made more attractive. The club secured Miss Wood, county demonstrator for Jackson county, to conduct nutrition classes, which were beneficial and greatly enjoyed. "Clean-up" days for the entire town and lectures along civic lines were very instructive and beneficial. The club also visits the sick, sends them trays and flowers, and does charity work along many lines.

The following officers have been elected for 1923-24: President, Mrs. R. G. Braselton; vice president, Miss Leita Green Braselton; secretary and treasurer, Miss Adelle Hudgins; corresponding secretary, Mrs. John O. Braselton. Chairmen of departments: Program, Mrs. J. W. Williams; good roads and streets, Mrs. C. H. Drake; school improvement and child welfare, Mrs. George L. Ivey; fine arts, Mrs. John O. Braselton.

Exhibit Photographs Of State Club Houses

Of practical benefit to the women's clubs of the Georgia Federation represented at the club institute, University of Georgia, from June 30 through July 5, will be an extensive exhibit featuring photographs of club houses throughout the state, besides plans for building, and expenses entailed. Year books and programs will be included.

A prize will be offered to the individual club submitting the best exhibit. Thursday, July 3, will be devoted to the discussion of club houses, first how shall we plan them; second, how shall we finance them; third, how shall we use them. Every club in the state is strongly urged to send an exhibit to the institute.

MRS. WILLIAM W. CREWS,
Chairman of Ehibits.

Resignation of Miss Louise Dooly Brings Expression of Sincere Regret

It is with regret that the resignation of Miss Louise Dooly as editor of the club page of the Georgia Federation of Women's clubs is announced.

The many friends of Miss Dooly all over the state will be glad to know that her health is much improved and that while she will reside in another state for awhile, she will resume active work, a part of which will include articles for the club page, to which Georgia club women will look forward with interest.

MRS. ARCHIBALD P. BRANTLEY,
President of the Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs.

Winder Woman's Club Elects New Officers.

The April meeting of Winder Woman's club was held Wednesday afternoon at the First Baptist church parlors. More than eighty members were present, and election of officers featured the meeting.

The new officers are: President, Mrs. A. D. McCurry; first vice president, Mrs. P. A. Flanigan; second vice president, Mrs. R. H. Kimball; recording secretary, Mrs. Henry Pledger; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Carter Daniel; treasurer, Mrs. W. C. Patterson; parliamentarian, Mrs. W. L. Bush; reporter, Mrs. J. B. Parham.

Just before the program the retiring president, Mrs. P. A. Flanigan, was presented with a handsome hatbox as a token of esteem and appreciation of her untiring work in behalf of the club for the past two years.

The program was in charge of the fine arts and music department and presented Miss Jennie Smith, art teacher of Lucy Cobb, Athens, and her class, who gave a study in life sketching.

The hostesses were Mesdames Pratt, Poole, Oliver, W. C. Patterson, Pledger, Parham and Patterson.

Choral Club.

The Winder Choral club, which is a recent organization and represents the fine arts and music department of the Woman's club, gave its initial number at the school auditorium Tuesday evening before a large and appreciative audience.

Following are the officers: President, Mrs. A. D. McCurry; director, Mrs. E. C. Strange; accompanist, Miss Beulah Ferguson; business manager, Mrs. George Fortson. The club gives the promise of many hours of music and diversion for Winder.

Reports for the Year.

Educational week was observed by having a program at a regular meeting of the club stressing woman's part in educational work. One of the committee spoke to the children of the public school on "Patriotism," and we also published in our local paper that week an article on "The Value of Libraries to the Community." A donation of $25 has been sent to the Tallulah Falls school. With other organizations we sponsored a lyceum course of five attractions last fall.

The chairman of the department of applied education, Mrs. H. A. Carithers, reported 50 school books given to pupils who were not able to buy them. Eleven dollars and twenty cents worth of new ones were bought and the remainder were second hand, donated through the committee. Several children were given clothes and a number of school tickets were secured through the efforts of this department. Since Christmas this committee and the child welfare committee have had the city officials make a special effort to place all children of school age in school. A decided increase in the attendance of the factory and negro schools was the result.

The division of illiteracy, with Mrs. J. B. Brookshire as chairman, offered a cup to the district in Bartow county having been made to every school in the county, speaking to teachers and pupils on the subject of illiteracy in Georgia, and of the effort the federation is making to stamp it out. Several numbers have offered their service as teachers and with the American Legion an effort is being made to start a night school for those not in a position to attend the regular schools.

The library chairman, Mrs. Carter Daniel, reported 127 books added to the Woman's club Library of Modern Fiction since last November, making a total of 200 books. On literary day nine new members were added to the library membership, and 23 books were placed in the library.

Forestry Division.

The forestry and natural resource division has been more active recently than any other committee in the club, Mrs. Henry Pledger, chairman. There have been 250 dogwood and crepe myrtle trees planted on the Bankhead highway, these trees to be dedicated to the world war heroes of Barrow county. The Daughters of the American Revolution, the Woman's Christian Temperance Union and the Woman's Club of Winder, planted trees together on the road leading out of Winder to Atlanta and are planning a big dedication service on Armistice day. The John Rich Pentecost post of the American Legion has already accepted an invitation from these organizations for that service. Eighty trees and plants besides a number of bulbs and flower seeds have been planted on the grounds of the mill school. Six crepe myrtles planted on negro school grounds. Several dogwood and crepe myrtles have also been put on factory grounds. At one of our country schools this committee assisted in puting out about 75 shrubs, plants and rose vines on the school yard.

A study of birds and trees has been urged in several of the schools. Booklets having been made on one or the other subject. A picture was shown during garden week at the local theater.

The division of home economics and thrift, with Miss Cleo Buch as chairman presented the home budget plan to our club, and has secured the "Home, Sweet Home" film, which will be shown at the Strand on May 1 and 2.

Biennial Delegates Asked to Write

All Georgia women who expect to attend the biennial of the General Federation of Women's clubs in Los Angeles in June are requested by Mrs. Archibald P. Brantley, president of the Georgia Federation, to inform the corresponding secretary to this effect at once in order that Mrs. Samuel Inman, appointed the official head of the delegation by Mrs. Brantley, may complete plans for the Georgia delegation. It is the earnest wish of Mrs. Inman and Mrs. Brantley that everyone attending from Georgia may enjoy all the advantages and priviledges incident to the convention and may derive every possible benefit from the delightful trip in store for those who go. In order to accomplish this much information regarding lines of travel, accomodations in California and the social side of the biennial has been gathered by Mrs. Inman.

Every club expecting to be represented in Los Angeles should communicate with the corresponding secretary, Mrs. B. M. Boykin, Fidelity Mutual Insurance Company, McGlawn Building, Atlanta.

Mrs. Oscar Peeples Is Named President Of 7th District Clubs

Rockmark, Ga., May 3.—(Special.) Mrs. Oscar Peeples, of Cartersville, was elected president at the closing session of the seventh district Federation of Women's Clubs convention here today. Other officers elected are Mrs. Charles McGarity, of Dallas, vice president; Mrs. W. F. Collar, of Austell, recording secretary, and Miss Emma Crabb, of Rockmart, corresponding secretary.

Mrs. Peeples succeeds Mrs. W. C. Martin, of Dalton, who has held the executive office for the past four years.

More than 200 guests were entertained Thursday and today. Mrs. A. P. Brantley, state president, and Mrs. Z. I. Fitzpatrick and Mrs. J. Lindsey Johnson, of Rome, past presidents, were among the distinguished guests.

A reception was tendered visitors at the new clubhouse Thursday evening. An interesting program was rendered at the city auditorium at 8 o'clock, the address of Mrs. Brantley being the principal feature.

Business sessions were held today at the city auditorium, which was beautifully decorated in club colors, white and green. Reports from the clubs show a wonderful working force for education and higher development along many lines.

At the close of the morning session, guests again assembled at the clubhouse, where they were served an elaborate luncheon.

Indorsement of Women Sent to Washington

Georgia club women were placed on record as favoring the entrance of the United States into the world court by Mrs. Samuel Inman and Mrs. Archibald P. Brantley on Wednesday before the senate foreign relations subcommittee headed by Senator Pepper. The information that the Georgia Federation has indorsed the world court was conveyed by telegram signed by Mrs. Samuel Inman and other club leaders, and the General Federation and by Mrs. Archibald P. Brantley, as president of the Georgia Federation. Further emphasis was lent to the indorsement through personal telegrams from Mrs. Inman and othe club leaders, and the support of the Atlanta Federation of Women's clubs was stated by telegram signed by Mrs. T. T. Stevens, president.

At the state executive board meeting in January the state organization officially confirmed the resolution passed by the General Federation board earlier in the month and the Atlanta Federation confirmend it at a meeting called in March for the purpose of discussing the subject.

Brooks' Woman's Club Elects Officers.

Brooks, Ga., May 3.—Mrs. J. H. Jones was hostess to the Woman's club, of Brooks, Fayette county, at the regular April meeting.

Election of officers was of prime interest at the meeting.

The following were reelected: Mrs. William Malone, president; Mrs. Earl Drewry, vice president; Miss Sara Gable, treasurer; Mrs. James I. Woolsey, secretary.

Florida Federation Backs Mrs. Jennings.

"The Florida Federation of Women's Clubs is honored in presenting the first vice president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs for election to the presidency at the binennial convention," declares Mrs. William F. Blackman, president of the Florida Federation in a circular letter which that state is sending to delegates to Los Angeles.

The letter sets forth that:

Mrs. Jennings' father, Austin Shuey Mann, a native of Ohio, moved to Florida from Ohio. He took an active part in the development of the state, and will be remembered as "Senator Mann, the father of good roads." Her mother, Elisabeth Rachel Kline Mann, was born in Pennsylvania. On both sides Mrs. Jennings is descended from distinguished colonial ancestry.

Mrs. Jennings married William Sherman Jennings. He was born in Illinois, came to Florida as a boy, and became one of Florida's greatest governors, serving from 1901 to 1905. Their son, Sherman Bryan Jennings, is the father of Mrs. Jennings' three beautiful grandchildren.

It was Governor Jennings' messago to the legislature in 1903 that first recommended the drainage and reclamation of the Everglades, one of the greatest undertakings of its kind in the world. Afterwards, as attorney for the state board, which had those lands in charge, he caused the surveys to be made and the canals to be laid out. Throughout Governor Jennings' long service to Florida, Mrs. Jennings was her husband's "right-hand man." They worked together, and yet she never allowed public affairs to interfere with her love of home and its interests. She is a gracious and delightful hostess; she is a student of the great outdoors, a recognized authority on forestry and conservation, having saved to Florida and the country a large, Royal Palm State park, which is the greatest tropical jungle in the United States. She is, in addition, a lover of music, painting, flowers—her garden of lilies is a joy to behold.

The first passenger elevator in London was put in use in the Albert hall, and was called "the moving room."

Mrs. Millard Chase Is Honored at Club Luncheon

Mrs. Arthur Chase entertained at luncheon Wednesday at the Druid Hills Golf club in compliment of her visitor, Mrs. Millard Chase, who is enroute to Minneapolis, Minn., from her sister's home in Miami.

The table was beautifully appointed, having large square baskets of spring flowers. Silver candlesticks held pink tapers and the place cards were dainty girls holding pink fans.

Mrs. Chase has been quite a feted guest for a week, being entertained with luncheons, teas and a box party at the Atlanta.

The guests included Mrs. Milliard Chase, Mrs. Harold Cooledge, Mrs. George A. Wright, Mrs. Walter Ballard, Mrs. A. W. Malone, Mrs. E. D. Canfield, Mrs. R. M. Calloway, Mrs. W. L. Champion, Mrs Chas. A. Davis, Mrs. Fred Stone, Mrs. C. Love, Mrs. W. S. Rogers, Mrs. John Sibley, Mrs. F. W. Stokes, Mrs. I. Y. Sage, Mrs. J. T. Williams, Mrs. Willis Howard, Mrs. E. D. Crawford, Mrs. W. H. Brittain and Mrs. H. H. McCall.

STOMACH GAS

Don't waste time taking tablets, pills or powders for gas on the stomach when simple buckthorn bark, glycerine, etc., as mixed in Adlerika, helps any case in TEN MINUTES. And in two hours a complete cleansing of BOTH upper and lower bowel takes place, removing foul matter, which poisoned system for months.

It is astonishing the great amount of poisonous matter Adlerika draws from the alimentary canal—matter you never thought was in your system. It brings out all gases, immediately relieving pressure on the heart.

No matter what you have tried or how long you have suffered, Adlerika is so wonderful in its QUICK action that you will be delighted. There is no long waiting, for in ten minutes gases are expelled and in two hours a complete cleansing action takes place. It is excellent to guard against appendicitis. By all leading druggists. —(adv.)

CORNS

Lift Off—No Pain!

Doesn't hurt one bit! Drop a little "Freezone" on a naching corn, instantly that corn stops hurting, then shortly you lift it right off with fingers.

Your druggist sells a tiny bottle of "Freezone" for a few cents, sufficient to remove every hard corn, soft corn, or corn between the toes, and the foot calluses, without soreness or irritation.—(adv.)

MAKES FAT PEOPLE SLIM!

Mrs. Arthur Harris To Entertain Leaders of Federated Women

Mrs. T. T. Stevens, president of the Atlanta Federation of Women's Clubs, and the executive board will be the guests at a large and beautiful buffet luncheon to be given by Mrs. Arthur Harris at her home, 1115 Ponce de Leon avenue, on Tuesday, May 6. Nearly two hundred leading club women will be entertained by Mrs. Harris on this occasion, and a number of distinguished club leaders from out of town will be special guests. Mrs. Archibald P. Brantley, president of the Georgia federation will be of particular note, and her presence will add further interest to the gathering.

Preceding the luncheon there will be a business session of the executive board of the federation, all the members of which are asked to convene at Mrs. Harris' home promptly at 10.30 o'clock.

Mrs. Stevens requests everyone expecting to present resolutions to send typed copies in triplicate to Mrs. Spencer Atkinson, chairman of resolutions, on Monday. No resolution will be considered which does not comply with these rules of the federation. Send resolution to Mrs. Atkinson, 618 Piedmont avenue, by Monday evening.

Included in those who will attend the meeting will be the officers, chairmen and the presidents of member clubs, 112 in number. Club presidents will present special features of club work, but no reports will be made.

A feature of the meeting will be the announcement by Mrs. H. M. Nichols of the completion of the shelter which has been provided at the car stop at Hospital No. 48. Mrs. Nichols' accomplishment in the interests of the ex-service men at the hospital is one of the outstanding features of the year's record and the imperishable stone of which it is built is no more imperishable than the good work which Mrs. Nichols has carried through.

Mrs. Samuel Inman, director for Georgia in the general federation, will address the guests on the subject of the Georgia delegation's plans for attending the biennnial in Los Angeles.

Chairmen of the board include Mrs. Samuel Inman, Mrs. Albert Thornton, Mrs. W. A. Parker, Mrs. Sprole Lyons, Mrs. Frank Woodruff, Mrs. B. M. Boykin, Mrs. Blair F[illegible], Mrs. Lott Warre[illegible], Mrs. Howard A[illegible] Call, Mrs. W. B. Price-Smith, Mrs. H. M. Nicholes, Mrs. T. J. Akridge, Mrs. Carl Dick, Mrs. W. D. Burke, Mrs. J. Jones, Mrs. Victor Kriegshaber, Mrs Bun Wylie, Mrs. Bolling Jones, Miss Tommie Dora Barker, Miss Hattie Rainwater, Miss Alice Baxter, Dr. Blanche Loveridge. Specially invited to attend the luncheon are Mrs. Archibald P. Brantley, president of the state federation; Mrs. McCord Roberts, chairman of press and publicity for the state; Mrs. Rix Stafford, Mrs. Edward Van Winkle, Mrs. W. C. Jarnagin.

The Atlanta federation officers are Mrs. T. T. Stevens, president; Mrs. Alfred Newell, first vice president; Mrs. R. K. Rambo, second vice president; Mrs. Arthur Harris, recording secretary; Mrs. Eugene Harrington, corresponding secretary; Mrs. R. Frank McCormack, treasurer; Mrs. Willis Ragan, auditor; Miss Rosa Woodberry, parliamentarian.

Miss Elizabeth Spalding Will Be Uncle Remus Festival Queen

Miss Elizabeth Spalding, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Spalding, and granddaughter of Dr. and Mrs. E. L. Connally, pioneer citizens of Atlanta, has been chosen queen of the Uncle Remus carnival to be staged the latter part of May at the Wren's Nest in West End.

For a number of years, in fact, since the passing of our beloved "Uncle Remus," all Atlanta has looked forward to the annual festival held at the Wren's Nest with a great deal of delight. Children begin dreaming dreams of fairies and flowers, pleading to be one of the many privileged to dance before the queen, twine the May pole or anything—just to be "in it" and pay tribute to "Uncle Remus." The queen reigns only for one year, then another, seemingly touched by some magic wand, springs up to wear the crown. No prettier or daintier has ever been chosen than little Miss Spalding, granddaughter of Dr. and Mrs. E. L. Connally. To make her all the more quaint and attractive, her royal robe is a facsimile of the one worn by her great aunt, Miss Sallie Eugenia Brown, at her grandmother's wedding. Date and further arrangements will be announced later.

Miss Spalding succeeds Miss Isabelle Montgomery, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Brevard Montgomery, who was crowned queen of the 1923 May festival.

Mrs. R. Taylor Connally has been elected publicity chairman for the Uncle Remus Memorial association, the office having been so long and ably filled by the late Mrs. Lollie Belle Wylie.

Atlanta Music Club Presents Charles Sheldon in Recital

Despite the fact that the Atlanta Music club season is fast drawing to a close, the program last Wednesday morning given by Charles A. Sheldon, organist, and Mrs. James H. Whitten, mezzo-soprano, aroused fresh enthusiasm. It was a period rich in novelty and musical substance. Framed in the exquisite setting of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Candler's magnificent home, decorated with quantities of Easter lilies from their own green houses and greeted by a capacity audience, the popular musicians could but do their best.

Mr. Sheldon opened the program with a most interesting interpretation of the toccata and fugue in D minor by Bach, followed by "Chant de Bonheur," by Lemare, a splendid example of cantabile, serving to display the lovely solo stops of the organ and the fantasie in G minor by Bach. Next Bonnet's Duo-Art record was played, followed by Mr. Sheldon's repetition, which was interesting on account of contrast in French and American interpretation. The second group consisted of "Life," by Curran, and the familiar and beloved "Spirit Flower," by Campbell Tipton, by Mrs. Whitten, disclosing a voice of great power and fine quality. She sings with the authority of a veteran professional and possesses great range, enabling her to sing soprano arias, which she later proved in her convincing rendition of the famous "Vissi d'Arte," from Tosca. Following this she sang "The Lamp of Love," by Salter, giving as an encore "The Market," by Carew.

Mr. Sheldon was given an individual ovation after the playing of his own melodious minuet, being recalled with much enthusiasm. His other numbers were "Liebstad," from Tristan, and "Isolde" (transcription by Gibson) and the "Messa de Mariage" by DuBois, which he delivered with authority and dramatic effect.

Macon Country Club Holds Spring Meeting.

The Macon County Federation of Women's Clubs was entertained by the clubs of Montezuma at the Woman's Club house in April.

The president, Mrs. J. A. Happ, presided. The other officers of the county federation are Mrs. Love Felton, of Ideal, vice president; Mrs. Harold McCrory, of Oglethorpe, secretary, and Mrs. Bob Stubbs, of Cut Off, treasurer. Mrs. Oscar McKenzie, president of the Woman's club extended a gracious welcome to the visitors and Mrs. J. A. Ansley responded for the federation. The federation comprises six clubs, Oglethorpe, Ideal, Cut Off, Marshallville, the Woman's club and Music Lover's club of Montezuma. cFr several years an attractive feature of the county federation work has been a flower show in the fall, and upon motion by Mrs. Ulmer it was voted to have one this year.

Professor J. P. Nelson, county school superintendent, delivered an interesting address on "The Value of the School Survey," and Mrs. J. E. Hays, secretary of the general federation, discussed in a delightful manner the general federation convention to be held in Los Angeles in June.

Reports from the various departments were: "Citizenship," Mrs. J. A. Ansley; "Civics," Mrs. Hirschburg; "Good Roads," Mrs. Artie Merritt; "Applied Education," Mrs. F. L. Perry; "School and Home Improvements," Mrs. S. S. Cheves; "Country Life," Mrs. Ernest Coker; "Natural Resources," Mrs. George Wicker; "Fine Arts," Mrs. L. C. Cheves; "Public Welfare," Mrs. Jere Moore; "Child Welfare," Mrs. C. C. Maffett.

An invitation to hold the October meeting with the Parent-Teacher association of Oglethorpe was accepted.

Mercer Institute.

Mrs. H. D. Russell is authority for the statement that among the attractions planned for Mercer University institute are:

A luncheon for each day of the institute with interesting programs of music and talks. June 16, Woman's Club day, Mrs. A. P. rBantley will preside. On June 17, Child Welfare day, Mrs. Howard McCall will preside, and on June 20, Recreation day, Mrs. W. M. Lamar will preside.

Special evening programs, lectures and musical festivals have been planned for each evening that will be of vital interest to all federated women in the state. One full evening is given to the State Federation of Women's Clubs, June 19, and Superintendent Lawton B. Evans, of Augusta, will speak on "The Paradise of Childhood." He will be introduced by Mrs. A. H. Bresnes. There will be two garden parties, June 20 and 27, given in honor of the district presidents of the federation.

News Notes From Lucy Cobb.

Miss Jennie Smith, art teacher, chaperoned the life study class to Winder to demonstrate before the Winder Woman's club on Wednesday.

The students attended an interesting celebration of William Shakespeare's birthday on April 23 at the Mell auditorium.

Miss Mildred Rutherford's lecture this week was on "Georgia," a continuation of the week before.

Friday evening the third year academy girls entertained the seniors with a country barn dance. Fortunes were told. The proceeds were given to the annual.

Saturday the entire study body participated in the celebration of Memorial day at the Octagon.

Saturday evening the fourth year academy girls entertained the seniors with a straw ride. They were taken in a large truck to the Elks' camp, about three miles from Athens. Wieners and marshmallows were toasted around bonfires. A picnic supper was served, after which the girls danced and gave stunts in which the chaperons took part. Souvenirs in the form of decorated lollypops and horns were given.

On Monday afternoon a number of the girls attended the second series of the Yale educational pictures brought to Athens under the auspices of the University of Georgia and the Normal school.

Monday evening Mrs. Edith Adams Stewart gave her first reading, a modern play, "Will Shakespeare," by Clemence Dane. Tuesday afternoon she gave a second reading, "Pelleas and Melisande," by Maeterlinck. Mrs. Stewart reads with a great deal of charm and her interpretations of the characters of her readings were vividly portrayed. These readings complete the lecture course for the year. Mrs. Stewart is the founder of the Little theater in Milwaukee and has just returned from New York, where she has given a series of readings at the Plaza hotel.

BARNESVILLE VOTES $30,000 BOND ISSUE

Barnesville, Ga., May 3.—(Special.)—The $30,000 bond issue carried overwhelmingly in the election here Wednesday, the votes going far beyond the two-thirds which were necessary. There was no active opposition.

The sum of $20,000 will be used in extending the water works system, $7,000 for enlargement of the sewerage system and $3,000 for fire department equipment.

French Countess Addresses Gold Star Mothers

The Atlanta chapter of the Service Star legion held its regular meeting at 3 o'clock Friday at Edison hall. There was a large attendance attracted particularly by the fact that the May meeting each year is dedicated to the Gold Star mothers. Mrs. Marcus Beck presided. A musical program was given by Mr. James H Whitten, vocalist, accompanied by Mrs. Charles Chambers at the piano, and Wallace Jackson, violinist of the Howard orchestra. An address on the work of caring for the graves of the Americans who died in France and of the efforts made to insure the identity of the boys was given by the Countess Constance Hilyer DeCaen of Paris. Miss Marian Van Dyke, secretary of the local chapter of the Red Cross, described the work of the Y. M. C. A. entertainment corps and canteen work in Nice.

The work of the countess was on a tremendous scale. Through the use of her influence she organized bodies of French women who worked to make the life of the A. E. F. as comfortable as possible and to maintain communication between them and their families in America. An especially favorable phase of this work was the listing of the service men as they started toward the front and a careful checking of those who returned, thus assisting in the establishment of definite information as to the fate of those who failed to return.

Mrs. Sam D. Jones, president of the local chapter of the War Mothers, was present for the first time in some months, having been absent because of illness. By way of greeting, after her long absence a bouquet of white carnations and red roses—the national colors of the organization—was presented to her.

Mr. Roan has recently come to Griffin to reside and is a member of the new firm of Green & Roan.

Mr. and Mrs. Roan will be at home in Griffin after their return from their wedding trip.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Barrett have returned to their home in Atlanta after a visit to Mr. and Mrs. Bartlett Searcy.

A Rose-Growing Community in Texas

A Little Journey to the Homes of Friends of CARDUI

SIXTY-FIVE thousand dollars' worth of roses! That is the estimated value of the rose plants shipped last year from Smith County, Texas, where a lady representative of The Chattanooga Medicine Co., manufacturers of Cardui, the Woman's Tonic, came upon a big community of people who grow roses for the northern florists and nurseries.

Her story of her visit to the rose-growers follows:

ONE MAY FIND so many different and profitable industries in the great state of Texas, yet the very idea of hundreds of acres being devoted to roses struck me as unique, so I spent a few days with these industrious people. To my surprise, I learned that the rose-growing industry of Smith County dated back to the year 1852, when Matthew Shamburger, living near Tyler, started an enterprise absolutely new to that part of the country.

He had noticed great numbers of wild Cherokee roses throughout the neighborhood, and concluded that the climatic conditions and sandy soil there must be just right for rose culture. An experiment proved his theory. So, three-quarters of a century ago, he founded a rose nursery that has grown and influenced the locality's development until now it is the leading rose-growing spot of the South. Nine carloads of 2-year-old rose plants were picked up last year at one railroad siding in the county-seat town, Tyler, and carload shipments were made from other towns nearby.

THE ROSE-GROWING PROCESS

I WAS TOLD that the leading rose-grower there today is Mr. M. S. Shamburger, a grandson of the first Matthew, and I therefore called on him, and his wife, and interviewed them on rose culture and the industry in Smith County in particular.

The process is a long one, they explained,—two years going by between the first planting and the time the bushes finally are shipped away to florists. The fields first must be fertilized thoroughly and then roses are planted, about 20,000 to the acre. In the fall, about 15,000 good plants remain, and these are then budded.

Budding is the most tedious, painstaking task of all, but at last it is completed and the new buds are carefully wrapped with thongs of corn husks for the winter. When spring comes, the wrappings are removed and the buds begin to grow. Finally, in the second autumn, the bushes are taken out, roots and all, wrapped in straw and tied in bundles and bales, and shipped to market. The bushes bring the grower an average of about 12½ cents each. Two hundred and seventy thousand plants were shipped from Tyler, last year, and almost as many from the rest of the county. A rose buyer from a northern nursery was quoted by Mrs. Shamburger as saying that he regarded Texas roses as superior to roses grown anywhere else in the United States. The plants, on reaching the florists, are placed in cellar storage during the winter and are set out in the spring, when, with their two-year-old root systems already developed, they soon bloom profusely.

Mrs. Shamburger herself is skilled in rose culture and assists her husband by looking after the disposition of cut flowers—the "by-products" of the rose-growing industry. She says they find the "Radiance" the most popular rose, and the next in demand is the "American Beauty" and "Paul Miron." Mr. and Mrs. M. S. Shamburger have four sons, all now growing roses, two for themselves and two assisting their father. I was told that several of their neighbors' sons took up rose culture on seeing the big checks the young Shamburgers get for their roses.

MRS. SHAMBURGER'S EXPERIENCE

I ASKED Mrs. Shamburger if she had known of Cardui, the Woman's Tonic, having been used in the rose-growing community. "Why, I've taken the medicine," she replied, and then she dictated and signed the following statement, which she said I could publish for other women's benefit:

"Cardui is a splendid tonic. I took it first when I was a girl. I was weakly and thin—had no strength and was not able to do much. Upon the advice of my friends, I got Cardui and took it. It did me worlds of good.

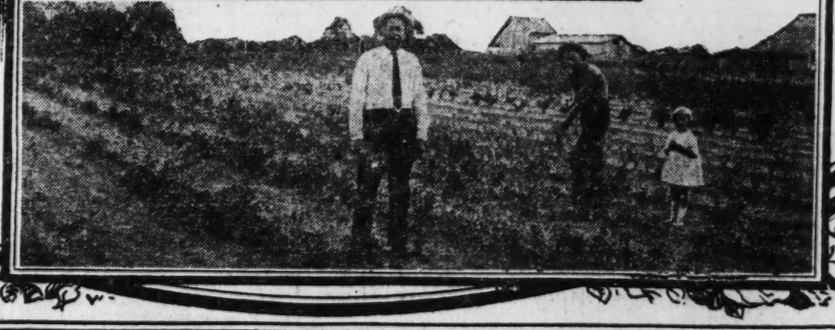

"After I married," continued Mrs. Shamburger, "I got very low in health and needed a tonic to build me up. Having taken Cardui before with such good results, I decided to take it again. I took several bottles, and in a short time I was feeling fine. It seemed to build me up and to give me strength. . . .

"I have taken Cardui at several different times since then, and it always has done me good. I take it for a tonic to build me up. I am in good health now."

Cultivating Roses in Smith County Texas

CARDUI The Woman's Tonic

You'll Get Rid of Blackheads Sure

There is one simple, safe and sure way that never fails to get rid of blackheads, that is to dissolve them.

To do this get two ounces of calonite powder from any drug store—sprinkle a little on a hot, wet cloth—rub over the blackheads briskly—wash the parts and you will be surprised how the blackheads have disappeared. Big blackheads, little blackheads, no matter where they are, simply dissolve and disappear. Blackheads are a mixture of dust and dirt and secretions that form in the pores of the skin. The calonite powder and the water dissolve the blackheads so they wash right out, leaving the pores free and clean and in their natural condition.—(adv.)

Baptist Missionary Union to Meet.

On May 13 to 20 the Woman's Missionary union, auxiliary to the Southern Baptist convention, will convene in Atlanta as guests of the W. M. U. of the Atlanta association. This great and broad-visioned organization will find a warm welcome not only from Baptist women, but from the "missionary-minded" women of all the churches in our city. Here will be gathered messengers from the seventen states and the District of Columbia, which affiliate with the Southern Baptist convention, representing the largest Baptist missionary organization in the world.

When the Woman's Missionary union was organized in 1888 in Richmond, Va., its distinct position was defined as "auxiliary" and as such, it has existed throughout the years of its noteworthy service. The zeal and wisdom of the small group of women who effected the organization has long ago been fully established. Previous to 1888 there were no women representatives sent from the churches to the Southern Baptist convention, and there was no general organization through which the women of the churches could find direct expression. But women had "a mind to work" and they organized with the sole purpose of "stimulating a missionary spirit and the grace of giving among the women and young people of the churches and to aid in collecting funds for missionary purposes to be dispersed by the boards of the Southern Baptist convention."

Later the "Margaret fund" was made possible in its beginning by the liberal gift of an Alabama woman for the purpose of educating missionaries' children and the training school in Louisville, Ky., was founded by the W. M. U. These special objects are the property of the union, and are maintained by the gifts of the women, and all moneys given for these objects are disbursed by their respective boards.

All moneys contributed by Baptist women and young people for home and foreign missions are handled and disbursed by the home and foreign boards of the convention. The W. M. U. cooperates fully with these great boards, but the union appoints no missionaries and supervises no work on the home or foreign fields.

A graded system of societies is prominently stressed by the union and it is upon the W. S. M. or the "mother society" that the responsibility rests of organizing and fostering the young people into auxiliaries, known as Y. W. A.'s, G. A.'s, Sunbeams and Royal Ambassadors.

It is worthy of mention that a few years ago the home and foreign boards so changed their constitutions as to make women eligible to be appointed members of the Southern Baptist convention boards—Mrs. George Westmoreland and Mrs. W. P. Anderson are the Atlanta women who represent now the women of the south on the home board, located in Atlanta.

The Woman's Missionary union is about to close its 36th year of wonderful growth and service. Its annual meeting will be held in the Baptist tabernacle, beginning the evening of May 13 in a great missionary mass meeting with Dr. Geo. W. Truitt, of Dallas, Tex., and Dr. W. O. Carver, of Louisville, Ky., as the speakers. Mrs. W. C. James, of Birmingham, Ala., president of the union, will preside at all sessions. Mrs. W. H. Hartman, superintendent of the W. M. U. of the Atlanta association, who has had the appointment of all committees on arrangements, has placed "honor where honor is due," on Mrs. W. Harvey Clarke, who will make the welcome address on the occasion of the first evening's program.

MRS. J. W. WILLS.

Mrs. H. H. Hale's Work in China.

It was during the presidency of Mrs. H. H. Hale in 1910 that the women of the Ponce de Leon Baptist church were inspired to send a missionary to China. After confering with Dr. R. J. Willingham, corresponding secretary of the foreign board, Miss Catherine Bryan was chosen to go to Shanghai, China. Miss Bryan was born in China, thoroughly conversant with the language and familiar with the customs and traditions of this ancient race; she has also had a course at Hollins institute, Virginia, and Meredith college, North Carolina.

The report she makes of her success among the young people in China moved the noble women of the missionary society, of which Mrs. Powers Pace is president, to present her with a car that would greatly facilitate her work.

When this reached the ears of the brethren they felt they could not allow this consecrated young woman to return to her field of labor without a mark of their appreciation in a generous donation towards the purchase of the car and with their usual far-sighted judgment covered also the expense of keeping it.

Holy Trinity Episcopal Church.

On each Tuesday evening during the Lenten season our congregations enjoyed listening to instructive and most helpful sermons by the different clergymen of our churches in Atlanta.

Since the last issue of the Record it has been our privilege to enjoy splendid sermons by Rev. C. P. Wilcox, Rev. W. W. Memminger and Rev. Horace Chase. On the last Tuesday we heard with intense interest a most impressive discourse by Dean Johnson.

The woman's auxiliary made their spring missionary box an Easter box, adding to the clothing, both new and old, a special Easter gift and card to Mrs. McDonald, the missionary in charge of Epiphany mission, Sherwood, Tenn.

Our mission study class was successfully conducted by Mrs. R. B. Cheek and the study of creative forces in Japan was finished. Her pupils found the study most interesting and attended the class with unabated zeal. At the last meeting on April 14 a small souvenir of Japan was presented to Mrs. Cheek in appreciation of her valued assistance and regular attendance. Plans were suggested for the continuance of the study class through the year.

The guild meets twice a month and as we have many new and helpful members our president feels the encouragement that comes with additional assistance.

A social service committee was organized March 23. Letters were sent to all members of the parish asking for donations of old clothes, groceries, fuel or money where needed. About thirty replies were received. Communications were sent to the local Red Cross secretary as well as to charity organization society, offering help when families were in need. The first call came from the Red Cross to equip a young girl to go to the State Tuberculosis sanitarium with the help of St. Agnes guild at Agnes Scott college—this was done in a very short time. Two families have been given to the committee to watch out for and help.

The Y. P. S. league gathered together enough boys' clothes to equip the boys in the two families. This league met on the evening of the 21st with Mrs. Eugene Hicks. After the opening prayer and hymn refreshments were served by the hostess, then an interesting program was enjoyed.

The C. P. C. of Holy Trinity reports: Current periodicals sent regularly, 32; contributors or odd magazines, 5; New Testament to state sanitarium, 1; new subscription to Spirit of Missions, 1; medicali, 1; secular books to Japan, 32; double post cards sent by Y. P. S. L., 160; odd magazines, 100; to Sewanee library fund, $3; postage on Japan books, $2.30.

Briefly Told

North Atlanta District Meeting.

Mrs. Frank Allee, secretary of the north Atlanta district, held a most interesting workers' conference at Wesley Memorial church on April 30 and May 1.

Each department of the work under the W. M. S. was featured in the program. Many posters adorned the walls proclaiming the need for publicity, for study, for better organization and for greater zeal.

North Atlanta will specialize this year in children's and young people's work and in increase of number of auxiliaries. Watch us grow!

Mission Study at St. Mark's.

The W. M. S. of St. Mark's Methodist church announces an all-day mission study class for next Monday, May 5. Mrs. C. A. Holzendorf, who is superintendent of study, has arranged an unusually attractive program diversified by musical numbers, posters and discussions. The subject for study is "The Child and America's Future." All interested are invited to attend.

South Atlanta District.

Mrs. John C. White, secretary of the south Atlanta district of the W. M. S. of the M. E. Church South, announces that three new auxiliaries have been formed in her district since the first of March.

On March 3 at Wesley chapel a Young People's Missionary society was organized with Miss Ethel Bryant as president.

On April 12 at Union church, Stockbridge circuit, a Woman's Missionary society was organized with Mrs. R. S. Sims as president.

On April 27 at Flippen, a Woman's Missionary society was organized with Mrs. J. F. Mosley as president, and an auxiliary has been formed at Stockbridge with Mrs. Charles Pless as president.

Mrs. White will hold her annual district meeting on May 6 and 7, at St. Paul's church, on Grant street. Thirty-seven active auxiliaries comprise this district and a large attendance is anticipated.

Messages from the annual conference at Griffin and from the council meeting at Tampa, Fla., will be brought to the district by officers who attended these two important meetings.

Prominent Visitors.

Prominent among the women who attend the W. M. U. meetings of the S. B. C. will be Mrs. W. J. Neel, of Cartersville, president of the W. M. U. of Georgia, and Mrs. J. C. Lanier, of West Point, the state vice president.

Mrs. Neel and Mrs. W. C. James, president of the Southern union, were the only ladies who were in the party that visited our new European missions in the Balkan states, after attending the Baptist World Alliance last summer.

Mrs. Walker's Tribute.

It is eminently fitting that Mrs. Clifford Walker should pay a tribute to Mrs. W. Harvey Clarke, whose family group appears today on the federated church page. Mrs. Walker and Mrs. Clarke have been friends from early girlhood and received their college training at the same time at Cox college, College Park, Ga.

Prominent Visitors.

It will be interesting to the many friends of Mrs. Victor I. Masters, of Louisville, Ky., and Mrs. Austin Crouch, of Murfreesboro, Tenn., to know that they will be in the city in attendance upon the meetings of the Southern Baptist convention. Both Mrs. Masters and Mrs. Crouch, when residents of Atlanta, were prominent members of the executive board of the W. M. U. of the Atlanta association.

Missionary Meeting.

The Ingleside Woman's Missionary society held its April meeting in the hospitable home of Mrs. J. E. Pounds, where an unusual number of members were present. The president, Mrs. E. T. Farrar, presided and gave cordial greetings to Mrs. J. L. Turner, secretary of the third district; Mrs. P. E. Warnock, personal service chairman, and Mrs. J. W. Wells, mission study chairman, all of whom made short talks.

Missionary Union Year Closes.

On April 30 the Georgia W. M. U. books for the year closed with receipts amounting to $244,910.70. Much yet is left to be done before the campaign year closes December 1, 1924. The balance to be paid on the pledges made in 1919, amounts to $763,889.30. Much interest is being manifested in the completion of these pledges.

LAURA LEE PATRICK,
Secretary-Treasurer.

News From Oxford And Covington.

Covington and Oxford have been enjoying many spiritual feasts in the past weeks.

Dr. W. H. Laprade, assisted by Dr. Charles Lane, has just finished revival services in Oxford which carried a spiritual force like the days of the pentencostal blessings. The meeting was a great incentive to the citizens and the whole student body of Emory university was brought in close touch with the saving power of our Lord and Master.

On March 30, the Billy Sunday class of Atlanta occupied every pulpit in Covington, holding services at morning, afternoon and night. The power that these great men carry with them in these services cannot be told in words. Men who hear them, as they tell what Christ means to them in the busy walks of their daily lives, are made to listen to their magical words and ponder well their meaning. The visit of these workers for Christ marked a great religious awakening in our city.

The Presbyterian church, with Rev. S. M. Hay as pastor, has had two periods of spiritual blessings in the last few weeks. Dr. Robert L. King, a noted evangelist of the Presbyterian church, conducted a very powerful revival which increased in interest every service. The singing was led by Walter Buhler, and the large congregations at every service plainly told of the interest of our people in these services. Many members were added to all the churches in town, as a result of these esrvices.

On April 7, 8 and 9 the women's missionary societies of the Atlanta Presbytery held their conference here. There was a very large representation from the different auxiliaries and the sessions were most instructive and interesting.

Dr. McMillan from Atlanta and Rev. Mr. Bedinger, a mission worker in the Congo States of Africa, gave very inspirational addresses during the conference. Miss Rebecca Brown, a worker in the home mission fields of north Georgia, touched every heart with her wonderful story of her work in this section.

Rev. A. M. Tumlin, pastor of the First Methodist church, began revival services in this church on April 13. Dr. Tumlin and Mrs. Tumlin, who came to this church from Decatur last November, have endeared themselves to every one by their gentle and sympathetic manners as they go in and out among their people.

MRS. W. C. CLARK.

Missionary Institute At Moultrie.

The Baptist women of Moultrie had for many weeks planned and prayed that this might be the greatest institute—the tenth—ever held in southwest Georgia.

The division was highly favored by having so many and so excellent speakers, Mrs. W. C. James, Miss Emma Leachman, Miss Laura Lee Patrick, Miss Catherine Bryan, of Shanghai, China; Miss Julia Allen and Louie Newton.

The institute was largely attended. Fifteen associations were represented and almost all superintendents were present. The preachers of this section were very much in evidence, and were kind in their expressions of enjoyment and of their appreciation of the splendid work done by the women.

There were some notable features, and mountain top experiences in this meeting. Miss Catherine Bryan took all hearts to China as she showed by stereopticon and her attending address the myriads of Chinese children waiting for the Christian world to bring them Christ, for these are the ones who will make "New China."

Miss Leachman brought in a most vivid way the problems of home mission work, and made the facts she gave live in the heart of every hearer.

On Wednesday afternoon an automobile trip was planned for visitors to drive over the beautiful Coiquitt county road to Norman Park and visit our own south Georgia Baptist school, Norman institute.

The cordial greeting from the president and his wife, inspection of buildings and then the half hour spent in the auditorium where Miss Bryan made it truly a perfect day.

The needs of our association were laid on the hearts of the women and they responded heartily by voting to send a worker there, one with a true missionary spirit, to do some helpful and constructive work.

On the last evening after Mrs. James had made her address Miss Patrick led in a short consecration and dedication service, and one young girl gave her life in definite service for the Lord.

These two notable facts alone made the institute, indeed, worth while, and everyone went home in the hope of going next spring to the pretty town of Bainbridge to enjoy another institute.

Services Held At Penitentiary.

Through the earnest effort of Mrs J. E. Clover and other Daughters of the King, an arrangement was made whereby twenty-seven men were given the first opportunity in a number of years to receive the holy communion Easter morning.

Rev. R. E. Bentley conducted the service for which a beautiful improvised altar had been arranged. This was decorated with lovely Ascension lilies, the gifts of Mrs. Pettigrew and Mrs. Harrison, Miss Mattie Williams and Mrs. Cobb.

The service met a response of deep appreciation as has already been expressed in letters received by several of those who partook of the Blessed Sacrament.

Episcopal Church Notes in Georgia.

Three Episcopal church schools in Savannah celebrated Easter in pageantry at the annual festivals Easter afternoon. "Prepare Ye the Way, or "The Easter Messenger," was the title of the Christ church pageant, and it showed in an impressive way the lessons studied during Lent, as it brought out the seasons and colors leading up to the resurrection season. At St. John's church "An Easter Pilgrimage" was made during the festival by representatives of each department to the symbols in the chancel, the congregation taking part in a service of worship. St. Paul's Church school had its pageant on the lawn by the church, and was given by the members of the Young People's Service league.

In St. Paul's church, Savannah, Rev. S. B. McGlohon, rector, the Church School Service league has an organized choir of thirty boys and girls who sang at the children's Lenten service every Wednesday afternoon. The members of the league studied "The Honorable Japanese Fan" during Lent, and made the palmetto crosses distributed to the congregation on Palm Sunday. Easter Monday an Easter egg hunt was held, and the proceeds given to the rector for his parish charity fund.

The church attendance campaign at Christ church, Rev. David Cady Wright, rector, Savannah, Ga., ended on Palm Sunday the goal of 500 at the service of morning prayer, having been reached that day and for two Sundays previously. On the final Sunday the rector made a plea for cooperation in realizing his vision in the plans he has for parish development. At the fifth annual Easter sale of the church school the sum of $150 was realized for the children's Easter offering.

At Holy Trinity mission, Blakely, Ga., where there are twenty communicants, the members of the woman's auxiliary held a prayer service every Monday and Friday afternoons, conducted by one of the members. Prayer, alms-giving and fasting were emphasized, and to these were added the less familiar words as excellent Lenten monitions, "reality, definiteness and patience." During Holy week the vicar, the Rev. H. Scott-Smith, of St. John's college, Bainbridge, had service which was used for the first The members of the mission raised the necessary amount for a communion services on Monday and Good Friday, time on Easter day.

W. Harvey Clarke, Mrs. Harvey Clarke (Lucile Daniel), Harvey Clarke, Jr., Josephine T. Clarke, Jeremiah C. Clarke, Coleman D. Clarke, Lucile D. Clarke and Walter C. Clarke. Mr. and Mrs. Clarke, formerly of Atlanta, have spent over twenty years in Japan.

BY MRS. CLIFFORD WALKER.

In attempting an appreciation of a beautiful character I should hesitate at any time, but in beginning even this brief tribute to Lucile Daniel Clarke, I find myself putting down my pen immediately. The realization has come that hers is a personality difficult to catch upon paper or curb into form with words, for it is shot through and through with the spirit of the Lord Jesus Christ, and who can do that the smallest degree of justice.

There is much that could be said of girlhood experiences, but not just here. It will suffice that running back through years of personal knowledge, and feeling for the main current of her life. I know that it has been so full, so deep, so strong, so true in its main purpose, that the greatest of outside influences have never affected its course in the least.

I know the very day when a life of idle pleasure called, and well I know the hour when world ambition held its lure, and, harder far than all—when two great duties faced her side by side and the moment came when decision must be made between them. If these appeals had not touched her as I know they did, if they had not found but little response in her soul I would not refer to them as events, but they were more than that—they were crises themselves in her life and demanded strength of the highest order to deal with them as she did.

But, after all, what counts it but the end? Her love of the beautiful has given her power to appreciate and pass on to the world more of that beauty than could ever have been reflected in a selfish satisfaction. An ambition placed wholly at the service of her Master has been doubled and trebled by power divine into a far higher realization than her girlish dream could ever have embodied. And so the current of her life goes on, stronger, fuller and deeper with the passage of time, and still true to its purpose—the giving of itself—a blessing wherever it flows as it constantly enlarges its surface of reflection for the spirit of Him who came not to save Himself but others.

Women Must Play Big Part In Law Observance Work

Women of all denominations are cooperating in an effort to awaken the women all over the country to the importance of rendering allegiance to the constitution of our country and the observance of law. The Junior Chamber of Commerce here in Atlanta has recently sponsored a publicity campaign of one week in the interest of law and order. The need for such campaigns is realized by all thinking persons and the church women are happy to do their part in this educational work.

It is recognized that there has come into our great nation within the past few years, greatly increased during the disintegrating year of war, an increased spirit of lawlessness. We may account for this in many ways. One is the rapid growth of our great cities with large alien populations, people who have come with no real knowledge of our laws, or our principles, people who must be taught Americanism, for they have no knowledge of what it means; and freedom to them is license. These form the great body of law-breakers.

We are in peril not alone from ignorant non-citizens, but in far greater peril from willfully selfish citizens who have done nothing to stem the tide of lawlessness, but have encouraged it by attitude and words. There is an undercurrent of bolshevism on the part of powerful interests, abetted by lawless men and women who propose to obey only the laws that appeal to them or that protect their interests.

Cry of Individual Liberty.

There is danger also from the unthinking, unintelligent group who echo the cry of individual liberty, little realizing the menace of this theory to family and state.

President Coolidge has said: "The authority of the law is questioned in these days all too much. The binding obligation of obedience against personal desire is denied in many quarters. If these doctrines prevail all organized government, all liberty . . . are at an end."

The woman's national committee for law enforcement which has received previous notice on our Federated Church Women's Page has issued a booklet with the above caption as title—"Save America."

We give a few extracts from its pages, and recommend that all women's organizations, church, civic, patriotic or social use the programs suggested in this booklet and help to save our great country for the threatening dangers.

. . . Because the counteracting movement must begin in the home, in the school and in the community and work out into the state, women who have been anxiously watching the drift toward lawlessness in our country have seen the need for action, and have affiliated the great national organizations of women to concentrate for the year (1924) on education for enforcement of law. Among the organizations already affiliated are the Federation of Women's Foreign Mission Boards, the Council of Women for Home Missions, the Y. W. C. A., the King's Daughters, the Congress of Mothers and Parent-Teacher association and the Federation of Women's Clubs with other patriotic and educational groups. . . . But women must take this as seriously as they took the war—this battle for righteousness.

To Depend on Women.

An eminent legal authority, who has given much time to this question, said recently: "In this last great fight for law enforcement, which may be as difficult as the fight for prohibition, the decision will depend largely, perhaps wholly, on the attitude of American women. They must decide whether America shall go forward or backward; whether she shall win for righteousness or lose to the powers of darkness; whether she will remain a self-governed nation, or will yield to the insidious propaganda of disloyal politicians influenced by a large foreign group. . . .

Because of widespread ignorance, the national committee of law enforcement issues this booklet, "Save America," with illuminating articles, incontrovertible facts, with suggestions for using this material among individuals, in the press, through affiliated organizations, clubs, patriotic educational and church societies and in our public schools and colleges.

The booklet may be bought for 25 cents from the Lambert building, Nashville, Tenn.

In part four will be found complete programs for clubs, church organizations and discussion groups.—Methodist Editor.

Daughters of The King.

Members of St. Luke's and All Saints' chapters, Daughters of the King, accepted the suggestion of writing letters to patients in the government hospital at Oteen, N. C. These letters were received with much appreciation, some of the patients expressing a desire to know more about the order of the Daughters of the King.

Sixty beautiful and appropriate Easter cards were sent to the Episcopal inmates of the Federal prison by members of St. Luke's chapter.

An earnest appeal for books as well as magazines has come to All Saints' chapter from a prison in Alabama.

During the absence of Mrs. Edward G. Warner, president of the fourth province, who will sail in May for a long sojourn abroad, Miss Emma J. Hall, of Charlotte, N. C., will act as provincial president.

All Saints' chapter had charge of the service held at the Home for Incurables on the afternoon of Easter day.

The general assembly, Daughters of the King, will hold its meeting in St. Luke's church during the early part of May.

Mrs. William H. Allen, diocesan secretary, Daughters of the King, is being cordially welcomed after an absence of several months.

Miss Overton Honors Sorority.

Miss Martha Overton entertained the Chi Sigma Zeta sorority Wednesday afternoon.

The guests were Miss Dorothy Brooks, Miss Evelyn Barnett, Miss Mary Nell Wiley, Miss Eugenia Dodd, Miss Alma Haymore, Miss Rosé Carlyle, Miss Helen Coleman, Miss Frances Doughmon, Miss Mary Louise Reitz.

Nurse Stacey's Suggestions to Middle Aged Women

MRS. H. STACEY
COLLINSVILLE, ILLINOIS

A MOST trying period of a woman's life is that of middle age, fraught with danger to some extent, and invariably with most annoying symptoms, such as hot-flashes, smothering spells, nervous troubles, irregularities and fainting spells.

When a woman like Nurse Stacey after many years of caring for the sick writes a letter of praise for Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound like the following, it should influence other women who are passing through the Change of Life to try it.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a root and herb medicine especially adapted to act upon the feminine system. It helps nature to build up the weakened, nervous system, and enables women to pass this trying period with the least possible annoying symptoms.

Nurse Stacey's Letter Follows:

COLLINSVILLE, ILL.—"I could almost write a book in praise of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. In the first place my husband induced me to try it and I have continued taking it off and on for years. I have become a well woman from its use and am now taking it through the Change of Life just to be on the safe side. I first took it for backache and a weak condition of the whole system and I think it saved my life and my baby. She is now a mother and takes it herself and I think I can count as high as a hundred women I have recommended the Vegetable Compound to, as I am a practical nurse. Use my letter in any way you see fit for I will stand by what I write."—Mrs. H. STACEY, Collinsville, Illinois.

Another Woman's Similar Experience

"During the Change of Life I was always tired and weak, could hardly do my work and did not care to go anywhere or talk to people. After I began to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I noticed a change and before I had taken four bottles of it I felt like a new person. I can and always will recommend it in cases like mine."—Mrs. JOS. WANISH, 1315 S. 14th St., Manitowoc, Wisconsin.

Famous Painters and Sculptors To Attend Great Art Exhibition

Among the famous painters and sculptors who will attend the exhibition in person, according to Erwin S. Barrie, manager of the exhibition are:

Elliott Daingerfield, who is one of the most influencial and greatest of American painters today and was a life-long friend of the famous George Innes, and has written one of the most interesting books on Innes which has ever been published. Mr. Daingerfield is a southerner by birth, and has a large estate in North Carolina, and I am sure will be welcomed by the Atlantans.

F. Ballard Williams, who is one of the most distinguished of the academicians and aside from being a famous painter is a very likeable gentleman.

Henry R. Rittenberg A.N.A., who is one of our foremost American portrait painters—pupils of W. M. Chase, of New York, Ludwig Heterich in Munich. Member of fellowship P. A. F. A., Philadelphia A. C. Salma. C., secretray jury of selection, national academy of design. Also still-life painter.

Ivan Olinsky, a Russian by birth and one of our very best portrait painters will also be with us and we will bring a number of his decorative figure subjects with us. You, of course, know Mr. F. Luis Mora's works. He is one of the most individual of the American painters and is also very likable and has one of the most charming personalities among our membership of artists. We will have one of his portraits and several of his Spanish subjects.

Guy Wiggins, who is one of the most successful of our present day landscape painters, lives in Lyme, Conn., with a number of the other painters who make up this very noted colony.

Ossip Linde is a Russian by birth, but an American citizen for many years, and does the most stunning decorative paintings of the canals in Brugges and Venice. His works are rich and luscious in color value and have an exotic appeal similar to Turner and Moran. Mr. Linde has lived in Europe a great part of his life and has been very highly honored in Paris, having taken a gold medal at the Paris salon and having been honored by the president of France by being invited to his home.

Herbert Adams, who is the second American sculptor ever to be elected president of the National academy, is ex-president of the National Sculptor society; ex-member of the National Are commission; one of the directors of the Art Alliance of America; member of the Architectual league; creator of a great number of the most prominent memorial sculpture groups in this country, and the first American sculptor to produce polychrome colored marbles after the style of the old Greek.

Woman Painter.

Miss Violet Oakley. That the greater achievements in painting by our American women have a deep spiritual significance combined with supreme decorative value is best illustrated, no doubt, in Violet Oakley's inimitable stained glass windows, created both for churches and private homes and her great murals, comprising twenty-four panels, in the state capitol at Harrisburg, Pennsylvania. A portfolio of color reproductions of these heroic paintings with historical titles and notes, has been published by Miss Oakley as a monument to William Penn, and an attempt to epitomize his dream of a war-free world in which peace and love reign supreme. The work has been translated into several languages, and copies have been presented to our late president, to Mr. Taft, Mr. Wilson and to the league of nations.

George DeForest Brush, Mr. Barrie says, has joined our organization and has promised to give us one of his paintings to bring to Atlanta. George DeForest Brush is in a class by John Singer Sargent and unsurpassed by any other living artist. He was made member of the National academy in 1908 and has taken most of the important prizes offered throughout the United States. His work is distinguished by classical dignity and his subject matter is always idealistic in conception.

Mr. Barrie adds further:

"We have just secured from Earnest Ipson, Oliver Dennett Grover, George Elmer Browne, Jonas Lie an almost definite promise that they will come to Atlanta with us. Mr. Ipson was one of the two painters that were elected as members of the National academy this year, i. e. were made full fledged national academicians and he is one of our most distinguished portrait painters. Mr. Oliver Dennett Grover was an associate of Whistler and Duveneck in Florence and Venice and Munich, and is one of America's finest painters and undoubtedly the dean of Chicago painters. Mr. George Elmer Browne and Mr. Jonas Lie are so well known that little need is to be said, although being men of national reputation for many years."

Atlanta Sponsors.

Sponsors announced for the grand central art exhibition to be held at the Atlanta Biltmore from May 17 to 31 includes the following leaders in Atlanta's social and business world: Governor and Mrs. Clifford Walker, Hon. and Mrs. Walter A. Sims, Judge and Mrs. Samuel H. Sibley, Judge and Mrs. Price Gilbert, Major General and Mrs. David C. Shanks, Mr. and Mrs. Gutzon Borglum, Mr. and Mrs. Morris Brandon, Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Brantley, Dr. and Mrs. Phinizy Calhoun, Mr. and Mrs. J. Bulow Campbell, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Candler, Mr. and Mrs. William Candler, Mr. and Mrs. Hunt Chipley, Harry Stilwell Edwards, Dr. and Mrs. W. Mock Democratic Convention Is Held at Wesleyan

The Greater Wesleyan Glee club made its 1924 appearance in the college chapel on Wednesday evening at 8:15 o'clock. The proceeds from the concert went to the Greater Wesleyan fund. The club has recently returned from a successful tour of the state and it left Thursday for two performances in Atlanta and Barnesville.

A mock democratic national convention was held Saturday night in the Wesleyan auditorium. The convention was under the auspices of the history departments of Wesleyan college and Mercer university. The students from both the schools represented the delegates from the 48 states and the territories.

Misses Roline Trimble, East Point, Ga.; Mary Wilson, Covington, Tenn., and Mary Louise Collins, Moultrie, Ga., left last Saturday for New York to attend the national convention of the Y. W. C. A.

The first concert of the Wesleyan Conservatory orchestra was given in the college chapel April 25. The orchestra is under the direction of Miss Louise Titcomb, assisted by Mrs. Glenn Priest Maerz, violinist.

The Wesleyan class in journalism reported all the city news and wrote the headlines for the edition of The Macon Daily Telegraph of April 22. Last Thursday the class brought out the special Wesleyan edition of The Macon News.

Class officers for next year have been elected by the junior, sophomore and freshman classes. For president the juniors elected Miss Celeste Copelan, with Miss Pauline Carter as vice president; Miss Neva Barrow as treasurer, and Miss Zula Pierce as sergeant at arms. The sophomore officers are: Miss Dorothy Thomas, president; Miss Merrill McMichael, vice president; Miss Linda Lee McKibben, secretary and treasurer; Miss Virginia Crittenden, sergeant at arms. Miss Marie New will preside over the class of '27 with Miss Roberta Quillian as vice president; Miss Frances Davant, secretary and treasurer, and Miss Jean Askew, as sergeant at arms.

"A Midsummer Night's Dream" will be presented by the Wesleyan Dramatic club next Tuesday night, May 6. The proceeds will go to the Greater Wesleyan fund. The play will be given under the direction of Miss Anne Chenault Wallace, head of the department of oral English, and Miss Ernestine Grote, teacher of physical education. Mrs. Joseph Maerz, head of the musical conservatory, and Professor William S. Bailey, a member of the conservatory faculty, will have charge of the music.

The Palette and Brush club entertained with a Japanese tea last Tuesday afternoon in the art studio. Miss Mary Culler White, a missionary from China and a former student of Wesleyan, was a special guest and gave an interesting talk on Chinese and Japanese art.

Miss Sara Moon entertained the Atlanta club Saturday night in honor of the Misses Vivian Barre and Katherine Johnson, of Atlanta, who were guests at the college for the week-end.

Winning Auxiliary Team Will Enlist Lyric Star

Members of Miss L. Maria Mitchell's team in the American Legion auxiliary membership campaign will be guests of the auxiliary's executive board at a theater party at the Lyric theater Monday night when Miss Isabelle Lowe, one of the "recruits," is to be presented with membership in a formal ceremony on the Lyric stage.

Miss Anna B. Corley's team was second, Mrs. W. C. Elrod's third, Miss Ellen Lee Cobb's fourth and Miss Louis Stahl's fifth in the local competition.

Fifty new members had been secured up to Saturday, putting the total membership at 130.

The team headed by Miss Mitchell won the prize of theater tickets offered by the executive board for the most members secured up to Saturday, which membership is the basis for the local post's representation at the state convention. Five teams competed. Mrs. George W. Corley, post commander, announced the winner at a tea given to the entire membership Saturday afternoon.

Miss Lowe's enlistment Monday night will mark the opening of the second phase of the membership campaign when all five teams, working together, will be in competition with legion posts throughout the state for the loving cup offered by the state department of the legion and silver basket offered by the state department of the legion auxiliary.

Mrs. Alonzo Richardson, member of the auxiliary, is to present Miss Lowe with membership at the stage ceremony at the Lyric Monday night. Mrs. Richardson will be introduced to the audience by Major Fonville McWhorter, of the American Legion. The winning auxiliary team and other members of the legion and auxiliary will occupy the boxes, which will be lavishly decorated in the national colors, flags and legion banners.

Miss Lowe is qualified for membership in the legion through relationship to three prominent naval officers, who served during the World war, the closest of kin being Commander Robert V. Lowe, chief engineer of the Orient fleet during the war and now stationed at the Mare island base. Commander Lowe is Miss Lowe's elder brother. He was the donor of the magnificent Russian ermine wraps Miss Lowe has displayed on the stage. Another kinsman is Lieutenant Commander P. F. Foster, who commanded the submarine which sank the German U-65 during the World war. His brother is also a naval officer, Lieutenant F. Finley Foster.

Tallulah Falls Club Will Give Benefit Party

The Tallulah Falls club and Shorter College club will give a May party at Habersham hall Tuesday afternoon, May 6, at 3 o'clock. All kinds of games will be played and the respecfive hostesses at each table will bring their own games.

Mrs. W. W. Alexander is chairman of the education committee of the Woman's club.

Mrs. C. K. Ayer, chairman of the Tallulah Falls school committee; Mrs. Claude Shewmake, president of the Shorter College club, with the officers and members, will sponsor the affair. Fifty cents admission. Two dollars a table. Tickets can be secured from any one of the chairmen. The public is cordially invited.

DR. JAMES HOSIC WILL BE GUEST OF LOCAL TEACHERS

Dr. James Fleming Hosic, associate professor of education, in charge of extramural courses, Columbia university, will reach Atlanta early tonight and will be the guest of the Atlanta Public Teachers' association at a dinner at the Biltmore hotel. Dr. Hosic is en route from Savannah to New York, having been one of the speakers at a meeting of the Georgia Educational association, in Savannah, the latter part of the week.

Superintendent Willis A. Sutton, of the Atlanta school system, will take Dr. Hosic on a visit to high schools Monday morning, and at noon the distinguished educator will be the guest of the Hosic club for lunch at the Woman's club. Members of the board of education and the administration force of the public schools will also be guests.

At 2 o'clock Dr. Hosic will address a meeting of teachers at the Baptist tabernacle.

Scores of Atlanta teachers have taken special courses under Dr. Hosic during summer months in recent years, both at the University of California and at Columbia.

Andrew College Notes of Interest.

One of the largest social events of the year, the sophomore-senior banquet, is to be given Saturday evening at the Woman's club room. On the same evening of the following week the freshmen will entertain the juniors with a banquet. The seniors will be given another banquet on the night of May 17 by the college. A number of other social functions have been planned to take place before the end of school, which comes on the 19th of May.

The Easter vacation was recently observed by the college household. The holidays began Saturday at noon, April 19, and ended on the following Wednesday night.

Several important organizations have elected their officers for next year. The student government chose Miss Elizabeth Enecks to succeed Miss Rena McCormack as president. Other representatives from next year's senior class are Misses Miriam Riley and Eunice Glenn.

The Y. W. C. A. held an impressive installation service recently. The new officers are Miss Miriam Riley, president; Miss Dorothy James, vice president; Miss Elizabeth Enecks, devotional leader; Miss Eunice Glenn, secretary; Miss Elizabeth Little, chairman music committee; Miss Virginia McGregor, chairman poster committee; Miss Margaret Benns, chairman W. C. T. U. committee; Miss Lena McKemie, chairman social committee; Miss Louise Harden, chairman social service committee.

Miss Hazel Humber, of the class of '23, was the guest of friends at the college this week-end.

Misses Louise Humber and Frances Grier entertained a number of friends with a house party in Lumpkin. The guests were Misses Anile Butler, Elsie Daniels, Johnnie Bell Lanier and Willella Arthur.

Among those who attended opera were Misses Alma Blount, Katherine Thomas and Russel Hollinstead.

Miss Ruth Morgan, New York, head of the department of international cooperation to prevent war.

The following committee chairmen were named:

Mrs. James J. O'Connor, Washington, child welfare; Mrs. Harris Baldwin, Washington, living costs; Mrs. Anne Webster, New Mexico, social hygiene; Miss Esther Daunshee, Chicago, legal status of women; Miss Mollie May Carroll, Baltimore, women in industry, and Mrs. Walter Dubois Brookings, Washington, education.

Theater Guild To Present "Malvolio."

The next production of the Little Theater Guild will be "Malvolio" adapted from Shakespeare's "Twelfth Night" or "As You Will," under the direction of George Bush.

The cast is as follows: Malvolio, Joe Duckworth; Sir Toby, J. F. Gordy; Maria, Mrs. Roger A. Wilson; Oliva, Miss Ada Davis; Sir Andrew Ague-Cheek, George Bush; Fabian, to be selected; Feste, the Clown, Henry McLemore.

This play will be presented at Egleston hall. Definite date will be announced later.

Georgia State College News.

Valdosta, Ga., May 3.—While the program has not reached its final stage, it is announced that the annual senior play will, as usual, be the opening feature of the 1924 commencement activities at the Georgia State Woman's college at Valdosta.

"As You Like It" has been chosen by the senior class for their play this year, and rehearsals are enthusiastically under way. The group of characters around which this story revolves is taken by young women who are especially favored with the gift of depicting character and in the progress of the rehearsals the play is already attaining realistic intensity.

The cast of characters for the play was made some weeks ago and includes the following talented young women and their parts: The Duke, Miss Jewel Mitchell, of Brunswick; Duke Frederick, Miss Gertrude Sasser, of Cairo; Rosalind, Miss Mildred Williams, of Fargo; Orlando, Miss Martha Youngblood, of Savannah; Jacques, Miss Margaret LaFar, of Savannah; Oliver, Miss Catherine Wheeler, of Hopkins; LeBean, Miss Gertrude DeLay, of Rome; Charles, Miss Johannah Voight, Blackshear; Adam, Miss Frances Faries, of Savannah; Amiens, Miss Olin Bland, of Vidalia; William, Miss Edith Brinson, of Waycross; Touchstone, Miss Christine Meadows, of Tifton; Sylvius, Miss Grace Reese, of Preston; Corin, Miss Louise Poppell, of Jesup; Phoebe, Miss Evelyn Brown, of Valdosta; Audry, Miss Agnes Adams, Adel; Jacques de Bois, Essie Mae Clarke, Blakeley.

Foresters—Miss Edna Cockfield, Waycross; Miss Kathleen Gibb, Tifton; Miss Dahlia Baker, Atlanta; Miss Gertrude Anderson, Crawfordsville. Stage manager, Miss Lemuel Jay, of Statesboro; property manager, Miss Clarice Ivey, of Valdosta; costume manager, Miss Miriam McNair, of Whigham; advertising, Miss Daisy Geiger, Miss Mary Small, of Valdosta; music, Miss Anne Rankin, Blackshear; tickets, Miss Elizabeth Livingstone, Brunswick.

The current issue of The Pine Branch, the college magazine, is just from the press and is unquestionably the most interesting and entertaining of this year's numbers. Its subject matter is particularly cleverly handled, and is a keen insight into the mind and heart of the average college girl. Among the writers for the month include Miss Martha Youngblood, of Savannah, who contributed "To Bob or Not to Bob;" "Woodrow Wilson College," by Miss R. Carrin, of Tifton; "The Southern Moon," by Miss Evelyn Brown, of Valdosta; "A Fantasy," by Miss Lemuel Jay, of Statesboro; "The Clubhouse — a Prophecy," by Miss Eppie Robertson, of Nahunta; "After Reading Ode on a Grecian Urn," by Miss Miriam McNair, of Whigham; "Among Those Present," by Miss Evelyn Kendrick Brown, Valdosta.

The Sororian Literary society occupied the center of the stage of the Saturday evening activities, featuring an Irish program. The complete program included selections from Irish music by Miss Morris Whitworth, of Camilla; Irish reading by Miss Catherine Wheeler, of Hopkins; vocal solo, "My Wild Irish Rose," by Miss Olin Bland, of Vidalia. The program was concluded with a playlet, "The Workhouse Ward," with the following cast:

Michael Miskell, Miss Velma Sirmans, of DuPont; Mike McInerney, Miss Theresa Eckers, of San Mateo, Fla.; Mrs. Donohoe, Miss Ruth Mann, of Lyons.

Honors recently won by the students of the college include prizes offered by the Valdosta chapter U. D. C. for the best essay on the Stone mountain memorial. Miss Lucile McGregor, of Halcyondale, was awarded the first prize and Miss Ilah Mae Cromtrtie, of Boston, won the second prize. These two college students won above all other contestants in this city.

The vesper service Sunday evening was both impressive and beautiful under the direction of Miss Lemuel Jay, of Statesboro, the subject being "Some Women of the Bible."

Miss Edith Patterson entertained her library assistants at the tea room Friday evening. The guests were Miss Martha Youngblood and Miss Margaret LaFar, of Savannah, and Miss Essie Mae Clarke, of Blakely.

Miss Mary McLarty, of Augusta, has been visiting her sister, Miss Elizabeth McLarty.

Misses Martha and Helen Youngblood, of Savannah, have had as their guests this week their mother, Mrs. Fred R. Youngblood, of Savannah.

Miss Mary Newly, of Tifton, was the week-end guest of Miss Willie Mae Mathews, a student from Tifton.

Gordon Institute Plans To Rebuild Burned Dormitories

Barnesville, Ga., May 3.—(Special) Officials of Gordon institute expect to begin work on the new dormitories before the end of the present term to take the place of the dormitories recently burned.

New plans call for immediate erection of a modern building to accommodate 75 students with units to be added later as funds are available for that purpose.

President L. D. Watson states that details for commencement are complete and notwithstanding the difficulties under which the faculty and student body have labored because of the three fires, the year is a successful one. President Watson and his faculty will make an active campaign for students, they say.

The House of Fearings

Blue Ribbon Fiction

By Dana Gatlin

"Every Girl Dreams of a Fairy Prince, I Guess," She Told Him. And the Misogynist Found Himself Stirred Out of His Cool Judgment.

There were no blows—only the pull and crush of straining arms.

WHEN on that April night Mark Battle took a turn which led off the highway into an obscure road he didn't know that fate, pushing his hand on the steering wheel, was guiding him to a house of strange rumors, and to stranger inhabitants, whose future would be linked with his own. He followed the unfamiliar trail out of a spirit of sheer adventure. It was an adventuresome kind of night, tingly, wild with wind, but clear. A high moon shone like a disc of cold white metal, chill and aloof to the sportive clouds; the wind drove the clouds in scurrying panic, then rushed down to tilt, mischievously, with the twisting tops of trees.

Mark exulted in the tang of the night, in the feel of his car taking the jerks of the unknown road; now they were breasting a hill, they jolted over a fallen log, swept out into a bit of clearing—faced the open blast gloriously. Then a sense of caution returned to him; this was the devil's own road—but investigation disclosed there could be no turning—not now. And for a moment he stood in the little open space, pondering.

In the moonlight Mark Battle showed as a young man but gave the impression of looking older than he really was. He was slenderly built, lithe, and wiry. His features and expression were somewhat puzzling. His mouth was as sensitively cut as an artist's but was held tight, in a sort of quizzical gravity, as if from habit. His eyes were keen, but had a way of looking beyond what they sharply regarded; yet the eyes were quizzical, too—and cynical? He seemed to wear that quizzical, attentive non-attentive, look like a pleasant mask.

Mark climbed back into the car; there was nothing to do but go ahead—God knew where. His spirit of adventure was slightly dashed. The moon leered down and the wind blustered overhead as the man and car plunged again into the shadows.

The road seemed more densely embowered than ever, and rougher and steeper—the devil's own road!

Then, so suddenly it started him, he found himself clear of the woods—emerging all at once on to a small plateau where moonlight flooded a stretch of lawn, and lividly illumined a long, low, irregular house.

Mark halted his car, stared, and gave involuntary indrawn whistle. The house, with its many even ranged and unlighted windows, stared back at him sullenly. A small portico framed an entrance door, half glass and lighted from within—but even that doorway and that glow held no invitation.

Something in the aspect of the house, in the atmosphere, caused Mark's senses to sharpen instinctively. He had heard imaginative folk claim that no place is its own—that every dwelling is intangibly haunted by what happens there and what has happened there in the past—and this isolated old homestead, though it sat there so silent, seemed to cry out with inaudible tumults; the darkened windows held invisible secrets, the trees seemed to whisper of vanished violence and passions and pain.

Yes, things went on here—or had gone on here.

Then Mark called himself a fool. He was a scientific man—a physician, a practitioner, much too practical to admit any power of personality in a mysterious old house.

But he stared inquisitively toward those lights that tendered no welcome—that door, and one adjacent window. The light seemed oddily to waver, to dance about—then he heard an ominous, heart stilling cry! For a second he stood at straining attention, automatically rooted by the viciousness of that snarling, animal-like sound.

Then he saw a blaze of light hurtle bodily across the illumined square of window, and a big, dark, indeterminate mass come plunging after.

The cry repeated.

Mark went forward on a run, ran up on the porch. And then, through the glass top of the door, he saw a sight so primitive and theatrical he must pinch himself to recall he was but a half hour's journey from a frequented motor highway, in a highly civilized section of modern America.

In a vast, shadowy, and ancient looking room two powerfully built men were locked in a Herculean combat while, darting warily from the path of the lurching bodies, a girl furnished the only light—holding aloft an old-fashioned oil lamp!

The men were fighting desperately, vindictively. There were no blows—only the pull and crush of straining arms, the sudden shifting of body weight, the sinuous twisting and untwisting of legs. They reeled and spun like a huge convulsive top and went down; they staggered to their feet, still interlocked. Both were breathing in short, hard gasps—Mark could hear the breathing. Once one of them repeated the snarling, vicious cry Mark had heard from the yard. This man, though slightly smaller than his antagonist, seemed even more powerful; the other was huge—well over six feet, stockily built, and muscular as a bear; and he looked ferocious as a bear, his black hair matted, his eyes gleaming, his teeth bared and clenched. From one shoulder the sleeve of his shirt was torn clean off.

For a breathless moment Mark reacted to the sheer ferocity of the struggle—he felt the thrill which comes when one looks on savage powers unleashed.

Then a chair went over with a crash, the men reeled drunkenly; and as she slipped perilously out of their way Mark's attention was recalled to the girl with the lamp.

Her dress was vividly blue and her hair was in shining coils that glinted copper—she made a darting splash of color amazingly in accord with the flaming lamp she carried! But Mark caught his breath, appalled—was she oblivious that it was an engine of death she held?

HE fumbled for the latch of the door, but was arrested by a sence of caution; a too sudden advent might precipitate a catastrophe. But as he stood hesitant, all of a sudden his problem was settled for him. The combatants, interlocked near the fireplace, went down together. There was a short oath, the sickening thud of flesh and bone against stone and iron. The bigger man was undermost —his head struck the iron fender, he lay crumpled and huddled.

The battle was over.

When Mark got into the room the man still lay there without motion; from his neck the blood was oozing. The girl was kneeling beside him; her lamp sat nearby on the floor. The other man subsided onto the chimney seat—he looked dazed, and was gasping and muttering.

"Perhaps I can do something," said Mark, trying to treat his entrance and the situation as something ordinary. "I'm a doctor."

The girl looked up sharply, apprehensively.

"What are you doing here? What do you want?"

"I'm spending a few days' vacation down at the inn in the village. Your woods road lured me—but that part doesn't matter. He seems pretty badly hurt, and I'm a doctor—may I help?"

The girl gazed at him questioningly. There was a quality in her looks, in her beauty, that made Mark stare. She was young—eighteen, perhaps; a face not quite so round as a child's nor so shaped as a woman's; burnished hair which had been wound round her head in a thick plait now loosened, and eyes that were brightly blue but slow and mesmeric under their long lashes—eyes such as draw things to them, but still innocent. She knelt there beside the lamp. The lampshine and her vivid blue frock made her so radiant and rich and vital that Mark, for all that he had lost his interest in women, was startled.

The girl was plainly anxious and frightened; she glanced toward the other man, but he still sat sprawled in his corner muttering.

Mark tried to be genially casual, reassuring.

"I'm a pretty good doctor—you can trust me. Or perhaps you prefer calling your local doctor—only I wouldn't waste time."

Then the girl cried: "O, no! Peter"—with a nod toward the unconscious man—"wouldn't want Dr. Jones—don't call him."

Even with this Peter lying helpless, Mark saw the thought of displeasing him brought her a certain panic.

The man on the chimney seat caught the phrase. "Dr. Jones," he repeated, his words for the first time inelligible, "like to see him get into Peter Fearing's house!" He gave a short, abrupt laugh. "Peter'd crack a bone for him—same as the last time they met!"

"Be still, Sammy!" commanded the girl. Then she turned to the visitor and explained with a swift semblance of composure, in a self-possessed young voice: "My brother's had a quarrel with the local practitioner—you'd best take care of him, doctor."

What a little woman of the world—but what a child, too! Then Mark knelt and ran a practiced hand over the inert man. The girl watched anxiously, yet maintaining that quaint air of composure.

The other man—Sammy—resumed talking:

"But there are some folks he'd let in the house—he'd let Lombard in! Peter's worse than Lombard—he's a skunk! And you'd stand for it, Cecie—you'd—"

The doctor said: "He'll be all right. Nasty knock, but he's only stunned." He gently unclasped her fingers and rose and drew her up to her feet. "Now," he went on practically, "the first thing's to get him into bed. But he's a heavy man."

"There's a bedroom downstairs."

"Good," the doctor nodded. Then he faced the man in the corner. "See here, I can't manage this job alone—will you give me a hand?"

Sammy had ceased muttering and was sitting with his elbows propped on his knees and his head resting on his palms.

"No, I won't," he said sullenly. "Peter Fearing's my brother, but he's a skunk. I've stood for a lot. But when he starts trading off his sister—my sister—"

The girl ran forward and intervened between the two men, and again she showed that quaint aplomb as she vouchsafed explanation.

"Don't pay any attention to him, doctor," she said. "Sammy's funny at times. I don't mean funny—but he had shell shock in the war, and sometimes, when he gets excited—"

THE doctor nodded comprehensively, he did comprehend, partly. He darted a quick, interested glance at Sammy. Despite his earlier ferocity and his apathetic relapse, there was intelligence in the slope of his forehead and the bulges over the brows. He was roughly, indifferently dressed, but his enunciation was that of an educated man. The girl called Cecie, too, seemed cultivated in her speech. There were books, many books and periodicals, littered about the huge, shadowy room—many evidence of culture, of traditions of culture.

Mark's impressions and speculations were working more quickly than it takes to record them; these people were evidently brothers and sister—brother had been fighting brother, the sister matter of factly furnishing them light! A queer and mysterious outfit, stowed away in this lonely, outlandish retreat!

The girl, Cecie, had advanced upon Sammy and, grasping him by the shoulders, was shaking him angrily.

"If, Peter doesn't get well it means you've killed him—don't you understand that?"

"All right," said Sammy.

She shook him more violently. Just then she looked a little termagant, her eyes flashing, her upper lip shortened, and her white teeth set fast on her lower lip—a glimpse of a hot, willful spirit.

Then she changed her tactics. She leaned down to him and clasped her arms round his neck, pressed her face against his shoulder.

"Come and help the doctor, dear," she pleaded. "Please, dear—because I want you to." She reached for his hand and started to draw him to his feet. And Sammy's obstinacy seemed to melt.

"O, all right then," he said, and rose.

Even the doctor was amazed—this girl of the woods certainly had power of a kind!

Then she turned to him, the stranger, with her swift reassumption of manners.

"Sammy will help you, doctor," she said after the fashion of a courteous hostess; "the bedroom's this way," and she picked the lamp from the floor to guide and light the way.

It was a busy night up there in the house on the hill in the woods. A strange night—but the strangest thing of all, as the minutes merged into hours, was that the sense of strangeness passed. The big, shadowy rooms lost their disturbing influence; the girl Cecie had lighted candles in some old silver candlesticks, tarnished—the wavering points of flame irradiated the gloom, soft and live and unhostile. And the girl herself seemed soft and bright in her bright beauty—and human.

She was a deft and willing helper. She brought the cold water the doctor asked for, and helped apply it to the patient, to his wrists and back of the neck and forehead.

Mark couldn't help commenting on the beauty of the ancient silver dish holding the water.

"Peter likes these old things we have," she explained naively, in her self-possessed young voice; "maybe it will do him more good out of this dish."

"Have you much old silver?" Mark questioned.

"O, yes—we've lived in this house nearly two hundred years, you see."

Mark noted the "we"—and nearly two hundred years!

The brother, Sam, came in once or twice. He seemed to have recovered himself—a quiet, gentle normalcy, and intelligence; he didn't talk much and proffered no explanation, but spoke of incidental topics in that clear, mellow, and cultivated voice. The girl Cecie stayed at the doctor's elbow, helping. Once she brought a crucifix from somewhere and hung it at the head of the bed.

Perhaps she caught something a bit satirical in his eyes, for she said: "I feel it may help—do you think it's foolish?"

If Mark had thought the act even more foolish than he did, he could only have answered: "No, not if you feel it helps."

"I'm awfully glad! It does help." Those blue, messmeric eyes looked at him warmly. And by the time the patient was sleeping easily and could be safely left in Cecie's hands. Mark felt like old acquaintances with her. He forgot how little he knew of her, how much of this night's drama remained fantastic and unexplained. She was just a girl with tired but vivid eyes; and if those eyes kept following him about they did so frankly, unconscious of their own magnetism.

When he started to leave she caught at his sleeve and murmured.

"I don't want you to go!"

But as soon as he had smiled, indulgent as at a child, and said: "But I must—he'll be all right in your hands now, you see," she at once regained her manners and answered: "Of course." Then: "Will you call again tomorrow?"

"If you want me to."

"I do want you to. I'm awfully glad it's you who's taking care of Peter."

What an outspoken young creature she was! The girl's frank overtures in a way disconcerted Mark, the misogynist, yet left him feeling queerly tender and warm And that warm, rather bewildered feeling lasted him throughout his drive home.

But next morning, in the sunlight, the whole episode seemed like something he had dreamed. And after breakfast he made an opportunity to sound the landlord of the inn where he was stopping.

"Uncle Jim," the landlord, always loved to talk, and had already entertained his guest with many local traditions. Traditions seemed to flourish along with fruit trees in this old south Jersey district. But Uncle Jim hadn't chanced to mention the house on the hill in the woods; and when his guest made a casual inquiry about the place the landlord peered at him inquisitively.

"That's the old Fearing homestead—you met up with any of the Fearings?"

"I took the woods road for a ride, and lost my way, and stopped at their house," Mark explained.

"Well, better not have too much truck with 'em—they're not for strangers to deal with, Peter especially."

"What's the matter with them?" asked Mark. "They're certainly well rooted—that old house of theirs; and they struck me as being unusually educated."

"O, yes—the boys both went to college, and I guess they're kind of bookworms; and Cecilia went to a convent—she's real religious, I guess. But they're queer just the same—there's something queer and outlandish in the Fearing blood—always was and always will be!"

"What is it that's queer?" Mark pursued.

Uncle Jim shook his head. "I don't know." Then he said: "Well, you see, it's this way—"

And then he was off. He expounded his tale with a peculiar admixture of apology and pride—though the community might be somewhat ashamed of the Fearings, their oddity made them a local asset of sorts.

"You see, it's this way," narrated Uncle Jim. "It's something in their blood. The first Peter Fearing was a Tory—they say he housed Tory refugees during the revolution. That old house still has its secret hiding places, they say. The first Peter started that business being off side, and in all the time since the Fearings 've always been sort of shady. Not that they haven't had plenty—trust a Fearing to find money—and held their heads up, too; but whenever there's been any shady transactions in these parts, it seems there's always been a Fearing to sit front in the game."

"I see," said Mark. "The family has inherited a sort of sinister brand—they're accepted, but not socially, is that it?"

Uncle Jim weighed this, and then affirmed: "Yes, I guess you've about hit the nail on the head, doctor. Everybody—the first families, too—calls 'em by their first names, but they don't invite 'em to their parties. And the Fearings don't expect to go to the parties. Not that they ain't proud at that—prouder 'n Lucifer.

"Now, take Peter," he proceeded, "you wouldn't think it maybe, but Peter's as proud of the Fearings, and

MRS. GIFFORD PINCHOT
(Copyright, Underwood & Underwood.)

The identity of the author of "Boudoir Mirrors of America" has already aroused widespread speculation.

Her need of untrammeled utterance naturally imposes certain conditions and reticences. Nevertheless, it is possible to reveal the author's idea to the following extent:

This series of articles is the work of the wife of one of the most celebrated literary men of all time and all ages—a master of all styles whose name appears attached to gems of writing familiar to us from kindergarten to tombstone. He is— But let us put aside the veil completely. He is none other than that general favorite, Mr. Anonymous.

Mrs. Anonymous brings to the broader field of "Boudoir Mirrors of America" such powers of penetration and familiarity with the inside of affairs as made "Boudoir Mirrors of Washington" an astounding success and a piece of exceptional entertainment from first to last.

Mrs. Anonymous, author of this series, is the worthy wife of her husband.

How Mr. August Belmont Interceded For His Wife At the Beauty Parlor

Mrs. Gifford Pinchot Dyes Her Hair Red—and Baby Pinchot Arrives with Red Hair . . . Why a Marble Bust of Mrs. Pinchot Should Be to the Beauty Parlor What the Wooden Indian Was to the Cigar Store.

By MRS. ANONYMOUS.

GERTRUDE ATHERTON — how young she looks for her age! Whenever she is in the room that is the invariable topic of whispered conversation. Has she or hasn't she? Did she or didn't she? How else could she have written "Black Oxen?" How else could she manage to look so young? She must be on the shady side of sixty! Then just notice if you please how the men do hang around her. You may like her books and you may not, but you'd be immensely interested in her. Everybody is.

Wait until you see Gertrude face to face in her silver brocade evening gown. Watch that wayward strap—designed to be wayward—slip from her round, white shoulder. Notice the curve of her neck, and the smoothness and firmness of her skin, and the soft, shining gold of her hair. (It can't be henna—it's a different shade entirely.) Notice all these things and then ask yourself—well, wasn't it stupid of Ponce de Leon when he was seeking for that fountain of eternal youth not to think of the monkeys! And they were probably playing all around him many times!

We mortals are stupid, aren't we? Now there's Newton and the apple. He had doubtless seen apples falling from trees all of his life, but one had to hit him squarely in the head before he could figure out why apples fall downward instead of shooting upward.

Oh, it is a very, very serious matter—trying to secure an appointment with the beauty engineer—even if you and your wife are rated A-1 in Bradstreet and the other American peerages. Even the wooden Indian is haughty. . But have you read about her yet in Mrs. Anonymous' little screed?

And now that we are on the subject of rejuvenation, isn't it dreadful that for the past forty years or so men have been studying how to rejuvenate themselves, with never a thought about us women! You see, once rejuvenated, men don't want done-over women. They want the sweet young things. Demand always governs the supply, and since neither the young man, nor the old men done over, are interested in the rebuilt models, there is no demand for them.

A number of well-known men have been accused, or credited—according to the way you look at it—with being the hero in "Black Oxen." I heard one of them say, "No. I might fall for a vamp, but I'd never fall for a re-vamp." So there's the whole philosophy of the thing in a nut shell.

Speaking of men, women, and monkeys, of course, we all know that that monkey theory has weakened., But the monkey, nevertheless, has been used as a stepping stone to higher things. The theory set us thinking along other lines. "Face lifting," now takes its proper place alongside of permanent waving and other modern arts—or are they sciences? Now that "permanents" have been reduced to a dollar a curl, or ten dollars a dozen, discriminating women don't go in for them so much. They are just content to pursue a policy of watchful waiting for the next modern method of enhancing feminine beauty.

But with "face lifting" is is different. The lifters are opening shops in all fashionable sections and the prices are still high enough to be interesting. So far only actresses, movie stars and wealthy society women are numbered among the lifted.

A FRIEND of mine went to one of these de luxe shops recently and boldly asked to see the society—or the ex-society—woman who has adopted this form of uplifting humanity as a means of enjoying a career and earning a living. The manager—a man, of course: the managers are always nice, ladylike, spatted, perfumed men—was horrified at the sheer audacity, the unmitigated gall of my friend.

"You can't see her without an appointment," he said loftily, "and it's no easy thing to get an appointment. Why, even Mr. August Belmont had to call three times before he could get an appointment for his wife!"

Mrs. August Belmont, you will recall, was the actress, Eleanor Robson. It was just before the production of her new play, about which social New York was so much excited. And she did look fresh and handsome.

Perhaps she is a "participating patron." You see this places one on quite a different plane from the ordinary "customer"—which connotes butchers and tradespeople of all kinds. The first step toward becoming a "participating patron" is to get your name in New York's social blue book. After that, in almost any morning's mail, you are likely to receive a hand-

Adventures In Love of the

The former Catherine Radcliffe, who became engaged to the dashing marine officer everybody expected Elizabeth Hanna to marry and then—eloped with George Wise, a prosperous dairyman

THE marriage of Miss Elizabeth Gordon Hanna to Richard Porter Davidson, which, according to every expectation will have been celebrated with great brilliancy a few hours before these lines are read, marks the climax of as interesting and lively a series of adventures in love as fashionable society at the national capital has ever had the opportunity of watching.

The memory of the oldest dowager does not hark back far enough to recall a girl of the Washington smart set who was more eagerly courted, who left the hearts of more young men aching when she finally married or who kept the gossips so continually guessing by dodging out of the path that leads to the marriage altar just when she seemed headed straight for it.

Last summer everybody supposed the Hanna heiress was surely engaged to marry Lieutenant Julian P. Brown, a dashing and popular young officer of the United States Marine Corps. Their love affair seemed to have reached the point where the marriage was inevitable and already the gossips were busy speculating as to when and where the wedding would take place, who would be the bridesmaids and all that sort of thing.

Then suddenly, like a thunderbolt from a smiling June sky, came the formal announcement of Lieutenant Brown's engagement to marry—not the Hanna heiress but Miss Catherine Radcliffe.

Society was dumbfounded. It could hardly believe that Miss Radcliffe, charming as she was, had actually won Elizabeth's fiance away from her.

Nor could it understand how Miss Hanna could be so serenely acquiescent in this new shuffle of love's cards when, only a few days before, she had seemed to worship the very ground on which the lieutenant's military heels clicked and to be delighted with the adoration he gave her.

After a few weeks of futile speculation, the gossips decided that this problem was only another one of the perplexing mysteries which the love affairs of the modern girl and of the Hanna heiress in particular present. It was one of those things that are quite impossible of understanding by minds used to the more conventional courses which the romances of an older generation took.

As they recalled how many times before they had thought Elizabeth Hanna practically engaged, right on the verge of matrimony with this, that or the other always very desirable young man, they decided that she was as capable of surprising new methods in love as her distinguished old grandfather, the late Mark Hanna, had been in politics and business.

The wedding of Miss Radcliffe and Lieutenant Brown was set for the Christmas holidays, but before they rolled around she had grown tired of the fiance she had taken from Elizabeth Hanna. One day she surprised her friends by eloping to Baltimore and marrying George Wise, a former army air pilot and now the head of a prosperous dairy business.

Another veiw of the eloping Miss Radcliffe, who took Miss Hanna's supposed sweetheart away only to forsake him for another man

THEN the gossips thought they were going to have a chance to assert, without fear of successful contradiction, that they had been right in the first place.

Now that Lieutenant Brown was heart free again they felt sure that his romance with the Hanna heiress would be resumed and that their wedding would be one of the outstanding events of the 1923-24 season, just as everybody had thought it would before Catherine Radcliffe stepped into the love comedy and walked off with the hero.

In fact it was freely hinted that the reason why Miss Radcliffe was willing to break her engagement to the marine officer and plunge into a runaway marriage with the dairyman was because she had come to realize the lieutenant's regrets over having forsaken Miss Hanna.

But the capricious course that Elizabeth Hanna's heart was taking denied the gossips even this consolation.

Although the lieutenant began to be seen with her once more, you could have filled two or three bridge tables with young men who seemed to stand far higher in the heiress' regard than the marine officer to whom she had been thought practically engaged. The fires of the Brown-Hanna romance that were blazing so ardently last June seemed to have gone almost completely out.

Even this did not exhaust Elizabeth Hanna's capacity for astonishing the society wiseacres who pride themselves on being able to forecast far in advance the course which youthful hearts are going to take.

Until a few days before the announcement of her engagement to young Mr. Davidson he was distinctly a "dark horse" in the race for her heart—a steed so dark, so far in the rear of the rest of the competitors that he was almost invisible to most of the observers. Certainly no hostess who wanted to make up three or four tables of bridge players out of the most likely winners of the Hanna heiress would have included Robert Davidson. Perhaps he might have been included at a fifth table—but even that is doubtful.

YET now that young Mr. Davidson has emerged into the limelight of Elizabeth's love almost every one agrees that he should make an ideal husband for the late Senator Hanna's granddaughter. The son of Mr. and Mrs. Bradley Davidson, he comes from a family long prominent in the social life of Washington and Maryland.

Of course it was to be expected that Elizabeth Hanna would be a much sought after debutante. She is an extraordinarily beautiful young woman, one of the most charming debutantes that ever tripped her dainty feet over the polished floor of a Washington ballroom.

Besides her grace and beauty, her clever wit and her charm of manner, she has wealth—a great deal of it. From her mother she inherited with her sister a fortune estimated at nearly a million dollars and this will probably be increased when other rich relatives of the two girls die.

She is a granddaughter of the late Mark Hanna, once United States senator from Ohio, and not only a multimillionaire but a tremendously powerful figure in American politics.

For an uncle to give her prestige in Washington society she has Senator Medill McCormick, of Illinois, whose wife was the late Senator Hanna's daughter, Ruth Hanna.

She and her sister, Miss Nathalie Hanna, are the daughters of Dan R. Hanna and his second wife, who was Miss Daisy Gordon, daughter of W. J. Gordon, of Cleveland. Miss Gordon was married to Hanna in 1898. She had previously been the wife of Captain Walter De S. Maude, an English army officer.

Dan Hanna and his second wife were divorced in 1902. Some time later Mrs. Hanna married Franklin D. Pelton. When she died she left practically her entire fortune to her two daughters, who have made their home in recent years in Washington.

The two Hanna heiresses have three half brothers, Mark, Carl and Daniel, the children of the first marriage of their father, who died in 1921.

Although both Elizabeth Hanna's father and mother came from the middle west, her mother's family was once one of the most prominent in New York society.

The late Mrs. Gordon, Elizabeth Hanna's grandmother, was one of the three beautiful Smythe sisters, daughters of the late Henry Smythe, once collector of the port of New York. Their home was in the then fashionable section of New York where the old Academy of Music was the rendezvous of society.

The only one of the Smythe sisters now living is Mrs. William Jaffray, who for thirty years has made her home in England or on the continent of Europe.

Another of the Smythe sisters was the late Mrs. Edward J. Woolsey, of New York and Lenox, who as Fanny Smythe was one of the most admired society beauties of her day. By her second marriage she became the wife of the late Edward M. Paddelford.

Elizabeth Gordon Hanna, one of the most admired debutantes Washington society has ever seen, who has finally chosen Mr. Davidson for a husband out of nobody knows quite how many suitors

THE rather spectacular matrimonial career of the late Dan R. Hanna is well known. He was married four times and divorced as many and was called the foremost man in America's divorce courts. It was said that in most cases whenever one wife brought a divorce suit Mr. Hanna already had his arrangements all made for another.

Mr. Hanna's first wife charged him with having blackened one of her pretty eyes.

His second—Elizabeth's mother—had such painful experiences to describe on the witness stand that the judge who was hearing her divorce suit made her whisper them in his ear.

The third Mrs. Hanna got her divorce in thirty minutes after reciting how her husband had taken a trip around the world with a woman who masqueraded as his wife.

And the fourth and last woman to call herself Mrs. Dan R. Hanna obtained her divorce on some very peculiar and novel charges of cruelty.

With a father four times married and divorced and a mother who had three husbands, the former Elizabeth Hanna's heredity gives her a rather remarkable background.

This is why some of the Washington gossips are wondering whether her marriage is the end of her love affairs or only the start of a still more surprising series of romances.

If young Mrs. Davidson is not as happy with this husband of hers as both she and he confidently expect, she will have to admit that she is a poor chooser. There are so many desirable men, both young and old, who have admired her and would have been so delighted to have had the privilege of leading her to the altar.

Why Bobbing Your Hair Won

By
Arthur C. Jacobson, M. D.,
Associate Editor, Medical Times.

WILL the Bob-Haired Bandit be known in a few years as the Bald-Headed Bandit? Will the girls soon be powdering their scalps as well as their faces?

According to the originator of a famous wave, speaking before the sixth annual convention of the American Master Hairdressers' association, in New York, it will take but a few years of the bob-haired craze to make the women of this country as bald as the men.

This specialist in pessimism and hair explained that each separate hair is supported by a tiny muscle at the base of the hair follicle. As the hair grows longer, he said, and therefore heavier, the muscle grows proportionately stronger. The growth of a hair, consequently, is a matter of the capacity of the muscular structure of the scalp.

If the hair is cut, he went on, the muscle is deprived of its normal exercise and grows weak, like an unused arm, until it eventually loses its function and the hair falls out. That, said the lecturer, is why men grow bald—not because they wear tight hats or because they overwork their brains, but because their hair is cut so often and so short.

"The bob will wear itself out of its own accord," the speaker declared, in concluding his remarks, "when people discover the folly of it. The bob-haired flapper probably will be a baldheaded old lady. The most beautiful hair is that which is allowed to grow unhampered by the clippers from babyhood on. As long as the barbers rule the waves woman's hair will never be her crowning glory."

Such press reports of this address as we have been enabled to examine contain no instance of baldness supervening upon bobbing as a proved result of the latter. If the speaker had reported such cases, as is the custom of medical scientists when making pronouncements of this sort, more confidence would be felt in his assumptions.

There is a prejudice felt by some people against the bobbing of hair, but scientific judgments can never be reached unless one is able to put aside cherished prejudices, and not try improperly to make facts conform to theories, or, worse still, ignore facts altogether.

One may think that bobbing the hair ought to cause baldness, but the facts of life are not influenced by mere opinions.

Too short a time has elapsed since the beginning of the bob-hair craze for any one to declare pontifically that baldness following upon bobbing is a matter of cause and effect. A sequence is not necessarily a consequence.

Undoubtedly there are women now bobbing their hair who are destined to lose their hair in any case, perhaps because of heredity. Even though quite a number of years of bobbing have passed, it will take many more years before expert observers will be able to make excathedra utterances as to the influence of this practice upon loss of hair.

Our own idea is that scientific inquiry will show that bobbing tends to prevent baldness. But this again is only an opinion, albeit based upon better grounds than the bizarre theory now under consideration.

Now let us examine the esteemed hairdresser's theory carefully, also the known facts regarding the alarming opinion of our lecturer.

A glance at one of the illustrations on this page will show the arrangement of the arrector pili muscle in relation to the hair, the hair follicle and the sebaceous glands. The hair follicle is a slender, cylindrical pocket for the accommodation of a hair. The sebaceous glands secrete the oily matter of the skin, which is expressed from the mouths of the hair follicles.

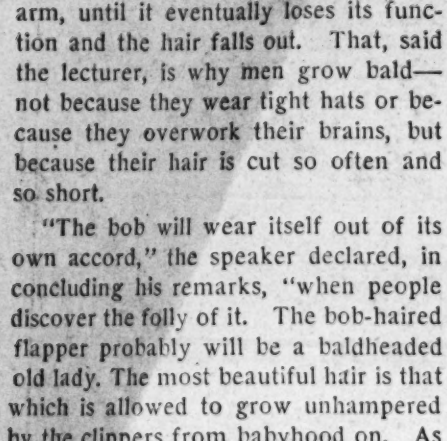

IT will be noted that the follicle sets at an angle to the surface of the skin. Therefore the hair is also placed obliquely. Another glance at the illustration will make it clear why, when the arrector pili muscle contracts, the lower part of the follicle and hair will be pulled upon so as to make them perpendicular to the surface of the skin. The hair is actually lifted and the skin around it made to protrude, with the consequent appearance known as goose flesh.

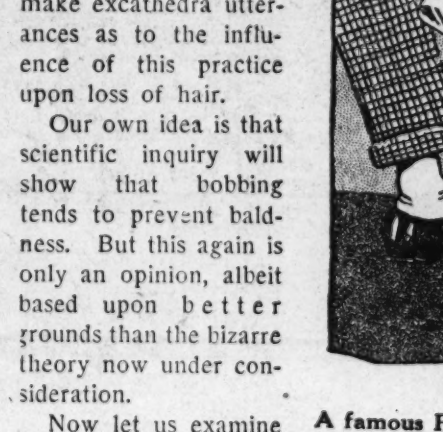

This goose flesh phenomenon is produced by cold or strong emotions like fright or anger. In the scalp it may be felt as a kind of tingling, since the tiny muscles are not strong enough actually t lift the hair, and ye it is common t speak of the ha "standing on end. In some of the lowe animals the phe nomenon is mor marked, as one ma easily verify b watching the hair o the tail of an angr cat.

There appear to be no facts which would explain why such cutting should injure them. The theory is gratuitous and fantastic.

On the other hand, according to Pusey, frequent cutting of the hair stimulates its growth. Burton-Opitz, the distinguished physiologist, estimates that the adult human individual pro- duces about 0.20 gram of hair substance in the course of a day, an amount which he says can be greatly increased by heat, massage and the cutting of the hair.

Where hair is clipped shortest, as on the back and sides of men's heads, and where it is shaved oftenest, as on the face, one seldom observes bald- ness. Bobbing of the hair necessarily makes cutting more frequent, and shing- ling the back hair should seemingly be still more effective.

Nothing is gained by singeing in addition to cutting. Such high au- thorities as Stelwagon tell us that singeing has no scientific basis, and is wholly useless when not actually damaging. Yet we frequently hear it alleged that singeing "seals up the hair and prevents the outflow of the hair strength or nutrition."

Irene Castle, who made bobbed hair popular

It would appear to be in order to say something about the real causes of baldness.

There is a normal continual shedding of the hair. The life of a hair varies from several months to four years, according to the season and the state of health. Abundant falling of hairs may not presage baldness.

Baldness may be due to dis- turbances of the general health, to local disease of the scalp, to premature senile changes and to senility itself.

THE disturbances of the gen- eral health chiefly involved have to do with either nervous or toxic factors. In the first case it is encountered in individuals who have undergone periods of men- tal or nervous stress. In the sec- ond case it is observed after acute illnesses, such as typhoid fever. The sedentary life favors a de- clension in general health which invites baldness, and it is this, rather than intellect- ual strain, which accounts for the baldness so fre- quently noted in so-called brain workers.

Local disease of the scalp means, as a rule, seborrhoic dermatitis, or catarrh of the sebaceous system, usually mani- ested by dandruff. This disease is responsible for the greater part of common baldness.

Premature senile changes may be due to hereditary influences, but these may be greatly furthered by the wear- ing of stiff hats. The hard rim of a stiff hat compresses the vessels that lie along the sides of the skull. There is a thickening of the vessel walls at the point of compression, so that the cali- ber of the vessels is actually lessened, and in time the scalp is insufficiently nourished.

The Duchess of York, with hair done in the style that has been named after her, the "Elizabeth Bowes-Lyon fringe"

The reason why women, sailors, countrymen and the races which wear no headgear are least often afflicted is because light and air have better ac- cess to their hair and because there is no injurious compression of the blood vessels of the scalp. Moreover, women are more cleanly in the care of the scalp and hair, and this is a most im- portant factor.

Anything which benefits general cu- taneous hygiene, such as the daily bath, is good for the scalp and hair. And good general hygiene is essential—exercise, fresh air, good food, sufficient sleep, etc.

It is to be remembered that while baldness is much commoner in men than in women, thinning of the hair as a result of nervousness and other de- pressing influences on the health is a great deal commoner in women than in men.

Baldness is hereditary in from 30 to 40 per cent of the cases, according to Jackson and White, two well known authorities on the subject.

Between the skin of the scalp and the skull there is a thick layer of fat to which the skin is loosely attached and upon which it is freely movable. In civilized man, who lives in houses and wears hats, the following changes take place as he approaches later life:

The fat layer gets thinner; the scalp becomes more firmly attached to the skull and less movable; the skin be- comes more tense, and with these changes the hair becomes thinner and thinner over the top of the head. Finally, the hair disappears and there is left a bald, glistening crown, closely drawn over the skull.

That is the picture of senile baldness, but premature baldness is the same thing, only occurring before the age when these changes, which we ordi-

One Year to Live

An

What Elise Duchanier Did With Her One Year to Live---A Tale of Struggle, Despair, Hope, of Riches and Fame

CHAPTER I.

I AM going to tell a story.

It is said, quite often, that every man has, within him, one story to tell. With many men there are no others—just the one. Perhaps it is that this is the one I have—the only one. At any rate, while I have told many others, I have treasured this within my soul—and within my heart, for many years. And I think this is the best story I have ever told—and the one which has in it more of the things which every story should possess—romance, truth, love, tragedy—and a lesson.

It was in Paris that I first met her whom I am going to call Elise.

I was sitting outside the Cafe de la Paix in the sunshine one afternoon, when I saw, crossing the Place de l'Opera with another man, an old school chum of mine, an Englishman, who had lived in Paris for a great many years. He saw me as I recognized him, and he came right across to the table at which I sat. His companion I found to be a charming and distinguished-looking old Frenchman, a typical boulevardier, and after the usual introductions they seated themselves with me.

One may sit on that corner of the Opera and watch all the world pass by: the lines of traffic, the broad boulevards, with their trees, their sunshine and their gay little kiosks; the crowded pavements on which one sees everybody, and yet notices only the women, those women who have taught the women of every country how to carry their clothes, but still have preserved for themselves some little secrets undivulged.

It may not be France, but it is Paris—Paris of the wide-stretched arms and the song, Paris to whom one goes that one may learn to laugh; Paris who can teach the world the meaning of tears.

"See," he said quietly; "she who sits in the big car! Is she not beautiful?" It is Elise, the girl once poor who was given a year to live. Her one year brought her—what?

An hour went by before I saw Elise. During that hour the old boulevardier entertained my friend and myself with anecdotes concerning this or that celebrity who passed, anecdotes sometimes gay, sometimes triste, often light fingered irony which is altogether Gallic. It was all delightful, a dawdling on the edge of life's dream, with a man of experience at one's elbow to point out the almost unnoticed ripples beneath the surface of the current.

The horseman in the center of the Opera had whistled a traffic direction, and the vehicles on the Boulevard des Capucines had been pulled up. Directly opposite where we sat a great open Hispana Suiza had slid to a silent standstill in the waiting line, right against the curb.

The old boulevardier glanced towards it and, for the first time, lost his air of amused disinterest and became genuinely intrigued.

"See," he said quietly. "She who sits in the big car! Is she not beautiful?"

I looked toward the Hispano Suiza. Driving it was a smart chauffeur in a livery of gray with mauve facings. He held the big, polished steering wheel in gloved hands no bigger than a woman's.

Behind him, at the back of the car, sat Elise.

HOW may I tell you what she was like to me in those few minutes during which I first gazed at her across the jostling pavement of the Canucines?

Picture a rose leaf of pink and white laid softly on a pile of costly furs, and you see the cheeks of Elise as they showed above the great cloak which swathed her.

From beneath the little hat which only a woman could adequately describe, her hair showed black—blue black, like the wings of a raven. Her lips were soft and full and rosy—warm.

"Her eyes," whispered the old boulevardier. "Is there not a history in her eyes?"

I looked at her eyes and forgot all the other beauty of her.

They were wide and blue, dusky; alight, and yet not with laughter; filled with knowledge, and yet open with innocence; the eyes of youth marked with that restfulness which age may bring. There was sadness in them, and longing; yet with it was contentment. The passage of years had seared them, yet left them fresh as a little child's. To me they incarnated an eternal paradox.

I turned to the old boulevardier. My friend withdrew his gaze from Elise and turned to him also. The old gentleman glanced from one to the other of us and chuckled.

"Ah! She has caught you, hein?" He moved his hands in a gesture which meant more than any words could compass. "You are intrigued."

We admitted that we were.

He spoke confidentially. "I know her. She is one of my greatest friends. You would wish for an introduction?"

We said, with enthusiasm, that there was nothing we wanted more.

So he took us across the pavement and introduced us to Elise.

That was some time ago. I have paid many visits to Paris since, and each time I have met Elise, for to me Paris would be incomplete without her.

She and I are friends now. Our friendship started and grew from those moments during which we chatted to her as she sat in the Hispana on the Capucines. Yet it was only recently that I heard her story, and learned all that which was written in her eyes.

The old boulevardier must have known it all the time, but he said nothing, standing by, watching until Elise should choose to tell me herself, which I am sure he was confident she would do from the first.

And one day she told me.

The story of Elise interested me tremendously, although not so much as Elise herself. I am going to try to tell it to you, not as Elise told it, sometimes with halting phrases and a deep flush, sometimes with quickened words and shining eyes, with little white hands moving swiftly in gestures no words can paint because that is impossible; but plainly, at length, so that you who have not seen Elise might gather something of her from what I have set down. For, after all, Elise is her own story. Only in one thing I am departing from the truth, and that is in the names of the people you will encounter in it, of Elise and those others she met during its course.

There will be hate in the story, and passion, love and forebearance, wickedness and much good. It is set in Paris, on the darkened outskirts where the creatures of shadow cling to life's edges and watch for day's dawning with wide, frightened eyes. It is set where the night lights gleam white to the skies on the hill at Montmartre, and the butterflies flutter in their glare till the flame touches their wings and they sink in agony to oblivion.

I will try to tell you of the men and the women who gathered there about Elise, and who still gather about her kind; of their rapacity and their lust, of their lives and their deaths; but, above all, I will tell you of Elise herself, of what happened to her, and why we saw her that sunny afternoon riding in the big Hispano on the Boulevard des Capucines, she who had lived in a garret behind the Clichy and stared into the eyes of hunger.

Absorbing Serial

By John Hunter

of you may condemn it because it touches those things outside the pale of ordinary sheltered existence. On this last I have pondered much before putting it into writing. Yet because it is a page torn from life's book, because it tells of real happenings to a poor creature caught in the maelstrom of dread unspeakable which swirls beyond the fringe of all great cities, I think it is worth the telling.

These things are and always will be. There is a lesson in them for those who wish to find it; there must at least be interest for those who study humanity.

In presenting the story to you I indulge in no argument. It is a plain tale, as I have said, which endeavors not to point a moral. It tells of a girl's coming to surely the most dreadful crossroads that ever could be conceived.

On her decision in that alternative I make no comment. That she did right or wrong is for you to judge when all the story is told.

That she suffered we none of us can deny. That she paid cent per cent for all the happiness she may have snatched is beyond all argument.

Some of you may say, when you have turned the last page, that the story is a narration of those things which are tacitly left out of the daily intercourse between ordinary, respectable people. In this, alone, I would argue with you.

There are many daughters of men in the world. We all of us know some girl or other, sweet and fresh, with her feet on the threshold of life, her eyes gazing ahead in innocence and purity towards the day when she shall meet the man who will take her and shelter her.

After all, Elise was only like them—in the beginning. She dreamt of the beau chevalier, the "parfit, ger il knight." So when you read of Elise, when you are disposed to consider her story questionable, think that there, but for the grace of God, walked that girl you know, that girl you honor, that girl whose eyes have seen only the sunshine and the roses of life, and to whom the other side is a place unknown.

The paths of our lives are never straight, neither can any of us say what the morrow may offer. We cannot judge our neighbors—we dare not judge, if only we stop to think awhile. For what man knows his own weakness, or what woman her own frailty, until the ultimate test is applied? Virtue is easy to the virtuous, and for those never tempted, righteousness is a gift.

So that we more fortunate ones can only watch and learn, and, in our hearts, pity.

Elise has many friends now, but, except for one other whom you will meet in her story, I think that my friend and myself, with the old boulevardier, are numbered as her closest and best.

He and we two stand respectful before her, knowing her, knowing what she has been, remembering only what she is; and our hearts are hers.

So surely the story of such a woman is worth the telling and the hearing.

For after all, and in spite of all, everything came right in the end.

CHAPTER II.

SHE was slightly above the average height, with a graceful elegance about her which was smooth, like velvet; and in the still quiet of the old room, with its faded furnishings, its sombre tints, its distinctive odor of medicines intermingled with the close mustiness which sat heavily on its atmosphere, she was like a lily flowering in shadow. Her hair, looped low over her ears, and dressed simply, was blue black, with the sheen of a raven's plumage. In vivid contrast to it, her eyes were blue—wide, frank eyes, with a steadiness in them which told of thoughts free from all tortuousness. Her cheeks were delicate, touched over-much with pallor, but clear and fresh. There was a poise to her head, a sweep in the lines of her throat, a repose, which told of breeding and a heritage of pride no financial misfortunes could obliterate.

Through the chink of a partly-closed door came the subdued tinkle of glass, as Dr. Lapierre busied himself in his little dispensary on the concocting of medicine for Marthe, her sister, and, steadily, a monotone under the otherwise heavy stillness of the room, she could hear the low murmur of traffic from the nearby Boulevard de Clichy. Across the way, through the tall, curtain-drawn window, she could see the louvre shutters of the old houses opposite thrown back in an eager effort to admit some of the spring sunshine which was kissing Paris to wakefulness.

Dr. Lapierre opened the door of the dispensary quietly, and stood for a moment on the threshold regarding her as she sat in the tall chair with her back towards him. He would be, perhaps, 45 or 50, a man with whom years had dealt harshly, for a casual observer might have set his age at 60. He was slight and small, with rounded, narrow shoulders, and his hair, thin high up on the temples, was gray above his ears, while his smooth-shaven face was more lined than it should have been.

His eyes, kindly and inclined towards retrospection, softened as he studied the girl in the chair, softened and filled with a quick, eager yearning which died. He stepped into the room.

"Well, Elise, I hope you haven't got tired of waiting?"

She got to her feet. "Not at all, doctor. The same medicine and the same doses?"

He handed the little bottle in its neat, white paper wrappings across to her. "Exactly."

Twice a week she came to this room and fetched medicine for Marthe, and twice a week Dr. Lapierre visited the room in the Rue Jacques where Marthe had lain on her back through three long years of suffering and patient hope.

Usually, after the medicine was handed over, they chatted for a few moments in a diversity of common topics, but this morning Elise sensed something about Dr. Lapierre which checked her inclination to talk and prompted in her a desire to leave. They stood for a second or two awkwardly; then she said, "Well, I suppose I must go. Au revoir, doctor. You'll be along tomorrow?"

She held out her hand and he took it, ignoring her question and her farewell, and holding her fingers so that she could not release them. His eyes were alight somnolently.

"Don't go yet," he said. "I want to talk to you—about yourself."

She was trembling the slightest bit, vaguely apprehensive and vaguely indefinitely protestant against staying. She guessed what he was going to talk about and she did not want to hear it, not because it would be offensive, but because, somehow—and she could not say in what way—it would be distasteful, not right.

LAPIERRE broke the silence in which she acquiesced to his wish that she should stay. He spoke disjointedly, nervously, like a man avoiding the one things he wishes to discuss, but gradually gathering his courage for its pronouncement.

"I have watched you, Elise, long. The strain of your work at the theater, of your endurance of that woman Lolette's bullying, and of nursing Marthe, is leaving its mark on you. You are walking on the narrow edge of a breakdown. I warn you now." His voice was gathering to itself a quality of termulous passion. "I have protested within myself against it, and against the fact that one like you, of noble birth and delicate upbringing, should—" He stopped, as though at a loss for words, as though his own intensity overwhelmed him.

"Should what, doctor?" Elise was striving to be calm.

"That you should come to Paris and live—exist—amid foulness and vice, who were born to something better and finer—that you should nightly consort with that woman, listen to her vile talk, her—"

Elise interrupted him swiftly. "One must live, doctor. Lolette pays me for helping to dress her, and the money she gives me keeps Marthe because one looks at vice one need not be vicious."

He laughed, short and hard. "That holds for a time, Elise—for a time; but one day—there is the little slip, the great temptation." He spoke suddenly as though inspired, as though he saw clearly that which he predicted and knew it to be true, and in the seeing, following on the inspiration, came fear, sheer terror of what he himself told. "God! Elise. That you should ever come to that! That you should ever be like Lolette!" Elise's white teeth bit for a moment at her lip; then she smiled wanly. "You are too disturbed, doctor. You distress yourself unnecessarily. I am all right. And—we must live, and until something better comes along, I must stay with Lolette."

She would have turned from him, but that he stopped her once more.

"Something better has come along, Elise," he said quietly, and with a new-found steadiness. "At least, I hope you will consider it better. I love you."

The House of Fearings . . . . . A Blue Ribbon Short Story

that old place up there, as if they and it was top respectable. Prouder 'n lots as is top respectable. Blamed if I don't believe he fancies being half outlaw-like!"

"What's he done to be an outlaw? What are some of the things the Fearings have done?"

"What's he done to be an outlaw? What are some of the things the Fearings have done?"

Uncle Jim shrugged expressively. "There are tales—plenty of 'em."

"Well, what has this present generation done?" Mark persisted.

"We-ll—I guess they're not so downright bad," Uncle Jim had to concede. "Sam and Cecie, leastways—they're only half-kin to Peter, anyhow; they had a different mother, a sort of wild, untamed, sweet faced Irish lass who broke her heart and died. But Peter's a bad egg."

Mark still persisted for details. "How is he a bad egg?"

"We-ll, I don't know as anybody's ever got any goods on him. But he's a surly brute; for all he can be smooth as glass when he wants. And he takes up with people in queer ways—the Fearings 've always made queer friends in queer ways—that's how the money comes! And they say Peter's been having some truck with Lombard lately—you can bet it's something off side!"

"I see," said Mark, though he didn't yet see particularly.

The name of Lombard was familiar to him. C. T. Lombard was a nationally known millionaire, a horse fancier who maintained his stock stables in this neighborhood. Mark wasn't perhaps shocked up to Uncle Jim's expectations on hearing that Peter Fearing "had truck with" the rich horseman, but the old man's next remark brought him to quick attention.

"And they say," Uncle Jim continued, "that Lombard's sort of sweet on Cecie—no good from that!'

And Mark heard himself ejaculating: "What—the child? Impossible!" But he remembered how Sam Fearing, in his excitement, had used Lombard's name—he felt an odd vague sense of distaste.

Uncle Jim was answering: "Why impossible? She's a girl men like to look at. And rides like a streak. Peter 'd have trouble with that girl, maybe, if he didn't have such an iron hand on her—he's brought her up to take his word as gospel law."

But at this juncture a third voice interrupted:

"Who are you gossiping about now, James?" and Uncle Jim's sister and housekeeper, who was Aunt Chattie to the neighborhood, entered.

"O, I was just telling about the Fearings and Cecie—the doctor here's run into the old homestead up there."

"O—Cecie Fearing," said Aunt Chattie, who was a pleasant faced, motherly creature. "I like Cecie. She's so pretty, and so much sweeter like a wild bird."

Mark for some reason felt a surge of warm gratitude toward Aunt Chattie; he smiled at her as, having fulfilled his errand, he left the office.

He got his car and started out for the house on the hill in the woods. The road seemed nearly as wild by day as by night, despite the sun somewhere overhead and the bright tender green of new leafage. And, more than ever, as he climbed the bosky hills and penetrated the wooded fastness, last night's business took on the qualities of something dreamed rather than experienced.

But there stood the old house with its singular and sinister air of a history.

The girl Cecie, who came to the door, brought the sheen and color of pulsing life; she didn't look at all tired, she wore the same vivid blue dress, and her eyes were wells of shimmering blue fire. She gave him her hands with intense composure.

"Peter's a lot better this morning—quite right in his head and remembers everything, but a little difficult to manage."

The patient in truth looked difficult as he lay in bed, with his unshaven face and glittering, impatient eyes.

"Who gave you leave to come here?" he flung at Mark. "Who are you, anyway?"

The girl Cecie put in: "I've told you all that, Peter; Doctor Battle's been kind, and probably saved your life—I asked him to call again."

Mark said: "I can give credentials, if you like, Mr. Fearing, I'm competent; but if you prefer I can turn the case over to the local doctor."

The patient's aggressiveness seemed to lessen; he shrugged his thick shoulders. "O, all right— I suppose you'd better go ahead since you've started," he said tolerantly. His voice, though not as mellow as his brother Sam's was clear and concise. Then, with a suavity that came surprisingly out of that unkempt looking hulk, he continued: "What is your dope on this, doctor—when do I get up? Cecie here has kept me bundled in bed all morning like an old woman!"

"Try sitting up," said the doctor, smiling. The patient gave a heave and then a groan, while Cecie sprang to help him.

"No," commanded the doctor, "let him lift himself alone."

The patient sank back, gasping, "What's the meaning of all this?" he demanded, scowling.

"It means," said the doctor, "that you've got to stay quietly in bed four or five days at least."

"Four or five days, bah! I won't do anything of the kind!" He scowled blackly. "Who are you, anyway, to give me orders?"

Mark answered evenly: "Well, I'm a competent doctor, and you yourself have put your case in my hands. You've suffered a concussion, a pretty serious one—you're in luck to be alive. And I order complete quiet and relaxation—that's my chief prescription. Of course, you can take it or leave it."

For a long minute the two men eyed each other, while the girl held her breath. Then the sick man relapsed on his pillow and spoke in that astonishing smooth tone: "All right, doctor—you have the drop on me. What you say goes."

After the visit was over and after he had given Cecie her directions as nurse, she followed the doctor out to the porch.

"It was nice of you to come—I was afraid maybe you wouldn't."

"Why so? It was my professional duty to come."

Then suddenly he felt a little ridiculous, dragging in that last and so austerely.

The girl said quickly: "O, please don't look like that!"

"Like what?" he countered. Was she a minx after all?

But her look was merely puzzled, uncertain—like a child asking for something which had been unexpectedly denied. "O, I don't know," she said. Then she glanced at the sunlit sky; and stretched out a hand, closing the fingers, as if catching the feel of the spring freighted air.

"Today's so heavenly," she murmured. "Driving down through the woods—through the spring—I wish I were going, too!" And she gave a littl sigh.

There leaped in Mark an unreasoning flame of pity; he said it himself, "She's lonely, poor child—that's what's the matter with her." And, aloud, he heard himself saying: "Why don't you drive down with me—a little distance?"

"I oughtn't to have said that—I wasn't hinting! Of course, I'd like to awfully—only I know you're just being polite."

"Not at all," he assured.

She looked up at that. "Shall I really come?"

"Please do," he smiled.

IN THE car with him, moved by whatever sense of companionship, she answered his questions freely enough. She told him of her life at the convent, only a year finished; and of riding and motoring—she seemed to loved going fast. Riding and driving seemed her chief pastimes in this secluded spot, which was her home; she made no mention of girl chums or beaux, or of parties and the diverting frolics of the young. And Mark, remembering the Fearings' social status in the community, got an acute impression of the loneliness of this vivid young creature in her incongruous abode.

He asked what she did in the evenings.

"Sometimes I go down to the movies with Sammy—mostly I stay at home."

"And then?"

"O, I just sew or read or talk French."

"What—to yourself?"

"Yes. Or to Sammy—or to Mr. Lombard sometimes, when he comes in."

So Mr. Lombard came in!

He said casually: "Lombard, he's the owner of the racing stables, isn't he?—is he a friend of yours?"

"He's a great friend of Peter's." But as she answered she looked away and he thought he detected a flush on her cheek.

All he said was, after a slight pause: "It doesn't sound an exciting life—don't you ever get lonely?"

"O, yes," she answered. "I'm not fond of the homestead in the way Peter is—but I don't expect to stay here always."

At that he glanced at her quizzically. "When do you expect to leave?"

"O, I don't know"—she hesitated and flushed—"but every girl dreams of a fairy prince, I guess."

Then she flashed him a look, bright and timorous.

"That's not wrong or silly, is it?" she asked. "It means a lot to girls, you know."

The man felt a curious jumble of emotions; for a considerable period, now, he had been telling himself he was disillusioned about women and their ways; but something about the naivete and the pathos of those words—"every girl dreams of a fairy prince, I guess"—evoked a rush of warmth, of compassion. The feeling made him ashamed that, watching her, he was so conscious of those eyes and lips and hair—made him say, without a smile or irony:

"I hope you may find him—the prince of your dreams."

The girl shot him a grateful little smile; then, as if encouraged by his sympathy, she spoke softly, reminiscently:

"Once, at the convent, Sister Angelica was advising with me about my future. She knew my mother was dead and that my home life was—a little out of the ordinary. And she asked me if I shouldn't like to take the perpetual vows, to be 'the bride of God.' But I told her no—that I wanted to be the bride of a man."

Even Mark gasped a little at that candor—he could imagine how the good sister must have been nonpulsed!

The girl was proceeding, in her dreamy but throbbing young voice: "I want to love a man who is good and fearless and strong—a man I can love hard, and who loves me hard. I think that's the way love must be—hard! Hard and soft at the same time—I can feel it here," and she pressed her hand to her heart.

For a minute Mark didn't speak; then: "Did you tell that to the sister?"

Cecie nodded. "Yes, I told her. Why, yes—it's the way I feel."

And again Mark imagined how the good sister must have felt! But felt himself thrilling, despite himself, to the girl's ruthless honesty—and to something in her so sweet! All the sweeter, perhaps, for the ardent faults of her nature. What would life bring her, this motherless outshoot of the Fearings?

Then, reassuring her little air of worldy poise, she asked him to stop the car and let her out.

"I'm afraid I've come too far—but's it's been lovely, the ride. And so nice talking to you—only I'm afraid I've talked too much," and a hint of sudden doubt, of question, shadowed those blue eyes.

And he, felt he must assure her: "No, you haven't talked too much at all, Miss Cecie."

She smiled her pleasure at his use of her name. She said:

"That's my nickname. It's really

Cecilia, of course. I was named for a saint."

"Well, I guess I was, too," he said, smiling back; "my Christian name is Mark."

"Mark—Mark Battle. Yes—I like your name. It suits—I like you to have it—it's awfully nice!"

What was there in a name that she should like him to have it? A quaint outspoken child! But, then, names meant and connoted a lot—to children. Suddenly she stepped up close to the running board by which she was standing and held out her hand.

"I like you—let's be friends," she said. "Real friends, I mean."

And he had the odd sense of having had his heart instead of his hand touched by her seeking hand.

Several times that day Mark caught himself up in his thoughts and told himself he was a fool; his thoughts were too occupied with those people up in that old house—with the girl particularly. Difficult to name his reaction toward her; a little flattered, considerably warmed—yet irritated as always when he met a member of that guileful sex who stirred him out of his coler judgment.

That evening, at the sun setting hour, he drove again toward the old house on the hill, and, just as he emerged from the woods, out on the plateau on which the Fearing homestead stood, he came suddenly on a picture which was surely worth his coming to see!

Above, in that opening of sky which now seemed specially prepared for its resplendent descent, the sun was sinking toward the west, a full blown flower. And below, a moving gleam of color against a background of wooded gloom, Cecilia, in her blue dress, on horseback, came galloping toward him. She made a path of light—right out of that burning upper sky! The light seemed to pour on her especially, seemd to move with her as moves a spotlight—even from a distance could be seen the sheen of her uncovered hair.

She said as she drew rein:

"I was just riding down to meet you—to see if you were coming!"

And once again, half against his will, Mark felt that absurd warm tingling inside him.

And for the second time that day he must reply: "I said I'd come, didn't I?"

"Yes, but I hoped you'd be coming soon—now. You see—" and she hesitated for the fraction of a second, her eyes wavering slightly and a little flash rising in her cheek—" a visitor has called on Peter and wants to see him—Mr. Lombard."

Mark felt the warmth within him suddenly chilled a trifle. "I doubt whether your brother should see visitors today," he said.

He spoke with unreasoning curtness; the girl must have caught it, for she said quickly: "O, I told Mr. Lombard he must wait till you came—though he's a special friend."

They found Lombard sitting in the big living hall. His looks befitted his position and reputation; he was a man nearing middle age, a stocky, red faced man, with daring but rather good humored eyes. He was good looking enough, not at all of any melodramatic villain type; obviously of the world, amiable, and entirely at ease.

"Cecilia tells me you've been taking care of Peter," he said upon introduction. "It's good of you."

"Thanks," said Mark dryly.

"Well, make it a good job of it, and you'll not find it a bad bit of business. These people are good friends of mine." His bold and good humored glance, traveling to Cecilia, seemed openly possessive.

"I generally try to do a good job," replied Mark, moving toward the sickroom.

Ridiculous, his wave of irritation and that sudden, instinctive antipathy to this sauve, rich worldling—he knew nothing definite against Lombard, and, anyway, it wasn't his business to look out for the Fearing girl! But when she made as if to accompany him, rather curtly he disclaimed need of her services; she shot him a questioning, half troubled look, but turned mutely back.

The doctor found his patient in a peevish mood, had a bad quarter of an hour, and when he returned to the living hall and found it empty he let himself become further annoyed—a fine nurse she was!

But he wanted to leave some instruction, felt constrained to call her. Then Sam Fearing appeared through a door at the rear.

"Cecie's not here—she went out somewhere with Lombard."

"Would you mind calling her? I ought to see her before I go."

Sam shook his head, with a sullen look. "No—I'm busy. But I guess she's not gone far—she went toward the woods, that trail yonder."

Mark started off reluctantly. The moon was rising now—a dim, elusive twilight—and he was picking his way over the uneven ground at the fringe of the woods when suddenly he heard voices just ahead. Lombard's pitched low and soft but insistent, and then Cecilia's answering voice, loud and imperious:

"I won't—I won't!"

Mark started to retreat, halted, and then, as he stood uncertain, he saw her emerge from the trees, running—her eyes showed ominously bright in the moonlight, her lips were parted, she was breathing hard.

"What is it, Cecie—what's the matter?"

She ran up to him and caught his hand, her touch was fiery hot.

"He kissed me! I don't want him to kiss me. I won't kiss him!"

And then all of a sudden she leaned down and fleetingly touched her hot cheek to his hand!

Mark was confounded, not only by her outburst—that amazing demonstration—and by the dilemma of the other man lurking in the woods, but by his own swift agitation as well. The last point he tried to settle first, he repeated to himself she was a veritable child—that hot, kissed cheek against his hand!—it was as if she were seeking to make her hurt well.

But what was he going to say to Lombard? Or to Cecie, after such an intimate confidence?

Then almost at once she solved the latter difficulty by speaking herself; she swiftly regained her composure in her amazing way, and spoke in her calm young voice: "I shouldn't have come bursting out on you like that, but I was upset." Then: "Peter wants me to marry Mr. Lombard, and I've been thinking maybe I would—he promised to take me to Europe and a lot of things. But I won't now, of course."

Mark hardly dared utter his "Why not?" He hardly dared say anything; it seemed suddenly too dangerous. But the girl answered with her terrible simplicity:

"Why, because I don't love him. As soon as he kissed me—touched me—I knew I didn't love him. And to marry without love—that's a frightful sin, isn't it? Peter simply mustn't ask it of me."

Mark felt her look up at him with a bright and fluttering glance, then look away. And he stood, staring out at the moonlight, with the queerest jumble of emotions—consternation, and abashment, and a helplessness with words, and a sort of mad exultant thrill, all mixing together.

But all he said was: "You're excited now, my child—perhaps you'd rather not discuss this matter; come, hadn't we better go back to the porch? I want to give you some instructions about your brother."

He fancied his words chilled her a trifle—well, better so. They turned toward the house. Making himself hold his eyes from her, he began matter of factly giving her her nursing instructions.

And, next day when he called, he kept up his matter of fact attitude, and kept it up through the succeeding days. And the girl made her reports day by day, and faithfully carried out his directions. Sometimes—more and more rarely—she would look at him in a puzzled, troubled way, and sometimes she would see trying to regain that first footing—little spasmodic and diffident overtures. But other times she would be remote and stiff, and with litte hints of impatience—anger sparks promising an easy flareup of temper.

It angered Mark that he, too, felt a sense of strain. Once he accidentally touched her hand, and felt the electric contact in his other hand! He could feel her enter the room!

He was disgusted with himself; disgusted with Lombard, with Peter Fearing—with everybody and everything.

FOR nearly a week things went on thus, no event outwardly untoward. Peter convalesced gradually, but his temper, never sweet, went sourer under his enforced restraint. Lombard didn't show up again for nearly a week, then one evening the racing man came riding up as the doctor drove out of the yard. He made a picture of sleek complacency on his superb animal—Mark found it an effort to greet him civilly. And he told himself he was absurd: Lombard—or Secilia Fearing, either—touched him in no way that was vital.

And then, suddenly, events began happening that were swift and beyond foresight or calculation.

They began when Cecilia, who was standing in the portico, all of a sudden ran out, ignoring Lombard's presence, and called to Mark to stop.

"It's such a pretty evening—" she began when she reached the car; "I wonder—maybe you'd let me ride with you a little way."

She spoke breathlessly, but her eyes were timid—as if she feared a rebuff. And Mark, oddly, almost wanted to rebuff her; he was resentful of her timidity and her temerity at once, resentful of the other man watching back there from a distance, resentful of his own disturbed and conflicting feelings.

He bade her climb in, but rather brusquely; and his manner, in the car, didn't encourage easy conversation. He concentrated on driving. She sat still, not saying much—what an extraordinary power in her stillness! Did she suspect that he felt that power?

Instinctively he moved away from her a little; and though they had gone but a short distance, he said: "Whenever you want to get out, please tell me."

He felt her look up at him quickly and then look quickly away. They had come to a place where a rift disclosed the sun sinking amidst crimson pools in the west.

"I—I guess I'll get out here," she said.

He slowed to a halt. She made a move, then relapsed dubiously in her seat again. Mark glanced at her—the red sun stained her cheek and throat, struck fiery glints from her hair. He looked away.

"As you wish," he replied; then waited, rather grimly.

Then she said faltering a little: "There's something—I didn't just want to get some air. I've been wondering—things were so different, somehow, at first. That first night somely engraved announcement that you are about to be invited. At last you are informed in the most elegant words Madame Somebody-or-other from Paris or London has been induced to come to New York where she has opened a Morning Glory shop, or something equally as fresh and fragrant sounding Men must be lacking in imagination or they should have had Johnny-Jump-Up barber shops, long ago.

Any way, as I was saying, you receive the invitation and if your are in need of exterior renovation in any part of your anatomy you sign and return the card which has been "enclosed for your convenience." And that is the last conscious effort you are asked to make toward becoming a "partic pating patron." The rest is absolutely painless. The whole thing has been so simple, so delightful, so painless, you couldn't believe anything had happened to you if you didn't have your cancelled checks to show for it.

So, as I said, it may be that Mrs. Belmont is a "P. P.," or, at least, on the waiting list.

THE beauty specialists should jointly raise the necessary money and get Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney to make a statue—one of those new-style tinted ones—of Mrs. Gifford Pinchot, wife of the governor of Pennsylvania, replicas of which should stand outside their shops—you know, like that wooden Indian the men used to hove in front of their cigar stores, I imagine it was a sort of a trade-mark or something like that.

I really think this sort of recognition is due Mrs. Pinchot because she was the first well known society woman applying first aid to faint or fading beauty.

In her case it was faint, not fading, for she was quite young when she took the plunge. But she will tell you herself that it worked, that it is, in fact, still working. There isn't a more fascinating woman in this country than Mrs. Pinchot and according to her own belief her success is largely due to the application of first aid from a beauty parlor at the critical moment.

In those days Mrs. Pinchot was Cornelia Bryce, of Newport News, and her handicap was a beautiful, stunning, magnetic sister. As I have said, Cornelia wasn't fading—not at all. She was too young to fade, in the ordinary acceptation of the term, but she had white skin and perfectly colorless hair, lashes and brows. She was tall and thin, as she still is, and she realized that she didn't register when she entered a room. If people looked up they promptly looked down again. If they were introduced to her they had to be introduced a second time before her personality rang the bell. Cornelia realized all this perfectly. There never has been anything wrong with Cornelia's brain. She was born smart just as she was born colorless.

And being smart, and neither vain nor jealous, Cornelia reasoned the whole thing out. She never has been beautiful. But she could be different—quite different from any woman in the world. In fact she was different inside. It was only exteriorly that she looked average. People must know, the first moment they looked at her, that she was different. She would hang a sign out, so to speak, to notify them—something that would say quite plainly, "Here is a woman who is different. She will interest you."

And so she had her hair dyed a bright, glowing, seductive red—a shade of red that is neither Titian, nor auburn nor golden—a never-before-beheld, never-to-be-forgotten vermillion.

In doing this Cornelia changed the whole current of her life. Color experts say she changed her vibrations. And certainly she set a shining example to other women. She has probably never experienced any dull moments from that day to this. Consciously or unconsciously, in the mixing of that subtle shade of red, she has expressed the complexity and the elusiveness of her own temperament. If she ever goes to the white house to live we must introduce Cornelia crimson. By that time we will be tired of our stockings in "the new atmosphere shade" and will be quite ready for something vivid and honest. That's precisely what Cornelia's crimson is. And it's distinctive. You could never mistake it for anything else.

IT WASN'T long after Cornelia announced her differentness to the world before she registered very definitely in the consciousness of at least one very important person, that person being Mr. Gifford Pinchot.

And now comes the really remarkable part of the story. Will the scientists, especially the students of heredity, please take notice? When Baby Pinchot came, a year or so after the marriage, why did he have red hair? That's what Cornelia wanted to know. And it was strange, considering there was no red hair in the family—that is, none that was indigenous to the soil.

I hear the boy has outgrown his, but Cornelia still keeps up the custom of wearing her hair red. The shade is still bewilderingly seductive. Does she register? Well, I should say she does. When she sits on the platform at the League of Voters convention you simply can't see any one else. If you don't believe green plush can blush, watch the glow that steals over it when Cornelia enters a Pullman!

Yes, that trip to the beauty parlor, back in her Newport News days, was the turning point in Cornelia's career.

The beauty specialists agree that they would have a much better chance if they could get 'em young, and so I say again, what I have said before, that Cornelia, done in plaster or marble and hand colored, should be to the modern beauty shop what the wooden Indian was to the cigar store—a sign and a symbol, to guide the footsteps and light the way of uncertain travelers on life's arduous journey.

you came—and then all of a sudden—O, I don't know."

She broke off, sent him a fleeting, beseeching glance.

But all he said was: "I'm sorry if I've been a disappointment. I've tried to do my best with your brother."

She cried quickly: "O, it isn't that!" Then: "It's—I guess I was hoping we'd be bettter friends."

At that a confused medley of sayings ran through Mark's brain, things he might—or should—say. He should tell her she was acting in a foolish way, making these repeated advances to a stranger; he should be frank, even brutal; he mustn't tell her how his heart was thumping, how he was afraid to trust himself near her—that he was at his wit's end!

But before he could say anything her voice, a little piteous, went on: "Don't you want to be friends? Didn't you want me to ride down with you—are you sorry I'm here?"

And she put out her hand, and laid it on his own.

This surely was the moment to have said those wise things he had been purposing to say. But instead he jumped, and said sharply: "See here—what are you up to?"

"Up to?" she repeated. She withdrew her hand; her eyes had gone dazed, shamed, frightened. Then in that odd way of hers she swiftly put on her grownup formality, amounting now to stiffness, and in her calm young voice said, ever so distinctly: "I'll go home now. Good night;" and climbed out of the car.

And from all his thoughts the only words he could muster were: "Yes—good night."

HE drove on, scarcely noting the treacherous roadbed. By just half closing his eyes he could see her sitting there beside him, could feel again that hot stinging thrill when her hand touched his hand, could see her eyes—could feel them drawing him, drawing him!

Why Bobbing Your Hair Wont Make You Bald

narily attribute to old age, are expected to appear.

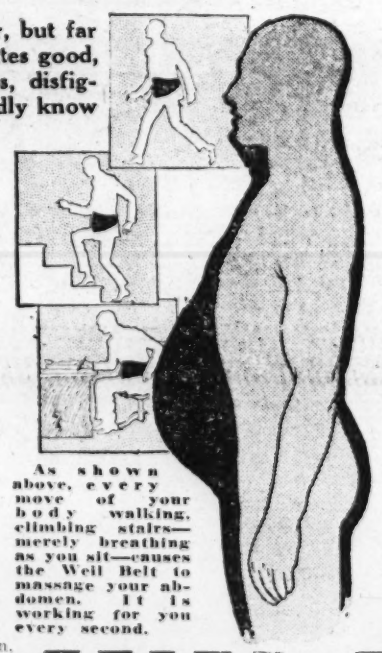

In conclusion, it remains to be pointed out that a further fact accounting for the relative immunity of woman with respect to baldness consists in the greater abundance in women of the panniculus adiposus, or fat layer, not only under the skin at large, but under the scalp.

Most women actually are fatter headed than men.

New Self-Massaging Belt Reduces Waist—Easily!

Produces same results as an expert masseur, but far quicker, easier and less expensive. Substitutes good, solid, normal tissue for that bulky, useless, disfiguring fat, yet does it so gently that you hardly know it is there.

Science has found a delightfully easy way to quickly remove fat and obtain a normal waistline—without straining your heart with violent gymnastics or weakening your system by starving.

Formerly those who wished to reduce without dieting or strenuous exercise had to go to a professional masseur. His method effectively dislodged the fat and brought about the desired reduction. But it was expensive and time-consuming, and so few could take advantage of it.

Remarkable New Invention

But now a wonderful new invention brings this same effective method within the reach of all. The Weil Scientific Reducing Belt uses this same massage principle, acting by means of its specially prepared and scientifically fitted rubber. It is so constructed that as you wear it, every breath you take and every movement you make imparts a constant, gentle massage to every inch of the abdomen. Working for you in this way every second, day and night, it reduces much more rapidly than ordinary massage, saving both time and money.

Actually Removes Fat

It does not merely draw in your waist and make you appear thinner. It actually takes off the fat. Within a few weeks you find 4 to 6 inches gone from your waistline. At the same time all your stomach disorders, constipation, backaches and shortness of breath disappear, as the sagging internal organs are put back in normal place. Man or woman, you are filled with a wonderful new energy, and both look and feel 10 to 15 years younger.

The Weil Belt is used by hundreds of professional athletes and jockeys because it not only reduces quickly, but at the same time preserves their strength. Highly endorsed for its healthful principles by physicians everywhere. Satisfaction guaranteed or your money back without question.

Write today for full description. If you write at once you can also get in on a Special Reduced Price Offer being made for a limited time. Mail coupon today to THE WEIL COMPANY, 665 Hill Street, New Haven, Conn.

As shown above, every move of your body walking, climbing stairs—merely breathing as you sit—causes the Weil Belt to massage your abdomen. It is working for you every second.

THAT POTATO PATCH AFFAIR

By JANE CORBY

Garden sets and circles are pretty highly stirred
About a lot of different things that have been said and heard.
It seems that all the new Potatoes feel a little hot—
They think they should have been invited to a party, and were not.

It was a grand affair, as Mrs. May Flower had intended,
And all the blooms of any prominence this spring attended.
But not a single vegetable was asked to join the throng,
And naturally resentment rose and has grown very strong.

So, just to show that vegetables are not at all dependent
For fun upon those families which for years have been resplendent,
The new Potato People had a party of their own,
And they tacked a sign upon the fence: "For Vegetables Alone"

The list of guests included Mrs. Carrot, who was wed
To Mr. Carrot just last fall; she wore upon her head
A striking bunch of plumes—so graceful!—and a brilliant green.
Young Mrs. Fern (outside the fence) was envious, it was seen.

Grandma and Grandpa Tater had to come; plain folks they are.
Of course, but they're substantial, if not quite spectacular.
Grandma just wore her cap, and Grandpa just would bring his pipe.
And they both sat in a sunny spot and talked—they are that type.

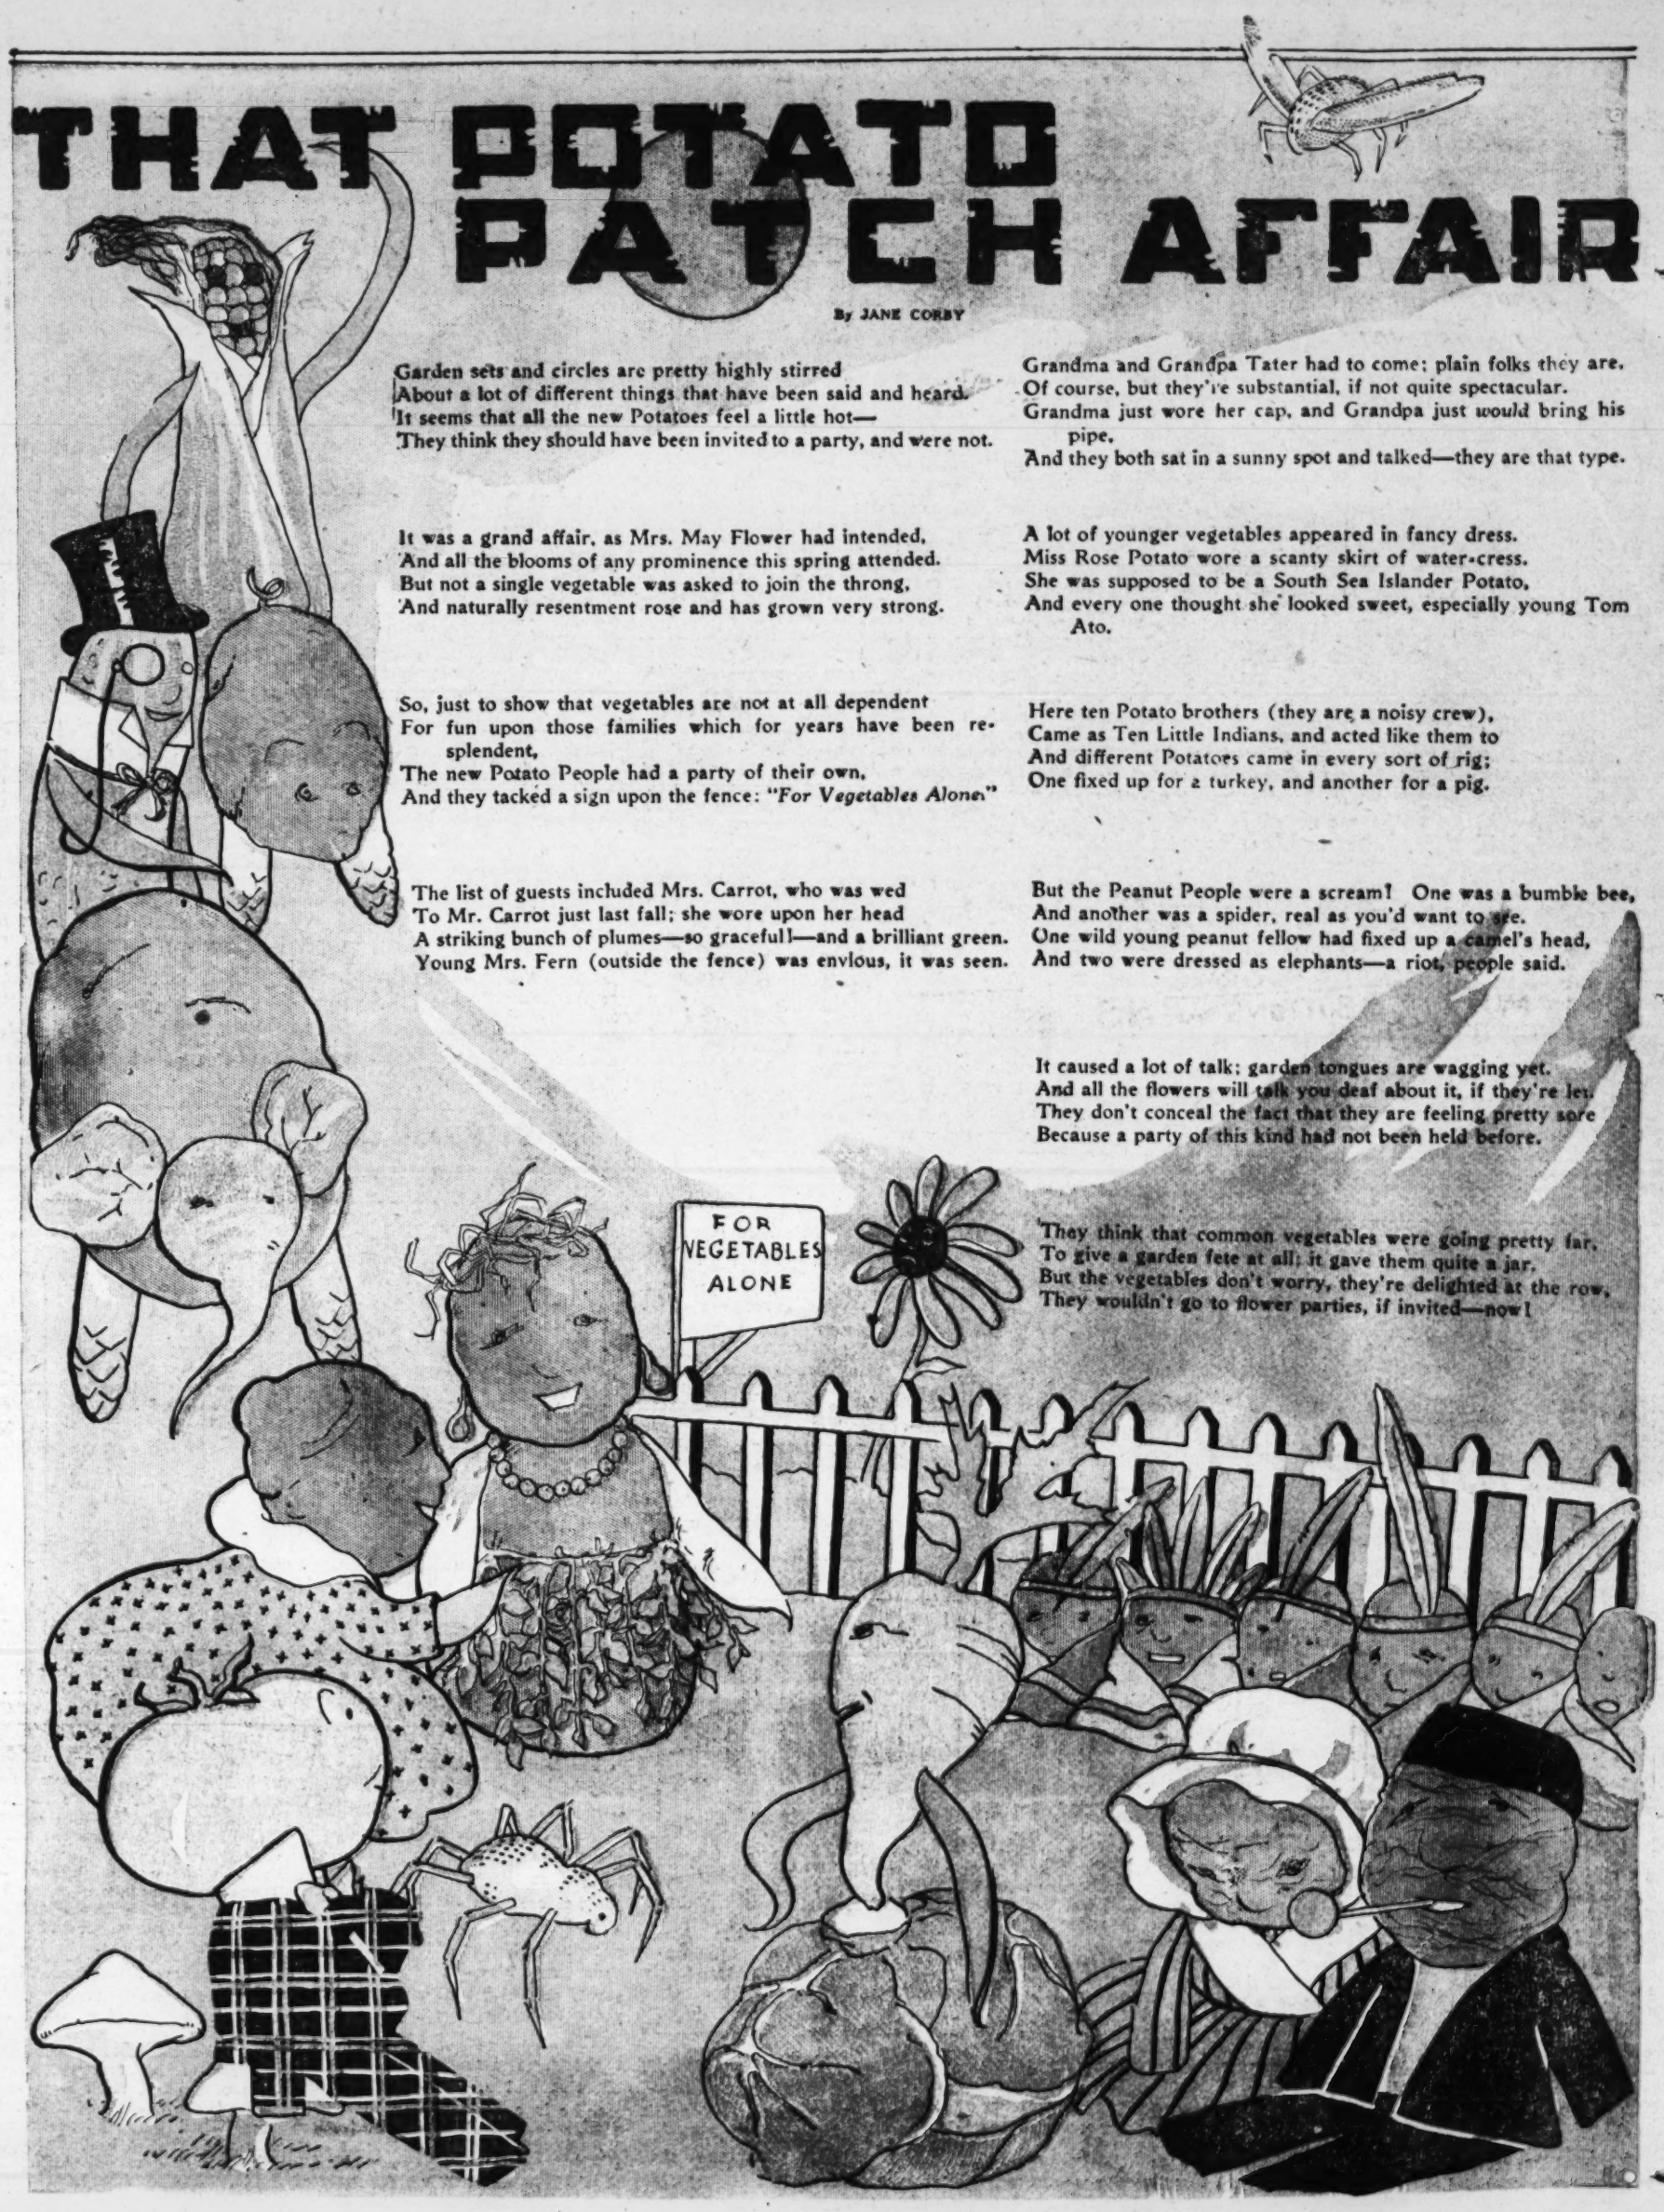

A lot of younger vegetables appeared in fancy dress.
Miss Rose Potato wore a scanty skirt of water-cress.
She was supposed to be a South Sea Islander Potato,
And every one thought she looked sweet, especially young Tom Ato.

Here ten Potato brothers (they are a noisy crew), Came as Ten Little Indians, and acted like them to
And different Potatoes came in every sort of rig;
One fixed up for a turkey, and another for a pig.

But the Peanut People were a scream! One was a bumble bee,
And another was a spider, real as you'd want to see.
One wild young peanut fellow had fixed up a camel's head,
And two were dressed as elephants—a riot, people said.

It caused a lot of talk; garden tongues are wagging yet.
And all the flowers will talk you deaf about it, if they're let.
They don't conceal the fact that they are feeling pretty sore
Because a party of this kind had not been held before.

They think that common vegetables were going pretty far,
To give a garden fete at all; it gave them quite a jar.
But the vegetables don't worry, they're delighted at the row,
They wouldn't go to flower parties, if invited—now!

EDDIE COLLINS

Answers Boys' Baseball Questions

Have You Ever Been Seriously Hurt in a Ball Game?

By Eddie Collins (Written Exclusively for This Page.)

When Edward Trowbridge (Eddie) Collins enlisted in the United States Marines in August, 1918, after finishing out his season with the White Sox, he said that the Boches had better not try to steal any bases on him or he'd show 'em what a second bagger was good for.

For a period now of over 17 years, during which time I have seen the curtain rung down on 18 American League seasons, I have experienced but one serious injury on the ball field. That one only kept me out of uniform for sixteen days, and during that season I played in 132 of the 154 scheduled games. That injury took place on July 1, 1911, in Washington, and occurred as follows: Walter Johnson hit a fly in short right field, in the pursuit of which Murphy and I collided. As a result my left arm was dislocated at the elbow and I was forced to take a rest. With the exception of occasional cuts, spike wounds and a sprained ankle at rare intervals, none of which have caused my absence from the game for a period of more than a couple of days, I have been able to average about 150 games every year since I became a regular in 1909, exclusive of the years 1918 and 1919, when season was curtailed because of the war, up until last year. On July 1 again, apparently an unlucky day for me, I twisted my knee while fielding a ball in St. Louis. This incapacitated me for about five days, when unwisely I attempted to play again, and aggravated the injury. A rest of about another week restored me O. K., much to my own relief, and I have been all right ever since.

How Did You Come to Play Second Base?

As far back as the time I was in school and in college, I always played at shortstop. The first summer I played semi-pro ball I played in the same position, so when I came to the Athletics I was first tried out at shortstop. But as I recall it, from all accounts my debut was not an auspicious one. However, I do remember with considerable pride that the first time I ever went to bat in the major league I got a base hit, and against no lesser personage than Ed Walsh, the spitball king. My work at short was very erratic, and if it had not been for the patience of Connie Mack, I don't know where I might have been now. He retained me for a full season on the bench entirely, but I practiced and learned under his careful observation, and after several unsuccessful attempts at outfielding, at third and short again, an injury to Danny Murphy in the fall of 1908 gave me my chance to fill in at second base. I guess that must be my logical position, because I have held my job and never played in any other position since.

Some Facts About The Match Industry

If all the matches used in the world in one day were placed end to end they would reach to the moon and ten thousand miles beyond. Think how important these baby explosive bombs are in the everyday business of the world.

American matches are usually made of pine wood cut in a round shape. In Europe they are made of aspen and cut square. Sheets of aspen wood can be dried artificially in a couple of hours and made into matches within the next hour. Thus three hours may see a change from an aspen log to a few hundred or more boxes of matches. But pine has to be allowed to stand for a couple of years before it is sufficiently seasoned to be made up.

There is more involved in the matter of dipping match sticks into the fire-producing solution that makes the head than one might suppose. Match heads are really the product of much chemical research. For instance, people like their matches a cheerful color, so the chemical has to be dyed a pleasant blue or red. They must be double tip, capable of being lit on any surface—a wall, a stove, your shoe. They must not leave a streak or scratch after them. They must not be noisy and pop up at the person using them.

The matches must be made so they will not flash up too soon. They must have no sharp edges, but must be smooth and oval so the heads will not rub against one another in people's pockets and light on each other. They must be fairly waterproof and windproof, and must burn without smoke or odor.

Practical Education

A keen-eyed mountaineer led his overgrown son into a country schoolhouse. "This here boy's arter larnin'," he announced. "What's yer bill o' fare?"

"My department, sir," replied the professor, "consists of arithmetic, algebra, geometry and trigonometry."

"That'll do," interrupted the old man, "load him up with triggernometry. He's the only poor shot in the family."

"Nice mule you have there, Rastus. Ever kick you?"

"No sah, but that there mule he frequently kicks the place wha' I recently was."

Today's Picture Puzzle

John was teasing the organ grinder's monkey which sat on the organ. As John walked completely around the organ the angry monkey turned and kept his face toward the boy. Did John walk around the monkey?

My, look at him buck! Just as his fat master, MR. STEW PID, trotted SANCHO out to do some tricks for you he starts to jump and kick. Isn't that just like a donkey? Color Sancho a light brown or gray. The wagon red with yellow wheels and yellow shafts. STEW PID'S pants are green, his vest red, his shirt blue and his stockings yellow. Also give him a yellow hat. Make plume which Sancho is wearing a bright red and his harness a blue. Stripe the ball and the tub any way you like best. Seems to me the CIRCUS people are careless about leaving these things around. Just suppose STEW PID fell out of the wagon?

SOME SIGHTSEEING TRIPS WITH THE BIRDS

"Is this 'Alice Through the Looking Glass,'" you ask, "or 'The Cat and the Canary?'" Neither, little ones, it's Molly, the president of the S. P. C. A. Molly has an umbrella on her nose while Hopey has a powder puff on hers. This canary has learned to talk like a parrot and likes crackers, too. Once she got fresh and made a wise crack at Molly. "Talk about sightseeing trips, old gal, you're the funniest sight I've seen in weeks."

SOME OF OUR WOODPECKERS

The Ivory-billed, twenty inches in length, is the largest Woodpecker. It is at the top right. Black with a white stripe down each side of the neck, and white showing on the wing when it flies, its bright spot is the red crest on its head. The female Ivory-bill is just like the male except that her crest is black. Both have long ivory-white beaks. So shy is this bird that when man approaches, it disappears.

The Red-headed Woodpecker, top, left, has a reputation for eating cherries and apples off the trees. But he is a greater help than hindrance on a fruit farm, for he destroys great numbers of insects that would harm the trees, making his nest there and boring for beetles just outside his front door. As his name would indicate, he has a red head and a black and white body.

The Three-toed Woodpecker, right, below, has two toes in front and one behind. On the head of the male is an orange-yellow crest. His home is in Canada and the northern United States. He is very similar to the somewhat larger Arctic Three-toed Woodpecker, which doesn't really live in the Arctic, but is found in the spruce and balsam forests of the north.

The Downy Woodpecker, left, below, is only six inches long. He is a smaller and more common edition of the Hairy Woodpecker. He is one of the most valuable woodpeckers, for he destroys great numbers of beetles, their eggs and larvae. His progress up a tree is accomplished with "hitches" up the trunk, beating a loud tattoo as he pounds away at his work. About six white eggs are laid in a dead tree in May. This bird is black and white except for a red "ribbon" on the top of his head.

THE MUFFIN MAKING ARTIST

"Mother," cried Ruth, breaking in the door, "Mr. Millet, who has a studio up on the avenue, saw one of my sketches when he visited school today. He believes I have talent and wants to see more of my work. I asked him to come over at five this afternoon to look at my portfolio."

"Why, he's a real celebrity!" exclaimed Mrs. Parker. "If we treat him cordially and he approves of your work, he may take you as a pupil."

"Exactly! Now don't you think it would be nice if we had something to eat?" Ruth looked at her sister Beth.

"Yes," Mrs. Parker agreed. "Beth, run out to the kitchen and stir up some muffins. You'll barely have time before Mr. Millet comes. And I think he'd like some of that hot chocolate you make so well. Now do your best, dear. This is a great occasion for your clever sister."

"That's always the way," thought Beth as she washed the raisins. "I have to wait on the talented Ruth. Everybody admires her because she can draw. It's too bad I can't do anything but be the family cook!"

The muffins were done to a golden brown when the doorbell rang. Beth poured the chocolate and put a plate of her popovers on the tea table in the library while Mr. Millet took off his coat in the hall. Then she crept away to the kitchen to wash the muffin pans.

"Muffins with raisins!" exclaimed the artist as Mrs. Parker served him. "And hot besides! Really, they are excellent!" He drank his chocolate with relish. "And who is it that is such a fine cook?"

"My daughter Beth," smiled Mrs. Parker.

"Then will she not come in and receive my compliments?"

Beth was so surprised to be called in before the company that she forgot to take off her apron. But the artist seemed to be only more delighted than ever. The sincerity of his praise was proved by the way he allowed his plate to be replenished with muffins and jam. Ruth fingered her portfolio nervously, but decided not to mention her work until he called for it. Finally, when the last muffin was gone, the man sat back in his chair and looked serious.

"You have a talented daughter, Mrs. Parker," he began.

"We always felt that Ruth had considerable ability," rejoined the mother.

"Ruth? Ah, yes, the one who is going to show me her portfolio." He reached for the drawings, glancing quickly through the plot. "I was thinking, when I spoke, of Beth, who provided the refreshments. Now these drawings show promise and I think I might take Ruth as a pupil. They are fairly good sketches, but—" his eye fell on the crumbs on the muffin plate, and he pounded his chair arm in emphasis, "Those were the best muffins I ever ate!"

An Old Legend of the First Indian Peace Pipe

The Indian tribes of O-jib-weh, Ottawah and Pottawatomie were one time at war. So deadly were the foes, that if a member of one tribe had spied on one of the other, it would have meant a battle to the death. Now it chanced one night that the three mighty chiefs of these nations each went out into the forest for a few hours of meditation and rest. It was very dark so none of the three observed the moccasined approach of the other.

In the center of the forest stood a giant oak tree with four enormous roots, one growing toward the north, one toward the south, one east and one west. Now as the each from the direction of his own land, they paused between the high root walls of the tree and each prepared himself a bed on his side without the knowledge of anybody else's being there.

The three slept till dawn when an angel messenger appeared and wakened them from their slumbers. The angel ordered the Pottawatomie to fill his pipe and light it. When the old chief was told to pass his pipe on to an enemy on the next side of the tree he was filled with surprise and anger. But one did not dare dispute the command of an angel from the Great Spirit, so the chief gave the pipe to his neighbor, who smoked it, then offered it to the third. When each in turn had smoked the pipe of peace, they agreed that old hatreds were forgotten and that the Indian wars were at an end. Then the angel said that some day a white man should come to fill the gap on the fourth side of the tree and that the three tribes must extend the peace pipe to him in order that his followers would be at home among their red brothers.

The oak tree, since that day, has been the national tree of the three Indian tribes. Eventually the white man came, but not for many centuries, for this all happened nineteen hundred years ago.

Wood for Postage Stamps

How many postage stamps in a tree? That is a question to ask the government which probably has records of the number of stamps issued in a year and the number of logs it took to produce the paper on which to print the stamps.

In a single year in the United States more than half a hundred acres of big, tall spruce trees are felled to produce the wood pulp necessary for the making of the nation's postage stamps. Estimate the number of stamps in a spruce tree, then count the number of trees to an acre and multiply one by the other. Then multiply the result by fifty to get the number of acres and there you have worked out the problem for yourself without the trouble of asking Uncle Sam for the answer.

PRECIOUS JEWELS

China's Favorite Gem

Jade is not usually counted among the precious stones, yet to the Chinese and Japanese it is the most valuable of all gems, in fact, they measure the value of all other stones in terms of jade. The Chinese say jade is a combination of the five cardinal virtues, Jin, charity; Gi, modesty; Yu, courage; Ketsu, justice, and Chi, wisdom. They carve it most exquisitely in elaborate and fragile designs, for it is no harder than ordinary glass and so is not difficult to work upon. It is frequently used for carvings of the figures of Chinese gods.

Jade includes two stones which are very similar in appearance, greenstone and jadeite. Both are fibrous and tough and greenish. Greenstone, or nephrite, as it is usually called, is the more common and less valuable of the two. When examined under the microscope, it is found to be made of a great many hard fibres closely matted together. The color varies from a sort of gray to leaf and dark green, the color being darker when iron, which is one of the minerals in it, is present in a large quantity.

Jadeite is much more highly prized by Chinese than ordinary nephrite. It takes a greasy lustre when it is polished. The color varies from white to an emerald green. The finest is found lying in dark green, ribbon-like formations in boulders in Burmah. It is prized almost as much as the costly rubies which you will recall pour out of Burmah's mines and are carried away by caravan. All the Burmah jade is sent to China to be made into Chinese jewelry.

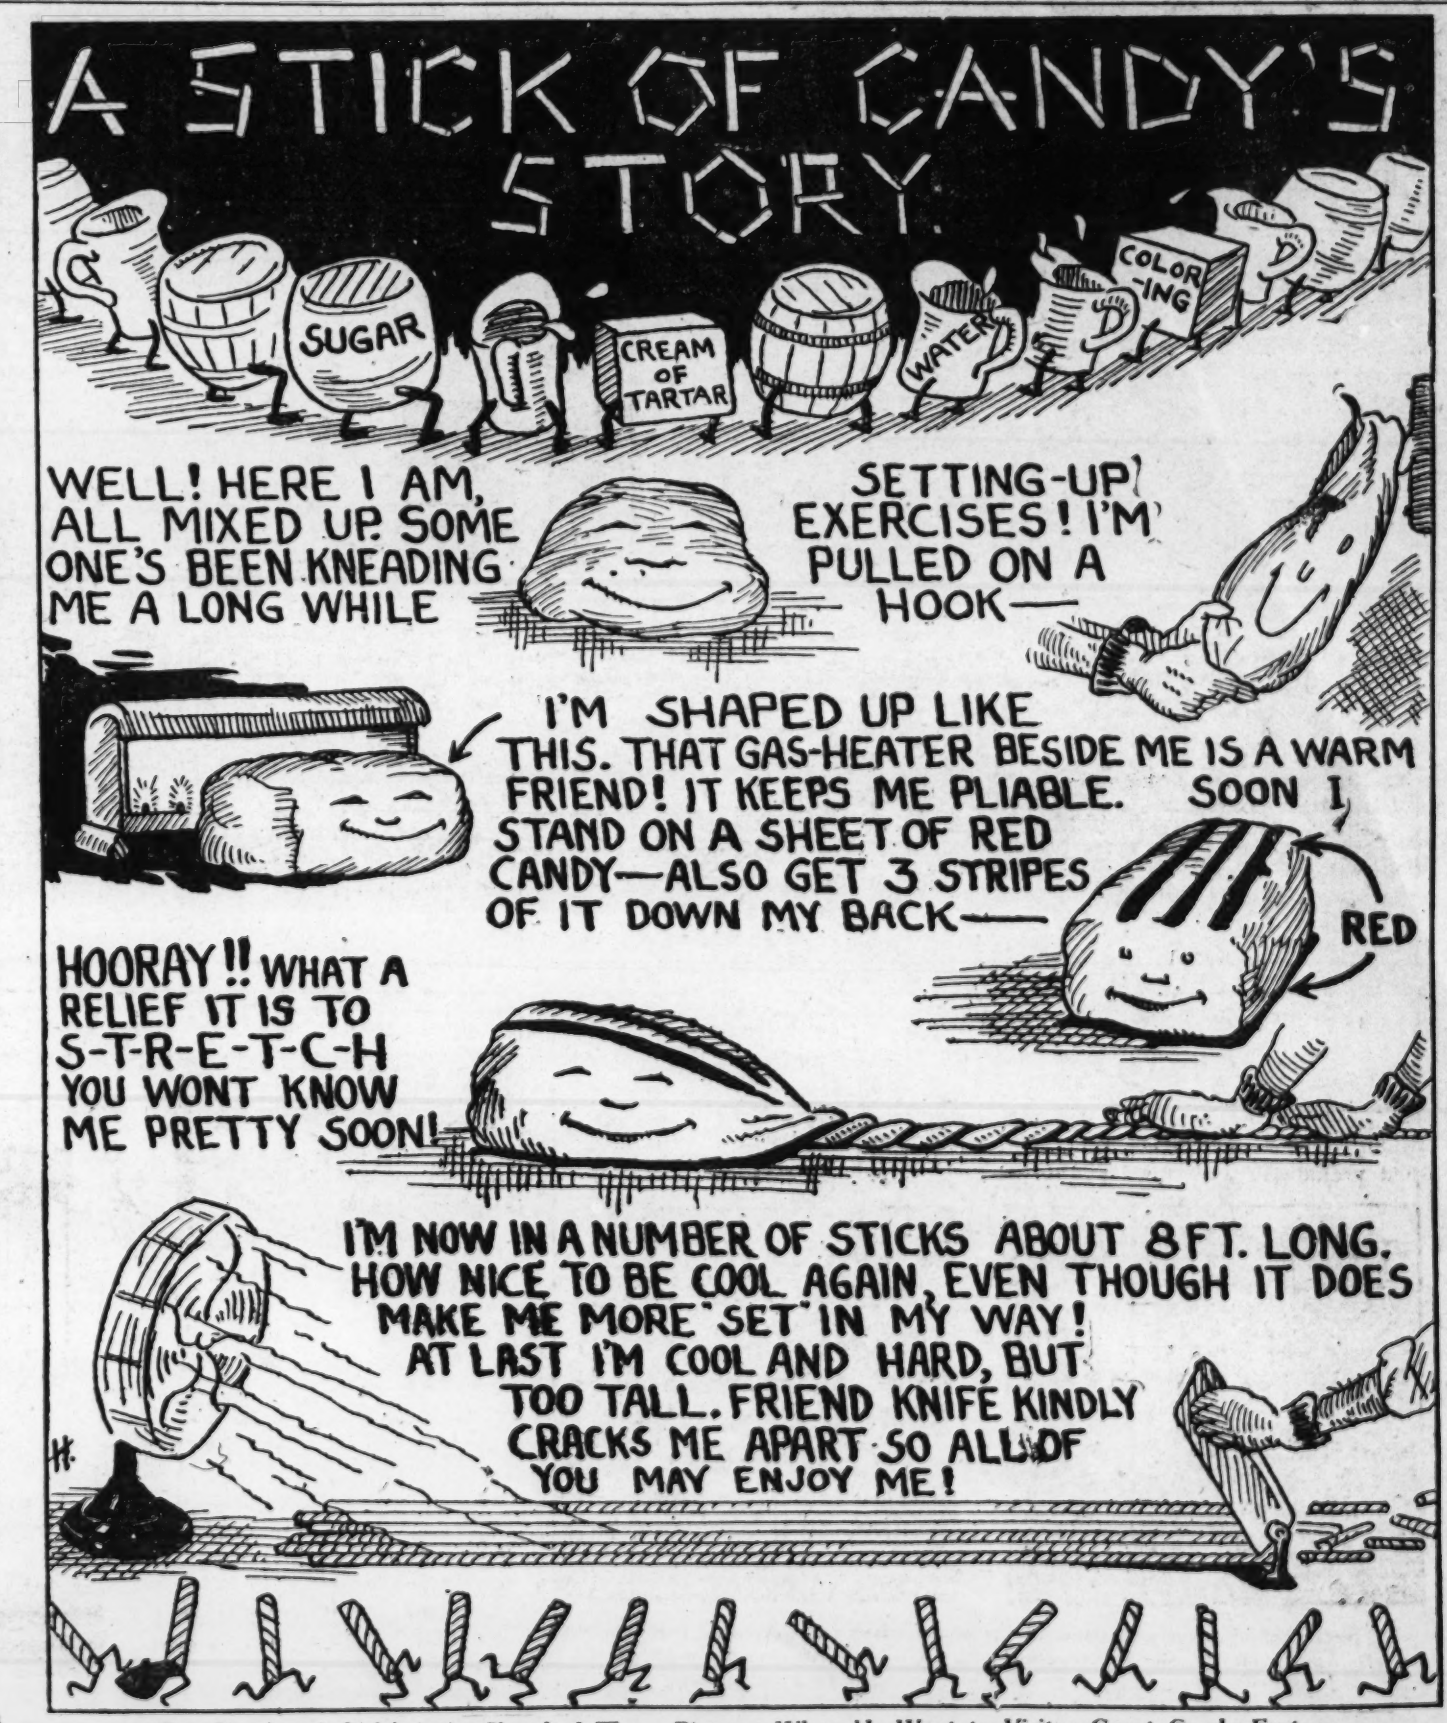

In New Zealand jade is used for a breast ornament called the tiki, and also for the particular club called the pattoo-pattoo. The stone itself is not called jade there, but is known as punumu, meaning greenstone. These ornaments are sometimes imported to this country for charms.

An Unusual Easter Celebration

THE BETHEL, GA., BAPTIST Sunday school float in the "Easter on Wheels" celebration at Sparta, Ga., on Easter Sunday. This was probably the most unique affair of its kind ever held in the south. The parade was made up of a number of beautiful floats from the Baptist, Presbyterian and Methodist churches. The procession was headed by a band playing religious music.

Genuine Orange Blossom Rings

Exquisitely feminine are the engagement and bride's wedding rings while the groom's ring is rugged, substantial and quite correct.

The delightful similarity of these three rings is in accord with society's latest decree.

Your Most Valuable Assets are Not Transferable

YOUR most valuable assets are your experience, your knowledge of business conditions and the business instinct that you have acquired from a lifetime of daily contact with other business men.

You can transfer to your wife or family your real estate, your stocks and bonds. But you cannot transfer to any one the ability that enabled you to accumulate that property and that enables you to foresee changing conditions that will affect investments already made.

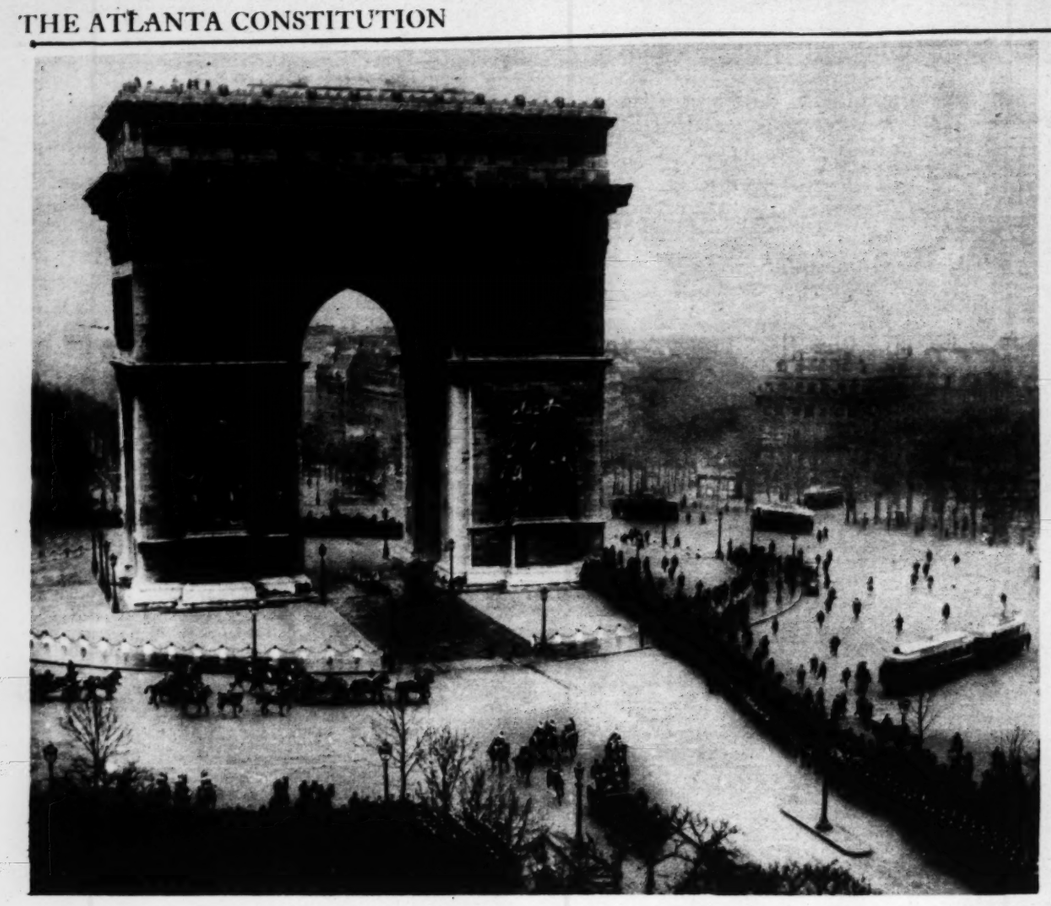

Your wife may have had some business experience. Modern women have many advantages denied their mothers, but it is most unfair to expect her to exercise the same experienced judgment that has so often enabled you to turn an apparent loss into a profit.

Arrange your affairs so that after your death your wife will have the benefit of unbiased, competent advice. Let the final decision be hers, if you like, but make sure that experienced advice is given her before she makes new investments.

The Trust Department of the Citizens & Southern Bank has been named as co-executor for many estates, and we will gladly discuss with you the possible advantages of such an arrangement.

Now is the Time to Get Rid of These Ugly Spots

There's no longer the slightest need of feeling ashamed of your freckles, as Othine—double strength—is guaranteed to remove these homely spots.

Simply get an ounce of Othine from any druggist and apply a little of it night and morning and you should soon see that even the worst freckles have begun to disappear, while the lighter ones have vanished entirely. It is seldom that more than an ounce is needed to completely clear the skin and gain a beautiful, clear complexion.

Be sure to ask for the double-strength Othine, as this is sold under guarantee of money back if it fails to remove freckles.

8 Women in 10
of the better class have adopted this new way of solving their oldest hygienic problem

BY ELLEN J. BUCKLAND, Graduate Nurse

CHARM, immaculacy, exquisiteness. Peace of mind under circumstances impossible a short time ago . . . . and better health. These, modern science is bringing to women everywhere.

Correcting a bad habit

80% of the lack of charm, the loss of the immaculacy expected of a woman, according to hygienic authorities, is due to the common use of makeshift "sanitary pads." There is one secret every woman wants to keep.

60% of many ills common to women, according to numerous medical authorities, are due to the same cause. Using these unsanitary ways is a bad habit.

* * *

Millions have turned to a new way. Foremost doctors advise it. Eight in every ten women in the better walks of life have adopted it.

Charm, immaculacy, exquisiteness, under all circumstances, is one reason. Greater respect of self, better health is another.

This new way is called KOTEX—a discovery of a nurse in war time France. It supplants the old time sanitary pad.

Made of Cellucotton—the war's super-absorbent — it absorbs 16 times its own weight in moisture.

Hygienically prepared, it does not invite the germs of disease to breed and multiply. Hence it is important in modern health precaution.

No trouble disposing of

It is as easily disposed of as a piece of tissue—simply discard it. No embarrassment, no difficulty.

Women who seek daintiness, peace of mind, exquisiteness and safety under all circumstances, use it. Once you do, no other method will ever satisfy. And millions will tell you this.

All drug and department stores have KOTEX in plain packages. Get it without embarrassment simply by saying "Kotex." 12 snowy white, immaculate folds, in the medium package.

I would like to send you a new book for women on this subject, written by a doctor. Just write for it. And if you have never tried KOTEX, I will be glad to send you a sample free. Write today for book or sample to
